"(D)(i) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), this subsection shall not apply to a transfer of a resource to a trust if the portion of the trust attributable to such resource is considered a resource available to the individual pursuant to subsection (e)(3) (or would be so considered, but for the application of subsection (e)(4)).

"(ii) In the case of a trust established by an individual (within the meaning of paragraph (2)(A) of subsection (e)), if from such portion of the trust (if any) that is considered a resource available to the individual pursuant to paragraph (3) of such subsection (or would be so considered but for the application of paragraph (2) of such subsection) or the residue of such portion upon the termination of the trust—

"(I) there is made a payment other than to or for the benefit of the individual, or

"(II) no payment could under any circumstance be made to the individual, then the payment described in subclause (I) or the foreclosure of payment described in subclause (II) shall be considered a disposal of resources by the individual subject to this subsection, as of the date of such payment or foreclosure, respectively.

"(i) inform such individual of the provisions of paragraph (1) providing for a period of ineligibility for benefits under this title for individuals who make certain dispositions of resources for less than fair market value, and inform such individual that information obtained pursuant to clause (ii) will be made available to the State agency administering a State plan under title XXI (as provided in subparagraph (B)); and

"(ii) obtain from such individual information which may be used in determining whether or not a period of ineligibility for such benefits would be required by reason of paragraph (1).

"(B) The Commissioner of Social Security shall make the information obtained under subparagraph (A)(ii) available, on request, to any State agency administering a State plan approved under title XXI.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 2491) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 105 of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1996, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

TITLE I—AGRICULTURE

(Numbers in parentheses refer to the section numbers of the provisions in the House Bill (H), the Senate Amendment (S), and the Conference Report (CR))

The Managers on the part of the House and the Senate on title I of the bill met to resolve a number of issues in disagreement between the House Bill and the Senate Amendment. A number of provisions agreed to by the Managers are included in the Conference Substitute. However, a number of provisions that were agreed to by the Managers were subsequently removed from the Conference Substitute pursuant to the Manager's agreement that provisions potentially violative of section 313 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, commonly referred to as the "Byrd Rule", be removed from the Conference Substitute.

The Byrd Rule provides, in pertinent part, that during Senate debate on a reconciliation conference report, any Senator may make a point of order against extraneous material that, if sustained, will result in the extraneous material being stricken and result in the Conference Report being sent back to the House. The Rule also provides guidance as to what constitutes extraneous matter in a reconciliation conference report.

SUBTITLE A—AGRICULTURAL MARKET TRANSITION PROGRAM

DEFINITIONS (H. , S. , CR. 1102)

The House Bill authorized the Secretary to enter into a 7-year market transition contract (1996 to 2002) with eligible owners and operators on a farm containing eligible farmland. The land on the farm must have been enrolled in 1 or more of the annual upland cotton, rice, feed grain, or wheat programs, or contain considered planted acreage, for a total of at least 1 of the 1991 through 1995 crop years to be eligible for a Freedom to Farm contract.

The Senate Amendment required that the land on a farm must have been enrolled in 1 or more of the annual upland cotton, rice, feed grain, or wheat programs, or contain considered planted acreage, for a total of at least 3 of the 1991 through 1995 crop years to participate in an annual commodity program in calendar years 1996–2002.

The Conference Substitute amends the House provision and establishes the 1996 contract acreage and payment yield as the 1996 crop acreage base and yield that would have been established under the Agriculture Act of 1949 (that is repealed, except that certain of its provisions are inserted in the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938). To be eligible for a production flexibility contract, the land on a farm must have been enrolled in 1 or more of the annual upland cotton, rice, feed grain, or wheat programs, or contain considered planted acreage, for a total of at least 1 of the 1991 through 1995 crop years on the farm.

PRODUCTION FLEXIBILITY CONTRACTS (H. , S. , CR 1103)

The House Bill describes the terms owner and operator as those eligible to enter into contracts, and instructs the Secretary to provide adequate safeguards to protect the interests of operators who are tenants and sharecroppers. The bill establishes a contract system of guaranteed annual payments to owners and operators over fiscal years 1996–2002 that describes eligible farmland as that which contains a crop acreage base, at least a portion of which was enrolled in the acreage reduction programs for the major farm program crops (wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice) during one of the 1991 through 1995 crop years, including zero certified considered planted acreage. Conservation reserve program (CRP) acreage that contains crop acreage base was made eligible for transfer into a Freedom to Farm contract.

The yearly spending limits under the House bill are derived by scoring all the deficiency payments made to producers during crop years 1991–1995 based on budget baseline spending for the farm commodities and then adjusting them by subtracting payments made in fiscal years 1996 and 1997 based on payments due producers based on their 1994 and 1995 programs on which payment balances are due. Then, adding producer repayments of deficiency payments received by the Secretary during fiscal years 1996 and 1997; adding market transition contract payments withheld at the request of producers during the preceding fiscal year as an offset against repayments of deficiency payments otherwise due; and adding penalties assessed in market transition contracts which are refunded during the preceding fiscal year.

Individual owner and operator contract payments are determined by establishing a producer's production history, divided by the total national percentage of programs payments for the program crop, divided by the producer's yield history for the crop. The 1996 and 1997 total contract payments include the 1994 and 1995 crop deficiency payments that are to be made or are unearned and would have been refunded due to favorable market price conditions. Acreage reduction authorities are repealed and 0/50/85/92 programs are repealed.

The Senate Amendment amends Sec. 302, 303, 304 and 305 of the Agricultural Act of 1949—

(1) by reauthorizing the rice, upland cotton, feed grain and wheat programs through 2002;

(2) by increasing unpaid flex acres to 30%;

(3) by establishing a maximum deficiency payment rate based on the February, 1995 Congressional Budget Office baseline for deficiency payments;

(4) by eliminating the authority to impose acreage reduction requirements;

(5) by retaining current law provisions regarding haying and grazing;

(6) in the 0/85 option for feed grains and rice by (1) paying on 85% of the payment acres devoted to conserving uses, planted to alternative crops, reduced yields, and oilseeds options, and (2) terminating 0/85 payments for prevented planting;

(7) in the 50/85 option for Rice by (1) changing the 50% minimum planting requirement to 25%, (2) paying on 75% of the payment acres devoted to conserving uses or planted to alternative crops instead of 85%, (3) paying on 75% of the payment acres for reduced yields, and oilseeds options, and (4) terminating 0/85 payments for prevented planting;

(8) in the 50/85 option for upland cotton by (1) eliminating the 50% minimum planting requirement, (2) by paying on 85% of the payment acres devoted to conserving uses, planted to alternative crops, reduced yields, and oilseeds options, and (3) terminating 0/85 payments for prevented planting;

(9) by terminating the 8 month nonrecourse loan extension for upland cotton; and

(10) by requiring producers to pay the storage costs for upland cotton put under loan.

The Conference Substitute adopts the House provision with an amendment to establish a 7-year production flexibility contract. Contract holders must comply with existing conservation compliance and wetlands protection regulations, and planting flexibility restrictions. Contracts are to be entered into by April 15, 1996, and will extend through the 2002 crop. (Land may be enrolled in a contract after this date if it is covered by a Conservation Reserve Contract which expires or is voluntarily terminated by a producer after April 15, 1996.)

Annual payments are to be made by September 30 of each year, with an advance payment of 50% payable to the producer, at his or her option, not later than December 15 of the previous calendar year. (For the 1996 crops, however, the advance is to be paid within 60 days of the date the producer signs his or her contract.)

Total payments under all contracts are established at levels derived from the February 1995 Congressional Budget Office budget baseline estimate of 1996–2002 crop deficiency payments. Each year, 46.22% of the payments are to be made for corn, 5.11% for grain sorghum, 2.16% for barley, 0.15% for oats, 26.26% for wheat, 11.63% for upland cotton and 8.47% for rice.

The amounts available for contract payments will be adjusted by (1) subtracting any final deficiency payments for the 1994 and 1995 crops made in fiscal years 1996 or 1997; (2) adding repayments of unearned advance deficiency payments for the 1995 crops; (3) adding amounts deducted as offsets requested by producers in lieu of repaying unearned advance deficiency payments; and (4) adding any contract payments refunded by producers who violate or cancel their contracts.

To calculate contract payments, USDA will establish a payment quantity for each contract commodity on a farm, equal to 85% of the farm's contract acreage multiplied by the farm's payment yield for that commodity. For each commodity, the payment quantity will then be multiplied by the payment rate to obtain the annual payment amount. (The payment rate is determined by dividing the total payment quantities for all contracts covering a particular commodity by the dollars available for that commodity.)

PLANTING FLEXIBILITY AND LOAN ELIGIBILITY (H. 1102, H. 1103, S. 1109, CR. 1103)

The House Bill repeals Title V of the Agricultural Act of 1949 that provided for the establishment and maintenance of program bases and yields and also provided for planting flexibility under the 1991–1995 acreage reduction programs.

The House Bill provides that for the 1996 through 2002 crop years the Freedom to Farm transition program—

(1) allows the planting of any program crop, oilseed, industrial or experimental crop, mung beans, lentils and dry peas on payment acres (historical base acres);

(2) restricts the planting of fruits or vegetables on payment acres;

(3) restricts haying and grazing on payment acres during a 5-month period between April 1 and October 31; and

(4) makes all program crop production of contract holders eligible for loan programs. (See marketing assistance loans discussed infra.)

The Senate Amendment amends Title V of the Agricultural Act of 1949—

(1) by precluding the planting of fruits or vegetables (except lentils and peas), on paid acreage of a crop acreage base (70% of historical base);

(2) by allowing full planting flexibility and unlimited haying and grazing on unpaid flex acres (30%) of a crop acreage base;

(3) by allowing the planting of wheat, feed grains, or oilseeds on all acreage on a farm with full loan eligibility;

(4) by allowing full planting flexibility on wheat or feed grain crop acreage base, without loss of base history or deficiency payments;

(5) by allowing alternate crops to be planted on up to 100% of the upland cotton or rice acreage base without loss of base history, but with loss of deficiency payments;

(6) by precluding a producer with a wheat or feed grain crop acreage base and an upland cotton or rice crop acreage base from receiving deficiency payments with respect to rice or upland cotton planted in excess of the upland cotton or rice crop acreage base;

(7) by precluding deficiency payments for rice or upland cotton if planted in excess of the crop acreage base;

(8) by allowing the receipt of loans for planting upland cotton or rice in excess of the upland cotton or rice crop acreage base on up to 25% of the historical soybean acres, or on the unpaid flex acres of a crop acreage base; and

(9) by freezing the payment yield at the 1990 level.

The Conference Substitute adopts an amendment with a Senate approach to establish contract payment acres as 85% of historical base acreage. There are no restrictions on planting or haying and grazing on non-payment acres (15% of the contract acres); haying and grazing is restricted on payment acres during the 5 principal growing months between April 1 and October 31; and planting of fruits or vegetables is not allowed on payment acres. The Conference Substitute allows the planting of any program crop, oilseed, industrial or experimental crop, mung beans, lentils and dry peas on contract acres (historical base acres). All loan commodity production on a farm of contract holders is eligible for the marketing loan program. In the case of a loan for extra long staple cotton and oilseeds, all production is eligible for a marketing loan. In addition, alfalfa may be planted on contract acreage in excess of the acreage limitation except that the payment under the owner or operator's contract will be reduced if the alfalfa acreage, taken together with acreage of fruits and vegetables and haying and grazing, exceeds 15%.

It is the intent of the Managers that the Secretary utilize random, spot-checks for verification, and rely upon producer certification to enforce the flexibility provisions.

NONRECOURSE MARKETING ASSISTANCE LOANS AND LOAN DEFICIENCY PAYMENTS (H. 1103, S. SUBTITLE A, CR. 1104)

The House Bill amends the Agriculture Act of 1949 by inserting after section 102 a new section 102A that establishes a nonrecourse marketing assistance loan for certain crops.

The House Bill in section 102A(a)(1), directs the Secretary to make nonrecourse marketing assistance loans available to eligible producers of wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, extra long staple cotton, rice, and oilseeds for each of the 1996 through 2002 crops of such commodities at a loan rate calculated at 70 percent of the simple average price received by producers during the immediately preceding five crops years (a rolling average). Loan rate adjustment authority contained in the Agricultural Act of 1949 was repealed. Such marketing assistance loans had a term of nine months, and could not be extended by the Secretary. Only a producer whose land was subject to a market transition contract was eligible for a marketing assistance loan.

New section 102A(g) provided that the Secretary could not make payments to producers to cover storage charges incurred in connection with marketing assistance loans.

Provisions were also added that converted these marketing assistance loans into marketing loans, but the Secretary was authorized to reduce the loan level below 70% if it was estimated that the Commodity Credit Corporation would assume ownership of the commodity.

The Senate Amendment extends loan and marketing loan provisions of the Agriculture Act of 1949 from 1996 through 2002, using the same formulas for calculating loan rates, adjusting rates, establishing minimum rates and determining loan repayment levels as in current law. The Senate Amendment repeals the 8-month loan extension for cotton and requires producers to prepay the storage costs for upland cotton put under loan.

The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision with an amendment that would establish a maximum loan rate at the 1995 level:

(1) Rice: $6.50/cwt
(2) Upland Cotton: $0.5192/lb
(3) Wheat: $2.58/bu
(4) Corn: $1.89/bu
(5) Soybeans: $4.92/bu
(6) ELS Cotton: $0.7965/lb

For rice and oilseeds, the Conference Substitute establishes loan rates at the 1995 level. For wheat and feed grains, the Conference Substitute extends authority to reduce loan rates because of the estimated stocks-to-use level, but does not extend authority to reduce loan rates further to maintain competitiveness. Upland cotton loan rates can move between the new cap ($0.5912) and the $0.50 per lb. floor. ELS cotton is eligible for a non-recourse loan only.

The Conference Substitute also adopts the provision to eliminate the 8-month upland cotton loan extension, but retains a 10-month upland cotton loan and does not require producers to prepay storage costs for upland cotton placed under loan.

To minimize loan forfeitures and provide for the continued effective operation of the marketing loan, the Managers expect the Secretary to extend the provisions of current regulations to provide that the upland cotton loan repayment rate is the lesser of the Adjusted World Price (AWP) or the loan principal plus accrued interest, storage and other changes. It is the intention of the Managers that the prevailing world market price for upland cotton be established in a manner that is consistent with procedures used for that purpose for 1990-1995 crops.

The House Bill amends the Agriculture Act of 1949 by repeal of 103B(5)(E), which provides marketing certificates to domestic users and exporters when the price of cotton in the U.S. exceeds the Norther European price by more than 1.25 cents per pound.

The Senate Amendment amends Sec. 103B(5)(E) of the Agricultural Act of 1949 by increasing the price trigger from 1.25 cents to 2.50 cents per pound.

The Conference Report adopts the Senate position with an amendment that retains the trigger at 1.25 cents, but prohibits the Secretary from expending in excess of $701 million on this program during fiscal years 1996-2002. Exporters participating in the Cotton User Marketing Certificate program will not be able to lock-in a certificate value until the date of export as determined by the Secretary.

The Managers intend that upon enactment, the Secretary is directed to issue regulations such that in the event this limitation is reached, the special import quota provided in paragraph (3) will be established following a consecutive four-week period in which the Friday through Thursday average price quotation for the lowest-priced United States growth, as quoted for Middling (M) one and three-thirty seconds inch cotton, delivered C.I.F. Northern Europe exceeds the Northern Europe price by more than 1.25 cents per pound.

The House Bill, section 1104(a), amends section 1001(5)(C)(i), that directs that the Secretary, in the case of payments to corporations and other entities described in section 1001(B)(i)(II), to attribute payments to individuals in proportion to their ownership interests in the corporation or entity receiving the payment, or in any other corporation or entity that has a substantial beneficial interest in the corporation or entity actually receiving the payment. The provisions of this subparagraph shall apply to individuals who hold or acquire, directly or through another corporation or entity, a substantial beneficial interest in the corporation or entity actually receiving the payment.

The House Bill amends section 1001(5)(C)(ii), that directs the Secretary, in the case of payments to corporations and other entities described in section 1001(B)(i)(II), to also attribute payments to any State (or political subdivision or agency thereof) or other corporation or entity that has a substantial beneficial interest in the corporation or entity actually receiving the payment in proportion to their ownership interests in the corporation or entity receiving the payment. The provisions of this subparagraph shall apply even if the payments are also attributable to individuals under clause (i).

The House Bill amends section 1001(5)(C)(iii), and provides that for purposes of subparagraph (C), substantial beneficial interest' means not less than five percent of all beneficial interests in the corporation or entity actually receiving the payment, except that the Secretary may set a lower percentage in order to ensure that the provisions of this section and the scheme or device provisions in section 1001B are not circumvented.

Subsection (b) of section 1104(b) amends section 1001A(a)(3) to provide that each entity or individual receiving payments as a separate person shall notify each individual or other entity that acquires or holds a substantial beneficial interest in it of the requirements and limitations of section 1001(A)(a). Each such entity or individual receiving payments shall provide to the Secretary, at such times and in such manner as prescribed by the Secretary, the name and social security number of each individual, or the name and taxpayer identification number of each entity, that holds or acquires a substantial beneficial interest. Payments are tracked by means of social security and taxpayer identification numbers.

The Senate Amendment extends current payment limitation provisions through 2002.

The Conference Report adopts the Senate provision with an amendment to reduce the maximum production flexibility payment per person for any fiscal year to $40,000. (Production flexibility payments take the place of deficiency payments in the Conference Substitute.)

The Managers expect the Secretary to utilize significant latitude and flexibility in defining and enforcing the "bona fide and substantive" change provisions of the regulations, particularly in the initial years of this new farm legislation. The Managers intend that the Secretary shall continue to use existing regulations in defining the term "person".

It is the intent of the Conferees that persons who are tenants and sharecroppers and actively engaged in farming shall be eligible for payments under Sec 1103. In effect, any farm now eligible for deficiency payments can qualify for payments under Sec. 1103, if it participated in one of the 1991-95 commodity programs.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, Sec. 1105 payment limitations shall apply to any person determined to be eligible for contract payments.

