INTRODUCTION

The Senate Committee on Finance has scheduled a committee markup on February 11, 2015, of a proposal to create a credit for military spouses who incur costs related to transferring a professional license or certification as the result of a permanent change of duty station order issued to a military service member. This document,¹ prepared by the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation, provides a description of the proposal.

A. Credit for Costs Incurred by Military Spouses Transferring Professional Licenses or Certifications as a Result of a Permanent Change of Duty Station Order Issued to a Military Service Member

Present Law

Currently, there are no credits or special benefits for costs incurred by military spouses for transferring professional licenses or certifications arising by reason of a permanent change of duty station of a military service member.

Description of Proposal

The proposal allows a credit to military spouses of up to $500 for each change of duty station for qualified relicensing costs. Eligible individuals are those who are married to and move with a member of the Armed Forces of the United States at the time the member moves to another State under a permanent change of station order. Qualified relicensing costs are costs required by the new State for a license or certification to engage in the same profession as in the previous State. Costs must be paid or incurred beginning after the change order has been issued and within one year from the reporting date.

Effective Date

The proposal is effective for payments received in taxable years beginning after December 31, 2014.

C. Increase Continuous Levy Authority on Payments to Medicare Providers and Suppliers

Present Law

In general

Levy is the administrative authority of the IRS to seize a taxpayer's property, or rights to property, to pay the taxpayer's tax liability.² Generally, the IRS is entitled to seize a taxpayer's property by levy if a Federal tax lien has attached to such property,³ the property is not exempt from levy,⁴ and the IRS has provided both notice of intention to levy⁵ and notice of the right to an administrative hearing (the notice is referred to as a "collections due process notice" or "CDP notice" and the hearing is referred to as the "CDP hearing")⁶ at least 30 days before the levy is made. A levy on salary or wages generally is continuously in effect until released.⁷ A Federal tax lien arises automatically when: (1) a tax assessment has been made; (2) the taxpayer has been given notice of the assessment stating the amount and demanding payment; and (3) the taxpayer has failed to pay the amount assessed within 10 days after the notice and demand.⁸

The notice of intent to levy is not required if the Secretary finds that collection would be jeopardized by delay. The standard for determining whether jeopardy exists is similar to the standard applicable when determining whether assessment of tax without following the normal deficiency procedures is permitted.⁹

The CDP notice (and pre-levy CDP hearing) is not required if: (1) the Secretary finds that collection would be jeopardized by delay; (2) the Secretary has served a levy on a State to collect a Federal tax liability from a State tax refund; (3) the taxpayer subject to the levy requested a CDP hearing with respect to unpaid employment taxes arising in the two-year period before the beginning of the taxable period with respect to which the employment tax levy is served; or (4) the Secretary has served a Federal contractor levy. In each of these four cases,

² Sec. 6331(a). Levy specifically refers to the legal process by which the IRS orders a third party to turn over property in its possession that belongs to the delinquent taxpayer named in a notice of levy.

³ Ibid.

⁴ Sec. 6334.

⁵ Sec. 6331(d).

⁶ Sec. 6330. The notice and the hearing are referred to collectively as the CDP requirements.

⁷ Secs. 6331(e) and 6343.

⁸ Sec. 6321.

⁹ Secs. 6331(d)(3) and 6861.

however, the taxpayer is provided an opportunity for a hearing within a reasonable period of time after the levy.¹⁰

Federal payment levy program

To help the IRS collect taxes more effectively, the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997¹¹ authorized the establishment of the Federal Payment Levy Program (“FPLP”), which allows the IRS to continuously levy up to 15 percent of certain “specified payments” by the Federal government if the payees are delinquent on their tax obligations. With respect to payments to vendors of goods, services, or property sold or leased to the Federal government, the continuous levy may be up to 100 percent of each payment.¹² For payments to Medicare providers and suppliers, the levy is up to 15 percent for payments made within 180 days after December 19, 2014. For payments made after that date, the levy is up to 30 percent.¹³

Under FPLP, the IRS matches its accounts receivable records with Federal payment records maintained by the Department of the Treasury’s Bureau of Fiscal Service (“BFS”), such as certain Social Security benefit and Federal wage records. When these records match, the delinquent taxpayer is provided both the notice of intention to levy and the CDP notice. If the taxpayer does not respond after 30 days, the IRS can instruct the BFS to levy the taxpayer’s Federal payments. Subsequent payments are continuously levied until such time that the tax debt is paid or the IRS releases the levy.

Description of Proposal

The proposal provides that the present limitation of 30 percent of certain specified payments be increased by an amount sufficient to offset the estimated revenue loss of the provision described in Part A, above.

Effective Date

The proposal is effective for payments made after 180 days after the date of enactment.