PEANUT PROGRAM (H. 1301, S. 1113, CR. 1106)

The House Bill amends—

(1) section 108 B of the Agricultural Act of 1949 by setting the quota support rate at $610 for the 1996 through 2002 crops, eliminating the price support escalator, reducing the support rate by 15% to any producer who sells peanuts to the government rather than a commercial buyer if the price is equal to greater than the support price. Reform of cross compliance procedures are achieved by segregating quota pool losses from additional pool losses and by increasing the assessment if quota pool losses remain; and

(2) section 358–1 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 by requiring reduction of quota from municipalities, airport authorities, schools, colleges, refuges and other public entities; non-resident quota holders who are not producers; and resident quota holders who are not producers; eliminating the quota minimum; allowing spring and fall sale, transfer, lease of quota across county lines; eliminating undermarketings; limiting disaster transfer payments to no more than 70% of quota support rate not to exceed 25% of total quota pounds; and by granting a temporary quota allocation to all growers equal to seed purchases.

The Senate Amendment—

(1) amends section 108B of the Agricultural Act of 1949 by reauthorizing the program through 2000 and by reducing the price support rate for quota peanuts to $628 per ton for the 1996 through 2000 crops (the price escalator is eliminated);

(2) amends section 358–1 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 by reauthorizing the section through 2000; by eliminating the poundage quota minimum; by setting the national poundage quota at a level equal to the quantity of peanuts that the Secretary estimates will be devoted in each marketing year to domestic edible and related uses, excluding peanuts used for seed on a farm, and including any stocks of peanuts on hand in the inventory of the Commodity Credit Corporation and peanuts or products of peanuts imported into the United States; by eliminating undermarketings of peanuts for the purpose of calculating quota; by establishing a temporary quota for peanuts used for seed; and

(3) amends section 358b (lease and transfer) of the Agriculture Adjustment Act of 1938 by reauthorizing the section through 2000 and allows limited sale or lease of quota across county lines.

The Conference Substitute adopts the House position to—

(1) amend section 108b Agricultural Act of 1949 to authorize the quota price support program through 2002 at $610 per ton and eliminate the price support escalator;

(2) amend section 358–1 of the Agriculture Adjustment Act of 1938 to eliminate the 1.35 million ton quota poundage floor and undermarketings;

(3) amend section 358–1 to segregate quota pool losses from additional pools and to increase assessments to cover losses if any quota pool losses remain;

(4) amend section 358–1 to establish a temporary quota for seed; and

(5) amend section 358–1(b) to limit the transfer of additional peanuts as a result of natural disaster to 25% of quota pounds at not more than 70% of the quota support rate.

The Managers agreed to include additional reforms from the House bill that: (1) would prioritize quota reduction to farms controlled by public entities and out-of-state quota holders who are not producers; (2) allow full lease, sale and transfer of quota within a state; and (3) reduce the support rate by 5% to any producer who sells peanuts to the government rather than a commercial buyer if the price is equal to or greater than support price. However, these critical reforms were subsequently deleted from the Conference Substitute in order to comply with the Byrd Rule.

SUGAR PROGRAM (H. 1302, S. 1108, CR. 1107)

The House Bill amends—

(1) section 206 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 by maintaining sugarbeet and sugarcane loan rates at 1995 levels (18/22.9). Reduces the loan rates commensurate to reduction of subsidies by the European Union and other major sugar producing countries, establishes a loan modification threshold, which triggers the non-recourse loan system, at 1.256 million short tons in FY 1996 and FY 1997. The threshold increases 3% each year. Increases current marketing assessment for cane sugar from 1.1% to 1.5% of the loan rate per pound and from 1.1794% to 1.6083% of the loan rate for beet sugar;

(2) section 359b. of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 by eliminating marketing allotments.

The Senate Amendment amends section 206 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 to—

(1) reauthorize the program through 2002;

(2) provide for a recourse loan that becomes a nonrecourse loan when the tariff rate quota for imported sugar is set to equal or exceed 1.34 million short tons;

(3) increase the marketing assessment for cane sugar to 1.375 percent of the support price beginning in FY 1997;

(4) increase the marketing assessment for beet sugar to 1.47425 percent of the support price beginning in FY 1997;

(5) extend the marketing assessment provision through FY 2002; and

(6) impose a $0.01 per pound penalty on all sugar forfeited under loan.

Sugar Marketing allotments in section 359 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 are repealed.

The Conference Substitute adopts the House approach to amend section 206 of the Agriculture Act of 1949 to set the sugar cane loan rate at $0.18 per pound, the sugar beet loan rate at $0.229 per pound and reauthorize the program through 2002. The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate approach and to provide nonrecourse loans when the tariff rate quota for imports is set greater than or equal to 1.5 million short tons, raw value. Loans are recourse if the TRQ is set below this amount.

The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision to make 9-month loans and to impose a $0.01 per pound penalty on all sugar forfeited under loan. The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision to increase the marketing assessments on sugar cane and sugar beets to 1.375 and 1.47425 percent respectively, beginning in FY 1997.

Sugar Marketing allotments in section 359 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 are repealed.

The Managers agreed to include additional important reforms in the Conference Substitute that would reduce the support rate for sugar if European Union domestic sugar subsidies are reduced. However, these critical reforms were subsequently deleted from the Conference Substitute in order to comply with the Byrd Rule.

REPEAL OF PERMANENT PRICE SUPPORT AUTHORITY AND MISCELLANEOUS AUTHORITIES (H. 1105, S. 1101, CR. 1109)

The House Bill suspends quotas, allotments, parity-based price supports and other outdated permanent law from the Agriculture Adjustment Act of 1938 and the Agricultural Act of 1949 from FY 1996-2002.

The Senate Amendment would repeal these provisions of permanent law from the from the Agriculture Adjustment Act of 1938 and the Agricultural Act of 1949.

The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision with modifications. As amended, the Agricultural Act of 1949 is repealed entirely, while certain necessary sections are transferred to the Agricultural Act of 1938. As part of the total repeal of the Agricultural Act of 1949, the production flexibility contracts, loan programs, peanut, and sugar programs for the 1996 through 2002 crops have been established under a new act, the "Agricultural Market Transition Act."

FARMER OWNED RESERVE (H.1404, S.1101, CR.1109)

The House Bill repeals the Farmer Owned Reserve Program authorized by section 110 of the Agricultural Act of 1949.

The Senate Amendment contains an identical provision.

The Conference Substitute maintains this provision.

EMERGENCY LIVESTOCK FEED PROGRAM (H.1401, S.1101, CR.1109)

The House Bill amends section 609 of the Emergency Livestock Feed Assistance Act of 1988 to provide that no person may receive benefits attributable to lost production of a feed commodity if catastrophic insurance protection or noninsured crop disaster assistance is available to the person under the Federal Crop Insurance Act.

The Senate Amendment repeals Title VI, the Emergency Livestock Feed Assistance Act of 1988, of the Agricultural Act of 1949.

The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision.

HONEY PROGRAM (H. , S.1101, CR.1109)

The House Bill contains no similar provision.

The Senate Amendment repeals Sec. 207 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, the Honey Program.

The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision.

SUBTITLE B—CONSERVATION

LIVESTOCK ENVIRONMENTAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (H. , S.1201, CR.1201(a))

The House Bill contains no similar provision.

The Senate Amendment replaces chapter 2 of subtitle D of title XII of the Food Security Act of 1985 with an Environmental Quality Incentives Program that would combine the functions of the Agricultural Conservation Program, the Water Quality Incentives Program, the Great Plains Conservation Program and the Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Program into a single initiative to provide technical assistance and cost-share and incentive payments to crop and livestock producers who undertake certain conservation practices. The program would receive $100,000,000 in annual mandatory funding directed for practices relating to livestock production.

The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision with an amendment that adds a new chapter 4 establishing a mandatory Livestock Environmental Assistance Program funded at $100,000,000 annually through the Commodity Credit Corporation, to be used for structural and land management practices to protect water, soil and related resources from degradation associated with livestock production. References to assistance primarily for crop production and to the four discretionary programs cited in the Senate amendment are eliminated and species thresholds in the Senate amendment for determining structural practice eligibility are increased for beef cattle and swine and lowered for dairy cattle.

In determining the practice or combination of practices appropriate for a particular farm or ranch, the Managers emphasize that the Secretary should use the lowest-cost option or options available. By doing so, the Secretary will be able to assist the greatest number of producers possible and maximize the positive impacts on the environment.

The legislation does not specifically mention all structural or land management practices that are eligible for funding under LEAP because of the broad gamut of measures that may be appropriate depending on the type of operation, its location and other factors. In addition, it is impossible to predict the evolution of new technologies. Accordingly, the Managers strongly urge the Secretary to make new practices eligible for funding under LEAP as soon as reasonable testing indicates their efficacy. The Managers also intend that the term "site-specific" refer not only to whole farms or ranches but to discrete locations within an operation.

The Managers urge the Department to minimize the formal planning that may be necessary to develop LEAP contracts. The Department should, however, take into account the practices contained in other plans the producer may have for commodity program eligibility or for receipt of other conservation assistance. Because of the multi-year nature of the contracts, the Managers suggest that the Department consider the planning process for the Great Plains Conservation Program in developing a similar process for LEAP.

The Managers believe that voluntary natural resource management plans developed by the producer and the Department (or third parties designated by the Secretary) should be sufficient for the LEAP planning process. Such plans should be confidential, address resource challenges as requested by the producer, and sufficiently flexible to permit innovation. However, the Committee emphasizes that such a voluntary natural resource management plan should not be a prerequisite for receiving assistance under LEAP, nor should it confer preference among producers requesting financial assistance.

CONSERVATION RESERVE PROGRAM (H.1402, S.1201, CR.1201)

The House Bill amends provisions of the Conservation Reserve Program established under subchapter B, Chapter 1, of Subtitle D of the Food Security Act of 1985 by:

(1) limiting the total number of acres authorized to be enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program to 36,400,000 acres;

(2) limiting rental rates for contract extensions or new contracts covering land that was previously enrolled in the conservation reserve program to no more than 75 percent of the annual rental payment under the previous contract;

(3) providing authority for an owner or operator of land enrolled under a conservation reserve contract to terminate the contract upon written notice to the Secretary; and

(4) striking the proviso relating to the enrollment of new acres beginning in calendar year 1997 in section 727 of the Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996.

The Senate Amendment reauthorizes the CRP through 2002 and specifies annual funding levels for the program that reflect a limit on the size of the CRP at the current level of 36.4 million acres and an additional reduction in expenditures of approximately $20 million per year.

The 1996–2002 direct spending for the Conservation Reserve (including contracts extended by the Secretary pursuant to section 1437 of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990 (Public Law 101–624;) may not exceed—

(1) $1,787,000,000 for fiscal year 1996;
(2) $1,784,000,000 for fiscal year 1997;
(3) $1,445,000,000 for fiscal year 1998;
(4) $1,246,000,000 for fiscal year 1999;
(5) $1,101,000,000 for fiscal year 2000;
(6) $999,000,000 for fiscal year 2001; and
(7) $974,000,000 for fiscal year 2002.

The Conference Substitute adopts the House provision with an amendment removing the maximum rate for contract renewals, and changing the proviso with respect to new enrollments so that it is applicable notwithstanding any other provision of law.

The Managers also adopted the House amendment to section 1235 of the Food Security Act of 1985 to provide that an owner or operator of land enrolled under a conservation reserve contract may terminate the contract upon 60 days' written notice to the Secretary. Owners or operators who voluntarily terminate a contract within the first three years of its term must reimburse the Secretary for any cost-share payments received under the contract.

WETLANDS RESERVE PROGRAM (H. , S.1201, CR.1201)

The House Bill contains no similar provision.

The Senate Amendment reauthorizes the program through 2002 and reduces outlays by setting a maximum enrollment level of 975,000 acres and by eliminating authority for the Secretary to enter into permanent easements.

The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision with an amendment striking the reauthorization and setting the maximum easement period at 15 years.

SUBTITLE C—AGRICULTURAL PROMOTION AND EXPORT PROGRAMS

MARKET PROMOTION PROGRAM (MPP)(H , S.1301, CR.1301)

The House Bill contains no similar provision.

The Senate Amendment reduces, effective October, 1995, funding for the MPP to not more than $75 million for each of FY 1996–2002.

The Conference Substitute adopts the Senate provision with an amendment to fund MPP at not more than $100 million for each of FY 1996–2002.

EXPORT ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM (H.1405, S.1302, CR.1302)

The House Bill amends section 301(e)(1) of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 to limit the amount of the CCC funds or commodities available for the Export Enhancement Program as follows: $400,000,000 for fiscal years 1996 and 1997; $500,000,000 for fiscal year 1998; $550,000,000 for fiscal year 1999; $579,000,000 for fiscal year 2000; and $478,000,000 for fiscal years 2001 and 2002.

The Senate Amendment reduces, effective October 1, 1995, funding for the EEP for FY 1996–2002 by 20% each year from the maximum allowed by the Uruguay Round Agreement of GATT. Spending levels under section 301(e)(1) of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 available for the Export Enhancement Program are as follows: $767,200,000 for fiscal year 1996; $705,600,000 for fiscal year 1997; $624,800,000 for fiscal year 1998; $544,000,000 for fiscal year 1999; $463,200,000 for fiscal year 2000; and $382,400,000 for fiscal years 2001 and 2002.

The Conference Substitute adopts the House provision with an amendment to limit the amount of the CCC funds or commodities available for the Export Enhancement Program as follows: $350,000,000 for fiscal years 1996 and 1997; $500,000,000 for fiscal year 1998; $550,000,000 for fiscal year 1999; $579,000,000 for fiscal year 2000; and $478,000,000 for fiscal years 2001 and 2002.

The Managers recognize the Uruguay Round Agreement on GATT did not eliminate the use of export subsidies. As a result, U.S. agriculture is still faced with subsidized foreign competition. To help U.S. agriculture counter such subsidized competition, capitalize on potential new market opportunities, and maintain and expand existing export markets, the Managers expect the Secretary of Agriculture to fully utilize and aggressively implement the export programs authorized in this Act or any other Act.

SUNFLOWER OIL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM/COTTONSEED OIL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (H. , S.1303, CR.)

The House Bill amends section 301 of the Disaster Assistance Act of 1988 and section 420 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 by removing obsolete authority of the Secretary to support the price of cottonseed and cottonseed products through loans, purchases, export assistance, or any other form of assistance.

The Senate Amendment repeals, effective October, 1995, section 301 of the Disaster Assistance Act of 1988. This would eliminate authority for the Secretary of Agriculture to utilize section 32 funds to promote the export of sunflowerseed oil, cottonseed oil or any other export promotion activities. Both vegetable oils would continue to be eligible for assistance under the Export Enhancement Program.

The Conference Substitute deletes both provisions.

SUBTITLE D—MISCELLANEOUS

CATASTROPHIC CROP INSURANCE COVERAGE (H. 1403, S. 1114, CR. 1401)

The House Bill repeals, beginning with spring-planted 1996 crops, the requirement that producers purchase catastrophic crop insurance in order to receive payments, conservation benefits and farm loans from the Consolidated Farm Services Agency. It requires producers who do not purchase the insurance to waive their right to receive any emergency crop loss assistance. The bill also establishes the Office of Risk Management as an agency separate from the Consolidated Farm Services Agency, ends the dual delivery of Federal crop insurance by prohibiting sales through CFSA offices, and creates a business interruption insurance program under which a producer can receive an indemnity payment if the producer suffers a loss of income.

The Senate Bill contains a similar repeal of the linkage between catastrophic coverage and program benefits, but begins the repeal with 1997 crops, and contains no waiver requirement. The Senate Amendment contains no provision with respect to other items in the House bill.

The Conference Substitute adopts the House provision with respect to de-linking catastrophic coverage from program benefits in 1996. The Conference Substitute adopts the House provision with respect to dual delivery, with an amendment that will require a more gradual phaseout of dual delivery in states where crop insurance is not widely offered by private companies. The Conference Substitute amends Sec. 519(1)(2)(B) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act to include seed crops.

The Conference Substitute would eliminate the sale of catastrophic risk protection through local county offices of the Department of Agriculture effective with the Spring-planted 1996 crops. The Secretary is required to transfer all existing catastrophic risk protection policies written by local offices of the Department to approved insurance providers.

However, the Managers did provide for a mechanism under which the Secretary could continue to offer catastrophic risk protection covered through local offices of the Department if, after full consultation and cooperation with approved insurance providers, the Secretary determines that there are not sufficient numbers of approved insurance providers operating in a State, or part of a State, to adequately provide catastrophic risk protection coverage to producers. It is not the intent of the Managers that the Secretary exercise this discretion casually. He should carefully evaluate the availability of private providers and consult fully with the private industry before making a determination that it is necessary for the Department to continue to offer catastrophic risk protection in a particular State, or part of a State.

AGRICULTURE QUARANTINE AND INSPECTION (H. , S. , CR. 1402)

The House Bill contains no similar provision.

The Senate Amendment contains no similar provision.

The Managers agreed to amend section 2509 of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990 to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to collect fees to cover the cost of providing quarantine and inspection services for imports. As amended, this section allows the Secretary to utilize fees collected beyond $100 million.

EVALUATION OF RICE INDUSTRY (H. , S. , CR. 1106(D))

The House Bill contains no similar provision.

The Senate Bill contains no similar provision.

The Managers agreed to include in the Conference Substitute provision to direct the Secretary of Agriculture, if he found that the rice industry is threatened by underplantings resulting form the requirements of this subtitle, to take such actions as necessary to strengthen the export and domestic consumption of rice and rice producers income. It is the intent of the Managers that the Secretary should use all tools available to him in order to maintain the domestic rice industry, including, but not limited to EEP, PL480, MPP, FMD, recommendations under section 301, and other programs to enhance market development efforts and allow producers to obtain their income from the marketplace. However, the provision was subsequently deleted from the Conference Substitute in order to comply with the Byrd Rule.

The House Bill amends Sec. 252 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 to provide an exemption for market transition payments in the 'Freedom to Farm' program.

The Senate Amendment contains no similar provision.

The Managers agreed to include the House provision in the Conference Substitute, However, these provisions were subsequently deleted from the Conference Substitute in order to comply with the Byrd Rule.

SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING ETHANOL (H. , S. 1116, CR.)

The House Bill contains no similar provision.

The Senate Amendment expresses the Sense of the Senate in support of the use of ethanol as an alternative fuel.

The Managers agreed to include the Senate provision in the Conference Substitute. However, these provisions were subsequently deleted from the Conference Substitute in order to comply with the Byrd Rule.

COMMISSION ON THE 21ST CENTURY PRODUCTION AGRICULTURE (H. SUBTITLE E., S. , CR.)

The House Bill establishes a commission known as the "Commission on 21st Century Agriculture".

Membership is composed of 11 members (3 appointed by the President and 4 each by the Chairmen of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees), with qualifications of persons involved in agriculture production and related industries.

The Commission is directed to conduct a review of how the Freedom to Farm Act has performed during the period of operation (a "Look Back") and a review of the future of production agriculture in the United States and the role of Federal Government support of production agriculture (a "Look Forward"). The Commission is to submit a mid-term report (June 1, 1998) on a final report by January 1, 2001.

The Subtitle authorizes the Commission to conduct hearings, obtain support and information from other Federal Government agencies, employ a staff and otherwise carry out its duties.

The Committee is to terminate upon the issuance of the report required by January 1, 2001.

The Senate Amendment contains no similar provision.

The Managers agreed to include the House provision in the Conference Substitute. However, these provisions were subsequently deleted from the Conference Substitute in order to comply with the Byrd Rule.

DELETED PROVISIONS—DAIRY

MILK PRICE SUPPORT PROGRAM (H. 1201, S. 1106 CR.)

The House Bill amends the Agricultural Act of 1949 by replacing section 204, and conforming sections 201(a) and 301, to authorize the Secretary to enter into market transition contracts with milk producers following the elimination of the dairy price support program.

The dairy price support program under existing section 204 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 continues in operation through December 31, 1995 at which time it is terminated. Producers that are entitled to a refund of their 1995 budget reconciliation assessment (i.e., their marketings of milk in calendar year 1995 did not exceed their marketings of milk in calendar year 1994) will receive those refunds from CCC funds rather than from assessments on producers in 1996.

Sections 201(a) and 301 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 are conformed to eliminate milk from the designated and undesignated nonbasic agricultural commodities for which the Secretary has general authority to provide price support.

The Senate Amendment amends the Agricultural Act of 1949 by replacing section 204 to operate a price support program for milk during the period beginning January 1, 1996, and ending December 31, 2002, and set the support price for milk used for cheese at $10.00 per hundredweight for calendar year 1996. The support price for milk used to make cheese shall decrease 10 cents per hundredweight each calendar year from 1997 through 2002.

The Secretary is required to decrease the support price of milk used for cheese for an upcoming calendar year by an additional 25 cents per hundredweight if, on November 20 of the preceding calendar year, the Secretary estimates that CCC purchases of cheese and DEIP sales of dairy products will exceed 1.5 billion pounds (milk equivalent, total solids basis) during the upcoming calendar year. Any such additional decrease in the support price shall be applicable only for the calendar year for which the Secretary made the estimate.

The Conference Substitute deletes both the House and Senate provisions.

RECOURSE LOANS FOR COMMERCIAL PROCESSORS OF DAIRY PRODUCTS (H. 1202, S. , CR.)

The House Bill amends the Agricultural Act of 1949 to authorize the Secretary to make recourse loans available to commercial processors of cheddar cheese, butter and nonfat dry milk dairy products at 90% of the reference price for a product and at established CCC interest rates to assist those processors in assuring price stability for the dairy industry.

The Senate Amendment contains no similar provision.

The Conference Substitute deletes the House provision.

DAIRY EXPORT INCENTIVE PROGRAM (H. 1211. S. , CR.)

The House Bill amends section 153(c) of the Food Security Act of 1985 to require the Secretary to use the DEIP program to export the maximum allowable quantities of U.S. dairy products consistent with the obligations of the United States as a member of the World Trade Organization, minus the quantity sold under section 1163 of the Food Security Act of 1985 during that year. The House Bill also extends the operations of the DEIP program through the year 2002.

The Senate Amendment contains no similar provision.

The Conference Substitute deletes the House provision.

AUTHORITY TO ASSIST IN ESTABLISHMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF EXPORT TRADING COMPANY (H. 1212, S. , CR.)

Any future order issued under the Act must now be approved by the affirmative votes of fluid milk processors representing 60 percent or more of the volume of fluid milk products marketed by all fluid milk processors voting in the referendum before it can be implemented.

The Senate Amendment contains no similar provision.

The Conference Substitute deletes the House provision.

EXPANSION OF DAIRY PROMOTION PROGRAM TO COVER DAIRY PRODUCTS IMPORTED INTO THE UNITED STATES (H. 1222, S. , CR.)

PROGRAM TO VERIFY MILK RECEIPTS (H. 1231, S. , CR.)

The House Bill creates a new subsection (l) in section 204 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 to establish a program to verify receipts of milk and audit marketing agreements and other contracts for the marketing and receipt of milk between producers and handlers.

Effective July 1, 1996, the verification program shall supersede any Federal milk marketing order issued under section 8c of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, reenacted with amendments by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 with respect to milk or the products of milk.

The Senate Amendment contains no similar provision

The Conference Substitute deletes the House provision.

FEDERAL MILK MARKETING ORDERS (H. 1232, S. 1106, CR.)

The House Bill provides that the verification program established by section 1231 will supersede existing Federal milk marketing orders. The House Bill also terminates existing Federal milk marketing orders by striking paragraphs (5) and (18) of section 8c and provides that the amendments made by section 1232 are effective on July 1, 1996.

The Senate Amendment amends section 8c(5) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, reenacted with amendments by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 to classify butter and dry milk as Class IV dairy products. It also establishes a Class IV pool for all milk producers to share the difference, if any between the support price for cheese and the national average price for butter and dry milk, expressed in dollars per hundredweights of milk, each month. The cost of administering the Class IV pool is shared by all producers. Persons who fail to pay into the pool are liable for a civil penalty. The Secretary is to issue regulations without regard to the Administrative Producers Act.

The Conference Substitute deletes both the House and Senate provisions.

NORTHEAST COMPACT (H. , S. 1106, CR.)

The House Bill contains no similar provision.

TITLE II—BANKING, HOUSING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS

SUBTITLE A—FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

SECTION 2011—SPECIAL ASSESSMENT TO CAPITALIZE SAIF

House bill

The House bill would fully capitalize the Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF) to its designated reserve ratio with a one-time special assessment on all SAIF-insured deposits, including those held by SAIF members and those banks which have purchased SAIF deposits, or so-called "Oakar" banks. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) will determine the size of the special assessment based on the SAIF reserve balance and the most recently available data on insured deposits. The assessment, anticipated to be between seventy to eighty cents per every $100 of deposits, will be applied against the SAIF deposits held by institutions as of March 31, 1995. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) will collect the special assessment on the first business day of January 1996, or such other date as the FDIC prescribes which may not be later than 60 days after the date of enactment.

The bill would provide the FDIC Board of Directors authority to exempt weak institutions from paying the special assessment if the exemption would reduce risk to the SAIF. Institutions exempt from the special assessment would pay regular assessments under the risk-based assessment schedule in effect for SAIF members on June 30, 1995 for the period 1996–1999. Institutions exempt from the special assessment have the option—during the period 1997–1999—of paying a pro rated portion of the special assessment. Such institutions would then pay on the same risk-based schedule as non-exempted SAIF members.

FDIC would also have authority to set the special assessment for Oakar banks at a lower rate than for SAIF members so long as such rate is not less than two-thirds of the rate set for SAIF members and would not result in an increased budget outlay or decrease in offsetting receipts.

Senate amendment

The Senate language is similar to the House bill on the timing and calculation of the special assessments. However, for purposes of determining the special assessment for Oakar banks, the Senate adopted language would provide those Oakar banks which hold a majority of BIF-insured deposits as of June 30, 1995 with a ten percent reduction in their SAIF assessable deposits. The exemption for weak institutions is also extended to include certain newly chartered savings associations.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement provides that the SAIF will be fully capitalized on January 1, 1996, as required under both House and Senate language. The House receded to the Senate on the treatment of Oakar banks with a modification that a twenty percent reduction be made in their SAIF-assessable deposits.

The conferees took these actions to improve SAIF's undercapitalized position. At present, SAIF reserves would not cover the cost of the failure of one large or a few medium-sized thrifts, or other substantial unanticipated losses. Should the reserves be exhausted, the taxpayer is next in line. The full and immediate capitalization of SAIF will decrease taxpayer risk significantly and ensure that thrifts make a significant contribution in stabilizing their insurance fund.

The Conference Committee recognizes the importance of recapitalizing SAIF and maintaining public confidence in federal deposit insurance. The legislative imposition of a one-time, special assessment on SAIF-insured institutions is a highly unusual and infrequent event intended to stabilize the SAIF.

SECTION 2012—FINANCING CORPORATION ASSESSMENT SHARED PROPORTIONALLY BY ALL INSURED DEPOSITORY INSTITUTIONS

House bill

Under the House bill, effective January 1, 1996, the assessment base for payments on the interest on obligations issued by the Financing Corporation (FICO) is to be expanded to include all FDIC-insured institutions, i.e., banks and thrifts (thus spreading the FICO obligation pro rata over all FDIC-insured institutions).

Senate amendment

The Senate language is identical.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes this language. Spreading the FICO burden will eliminate the potential for a premium differential, thereby decreasing thrifts' incentives to evade SAIF assessments.

SECTION 2013—MERGER OF BIF AND SAIF

House bill

The House provision would merge the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF) and the SAIF into the Deposit Insurance Fund on January 1, 1998. The exit moratorium, which currently prohibits institutions from switching insurance funds and the Oakar bank provisions, would be repealed on January 1, 1998.

The provision would also establish a special reserve for the Deposit Insurance Fund. The special reserve would consist of any SAIF excess reserves, i.e., reserves not needed to meet the designated reserve ratio, immediately prior to the merger of the funds. The FDIC would have the authority to transfer amounts from the special reserve to the deposit insurance fund if the Board of Directors determines that the fund's reserve ratio is less than half of the designated reserve ratio and is likely to be, remain at or below that level for the next four quarters.

Because of the merger of the funds, the House bill would also modify the Federal Home Loan Bank System's annual contribution of $300 million toward the interest payments due on Resolution Funding Corporation (REFCORP) bonds. The provision would eliminate the shortfall allocation formula by changing the payment to 23.7% of the system's net earnings, as compared to the flat $300 million payment provided for under current law.

The House bill would also repeal the Home Owners' Loan Act, which provides for the chartering of federal savings associations and regulation of savings and loan holding companies. The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) would also be abolished. State chartered thrifts would be treated as if they were commercial banks for the purposes of all federal banking laws, including the Federal Deposit Insurance Act and the Federal Reserve Act. A number of technical provisions are included to implement the charter conversion, including a clarification that housing creditors may purchase and enforce alternative mortgage transactions in accordance with OTS regulations issued prior to the effective date of Section 3(f) of the Home Owners Loan Act (HOLA).

Senate amendment

With regard to the merger of the funds, the Senate language differs in that the BIF and the SAIF would be merged on January 1, 1998 only if no insured depository institution is a savings association (as those terms are defined in the Federal Deposit Insurance Act) on that date. The Senate language does not repeal the HOLA or abolish the OTS. The Senate language also maintains the present REFCORP formula.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

SECTION 2014—CREATION OF SAIF SPECIAL RESERVE

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

Analogous to the treatment of the merged insurance funds under Section 2013, the conference agreement includes language establishing a special reserve for the SAIF on January 1, 1998. The SAIF special reserve will initially consist of the amount that SAIF's reserve ratio exceeds the designated reserve ratio. As with the Deposit Insurance Fund under Section 2013, the FDIC may transfer amounts from the special reserve to the Deposit Insurance Fund if the Board of Directors determines that the fund's reserve ratio is less than half of the designated reserve ratio and is likely to be less than half of the designated reserve ratio for the next four quarters.

SECTION 2015—REFUND OF AMOUNTS IN DEPOSIT INSURANCE FUND IN EXCESS OF DESIGNATED RESERVE AMOUNT

House bill

The House bill would prohibit the FDIC from setting semiannual assessments in excess of the amount needed to maintain the reserve ratio of any fund at the designated reserve ratio. Further, the FDIC would be required to rebate at the end of any semiannual period any amount—in the BIF or in the merged fund after January 1, 1998—that exceeds the balance required to meet the designated reserve ratio on such basis as the Board of Directors determines to be appropriate. The Board will take into account the factors considered under the risk-based assessment system. The rebate to any member could not exceed the total amount paid by such member for that semiannual period.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment would provide the FDIC with the discretion to rebate in the form of assessment credits the assessments paid by BIF members to the extent that the fund's reserve ratio exceeds the designated reserve ratio. FDIC would make this judgment after considering operating costs, case resolution cost, case resolution expenditures, and income.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes, with an amendment which would exempt from the House provision those institutions that exhibit financial, operational, or compliance weaknesses ranging from moderately severe to unsatisfactory, or are not well-capitalized. Assessments paid by these institutions cannot be rebated. This preserves the FDIC's flexibility to continue and refine the risk-based premium system required by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991.

SECTION 2016—ASSESSMENT RATES FOR SAIF MEMBERS MAY NOT BE LESS THAN ASSESSMENT RATES FOR BIF MEMBERS

House bill

The House bill would require that SAIF assessment rates could not be lower than BIF assessment rates.

Senate amendment

The Senate language is similar but would extend the requirement until all FICO obligations are paid.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement provides that SAIF assessment rates may not be lower than BIF assessment rates beginning on the date of enactment of the reconciliation act and ending on January 1, 1998.

SECTION 2017—ASSESSMENTS AUTHORIZED ONLY IF NEEDED TO MAINTAIN THE RESERVE RATIO OF A DEPOSIT INSURANCE FUND

House bill

The House bill would prohibit the FDIC from setting semiannual assessments in excess of the amount needed to maintain the reserve ratio of any fund at the designated reserve ratio, or, if the reserve ratio is less than the designated reserve ratio, to increase the ratio to the target level.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes with an exception. Subsection (c) of Section 2017 provides an exception to the limitations placed on the FDIC in setting semi-annual assessments when the fund is at or above the designated reserve ratio. This subsection permits the FDIC to continue to charge premiums under its risk-based system on institutions that exhibit financial, operational, or compliance weaknesses ranging from moderately severe to unsatisfactory, or are not well-capitalized. These standards are generally the ones used by the FDIC in its current risk-based system. This exception is intended to provide the FDIC with sufficient flexibility to maintain a risk-based assessment system and thereby provide the owners and managers of financial institutions with an incentive to manage their institutions so as to reduce or eliminate their premiums.

So long as the designated reserve ratio has been met, the exception incorporated in this subsection is not intended to allow the FDIC to impose premiums on a percentage of the banking industry that would be significantly beyond the percentage of the banking industry which currently meets these standards, unless economic and banking industry conditions necessitate such an expansion.

SECTION 2018—LIMITATION ON AUTHORITY OF OVERSIGHT BOARD TO CONTINUE TO EMPLOY MORE THAN 18 OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

House bill

This provision would terminate the ability of the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board to employ staff on December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes with modification to permit the Oversight Board to employ eighteen individuals during the period beginning on January 1, 1996 and ending May 1, 1996.

SUBTITLE B—HOUSING

SECTION 2051—REDUCTION OF SECTION 8 ANNUAL ADJUSTMENT FACTORS (AAF) FOR UNITS WITHOUT TENANT TURNOVER

House bill

This provision makes permanent an FY 1995 appropriation provision that reduces the annual adjustment factor (AAF) by one percentage point for those Section 8 units for which there has been no resident turnover since the preceding annual rental adjustment.

Senate Amendment

The Senate provision is similar to the House, and would limit the amount of the annual adjustment factor (AAF) for section 8 assisted housing by: (1) reducing by one percentage point the rent increase for those Section 8 units in which there has been no resident turnover since the preceding annual rental adjustment; and (2) limiting the overall AAF to the cost of operation of a particular project (excluding the portion of the rent for debt service).

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement generally adopts the Senate provision and would limit the amount of the annual adjustment factor (AAF) or a rent increase for section 8 assisted housing by: (1) reducing by one percentage point the rent increase for those Section 8 units in which there has been no resident turnover since the preceding annual rental adjustment; and (2) limiting the overall AAF to the cost of operation of a particular project (excluding the portion of the rent for debt service).

These reforms are needed to maintain reasonable rental costs in federally assisted projects, many of which receive subsidized rents in excess of the fair market rent for a comparable project in the same market area. This provision is a first step to comprehensive reforms that address the escalating costs of the section 8 project-based contract assistance program.

SECTION 2052—FORECLOSURE AVOIDANCE AND BORROWER ASSISTANCE

House bill

The House bill replaces the current Federal Housing Administration (FHA) assignment program and provides the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) with authority to pay partial mortgage insurance claims limited to the amount equivalent to or less than twelve monthly mortgage payments. As a condition for accepting a partial claim payment, the lender agrees, on a short term basis, to modify the terms of the loan to a level where the borrower has the ability to pay and retain the loan in its portfolio. In some circumstances, however, where the default and modification may be for a longer period of time, the replaced program allows HUD to pay the mortgage insurance claim after loan modification and accept the borrower into a new assignment program. HUD will act as the lender for at least two years or whenever the mortgage may be sold to the secondary markets or otherwise disposed. The assignment program will require HUD to use private sector sources for servicing and foreclosure activities.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The Senate recedes with an amendment to apply the reforms to FHA mortgages originated in FY 1996 and thereafter.

The FHA assignment program was created in 1959, but was not operational until 1976 after a court consent decree required HUD to implement the program. Subsequent modifications to the temporary mortgage assistance program and the assignment program required HUD to accept defaulted FHA borrowers into the program. As a condition for assignment, a borrower's default must be based on circumstances beyond his or her control, such as sickness or loss of employment. Further, there must be a reasonable expectation that the borrower will resume normal and regular mortgage payments and correct any loan deficiencies within a reasonable time. Currently, the program allows up to 36 months in forbearance in anticipation that a mortgagor will be able to resume his or her mortgage payments. Since the majority of assigned loans are insured under the FHA Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund (MMIF), the cost of the assignment program is borne by the Fund.

The Conference Committee notes that the well-intentioned objectives of the current assignment program are not achieved, and could cause some $1.6 billion in future losses to the FHA MMIF. A recent General Accounting Office (GAO) study indicates that there are currently 71,500 loans in the program and that it "operates at a high cost to FHA's Fund and has not been very successful helping borrowers avoid foreclosures in the long run." Approximately 30% of assigned borrowers eventually become current and graduate out of the FHA assignment program, thereby indicating a current failure rate at approximately 70%. Thus, current FHA borrowers are paying higher premiums to meet the capital ratio standards of the MMIF as well as cover the exorbitant costs of the assignment program.

The replaced assignment program included in the conference report provides HUD with authority to pay partial mortgage insurance claims limited to the amount equivalent to or less than twelve monthly mortgage payments. As a condition for accepting a partial claim payment, the lender agrees, on a short term basis, to modify the terms of the loan to a level where the borrower has the ability to pay and retain the loan in its portfolio. In some circumstances, however, where the default and modification may be for a longer period of time, the replaced program allows HUD to pay the mortgage insurance claim and accept the borrower into a new assignment program. Under a new assignment program, it is expected that HUD will use private sector sources for servicing and foreclosure activities. Given HUD's history of management and capacity deficiencies, the Conferees urge HUD to consider carefully the structure of any new or replaced assignment program.

TERMINATION OF THE RESOLUTION TRUST CORPORATION (RTC) AND THE FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION (FDIC) AFFORDABLE HOUSING PROGRAMS

House bill

The House provision repeals Section 40 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act in anticipation of the December 31, 1995 sunset of the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) and terminates the RTC Affordable Housing Advisory Board. Remaining functions and authority vested in the RTC Affordable Housing Program are transferred to the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. This includes monitoring affordable housing resale restrictions, low-income occupancy requirements, and rent limitations and recapturing resale proceeds.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

House recedes.

TERMINATION OF HUD-OWNED MULTIFAMILY PROPERTY DISPOSITION PROGRAM

House bill

This provision authorizes HUD to sell multifamily housing projects that are HUD-owned or HUD-held mortgages without restrictions. HUD is given authority to delegate this authority to other parties in order to sell the property more quickly.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

House recedes.

RECAPTURE OF RURAL HOUSING LOAN SUBSIDIES BY RURAL HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT SERVICE

House bill

This provision extends statutory authority to the Rural Housing and Community Development Service to recapture government subsidy payments at the time the borrower refinances or repays a single family direct loan mortgage financed under Section 502 of the Housing Act of 1949.

Senate Amendment

No provision.

Conference Agreement

House recedes.

TITLE III—COMMUNICATIONS AND SPECTRUM ALLOCATION PROVISIONS

SECTION 3001—SPECTRUM AUCTIONS

(A) EXTENSION AND EXPANSION OF AUTHORITY

House bill

This subsection amends section 309(j) of the Communications Act of 1934 which grants the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) authority to use a system of competitive bidding as a means of granting licenses. The subsection provides that such authority will apply when there are mutually exclusive applications for an initial license for use of the electromagnetic spectrum. Competitive bidding would not be permitted to be used for unlicensed uses. The FCC is required to continue its obligation under section 309(j)(6)(E) to take actions necessary to avoid situations of mutual exclusivity. An example is the 450–470 MHz band, which is shared by low-powered medical telemetry devices.

The subsection also sets forth specific exemptions from the use of competitive bidding. The subsection does not permit the use of competitive bidding for public safety radio services, including non-government uses that protect the safety of life, health and property and that are not made commercially available to the public.

Under this subsection, the FCC may not use competitive bidding for initial licenses for broadcast digital television services assigned by the FCC to incumbent broadcast licenses to replace their current analog signal. This subsection also repeals the authority of the FCC to use random selection (or so-called "lotteries") as an alternative to competitive bidding. Finally, the expansion of competitive bidding authority under this subsection does not apply to any licenses for which the FCC has accepted mutually exclusive applications prior to the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Section 4001(a) of the Senate bill is similar to the House provisions, but it contains an additional provision, section 309(j)(2)(C) of the Communications Act of 1934. This provision directs the FCC to submit to Congress a proposal regarding the use of auction authority for the assignment of licenses for advanced television services within 180 days of enactment of this section. The FCC would be prohibited from awarding ATV spectrum to existing commercial broadcast licenses, until January 1, 1998. The prohibition does not extend to assignment of ATV spectrum to public broadcasters.

Conference agreement

The Conferees adopt the Senate provisions with modifications. The Conference Agreement provides further limitations on the exemption of auction authority for public safety radio services by accepting the Senate language requiring that the "sole or principal purpose" of the spectrum exempted from auctions be for "the safety of life, health, and property and which are not made commercially available to the public."

Section 3001(a) amends the Communications Act of 1934 and provides that the FCC will employ auctions to assign licenses where there are mutually exclusive applications for such licenses. Section 309(j)(2)(C) of such Act exempts from the new auction authority the grant of licenses or construction permits to existing broadcast television licensees or permittees for advanced television services. Section 309(j)(2)(C)(i) directs the Commission, within 180 days after enactment of this bill, to report to Congress on whether auctions of the license to use spectrum currently reserved for advanced television should be authorized.

The conferees intend that the FCC's report should consider, among other things, the following issues:

The extent to which television broadcast license holders could provide advanced television services using their existing spectrum, in particular by replacing analog broadcasts with digital broadcasts on the same spectrum;

The impact of assigning such licenses by auction on the availability and deployment of advanced television service technology, particularly in rural areas and small television markets, and on the ability of consumers to receive digital television services through over-the-air television broadcasts;

The impact on television broadcasters of a requirement to simultaneously broadcast analog and digital signals for a set period of time, and in particular the impact of such requirements on the cost of broadcasting equipment and on consumer devices (including televisions and converter boxes);

The feasibility of using the spectrum reserved for advanced television for other purposes, including an estimate of the projected receipts that could be derived from auctioning licenses for the use of such spectrum;

The assignment of licenses without auction and the reassignment of current broadcast television spectrum under a system of public auctions upon completion of a transition from analog to digital transmission, including the feasibility and desirability of regrouping broadcast spectrum assignments so that contiguous nationwide spectrum would be available for public auction; and

The costs and uncertainties for broadcasters, including the cost of converting facilities for simulcasting analog/digital signals, and the lack of knowledge of whether consumers will purchase digital equipment, in comparison to the costs and uncertainties if a bidder is not an incumbent broadcaster and has no knowledge of whether new programming services will drive customers' purchases of digital sets.

To allow time for Congress to consider this report, the Commission may not issue licenses or construction permits for advanced television services that replace existing television licenses until November 15, 1996. The conferees do not intend the suspension of licensing authority to delay or prejudice any ongoing Commission proceedings regarding the authorization of advanced television services.

The conferees agree to the House effective date with a modification to clarify that amendment to Section 309 shall not apply with respect to any license or permit for a terrestrial radio or television broadcast station for which the FCC has accepted mutually exclusive applications on or before the date of enactment of this Act.

(B) COMMISSION OBLIGATION TO MAKE ADDITIONAL SPECTRUM AVAILABLE BY AUCTION

House bill

This subsection directs the FCC to auction 100 megahertz (MHz) of spectrum located below 3 gigahertz (GHz) by September 30, 2002, which prior to the date of enactment, have not been designated by the FCC for assignment by auction and have not been identified by the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) as reallocable frequencies. The FCC must auction the licenses for the use of bands of frequencies in blocks of at least 25 MHz unless the FCC determines that a combination of smaller bands can reasonably be expected to produce greater receipts for the U.S. Treasury.

In making available such bands of frequencies for competitive bidding under this subsection, the FCC must consider, first and foremost, the promotion of the most efficient use of the spectrum. The FCC must also consider the cost to incumbent licensees of relocating existing uses to other bands of frequencies or other means of communication. The FCC is also directed to take into account the needs of public safety users when making allocation decisions. Finally, in making bands of frequencies available for auction, the FCC must ensure that such assignments comply with the requirements of international agreements concerning spectrum allocations.

In making available bands of frequencies for competitive bidding pursuant to this section, if the FCC is unable to provide for the effective relocation of incumbent licenses, it shall notify the NTIA that it has identified bands of frequencies suitable for relocation and which could be reallocated for private use.

Senate amendment

Section 4001(b) of the Senate Amendment is virtually identical to the House provision, except that subsection (b)(1)(D)(iii) and subsection (b)(2)(E) are unique in comparison to the House bill. Subsection (b)(1)(D)(iii) ensures that the frequencies chosen by the FCC must not have been reserved for government use under section 305 of the Communications Act of 1934.

The Senate included subsection (b)(2)(E) which directs the FCC in exercising its authority to "take into account costs to satellite service providers that would result from multiple auctions of like spectrum internationally for global satellite systems."

Conference agreement

The Conferees adopt the Senate provisions.

(C) IDENTIFICATION AND REALLOCATION OF FREQUENCIES

House bill

The House provision requires that in response to a Notice from the FCC, the NTIA shall prepare and submit a report to the President and Congress identifying and recommending for reallocation frequencies that are assigned to the Federal government stations and are not required for the present or identifiable future needs of the Federal government and that are suitable for the uses identified in the Commission's Notice.

Senate amendment

The Senate provision is identical to the House provision but it adds new subsections (g), (h) and (i) to section 113 and 114 of the National Telecommunications and Information Administration Organization Act. Together, these additions to section 113 and 114 provide authority for Federal agencies to accept reimbursement or payment from private parties for the costs of relocation.

Conference agreement

The Conference Agreement adopts the Senate provisions with clarifications. The conferees intend that the provisions of this section would apply to the United Postal Service, which has an account in the United States Treasury and operates using government frequencies.

(D) IDENTIFICATION AND REALLOCATION OF AUCTIONABLE FREQUENCIES

House bill

This subsection requires the NTIA to submit a second reallocation report to Congress, identifying and recommending for reallocation a single frequency band of at least 20 MHz, located below 3 GHz, and which meets the criteria of section 113(a) of the National Telecommunications and Information Administration Organization Act. Within one year after receipt of the second reallocation report, the FCC shall submit a plan to the President and Congress, and implement such plan for the allocation and assignment of such frequencies in accordance with section 309(j) of the Communications Act of 1934.

Senate amendment

The Senate provision is identical to the House provision.

Conference agreement

The Conference Agreement accepts the House provision.

TITLE IV—EDUCATION AND RELATED PROVISIONS

SUBTITLE A—HIGHER EDUCATION

Unless otherwise noted, all amendments proposed to be made by the conference report refer to the Higher Education Act (HEA) of 1965 and the effective date of these amendments is January 1, 1996.

PARTICIPATION OF INSTITUTIONS IN DIRECT LOAN PROGRAM

House bill

The House bill provides for the repeal of the direct loan program as of July 1996.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment would limit participation in the direct loan program as follows:

1. Five percent of new student loan volume for academic year 1994–1995.
2. For academic year 1995–1996, and each succeeding year, direct loans will be provided to those students and parents of students attending institutions which have applied and been accepted for participation in the direct loan program on or before September 30, 1995, not to exceed 30 percent of new student loan volume including direct consolidation loans.
3. For academic year 1996–1997 (starting July 1, 1996), and each succeeding year, direct loans will be provided only to those students and parents of students attending institutions which have applied and been accepted for participation in the direct loan program on or before September 30, 1995, not to exceed 20 percent of new student loan volume including direct consolidation loans.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes with an amendment to limit the size of the direct loan program as follows:

1. Five percent of new student loan volume for academic year 1994–1995.
2. For academic year 1995–1996, and each succeeding year, direct loans will be provided to those students and parents of students attending institutions which have applied and been accepted for participation in the direct loan program on or before September 30, 1995, not to exceed 30 percent of new student loan volume including direct consolidation loans.
3. For academic year 1996–1997 (starting July 1, 1996), and each succeeding year, direct loans will be provided only to those students and parents of students attending the 102 institutions which participated in the direct loan program during the 1994–95 academic year, not to exceed 10 percent of new student loan volume including direct consolidation loans.

In 1993, Congress accelerated the 5 percent direct loan demonstration enacted in the 1992 amendments to the Higher Education Act to a program that is scheduled to account for 60 percent of federal student loan volume by 1998. This change was made through the budget reconciliation process, and the scoring used by the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) at that time made direct lending look significantly cheaper than guaranteed loans.

The 1993 scoring was flawed and failed to take into account any administrative costs of servicing or collecting on direct loans past the 5-year budget bill. Earlier this year, Congress passed the budget resolution, which contained a provision that changes the scoring so that guaranteed lending and direct lending are now scored in the same way. An October 26, 1995, letter from the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) to Senator Domenici confirmed this by stating that, "the Credit Reform Act amendment allows direct comparisons between the costs of the guaranteed and direct loan programs." The CBO letter also stated that, "By defining the direct administrative costs of direct loans and requiring these costs be calculated over the life of the loan portfolio, the resolution allowed for the costs of direct and guaranteed loans to be evaluated on a similar basis. Thus, all of the program costs for both programs are included in the resolution baseline and are accounted for in the same way."

This change in the scoring results in a more accurate accounting of direct lending and, thus, today significant savings can be realized by decreasing the size of the program. The conferees chose to include a decrease in the direct loan program as one of the savings items in the reconciliation bill to achieve required savings rather than a number of other elements that would have increased costs to students.

In addition, on a policy basis, the conferees are very concerned about the prospects of the Department of Education becoming one of the largest lending institutions in the country. Whether the Department will be able to effectively track and collect the loans which it has made to date is a question which needs to be answered before significant expansion of the direct loan program occurs. A demonstration program will allow questions of this nature to be answered prior to further program expansion.

CONSCRIPTION

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and Senate amendment eliminate the authority of the Secretary of Education to force schools into the direct loan program. This provision is unnecessary in an environment where direct loan volume is limited.

ADMINISTRATIVE FUNDS

House bill

The House bill defines direct administrative expenses for Part D and limits indirect administrative expenses to $110 million for fiscal year 1996 with $40 million dollars allotted to cover the costs of the administrative cost allowance for the guaranty agencies accrued prior to January 1, 1996, and $70 million per year for fiscal years 1997 through 2002.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment defines direct administrative expenses for Part D and limits indirect administrative expenses for Parts B and D to $85 million per year for fiscal years 1996 through 2002, except that additional sums shall be available for fiscal year 1996 to cover the costs of the administrative cost allowance for the guaranty agencies accrued prior to January 1, 1996.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

The conference agreement sets new limits on funds that the Department of Education will receive to administer the direct loan program since the size of the direct loan program is decreased. The Administration claims that such new levels will "gut" the Department of Education's administrative control and oversight of both the guaranteed and direct loan programs. However, the yearly funding levels are based on budget information received from the Department of Education. The information received indicates that these amounts are reasonable and appropriate.

The budget reconciliation bill combined with the proposed fiscal year 1996 Senate appropriations bill would level fund the administrative funds for student aid administration at the 1994 level of $239 million. Under the conference agreement, student aid administrative expenditures for fiscal year 1996 will still double from what was spent to administer student loans just five years ago. However, the agreement will stop the massive increases in administrative costs which have occurred over the last four years. Level funding at the 1994 level will fully provide for all necessary personnel, contract, oversight, equipment, publications, and administrative costs that are necessary to effectively and efficiently manage the student aid programs.

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment limit the use of section 458 funds by the Secretary to indirect administrative costs related to direct and guaranteed loans. Activities that were funded historically on a cash basis with discretionary appropriated administrative funds in the guaranteed loan program shall remain on a cash basis for both the guaranteed and direct loan programs and be considered indirect administrative expenses. Indirect administrative expenses can include the cost of Department personnel and required oversight activities. The direct administrative expense account is not intended to be used for guaranteed loan costs nor for the costs of personnel or other administrative costs of the Department of Education for the Part D program. Salaries and expenses for the Department of Education, as for all other government agencies, are funded by annual appropriations. The conferees intend this practice to continue.

LIMITATION ON INDIRECT COSTS

House bill

The House bill states that indirect costs for direct loans may not exceed 30 percent of the section 458 funds.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The House recedes as inclusion of this provision violates the Byrd rule.

DEFAULT RATES

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment clarifies the HEA to reflect congressional intent that the Secretary is required to calculate default rates for direct lending schools and to terminate such schools if they exceed the default rates established in the law, as is the current procedure for schools participating in the guaranteed loan program.

The Secretary is directed to develop criteria for the calculation of default rates for institutions participating in the direct loan program within 120 days after date of enactment of this legislation. The methodology, criteria, and procedures to be used in determining such default rates must be comparable to those applied to schools participating in the guaranteed loan program under Part B of the HEA. Such standards must be promulgated no later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this legislation or the Secretary may not make any new direct loans.

The House recedes with an amendment to clarify the fact that the conferees intend the Department of Education to apply comparable default rate calculations for both guaranteed loans and direct loans repaid through income contingent repayment. The prohibition on the Secretary making income contingent loans if default rate regulations are not issued within 120 days after enactment is not included in the conference agreement.

TRANSITION TO DIRECT LENDING

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment eliminated all references to the transition to the direct loan program from the HEA. These references are no longer necessary or correct in the context of the legislation which does not contemplate a transition from guaranteed lending to direct lending.

ADMINISTRATIVE FEES FOR SCHOOLS AND ALTERNATIVE ORIGINATORS

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment repeal the authority to pay schools or alternative originators to originate direct loans.

STATE RISK-SHARING

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment applies the state risk-sharing provision in current law to direct loan schools. The provision currently applies only to guaranteed loan schools. It mandates that states pay to the federal government a yearly fee based on the cohort default rates of the schools in their state which participate in the federal student loan programs. The Congress anticipates that the Department of Education will implement this provision in the same manner for both guaranteed and direct lending.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

GRACE PERIOD INTEREST SUBSIDY

House bill

The House bill eliminates payment of the interest on a subsidized Stafford student loan by the federal government on behalf of the student during the six-month period after a student leaves school.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

SAME LOAN TERMS AND CONDITIONS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Although the Higher Education Act states that the terms and conditions of the direct and guaranteed student loan programs are supposed to be the same, the Department of Education has instituted more flexible repayment options for direct loan borrowers. The legislation clarifies and strengthens congressional intent that direct and guaranteed loans are required to have the same terms, conditions, eligibility requirements, interest rates, loan limits, and administrative requirements for origination, payment, and processing of applications. Additionally, the Secretary is required to issue corresponding regulations not later than 120 days after the enactment of this legislation.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

COMMON FORM

House bill

The House bill amends the HEA to clarify that the Part B loan application may be the Free Application for Federal Student Assistance (FAFSA). The bill also clarifies that the application may be in an electronic or other format in order to facilitate use by borrowers and institutions. Finally, this section clarifies that application data shall be available to any guaranty agency that is authorized to receive such data by the appropriate institution for the purpose of processing Part B loan applications.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The House recedes as inclusion of this provision violates the Byrd rule. However, the conferees believe that it would be beneficial to students and institutions to have the FAFSA serve as the single loan application for Part B and Part D loans. In 1993, the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance recommended that the FAFSA serve as the single loan application, and that recommendation was adopted for Part D loans, but not for Part B loans. The conferees hoped to correct this disparity, but the budget rules do not permit this change to be made in this legislation. Therefore, the Secretary is encouraged to proceed in that direction and to use his waiver authority, if necessary, under 487A of the Higher Education Act in order to permit this practice for the benefit of students and institutions.

ELECTRONIC FORMS

House bill

The House bill permits the development, production, distribution and use of an electronic version of the free federal common application form by guaranty agencies, lenders, and consortium thereof to expedite the processing of student loans. This authority will enable lenders and guaranty agencies to achieve administrative efficiencies necessary to sustain the subsidy reductions contained elsewhere in this bill. The form must be approved by the Secretary to ensure its consistency with the requirements of the HEA. Certification of the accuracy of the output of the application by the applicant is allowed in a subsequent document. Fees in connection with the use of this form are prohibited.

Senate amendment

No provision

Conference agreement

The House recedes as inclusion of this provision violates the Byrd Rule. However, in the 1992 reauthorization of the Higher Education Act, Congress emphasized the need to simplify and streamline the financial aid delivery system through standardization, electronic forms, and electronic communication linkages. Computerized financial aid applications and administrative processes that allow students to apply for federal, state, and institutional aid electronically, have been developed for the guaranteed loan program. This computerized process would eliminate the need for filling out multiple paper copies and simplify the process for students.

For example, once a student fills in his or her name and address, these data are incorporated into all of the other applications incorporated into the software. The software used in the process also has internal checks that reduce errors, saving administrative time and costs on the part of the school and frustration on the part of the student. The software will not permit an application to be filed if required information, such as home address, is missing. Schools also benefit by being able to transmit data electronically to the Department's central processor expediting the submission of forms as well as the receipt by students of loan proceeds.

In 1992, Congress restricted the production, use and distribution of the FAFSA. This was done to prevent questions other than those approved by the Secretary from being included in the FAFSA. However, software that involves reproducing the FAFSA in electronic form, and not adding questions to it, ought to be available to all students. Approval of such software is not in any way inconsistent with congressional intent. The conferees therefore ask the Secretary to exercise his waiver authority under section 487A of the Higher Education Act to obviate any statutory obstacles which, in the opinion of the Department, prevent the production, distribution and processing of the FAFSA in electronic form.

However, the conferees are sympathetic to various concerns raised by the Department of Education regarding the availability of electronic data for analysis by the Department, two-way exchange of electronic information between the Department and outside party processors to coordinate applications and reapplications, and security measures to protect private information. The conferees intend that the Secretary use his authority to approve electronic versions of the FAFSA to assure that these concerns are adequately and reasonably addressed. It is anticipated that entities seeking to produce, use, distribute, and process the electronic FAFSA will cooperate with the Secretary to assure that changes to current law do not result in undermining on-going efforts to simplify the application and processing of Federal student assistance.

GUARANTEED CONSOLIDATION LOANS

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment make borrowers of direct loans eligible to consolidate such loans into a guaranteed consolidation loan.

DIRECT CONSOLIDATION LOANS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Higher Education Act is clarified to reflect congressional intent that a guaranteed loan borrower is only eligible to obtain a direct consolidation loan when he or she is unable to obtain a consolidation loan from a loan holder. The law is also modified to limit eligibility of guaranteed loan borrowers to those students who are unable to obtain a consolidation loan with an income-contingent loan repayment schedule from a loan holder. Since income-contingent repayment is allowed in the guaranteed loan program in the conference bill, students should not need to consolidate into the direct loan program to obtain this repayment method.

This subsection requires the Secretary to establish appropriate certification procedures to verify eligibility of borrowers for consolidation loans, and it prohibits the Secretary from offering consolidation loans if the Department lacks the administrative capacity or if the projected loan volume of direct consolidation loans would destabilize the availability of guaranteed loans.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

INCOME CONTINGENT REPAYMENT

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The legislation authorizes guaranteed student loan borrowers to repay their loans through income-contingent repayment, which is an option currently available only in the direct loan program. The repayment schedules may be comparable to those developed for the Part D direct loan program.

Conference agreement

The House recedes with an amendment to require that the repayment schedules must be comparable to those developed for the Part D direct loan program. It is the conferees intent that in the case of a student desiring income-contingent repayment from a lender which lacks the capacity to offer income-contingent repayment, such lender will sell the student's loans to another lender that offers such repayment option.

PLUS LOAN LIMITS

House bill

The House bill establishes annual borrowing limits for borrowers of PLUS loans at $15,000 per student in any academic year.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes. The conferees agree that unlimited borrowing by parents without sufficient credit analysis may not be in the best fiscal interests of the federal government or the actual borrower. For this reason, the conferees agreed to a maximum borrowing of $15,000 on parent loans per student per academic year. A $15,000 maximum should not create a hardship for parents and students since the current average parent loan is less than $6,000.

PLUS LOAN INTEREST RATE INCREASE AND REBATE

House bill

The House bill provides for an increase in the PLUS program loan interest rate from the 52-week Treasury bill plus 3.1 percent capped at 9 percent to the 52-week Treasury bill plus 4 percent capped at 11 percent, for loans with a first disbursement after January 1, 1996. The House bill also requires holders of PLUS program loans to pay a rebate to the Secretary equal to .80 percent of the outstanding principal balance of loans held on June 30 and December 31, payable within 60 days after such date.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

GUARANTY AGENCY EXTENDED WITHHOLDING

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment require a guaranty agency to use at least 50 percent of its reserve funds to purchase and hold defaulted loans from lenders. Except under certain circumstances, guarantors must wait at least 180 days after such purchase before submitting claims for reimbursement to the Secretary. During this time, guarantors will work with borrowers to attempt to bring the loan into repayment so that no claim for reimbursement from the federal government is ever filed. Currently, guaranty agencies must file for reimbursement from the Secretary after 45 days.

If such an attempt is successful, the loan will be sold to an eligible lender. Defaulted loans that are held by guarantors for the additional 180 days will be considered assets for the purposes of calculating guarantors' reserve levels.

In addition to saving money for the federal government, this provision gives students an additional 180 days after default to make satisfactory repayment arrangements before having their tax refunds attached by the IRS or facing other, more onerous, collection activities. Borrowers who are able to return their loans to good standing will be eligible for additional aid and other benefits of the loan program.

GUARANTY AGENCY ADMINISTRATIVE COST ALLOWANCE

House bill

The House bill would require originating lenders to pay to the guaranty agency which guarantees a loan, a fee equal to 0.70 percent of the principal amount of the loan for loans having a first disbursement after January 1, 1996. These funds are used by guaranty agencies for administrative costs of collections, preclaim assistance, monitoring enrollment and other program costs. No part of these payments may be assessed or collected directly or indirectly from the borrower.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment would decrease the payment of the administrative cost allowance to guaranty agencies from 1 percent to either: .85 percent of the total principal amount of the loans for which insurance was issued during the fiscal year, or .08 percent of the original principal amount of the loans guaranteed by the program that are outstanding at the end of the previous fiscal year. The amount required to be paid by the federal government would be limited to $180 million per year.

Conference agreement

The House recedes with an amendment. The guaranty agencies would only receive .85% of the total principal amount of the loans for which insurance was issued during the fiscal year and the cap for fiscal years 1996, 1997, and 1998 would be increased to $220 million. The decrease in administrative funds paid to guaranty agencies will require more efficiency on the part of all agencies since they are expected to provide a high level of service with reduced operating funds.

GUARANTY AGENCY RESERVE RATIOS

House bill

Guaranty agencies are required to maintain a minimum reserve level equal to .9 percent of outstanding loans guaranteed.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes.

GUARANTY AGENCY REINSURANCE

House bill

The House bill reduces the guaranty agency reinsurance rate from 98 percent, 88 percent, 78 percent (based on the average default rate of the guaranty agency's loans) to 96/86/76 percent.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes. The conferees agree that all parties should have a greater share of risk in the guaranteed loan program.

DEFAULTED CONSOLIDATION LOAN RETENTION

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment lowers the collection retention rate for defaulted loans that are consolidated from 27 cents to 25 cents on the dollar.

Conference agreement

The House recedes with an amendment to lower the collection retention rate to 18.5 cents on the outstanding principal, interest and collection costs.

SUPPLEMENTAL PRECLAIMS ASSISTANCE

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment eliminate payment to guaranty agencies for supplemental preclaims assistance to lenders for the purpose of preventing defaults. Currently, these payments equal 1 percent of the principal and interest of loans for which assistance was provided to lenders and the lenders did not file a default claim on or before 270 days after the loan became delinquent. Guaranty agencies are still required to provide this assistance (using their general operating funds) even though they will no longer receive a special payment to do so.

MANDATORY ASSIGNMENT

Both the House bill and Senate amendment include a provision to ensure that standards for the mandatory assignment of defaulted loans to the Secretary from the guaranty agencies revert to the standards enacted as part of the Higher Education Amendments of 1992. The legislation specifies that general criteria must be established through negotiated rulemaking.

Conference agreement

Both the House and Senate recede.

TERMINATION OF GUARANTY AGENCIES

House bill

The House bill deletes the Secretary's authority to terminate a guaranty agency for the purpose of achieving an orderly transition to the direct loan program. In addition, a provision is included requiring a hearing on the record prior to the termination of a guaranty agency agreement. The legislation mandates that funds recovered from a terminated guaranty agency shall be returned to the Treasury and used for the purpose of lowering the federal debt.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment includes the same provisions as the House bill. In addition, the Senate amendment further restores to its pre-1993 state the conditions under which the Secretary may terminate guarantors, essentially the same as those established by the 1992 amendments to the Higher Education Act. The Secretary will still possess ample, yet more closely circumscribed, powers to terminate a guarantor that is in serious trouble and in danger of collapse.

The subsection further stipulates that, in the event a guarantor is terminated by the Secretary, the Secretary must abide by the recommendations of the affected State for all guarantor portfolio transfers, mergers and consolidations. In addition, the Secretary may take over a guaranty agency's portfolio only in the event that no existing guaranty agency is willing to act as a successor agency for the affected guarantor.

The Secretary must provide opportunities for hearings on the record in cases where he is exercising his authority to terminate guarantor contracts.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes. The conferees believe that in order to maintain a viable guaranteed loan program, it is necessary to modify these provisions which were adopted in 1993 in order to provide for the easy termination of guaranty agencies as the transition to direct lending was implemented. With the transition effectively terminated in this legislation, guaranty agencies will continue to be critical to the loan program and should not be subject to unilateral termination by the Department. In the event funds are recalled from a guaranty agency, it is the intention of the conferees to require such funds be deposited with the Treasury for purposes of deficit reduction, rather than allowing the Secretary to determine the use of such funds.

USAGE OF GUARANTY AGENCY RESERVE FUNDS

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment clarifies that guarantor reserve funds can be used to pay for future as well as current program costs.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes.

LENDER RISK-SHARING

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment decrease the amount the federal government reimburses lenders and exceptionally well performing lenders for defaulted guaranteed loans in the Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP) from 98 cents to 95 cents on the dollar.

LENDER ORIGINATION FEE

House bill

The House bill lowers the lender origination fee paid to the federal government from .5 percent to .3 percent.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment increases the lender origination fee on guaranteed loans from .5 percent to 1.0 percent, including consolidation loans.

Conference agreement

The House recedes with an amendment to increase the fee to .8%.

HOLDER TRANSFER FEE

House bill

The House bill requires a lender or holder which purchases or takes assignment of a loan from another lender or holder to pay the Secretary a transfer fee equal to 0.20 percent of the principal of the loan.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

HOLDER REBATE FEE

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment imposes a new .05 percent annual fee on loans in repayment by the loan holders on all new guaranteed student loans made after January 1, 1996.

Conference agreement

The House recedes with an amendment to add PLUS loans to the loans subject to the rebate fee and to increase the fee to .07 percent.

LENDERS OF LAST RESORT

House bill

Lender of last resort provisions are modified to require applications to be processed within 15 days and borrowers are only required to obtain one lender rejection in order to establish eligibility for lender of last resort.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

Senate recedes. The conferees agree that loans made under the lender of last resort should be processed in a timely manner without significant burdens on students.

ELIGIBLE LENDERS

House bill

The House bill expands the definition of eligible lender to provide for an additional category of eligible lender under FFELP. This new category would permit certain non-bank lenders, currently eligible pursuant to another subsection but that are experiencing difficulties in lending in certain states, to engage in guaranteed student lending in all states. The new category involves an eligible lender's status as a finance company under state law and would be regulated both by appropriate state regulatory agencies and the Department of Education.

In addition, the House bill clarifies that loans held in trust by an eligible lender for the benefit of a third party are not to be counted when determining a lender's primary consumer credit function.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

SMALL LENDER AUDITS

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and Senate amendment exempt lenders who hold or originate less than $5 million a year in student loans from burdensome and costly annual compliance audits. The cost reductions achieved by small lenders with this provision will enable many such lenders to continue to participate in the guaranteed loan program. The cost of the audits currently required sometimes exceeds the annual earnings of some small lenders from the guaranteed loan program.

REAUTHORIZATION

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and Senate amendment reauthorize the student loan programs through the year 2002. This is necessary in order for the Congressional Budget Office to score savings for the loan programs in this bill.

CONNIE LEE PRIVATIZATION

Conference agreement

Both the House bill and Senate amendment include an amendment to sever any and all of the federal government's links to the College Construction Loan Insurance Association (Connie Lee). Connie Lee was authorized in the 1986 amendments to the Higher Education Act to assist in financing the construction and renovation of certain education facilities. In the Corporation's authorizing language it was intended that the federal government's ownership interest in the Corporation would eventually terminate. This amendment provides for that termination through the sale of the stock of the Corporation owned by the Secretary of Education.

ELIGIBLE INSTITUTION

House bill

The House bill amends the Higher Education Act by requiring that, for the purposes of determining whether an institution meets the requirements of clause (6) (commonly referred to as the 85/15 rule), the Secretary of Education shall count revenues from programs of education or training that do not meet the definition of an eligible program in subsection (e), but are provided on a contractual basis under federal, state, or local training programs, or to business or industry. The provision also prohibits the Secretary from considering the financial information of any institution for a fiscal year which began on or before April 30, 1994.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The House recedes.

SERVICE CONTRACT ACT OF 1965

House bill

The House bill repeals the Service Contract Act of 1965.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The House recedes. The provision was dropped because it violates the Byrd Rule, section 313 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

SUBTITLE B—PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT INCOME SECURITY ACT OF 1974

House bill

The House bill would amend the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) to provide that the 30-day minimum waiting period between the date an explanation of the joint and survivor annuity is provided and the date the annuity starts may be waived by the participant. Title XI contains an identical amendment to the tax code; this is a necessary, conforming amendment to ERISA. This waiver would cause a slight acceleration in distribution of qualified plans.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes.

TITLE V—ENERGY AND NATURAL RESOURCES PROVISIONS

SUBTITLE A—NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION ANNUAL CHARGES

NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION ANNUAL CHARGES

Current law

The NRC is responsible for ensuring the safety of civilian uses of nuclear materials. The independence and integrity of this agency is essential to maintaining the confidence of the public in the use of nuclear energy and radioactive materials. Thus, a reliable stream of long-term funding is vital to assuring the uninterrupted operation of this important organization.

The NRC budget is paid for entirely through user fees on licenses, except for work on the high-level nuclear waste repository which is paid for through the Nuclear Waste Fund. User fees are an equitable way of paying for the cost of Federal regulation. Currently, user fees fund several Federal agencies or programs including the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the pipeline safety program under the authority of the U.S. Department of Transportation.

By collecting user fees, those who use an agency's resources pay the costs of funding that agency. Those who use the greatest amount of the agency's resources are required to pay the greatest annual fees. In the case of the NRC, nuclear licensees pay for the cost of Federal regulation and then pass that cost on to their customers. The result is an equitable one: those who do not buy electricity or products generated by nuclear power do not bear the cost of regulating it.

Section 6101 of the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1990 (P.L. 101–508) requires the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to collect annual charges from its licensees to provide offsetting collections to pay for its programs. Specifically, section 6101 allows the NRC to collect amounts which, when added to other amounts collected by the NRC (such as fees collected under the Independent Offices Appropriations Act of 1952, 31 U.S.C. 9701), equals 100 percent. However, current law only provides authority to collect fees and annual charges equal to 100 percent of the NRC budget through fiscal year 1998. Absent an extension, after fiscal year 1998, NRC's permanent authority to collect 33 percent of its budget authority through fees and annual charges would take effect.

Currently, the NRC budget is made up of money collected through three different methodologies. First, the NRC receives appropriations from the Nuclear Waste Fund established under section 302(c) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (42 U.S.C. 10222(c)) for licensing the Department of Energy's nuclear waste management program. Charges for these activities are not recovered through annual charges because nuclear utilities are paying for the cost of these activities through their payments to the Nuclear Waste Fund. Thus, recovery of Nuclear Waste Fund appropriations through the annual charge would constitute double payment by the utilities.

The NRC also recovers a portion of its budget through fees assessed on licensees under the Independent Offices Appropriations Act of 1952 (31 U.S.C. 9701). This Act provides that anyone receiving a service or a thing of value from the NRC shall pay the NRC's cost of providing individually identifiable services to applicants and holders of NRC licensees from the recipients of those services. Finally, generic NRC activities that benefit all licensees generally are recovered through annual charges.

House bill

Section 3031 of the House bill extends NRC authority to collect up to 100 percent of its budget through user fees through fiscal year 2002. This extension will generate revenues in amounts sufficient to offset expenditures by the NRC. The NRC is charged by the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1990 to assess these charges under the principle that licensees who require the greatest expenditures of the NRC's resources should pay the greatest annual charge. This section does not alter, in any way, the fee structure as currently collected by the NRC.

Senate amendment

Same provision, except that fees are extended through fiscal year 2005.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House language.

SUBTITLE B—DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY ASSETS

Chapter 1—United States Enrichment Corporation

Present law

Title IX of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 added a new title II to the Atomic Energy Act of 1954. Title II of the Atomic Energy Act established a wholly owned government corporation known as the United States Enrichment Corporation (USEC) to operate the Federal Government's uranium enrichment enterprise. Chapter 25 of title II set up a process by which ownership of the government-owned corporation would be sold to the private sector.

House bill

Title III, subtitle C of the House bill amends title II of the Atomic Energy Act to facilitate the sale of USEC to private investors and to maximize the return to the U.S. Treasury.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains a comparable provision. The Senate amendment repeals most of title II of the Atomic Energy Act but provides new statutory authority similar to the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with minor changes.

Section 5012(b)(8) of the Senate amendment prohibiting the swap, exchange, or loan of Russian uranium hexafluoride was deleted, although the conferees intend that any of the Russian uranium hexafluoride sold pursuant to paragraph (5) of section 5212(b) of the Conference Agreement may be swapped, exchanged, or loaned solely for the purpose of facilitating the further processing and use as nuclear fuel, and that the Department of Commerce shall establish procedures to ensure that these limitations are not circumvented.

Section 5013(a) of the Senate amendment relating to low-level waste disposal was rewritten to eliminate matter that could have been deemed extraneous under section 313 of the Congressional Budget Act. The conferees intend the revised provision in section 5213(a) of the Conference Agreement to require the Department of Energy to offer low-level waste disposal services to any person licensed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to operate a uranium enrichment facility on the same terms as it provides those services to USEC. The conferees believe this policy is essential to avoid anti-competitive effects in the domestic uranium enrichment market.

Section 5013(c) of the Senate amendment relating to State and interstate compact low-level waste facilities was deleted to eliminate matter that could have been deemed extraneous under section 313 of the Congressional Budget Act. Notwithstanding the elimination of the provision, the conferees believe that nothing in the conference agreement, the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act, any compact consent act, or any other law can be read to require a State or interstate compact to provide treatment, storage, or disposal to any low-level radioactive waste (including mixed waste) attributable to the operation, decontamination, or decommissioning of any uranium enrichment facility.

Finally, a provision in the Senate amendment to commercialize gaseous diffusion technology was removed.

Chapter 2—Department of Energy

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY ASSET SALES

During the Cold War, the Department of Energy stockpiled large inventories of industrial materials that were needed for weapons production activities. As those activities are reduced in scope and facilities closed, those materials are no longer needed in large quantities. In the past, DOE has had no clear accounting of these inventories on a Department-wide basis. However, an initial assessment shows that this inventory includes at least 10,000 pounds of precious metals (such as silver, platinum and gold), and large volumes of non-precious metals, rare gases and fuel. Maintaining these inventories contributes to high overhead costs associated with storage, security and handling of these materials. In total, the value of these assets is estimated to be as much as $300 million. This subpart would require DOE to conduct a program to identify and sell a minimum of $225 million in assets by October 1, 2000. The Subpart would expedite these sales by providing an exemption from the Federal acquisition regulations that govern sales of "excess" materials by Federal agencies.

House bill

The House bill had no such provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment requires the Secretary of Energy to conduct an asset management and disposition program that will result in no less than $225 million in receipts and savings by October 1, 2000. It also requires the Secretary to sell a minimum 1,139,000,000 pounds of fuel, 136,000 tons of chemicals and industrial gases, 557,000 tons of scrap metal, 14,000 radiation sources, 17,000 pieces of major equipment, 11,000 pounds of precious metals, and 91,000,000 pounds of base metals.

In order to expedite the sales and maximize the value of the assets, this provision exempts the asset sales under this subsection from provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 and the Surplus Property Act of 1944. It also requires that the Secretary consult with appropriate executive agencies to avoid market disruptions that might result from the asset sales.

This provision requires that all proceeds from the asset sales be returned to the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Conference agreement

The House accedes to the Senate provision.

SALE OF WEEKS ISLAND OIL AND LEASE OF EXCESS STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE CAPACITY

House bill

The House bill authorizes the lease of excess Strategic Petroleum Reserve capacity.

Senate amendment

The Senate bill authorizes the sale of 32 million barrels of oil contained in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. It also authorizes the lease of excess Strategic Petroleum Reserve capacity, and it authorizes that beginning in fiscal year 2001 one-half of the revenues generated by such lease be available to the Secretary of Energy for the purchase of oil for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Conference agreement

The Conference Report provides for the sale of 32 million barrels of oil contained in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. The Secretary shall, to the greatest extent practicable, sell oil from the reserve in a manner which minimizes the impact of such sale upon supply levels and market forces. The Conference Report also authorizes the lease of excess Strategic Petroleum Reserve capacity, and provides that beginning in fiscal year 2001 (except for years 2003 and 2004) one-half of the revenues generated by such lease be available to the Secretary of Energy for the purchase of oil for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

OTHER

WASTE ISOLATION PILOT PLANT

House bill

Subtitle D of Title 3 of H.R. 2491 contained the ''Waste Isolation Pilot Plant Land Withdrawal Amendment Act,'' the purpose of which was to eliminate outdated statutory requirements for, and expedite the commencement of, operations at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant (WIPP). The WIPP is the nation's repository for the permanent disposal of transuranic materials.

Transuranic (TRU) elements—those with a periodic table value greater than uranium—are generally man-made products synthesized in laboratory conditions. Most TRU waste in the United States consists of trash, such as protective clothing, lab instruments, and equipment which has been contaminated by TRU isotopes in the course of the defense nuclear weapons program. TRU wastes are currently stored on-site at the facilities where they are generated, with a vast majority of these wastes being located at 10 different Department of Energy sites.

Until 1970, TRU waste was disposed of in a manner similar to that used for low-level radioactive wastes, usually by burial in shallow earth trenches. In 1970, the Atomic Energy Commission (forerunner of the Department of Energy) determined that TRU wastes should be handled in a more comprehensive fashion, and began siting studies which resulted in the decision to construct the WIPP facility about 26 miles east of Carlsbad, New Mexico. Congress authorized the construction of the WIPP in 1979 as part of the Department of Energy National Security and Military Application of Nuclear Energy Authorization Act (Public Law 96–164).

In 1992, Congress passed the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant Land Withdrawal Act (Public Law 102–579) to transfer ownership of the land surrounding WIPP to the Department of Energy (DOE), and authorize DOE to begin underground experiments using TRU waste. In October of 1993, DOE announced that it would forgo on-site testing of waste at WIPP in favor of laboratory testing at the Sandia National Laboratories to determine the site's suitability for disposing of TRU waste. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the National Academy of Sciences supported DOE's decision to switch from on-site testing to laboratory testing. Because there is broad agreement that in-situ testing will not be necessary to make a site suitability determination, subtitle D would have removed existing statutory hurdles related to in-situ testing that were imposed by the WIPP Land Withdrawal Act.

Further, WIPP is currently subject to four major regulatory schemes: 40 CFR Part 191: Environmental Radiation Protection Standards for Management and Disposal of Spent Nuclear Fuel, High Level and Transuranic Radioactive Wastes; 40 CFR Part 194: Criteria for the Certification and Determination of the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant's Compliance with Environmental Standards for the Management and Disposal of Spent Nuclear Fuel, High Level and Transuranic Radioactive Wastes; 40 CFR Part 264: Standards for Owners and Operators of Hazardous Waste Treatment, Storage and Disposal Facilities; and 40 CFR Part 268: Land Disposal Restrictions. The overlapping regulatory restrictions of these requirements have contributed to the lack of progress in opening the repository, and pose the risk of substantial cost increases in operating the facility. According to the Department of Energy's own estimates, complying with the overlapping requirements of 40 CFR Part 268: Land Disposal Restrictions could add up to an additional $500 million in operating costs at WIPP over the life of the facility. EPA has agreed with DOE that the current regulatory structure is superfluous. Subtitle D of the House bill would have removed the unnecessary regulatory burdens that are delaying the opening of WIPP.

Operation of WIPP is a crucial step to the environmental remediation of TRU waste at facilities throughout the DOE weapons complex. Thus, in addition to increasing the cost of compliance at WIPP itself, delays in opening WIPP due to unnecessary regulation have caused increased expenditures for storage costs and have contributed to a lack of movement on cleanup at least at nineteen DOE sites. The Congressional Budget Office has estimated that legislation removing unnecessary regulatory hurdles to the opening of WIPP would save $130 million in outlays over the 1996–2000 period.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment had no such provision.

Conference agreement

The Conferees agree that legislation removing unnecessary regulation applicable to the WIPP facility is needed and would result in significant savings to the American taxpayer. However, the Conferees agreed not to include Subtitle D of Title 3 of H.R. 2491 in the conference report solely because the $130 million in discretionary outlays saved by the provision could be deemed "extraneous" under section 313(b) of the Congressional Budget Act.

SUBTITLE C—NATURAL RESOURCES

Chapter 1—Department of the Interior Conveyances

SUBCHAPTER A—CALIFORNIA DIRECTED LAND SALE

House bill

Title IX, subtitle C, part 4 of the House bill directs a land conveyance in California in consideration of $501,000 and a liability release.

Senate amendment

The Senate had no similar provision.

Conference agreement

The Conference agreement follows the House bill with minor modifications.

SUBCHAPTER B—HELIUM RESERVES

House bill

The House bill amends the Helium Act of 1960. It authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to enter into contracts with private parties to recover and dispose of helium on Federal lands. Additionally, the Secretary is authorized to store, transport, and sell helium only in accordance with the act.

The bill authorizes the Secretary to store and transport crude helium and to maintain and operate crude helium storage at the Bureau of Mines Cliffside Field, together with related helium transportation and withdrawal facilities.

Under the bill, the Secretary must cease producing, refining and marketing refined helium within 18 months after enactment of this bill.

Further, the Secretary is directed to dispose of all facilities, equipment and other real and personal property held for the refining, producing and marketing of refined helium within two years after the Secretary ceases production, refining and marketing operations. All proceeds from the sale of such facilities shall be applied against the outstanding Helium Fund debt. All costs associated with the sale and disposal, including costs associated with termination of personnel, shall be paid from the Helium Production Fund. Any contract for refined helium in effect on the date of enactment of this bill would stay in effect until the cessation of facility operation. This section also provides for any costs associated with termination of such contracts. Funds for such costs shall be drawn from the Helium Production Fund.

Under the House bill, full cost recovery for helium storage, withdrawal, or transportation services must be provided to the Secretary by users.

Also, the bill provides for the sale of crude helium. It amends section 6 of the 1960 Act to require that those individuals who enter into contracts with Federal agencies to provide helium also purchase an equivalent amount from the Secretary. The Secretary is precluded from making sales of crude helium in amounts that would disrupt the market. All funds collected pursuant to this section shall be deposited against the helium debt, which shall be frozen at the amount outstanding on October 1, 1995. The minimum price of crude helium sold by the Secretary would be determined on the basis of the outstanding amount owed against the debt in comparison with the volume of crude helium in the Cliffside Reservoir. All funds received from the sale or disposition of helium produced under a Federal lease would be deposited against the debt.

The Secretary, no later than 2005, shall commence making sales of the crude helium in the Cliffside Reservoir, and dispose of all such reserves by 2015, except for 600 million cubic feet. Such sales must be made in consultation with the helium industry to provide for minimum market disruption. This subsection ensures repayment of the debt.

Under the House bill, fiscal reporting by the Inspector General of the Department of the Interior is required. This financial statement shall include: a balance sheet for the Helium Operations, the statement of operations, a statement of cash flows, and a reconciliation of budget reports.

Senate amendment

The Senate included a similar provision.

The House recedes to Senate, with modifications.

One of the most significant modifications agreed to by the conferees was the removal of the GAO audit from the bill. This was due to procedural objections in the Senate. Although the legislative language has been removed, the conferees intend the audit in section 9017 of the House-passed version of the bill, with one change, to be conducted each year.

It has been brought to the conferees' attention that the audit directed in the House bill would be somewhat duplicative of actions currently carried out by the Inspector General. Therefore, the conferees expect the Department of Interior Inspector General to carry out the audit, rather than the GAO as prescribed by the House provisions. Further, the Conferees urge the Department IG to publish, in detail, this audit in its annual review of the Department's activities in its report to Congress. The conferees emphasize the importance of completing the audit and including in the financial statements the information requested in the House bill.

The conference agreement requires the Secretary to dispose of excess property and facilities used for the purpose of producing, refining, and marketing helium no later than 24 months after the cessation of helium refining and marketing.

Chapter 2—Arctic Coastal Plain Leasing and Revenue Act

House bill and Senate amendment

Both the House bill and the Senate amendment contain provisions authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Interior to lease competitively the Coastal Plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge ("Coastal Plain") for exploration and production of oil and gas in a manner consistent with protection of the environment.

Conference agreement

The conferees agreed to adopt the Senate language with several major modifications.

The conferees adopted language clarifying that, because of its expertise in onshore oil and gas leasing, the Bureau of Land Management, in consultation with the Fish and Wildlife Service and other federal agencies, manage the oil and gas leasing program on the Coastal Plain and be responsible for all leasing and management of the leases.

The conferees, in an effort to expedite the leasing process and in recognition of the Congress' long involvement with this issue, added language contained in the House bill which determines that the oil and gas leasing program authorized by this subtitle is compatible with the purposes for which the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge was established and that no further findings or decisions are required to implement this determination.

The conferees agreed to compromise between the House and Senate language to authorize the Secretary to designate up to 45,000 acres of the Coastal Plain as Special Areas and close such areas to leasing if the Secretary determines the lands are of such unique character and interest so as to require special management and regulatory protection. Horizontal drilling beneath the Special Areas is specifically allowed. The conferees expect the Secretary to notify the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources and the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives ninety days in advance of making such designations. Such notification shall include the reasons and justifications for designating the Special Area.

The conferees agreed to add language contained in the House bill that provides that the sole authority for the Secretary to close portions of the Coastal Plain to oil and gas leasing is provided for in this subtitle.

The conferees agreed to add language from the House bill authorizing and directing the Secretary to convey lands and interests therein to the Kaktovik Inupiat Corporation and the Arctic Slope Regional Corporation to the extent necessary to fulfill their entitlement under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. This conveyance is necessary to maximize revenues by settling any clouds on title to lands on Coastal Plain prior to leasing of the area.

The conferees agreed to modify the Senate language to provide that the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes and provisions of the subtitle be promulgated within fourteen months after date of enactment of the subtitle.

The conferees agreed to modify the Senate language with respect to the Final Legislative Environmental Impact Statement (FLEIS), which was completed in April of 1987, to provide that such statement is adequate to satisfy the legal and procedural requirements under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) with respect to actions authorized to be taken by the Secretary to develop and promulgate the regulations for the establishment of a leasing program, to conduct the first lease sale, any subsequent lease sales, and to grant rights-of-way and easements to carry out the purposes of the subtitle.

The conference agreement reflects a compromise between the House and Senate language to provide that the first lease sale shall be comprised of no less than 200,000 acres nor more than 300,000 acres. Subsequent lease sales can be no less than 200,000 acres. The conferees also agreed to changes to the Senate language so that the initial lease sale will occur within 20 months after date of enactment; the second sale would be held no later than 24 months after the first lease sale; subsequent sales would be conducted not later than 12 months thereafter.

The conferees agreed to adopt the House language to authorize the Secretary to close, on a seasonal basis, portions of the Coastal Plain to exploratory drilling activities as necessary to protect caribou calving areas and other species of fish and wildlife.

The conferees agreed to delete the provision in the Senate bill forbidding the flaring of natural gas. The conferees intend for the operator of wells to minimize the flaring of natural gas to emergency situations and other necessary flaring.

The conferees agreed to adopt the House language requiring the holder of a lease to use best efforts to assure that a fair share of employment and contracting, as determined by the level of obligation previously agreed to in the 1974 agreement implementing section 29 of the Federal Agreement and Grant of Right-of-Way for the Operation of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline, be made available for Alaska Natives and Alaska Native Corporations.

The conferees agreed to modify the provisions of the Senate bill relating to the Park and Wildlife Refuge Renewal Fund to capture a portion of the royalty and other revenues from the Coastal Plain (in addition to bonus bid revenue) and expanded the purposes for which the fund can be used. In addition, a cap of $250,000,000 over the life of the fund contained in the House language was imposed.

The conferees also agreed to modify language in the House passed bill to provide for the establishment of a $30,000,000 community assistance fund in the Treasury from the Federal share of the first lease sale. Not to exceed $5,000,000 a year will be made available from that fund to the Secretary to provide local assistance to organized boroughs, municipalities, and recognized Indian Reorganization Act entities which are directly impacted by activities authorized under this subtitle to provide public and social services and facilities required in connection with the exploration and production of oil and gas on the Coastal Plain.

The conferees are aware of concerns raised over the possibility that the revenue sharing formula contained in the legislation could be subject to challenge as inconsistent with the provisions in the Mineral Leasing Act with respect to Alaska which were made as part of the Alaska Statehood Act. The conferees want to emphasize that those concerns are not well founded. The conferees have not sought to alter in any manner the provisions of the Alaska Statehood Act nor the Mineral Leasing Act. The provisions contained in this legislation are the sole authority for the conduct of the leasing program on the Coastal Plain and are self-contained. The revenue sharing provisions contained in this Chapter are unique to this particular area and program and do not alter in any manner the revenue sharing provisions applicable to any leasing program elsewhere in Alaska conducted under the Mineral Leasing Act. The conferees note that the solicitor of the Department of the Interior has concurred in this assessment and that the Governor of the State of Alaska, the President of the Senate and Speaker of the house of the Alaska Legislature also have indicated their acquiescence in this particular formula. The conferees note that in establishing the 1002 area, Congress specifically reserved to itself the decision as to whether to open the area to leasing and the terms and conditions under which such a program would be conducted and do not view the specifics of this particular leasing program, including the revenue sharing provisions, as a precedent for any other area in Alaska.

Chapter 3—Water Projects

SUBCHAPTER A—IRRIGATION PREPAYMENT

House bill

The House had no provision.

Senate amendments

The Senate had a provision repealing section 213(c) of the Reclamation Reform Act to permit prepayment of outstanding construction debt.

Conference agreement

The Conferees agreed to the Senate provision and note that the use of OMB Circular A–129 is solely for the purposes of calculating the discount rate.

SUBCHAPTER B—HETCH HETCHY

House bill

The House-passed bill contained Sec. 9214, which would increase from $30,000 to $8 million the annual payment made by the city of San Francisco under the provisions of the Raker Act (Act of December 13, 1913) for having the Hetch Hetchy system within Yosemite National Park.

Senate amendments

The Senate-passed bill contained a provision which would have raised the annual payment from $30,000 to a minimum of $597,000 pursuant to a formula used by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Conference agreement

The conferees reviewed all of the relevant factors and concluded that $2,000,000 was an appropriate figure. The managers also were made aware, by the County of Tuolumne, California, which has responsibility for providing infrastructure support to the Hetch Hetchy facility, that there are impacts on local government from the Raker Act. The managers believe that the Congress should examine those concerns.

SUBCHAPTER C—COLLBRAN PROJECT

House bill

The House had no provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate measure contained a provision that would transfer the Collbran Project in Colorado to the local districts.

Conference agreement

The conferees agreed to adopt the Senate provisions with modifications.

The conferees intend that by providing a non-exclusive easement to the Districts and the operators and owners of the associated storage reservoirs, that the Districts will full access to undertake any activities the Districts believe are necessary for project purposes. While the easement is non-exclusive, the conferees intend that in allowing any other use, the Forest Service not interfere with the use of the easement by the District for project purposes.

The conferees agree that the provisions in this legislation dealing with the Collbran Project are unique to that project and are not a precedent for other project transfers.

SUBCHAPTER D—SLY PARK

House bill

The House-passed version contained Sec. 9213, to convey the Sly Park Unit of the Central Valley Project to the El Dorado Irrigation District.

Senate amendment

The Senate-passed version contained no such provision.

Conference agreement

The conferees agreed to adopt the House-passed version, but modified the language to address scoring problems that had been raised by the Congressional Budget Office. The revised language requires the payment for the original construction costs by December 31, 1997.

SUBCHAPTER E—CENTRAL UTAH PROJECT

House bill

The House-passed bill contained Sec. 9211, to authorize the prepayment of certain repayment contracts between the United States and the Central Utah Water Conservancy District.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment did not contain a prepayment provision specific to the Central Utah Water Conservancy District.

Conference agreement

The conferees accepted the House-passed version, with minor modifications intended to clarify the language.

Chapter 4—Federal Oil and Gas Royalties

House bill

The House bill would amend the Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982 and the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act to create a more aggressive framework for the way the Department of the Interior's Minerals Management Service (MMS) and delegated states audit and collect federal oil and gas royalties and other monies owed the United States. These changes would provide for: more efficient audit and royalty collection processes, resulting in collection of additional monies owed to the U.S. and the States within a 6-year limitation period; authority for the Secretary to delegate certain royalty management functions to States, where appropriate, to collect additional royalties due States and the U.S. Treasury, thereby resulting in a more economic royalty management program; records retention requirements for industry to determine royalties due during the 6-year limitation period; more efficient appeals processes at the Department of the Interior, resulting in additional collections from stale disputes between the U.S. and royalty payers; establishment of interest requirements analogous to those of the IRS, thereby encouraging accurate royalty payments; limits on the period within which lessees can make adjustments or request refunds, resulting in additional collections; and pre-payment of royalties on "marginal properties" and other relief to collect royalties on production that might otherwise be abandoned.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contained provisions substantially similar to the House version.

Conference agreement

The Conference agreement blends the House and Senate provisions, with modifications to eliminate procedural points of order in the Senate, to clarify that delegated States have a direct role in increasing net receipts due States and the U.S., and to make technical corrections.

Chapter 5—Mining

HARDROCK MINING LAW REFORM

Short title

The Senate bill contains a short title in Sec. 5700. The House bill does not. The House recedes to the Senate position.

Definitions

The Senate bill contains definitions in Sec. 5701. The House bill defines terms where pertinent. The House recedes to the Senate position with amendment by adding and deleting terms as necessary to reflect the conference report language.

Rental payments

The Senate bill contains claim maintenance requirements in Sec. 5702 which extend the current fee of $100 per year per claim and in Sec. 5703 enlarges the "small miner" waiver and exemption from the current ten or fewer claims to twenty-five or fewer claims. The House bill has parallel provisions in Sec. 9505 which include payment of an annual claim maintenance fee which escalates with time to deter speculative holding of claims. Credit for the value of labor performed to explore and develop one's claim(s) may offset not more than 75% of the following year's fee, with a three-year carry forward provision.

The bill managers believe the current claim maintenance fee has caused a precipitous decrease in exploration of the public lands as evidenced by the huge decline in mining claims of record with the Bureau of Land Management from approximately 1,200,000 in 1989 to a preliminary estimate of less than 300,000 in 1995. Exploration expenditures in the U.S. have also been falling while worldwide exploration expenditures are increasing significantly. Without exploration future mines will not be discovered on which royalties will be paid under the terms of this bill.

The Senate recedes to the House position with an amendment to reduce the exploration and development credit to not more than 50% of the claim maintenance fee which is renamed the "claim rental fee." The labor credit does not begin until the year 1999. Further, the amendment changes the timing and amount of the payments to $100 per year per claim for years 1996 through 1998 and $200 per year per claim in 1999 and thereafter, with the aforementioned exploration credit available. The managers believe the consequences of rental payments should be reviewed periodically to ensure hardrock mineral exploration of the public lands remains viable.

Patenting

The Senate bill contains patenting provisions in Sec. 5704 requiring the payment of fair market value of the land within the boundaries of claims for which title passes and the reservation of a royalty interest and a right of title reversion to the United States if the land is used for non-mining purposes, except for such claims as were pending application for patent as of September 30, 1995. The House bill contains similar provisions in Sec. 9502, except that those persons holding valid claims as of the date of enactment have opportunity to seek patents under current law within a two-year transition period (or ten-year period for claims for which access has been denied) by making application for mineral survey or patent. The House bill lacks a "reverter" provision.

The bill managers acknowledge persons holding "valid mining claims," (i.e., for which a discovery of a valuable mineral deposit within the meaning of the mining laws can be demonstrated on the date of enactment of this act, as well as for all location and recordation and payment requirements have been met) have a possessory right to the locatable minerals within their claims, as enunciated by the U.S. Supreme Court to be "property in the fullest sense of the term..." (Wilbur v. U.S. ex rel. Krushnic, 280 US 306).

Further, the managers believe a prospectively applied royalty may not be imposed upon claim owners who successfully make such showing, otherwise the royalty becomes an obligation in the nature of a severance tax which is levied by a government merely for permission to mine within the government's boundaries without respect to mineral estate ownership. The managers acknowledge many mining claims are held under the principle of pedis possessio, i.e., possession good against rival claimants but not the United States because a discovery of a mineral deposit is lacking. However, the managers believe there are claim holders with valid existing rights and expressly encourage persons holding such claims to assert their rights.

Therefore, the House recedes to the Senate position with an amendment which clarifies that the bill applies to all claims, subject to a vested possessory property right against the government. All mining claims would be subject to royalty, fair market value payment, and the reverter provision except claims for which there is a "vested possessory property right," including those mineral patent applications pending at the Department of the Interior, if such claims meet the requirements of existing law. These claimholders are exempted from the new requirements for the same reason: to protect valid property rights that have ripened because of the operation of the general mining laws. Those claimholders who cannot establish a discovery have no valid existing right and are not eligible to receive patents (and that would continue to be the case under the new law). Other existing claim holders may be able to establish a discovery as well, even though they have not applied for patents. Patenting is not and never has been a prerequisite to mining under the general mining laws. The important consideration is not whether miners have sought patents but whether they can show a "discovery" of a valuable mineral deposit. If they can, they have a constitutionally protected property right that cannot and should not be abrogated by Congress. The managers therefore intend with this subsection to apply the new royalty, reverter, and fair market value provisions in all cases in which they fairly can be applied, but not to those claimholders who have valid existing property rights.

The managers note that if a mineral patent "moratorium" (i.e., a limitation on the use of appropriated funds by the Secretary to accept or process applications or issue mineral patents) is in effect when this chapter is enacted into law, that such limitation is not part of the "general mining laws in effect on the date immediately prior to the date of enactment." This is consistent with House rules which constitute such funds limitation amendments to not violate the prohibition on legislating on appropriations measures.

Further, the House recedes to the Senate position on the reservation of a reversionary interest to the United States with an amendment allowing a right of re-entry to the United States with the direction to the Secretary to renounce such interests in certain situations.

Royalty and abandoned mine reclamation

The Senate bill contains royalty provisions styled as a "net smelter return" in Sec. 5705 with half of receipts to be disbursed to the federal treasury and half to those States whence production occurred, for purposes of reclamation of abandoned locatable minerals mines, and establishes a threshold of $500,000 annual gross proceeds below which royalty is exempted. The House bill contains a "net proceeds" royalty in Sec. 9503 that chiefly differs from the Senate version in allowing the deduction of mining costs from gross proceeds as well as beneficiation, smelting and refining costs which both bills allow, and establishes a threshold of $50,000 annual net proceeds (aggregated from all production subject to the Act) below which royalty is exempted. The House bill exempts claims which have been the recipient of Urban Development Action Grants (UDAG) funds from payment of royalty. The House bill disburses royalty receipts two-thirds to the federal treasury, one-third to the States without regard as to how such funds may be spent.

The bill managers acknowledge the need for a "net" royalty rather than a "gross" royalty in order to levy a fair royalty given the broad class of minerals and methods to which the general mining laws apply, e.g., a net royalty does not favor precious metals versus base metals extraction, open-pit operations versus underground mines, or low-cost labor areas versus remote high-cost areas. A net proceeds royalty conserves resources by not promoting "high-grading" of deposits as do "gross" royalties which clearly affect behavior. Consequently, the Senate recedes to the House royalty terms, including the net proceeds calculation as the threshold for royalty relief.

The bill managers acknowledge the need to offset the loss of State revenues, such as from severance taxes, to be expected from the imposition of a federal royalty. The bill managers also acknowledge the desirability of establishing a fund for the reclamation of public lands impacted by abandoned hardrock mines. Therefore, the Senate recedes to the House position on disbursement of receipts with an amendment to require 10 percent of royalty receipts be disbursed to States without spending mandates, and the House recedes to the Senate position on establishing an AML fund with an amendment to set the disbursement at forty percent of royalty receipts, retaining the Senate provisions of Section 5706 through 5710 respect to the AML funds except for an amendment limiting the eligible areas for reclamation to be public lands only and deleting Section 5709 relating to the use and objectives of the AML funds.

General provisions

The Senate bill contains provisions regarding the effect of the Subtitle on the general mining laws at Sec. 5711, and severability of the provisions of the Subtitle in the event of successful judicial challenge at Sec. 5712. The House has no comparable provisions. The House recedes to the Senate position.

Mineral materials and sodium

The House bill contains provisions for the prospective elimination of the applicability of the general mining laws to so-called uncommon varieties of mineral materials, and the modification of the current system for disposition of mineral materials to provide for stable supply of such materials at Sec. 9504. The Senate bill contains no comparable provisions.

The bill managers acknowledge the untenable situation which exists today for both the federal government and miners claiming alleged "uncommon varieties" of mineral materials. The adjudication of the validity of such claims is far more costly and time consuming for claimant and government alike than is usually warranted by the value of the commodity. Therefore, the Senate recedes to the House position with an amendment which strikes explanatory language while retaining language which expressly amends the 1947 Material Sales Act and the 1955 Surface Resources Act.

The House bill contains provisions affecting the disposition of sodium compounds from federal lands in Subsec. 9504 (i). The Senate bill contains no such provisions. The House recedes to the Senate position.

Chapter 6—Department of the Interior

AIRCRAFT SERVICES

House bill

The House bill did not contain language regarding this provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contained provisions to reduce the amount of aircraft owned by the Department of the Interior and increase the use of aircraft contract services with private entities.

Conference agreement

The conferees agreed to accept the Senate provision as written. The conferees direct the Secretary of the Interior to contract with private entities for the provision of all aircraft services required by the Department of the Interior (DOI), other than those available from the 13 existing DOI aircraft whose primary purpose is fire suppression. The Secretary is also directed to sell all the aircraft and related facilities owned by the Department, except those specified in the legislation, by September 30, 1998. It is the intention of the Conferees that this sale of assets be made to the highest bidder in each case and that the Secretary seek, to the maximum extent possible, to obtain fair market value for the assets.

Nothing in this section is intended to affect the use of dual-function pilots. The conferees expect that these personnel will continue to carry out their current role with the use of aircraft owned by private entities. The conferees direct the Secretary to report to the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources and the House Resources Committee as soon as possible, and no later than October 1, 1996, identifying aircraft that should not be sold because they are either needed for the primary purpose of law enforcement, are specially equipped, or are not readily available under contract with private entities at a competitive cost. The conferees expect that those committees will review this information and consider the need to amend the requirements of subsection (b).

Chapter 7—Power Marketing Administrations

SUBCHAPTER A—BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION

House bill

The House bill provides for the refinancing of certain appropriated debt of the Bonneville Power Marketing Administration.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides for the refinancing of certain appropriated debt of the Bonneville Power Marketing Administration.

Conference agreement

With minor exceptions, the language contained in the House bill is identical to the language contained in the Senate amendment. In the Confederated Tribe of the Colville Reservation Grand Coulee Dam Settlement Act provisions, the Conference Report uses the term “credit” contained in the House bill in lieu of the term “appropriations” which was contained in the Senate amendment. There is no substantive difference between these terms.

The Conferees agreed to drop the study provisions contained in the House bill with the understanding that the Bonneville Power Administration would undertake these studies without a specific statutory requirement to do so. Accordingly, the conferees expect that the Administrator shall undertake a study to determine the effect that increases in the rates for electric power sales made by the Administrator may have on the customer base of the Bonneville Power Administration. Such study shall identify other sources of electric power that may be available to customers of the Bonneville Power Administration and shall estimate the level at which higher rates for power sales by the Administration may result in the loss of customers by the Administration. The Administrator shall also undertake a study to determine the total prior costs incurred by the Bonneville Power Administration for compliance with the provisions of the Endangered Species Act of 1973, and the total future costs anticipated to be incurred by the Administration for compliance with such provisions. It is the Conferee's expectation that the Administrator shall complete and submit to the Congress the results of these studies within 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SUBCHAPTER B—ALASKA POWER ADMINISTRATION

House bill

The House bill provides for the sale of the Alaska Power Marketing Administration's (APA) assets, and the termination of the APA once the sale occurs.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides for the sale of the Alaska Power Marketing Administration's (APA) assets, and the termination of the APA once the sale occurs. It also provides for the exemption of the two hydroelectric projects from the licensing requirements of part I of the Federal Power Act.

Conference agreement

The Conferees adopted the Senate language with minor changes. The APA's assets will be sold pursuant to the 1989 purchase agreements between the Department of Energy and the purchasers. The Snettisham hydroelectric project and related assets will be sold to the State of Alaska. The Eklutna hydroelectric project and related assets will be sold jointly to the Municipality of Anchorage, the Chugach Electric Association, and the Matanuska Electric Association. For both projects, the sale price is determined by calculating the net present value of the remaining debt service payments the Treasury would receive if the Federal government retained ownership.

This Act and the separate formal agreements provide for the full protection of fish and wildlife. The purchasers, the State of Alaska, the U.S. Department of Commerce National Marine Fisheries Service, and the U.S. Department of the Interior have entered into a formal agreement providing for post-sale protection, mitigation, and enhancement of fish and wildlife resources affected by Eklutna and Snettisham. This Act makes that agreement legally enforceable.

As a result of the formal agreements, the Department of Energy, the Department of the Interior, and the Department of Commerce all agree that the two hydroelectric projects warrant exemption from FERC licensing under Part I of the Federal Power Act. The August 7, 1991 formal purchase agreement states:

"NMFS, USFWS and the State agree that the following mechanism to develop and implement measures to protect, mitigate damages to, and enhance fish and wildlife (including related spawning grounds and habitat) obviate the need for the Eklutna Purchasers and AEA to obtain FERC licenses. (Emphasis supplied.)"

The Alaska Power Administration employs 34 people in the State of Alaska. The purchasers of the two projects have pledged to hire as many of these as possible. For those who do not receive offers of employment, the Department of Energy has pledged it will offer employment to any remaining APA employees, although the DOE jobs are expected to be in the lower-48.

The House-passed bill did not contain any comparable provisions. The Conference Agreement adopts the Senate-passed bill with two material changes.

First, the Conference Agreement provides an exemption for Eklutna and Snettisham from Part I of the Federal Power Act (hydroelectric licensing), not from the entire Federal Power Act. That was intended by the Senate. By making this change, the conferees do not intend to imply that the Purchasers who are already exempt from other aspects of the Federal Power Act will lose such exemptions. The conferees do not intend to imply that by reason of this Act the other parts of the Federal Power Act apply to Eklutna and Snettisham. They apply only if they would have applied in the absence of this Act.

Second, the agreement provides a general rule that upon sale or transfer of any portion of Eklutna or Snettisham from the Purchasers to any other person, the exemption from Part I of the Federal Power Act shall cease to apply to such portion of Eklutna or Snettisham. However, the exemption from Part I will continue to apply if such sale or transfer is from one Purchaser to another Purchaser, as that term is defined in this Act. A loss of the exemption from Part I upon sale or transfer does not automatically trigger licensing under Part I. Licensing will be required only if the circumstances would otherwise require it under Part I. If licensing is not otherwise required under Part I of the Federal Power Act for such portion, it is not required by reason of these provisions. Such sale or transfer, even if it results in the licensing of the portion sold or transferred, does not affect the exemption from Part I for the portion of Eklutna or Snettisham that is not sold or transferred and is retained by a Purchaser.

The first phrase is an exception to this general rule. It provides that a subsequent assignment of interest in Eklutna by the Eklutna Purchasers to the Alaska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative Inc. pursuant to section 19 of the Eklutna Purchase Agreement will not result in the elimination of the exemption from Part I of the Federal Power Act for such interest.

The provisions on selection and transfer of Eklutna and Snettisham lands provide that notwithstanding the expiration of the right of the State of Alaska to make selections under section 6 of the Alaska Statehood Act, the State may select lands pursuant to the provisions of this Act and the Eklutna and Snettisham Purchase Agreements. Likewise, it is the intent of this legislation that the Secretary of the Interior shall convey lands selected by the State of Alaska notwithstanding any limitations contained in section 6(b) of the Alaska Statehood Act.

The Conferees agree that the circumstances justifying exemption from licensing under Part I of the Federal Power Act for these two Federally-owned hydroelectric projects are unique, and that they are not a precedent for a similar exemption of any other Federally-owned hydroelectric project in the event that such project were sold. The Conferees agree that in the event that other Federally-owned hydroelectric projects whose generation is marketed by other Federal power marketing administrations are privatized, these circumstances would not justify an exemption from Part I.

Chapter 8—Outer Continental Shelf Deep Water Royalty Relief

House bill

The House bill contained no similar provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate version would authorize the Secretary of the Interior to grant royalty relief on existing Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas leases in the western and central Gulf of Mexico to encourage production. For existing leases, the bill provides relief from royalty payment on a certain number of barrels of oil for leases in water depths of 200 meters or deeper, upon a finding by the Secretary that the leases are not otherwise economic. As water depth increases, the amount of relief provided under the bill would increase commensurately, reflecting that the economics of drilling in deep water increase significantly as water depth increases.

Under the Senate bill, new leases offered for sale in the future would provide terms granting an initial royalty waiver on a specific number of barrels of oil equivalent based on water depth. These new lease terms would be offered for the next seven years. The royalty waiver will increase the dollar value of bonus bids paid upon sale of leases.

The Senate bill provides relief only to OCS leases in the western and central areas of the Gulf of Mexico west of the Florida-Alabama border and does not affect leasing and development off the coast of Florida. The bill does not affect any planning areas or leases subject to pre-leasing, leasing or development moratoria.

Conference agreement

The Conference agreement adopts the Senate provision.

Chapter 9—Exports of Alaska North Slope Oil

House bill

Section 9001 of the House bill authorized exports of Alaskan North Slope (ANS) crude oil; mandated the filing of additional information in an annual report under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act; and required a study by the General Accounting Office (GAO).

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment did not include a similar provision.

Conference agreement

The Senate receded to the House language with an amendment.

The committee of conference recommends authorizing exports of ANS oil under terms substantially similar to the House provision.

Section 13800 amends section 28(b) of the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 185) to authorize ANS exports. Paragraph (1) of section 28(b) of the Mineral Leasing Act, as amended by the conference report, makes inapplicable the general and specific restrictions on such exports in section 7(d) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, (50 U.S.C. App. § 2406(b)), section 28(u) of the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920, (30 U.S.C § 185), section 103 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, (42 U.S.C. § 6212), and the Short Supply regulations issued thereunder, unless the President determines (within five months of the date of enactment) that they would not be in the national interest. (Other statutory restrictions on the export of U.S. crude oil rendered either inapplicable or superseded with respect to ANS exports are 10 U.S.C. § 7430 and 29 U.S.C. § 1354, restricting exports of crude oil from the Naval Petroleum Reserve and the outer continental shelf.)

Before making his national interest determination, the President must consider an appropriate environmental review (to be completed within four months of enactment). Consistent with the original 1973 legislation, the President also must consider whether exports would diminish the total quantity or quality of petroleum available to the United States. Finally, the President must consider whether exports are likely to cause sustained material oil supply shortages or sustained oil prices significantly above world market levels that would cause sustained material adverse employment effects in the United States or that would cause substantial harm to consumers, in particular in noncontiguous States and Pacific territories.

In a comprehensive report submitted to Congress, the Department of Energy found “no plausible evidence of any direct environmental impact from lifting the ANS crude export ban.” Based on this finding and the weight of the testimony, the provision directs, as the “appropriate environmental review,” an abbreviated four-month study. The environmental review is intended to be thorough and comprehensive, but in light of the prior Department of Energy findings and the compressed time frame, neither a full Environmental Impact Statement nor even a more limited Environmental Assessment is contemplated. If any potential adverse effects on the environment are found, the study is to recommend “appropriate measures” to mitigate or cure them.

In making his national interest determination, the President is authorized to impose appropriate terms and conditions, other than a volume limitation, on ANS exports. The provision takes cognizance of the changed condition of national oil demand and available oil resources. The provision permits ANS crude oil to compete with other crude oil in the world market under normal market conditions. To facilitate this competition and in recognition that the provision specifically precludes imposition of a volume limitation, the President should direct that exports proceed under a general license. In further recognition that some information (such as volume and price) will be needed to monitor exports, the President may wish to impose such after-the-fact reporting requirements as may be deemed appropriate by the Secretary of Commerce.

Given the anticipated substantial benefits to the nation of ANS exports, the conferees urge the President to make his national interest determination as promptly as possible. If the President fails to make the required national interest determination within the statutorily imposed deadline, ANS oil exports are authorized without intervening action by the President or the Secretary of Commerce.

Paragraph (2) requires, with limited exceptions, that ANS exports be carried in U.S.-flag vessels. The only exceptions are exports to Israel under the terms of a specific bilateral treaty that entered into force in 1979 and exports to a country pursuant to the International Emergency Oil Sharing Plan of the International Energy Agency. The conferees concur with the Administration's assessment that the U.S.-flag cargo reservation requirement is consistent with U.S. international obligations and is supported by ample precedent, including, in particular, a comparable provision in the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement as implemented under U.S. law.

Paragraph (3) preserves any authority the President may have under the Constitution and the enumerated statutes to prohibit ANS exports in an emergency.

Paragraph (4) directs the Secretary of Commerce to issue any rules necessary to govern ANS exports within 30 days of the President's national interest determination. In light of the clear benefits to the nation of ANS exports, the conferees urge the Secretary of Commerce to promulgate any rules necessary to implement that determination, including any licensing requirements and conditions, contemporaneously with the determination.

Paragraph (5) provides that if the Secretary of Commerce (after consulting with the Secretary of Energy) later finds that exports have caused sustained material oil shortages or sustained prices significantly above the world level and that the shortages or high prices have caused or are likely to cause sustained material job losses, he must recommend appropriate action, including modification or revocation of the authority to export ANS oil. The President has the discretion to adopt, reject, or modify any recommendation made by the Secretary. In recognition that prices fluctuate and supply patterns change under normal market conditions, the authority of the Secretary is limited to addressing activity that causes the specified sustained unanticipated price and supply effects.

Paragraph (6) provides that administrative action is not subject to notice and comment rulemaking requirements or other requirements of the Administrative Procedures Act.

Subsection 9001 (b) of the House bill, which would have required the Comptroller General (GAO) to conduct a review of the effects, if any, of ANS oil exports on consumers, independent refiners and shipbuilding and ship repair yards on the West Coast and Hawaii was dropped by the conferees. However, the conferees recommend that GAO complete a report to be submitted four years after the date of enactment. The report should contain a statement of principal findings and recommendations to address job loss in the shipbuilding and ship repair industry on the West Coast and Hawaii, if any, as well as adverse impacts on consumers and refiners on the West Coast and in Hawaii, if any, that the Comptroller General attributes to ANS exports. The conferees believe that the market should be given a reasonable period of time to operate before submission of the report. The conferees want to be sure the Comptroller General has a solid basis on which to make his analysis and offer any recommendations for the Congress and the President.

Chapter 10—Ski Fees on Forest Service Lands

House bill

The House included a provision that called for the establishment of a new formula to calculate fees paid to the Forest Service by ski area operators.

Senate amendment

The Senate had no similar provision.

The Senate concurred with the House position with minor modifications. The Conferees agreed on provisions which closely reflect the text of legislation passed by the Senate in 1992.

The Conferees amended the House provision to insert a payment "floor" in the formula. Under the "floor" approach, the Conferees expect that the fee charged each individual ski area for the first 3 years of the transition will be either the fee under the new formula, or the actual fee paid by the area for the year prior to the new formula's implementation, whichever amount is higher. Using this approach will mean that no individual area fee will go down, unless overall business dips by more than 10 percent. In the majority of cases the Conferees expect that areas' fees will increase.

The Conferees expect that no later than five years after the date of enactment of this Act, and every ten years thereafter, the Secretary of Agriculture will submit to the appropriate Senate and House Committees a report analyzing whether the ski area rental charge system legislated by this Act is returning a fair market value rental to the United States together with any recommendations the Secretary may have for modifications in the system.

Chapter 11—National Park Fees

House bill

The House bill had no similar provision.

Senate amendments

The Senate measure contained a provision that established increased caps on National Park admission fees and eliminated a number of prohibitions on implementing fee collection programs at certain park units. The provision would require that 80 percent of the new fees collected be returned to the National Park Service units for annual operating expenses related to visitor services.

Conference agreement

The House concurred with the Senate position with some modifications. The conferees included provisions which would authorize the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management to collect recreation use fees at certain locations.

With respect to the collection of fees at units of the National Park Service, the conferees fully expect that fee increases for admission and annual park passes for units of the System, including those units not currently charging such fees, be implemented incrementally over a reasonable period of time so as to minimize, to the greatest extent practicable, rapid escalation of entrance fees. The conferees do not anticipate that the Service will begin charging any of the authorized fee increases described in this legislation at the maximum allowable rate.

In addition, the conferees expect that no later than 30 days after the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior will submit to the appropriate Senate and House Committees a report on the admission fees proposed to be charged at units of the National Park System. The report shall include a list of units of the National Park System and the admission fee proposed to be charged at each unit. It is also expected that the report shall also identify areas where such fees are authorized but not collected, including an explanation of the reasons that such fees are not collected.

The conferees agreed that a significant portion of the new fees collected be returned to the areas or units of those land management agencies designated by this Act to augment annual operating expenses related to visitor services. The conferees are very concerned that any increase in fees paid by recreational users translate into increased services to the public. Therefore, the conferees intend to closely monitor implementation of this provision to ensure congressional intent is realized. In order to ensure that fees paid directly benefit users who pay the fees, the conferees have limited the use of the monies to visitor services and facilities. As used in this part, visitor services means services directly associated with the management of recreation visitors to Federal lands, including (but not limited to) such programs as maintenance of facilities which serve primarily visitor recreation use (such as campgrounds, scenic roads, trails, visitor centers and picnic areas), public information and interpretation, wildlife habitat enhancement directly related to public use (such as stream improvement to improve fishing or activities to facilitate watchable wildlife programs), and other activities of personnel assigned predominantly to the management of visitors or public safety programs, but not including costs of regional and Washington headquarters offices and administrative services such as personnel, budget and finance, and procurement.

The Conferees fully expect that the affected Secretaries will, by January 1 of each year, provide to the appropriate Committees of the Senate and the House a list of proposed expenditures from the fund designated by this Act for each unit or area for that fiscal year and a report detailing expenditures, by unit or area, for the previous year.

Chapter 12—Concession Reform

House bill

The House provided a comprehensive reform of concession management policies for 6 Federal land management agencies.

Senate amendment

The Senate had no comparable provision.

Conference agreement

The Senate receded to the House with amendments. The managers expect that each Federal land management agency covered under this title shall implement a program to encourage appropriate development and operation of services and facilities for the accommodation of visitors. The program implemented by each such agency shall consist of actions which—

(1) recognize the importance of the private sector in providing a quality visitor experience on Federal lands by encouraging private sector investments for facilities and services on Federal lands under a fair and competitive process;

(2) establish the basis for an effective relationship between the land management agencies and private business operating on public lands in efforts to serve the public and to protect the resources of these areas;

(3) measure quality and value of services provided by concessionaires and provide incentives for consistent excellence;

(4) ensure a fair return to the Federal Government;

(5) are consistent among the various agencies to the extent practicable in order to increase efficiency of the Federal Government and simplify requirements for concessionaires; and

(6) ensure that concession activities are fully consistent with agency policy and plans.

In order to ensure the consistent high quality of concession services and facilities, the Secretary concerned shall develop a program of evaluations of the concessionaires operating under a concession service agreement who are providing visitor services in areas under the jurisdiction of the Secretary. The evaluations shall be on an annual basis over the duration of the concession service agreement. In developing the evaluation program, the Secretary concerned shall seek broad public input from concessionaires, State agencies, and other interested persons. The evaluation program shall—

(1) include the four program areas of: quality of visitor services provided; resource protection (as applicable); financial performance; and compliance with concession service agreement provisions and pertinent laws and regulations;

(2) define three levels of performance—

(A) good, which shall be defined as a level of performance which exceeds the requirements outlined in the prospectus, but which is attainable;

(B) satisfactory, which shall be defined as meeting the requirements as contained in the prospectus; and

(C) unsatisfactory; which shall be defined as not meeting the requirements contained in the prospectus;

(3) be based on criteria which—

(A) are objective, measurable, and attainable; and

(B) shall include as applicable general standards for all concession operations, industry-specific standards, and standards developed by the Secretary concerned in consultation with the concessioner for each concession service agreement;

(4) be designed in such a manner that the annual evaluation represents the overall performance of the concessioner without weight to matters of limited importance; and

(5) take into account factors beyond the control of the concessioner, such as general market and other economic fluctuations, as well as weather and other natural phenomena, so that such factors may not be used as a justification for denial of performance incentives.

The conferees expect that the Secretary concerned shall annually review the performance of each concessioner and shall assign an overall rating for each concessioner for each year. The procedure for any performance evaluation shall be provided to the concessioner prior to the beginning of any evaluation period. Such procedure shall provide for adequate notification of the concessioner prior to any on-site evaluation and permit a representative of the concessioner to observe the evaluation. The concessioner shall be entitled to a complete explanation of any rating given. If the Secretary's performance evaluation for any year results in an unsatisfactory rating of the concessioner, the Secretary concerned shall so notify the concessioner, in writing. Such notification shall identify the nature of conditions which require corrective action and shall provide the concessioner with a list of corrective actions necessary to meet the standards.

The conferees intend that the Secretary concerned may suspend or terminate a concession authorization if the concessioner fails to correct the conditions identified by the Secretary within the limitations established by the Secretary at the time notice of the unsatisfactory rating is provided to the concessioner. The Secretary may immediately suspend or revoke a concession authorization where necessary to protect the public health or welfare, until the concessioner corrects the conditions which gave rise to such suspension.

In order to ensure that provisions of this part are fully carried out, the Managers expect the administering Secretaries to establish such record-keeping procedures as are necessary, including but not limited to:

(1) The concessioner shall annually submit to the Secretary concerned a statement reflecting total activity in the concession improvement account for the preceding financial year. The statement shall reflect monthly deposits, expenditures by project, interest earned, and such other information as the Secretary concerned requires.

(2) Each concessioner shall keep such records as the Secretary concerned may prescribe to enable the Secretary to determine that all terms of the concession authorization have been and are being faithfully performed, and the Secretary and his duly authorized representatives shall, for all other purpose of audit and examination, have access at reasonable times and locations to such records and to other books, documents, and papers of the concessioner pertinent to the concession authorization and all the terms and conditions thereof.

(3) The Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Agriculture shall develop a single set of regulations which specify a uniform set of record keeping requirements for all concessionaires with respect to implementation of this part.

(4) The Comptroller General of the United States or any of his duly authorized representatives shall, until the expiration of five years after the close of the business year of each concessioner have access to and the right to examine any pertinent books, documents, papers, and records of the concessioner related to the concession authorization involved.

The managers do not intend the following laws or regulations to apply to concession service agreements and concession licenses issued under this part:

(1) Title III of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (41 U.S.C. 251–266).

(2) The Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 401 et seq.)

(3) The Federal Acquisition Streamlining Act of 1994 (Public Law 103–355).

(4) The Brooks Automatic Data Processing Act (40 U.S.C. 759).

(5) Chapters 137 and 141 of title 10, United States Code.

(6) The Federal Acquisition Regulation and any laws not listed in paragraphs (1) through (5) providing authority to promulgate regulations in the Federal Acquisition Regulation.

The managers are aware that successful implementation of this part requires the agencies to develop a fully trained staff of concession professionals and expects the Secretary concerned to specify the minimum training and qualifications required for agency personnel assigned predominantly to concession management duties, including (but not limited to) competency in business management, public health and safety, and the delivery of quality customer services.

OTHER PROVISIONS NOT INCLUDED IN THE CONFERENCE REPORT

GRAZING

House bill

The House bill contains provisions that would: codify Bureau of Land Management (BLM) livestock grazing regulations in existence prior to the current regulations; require that the Forest Service issue regulations substantially similar to those in effect for lands administered by BLM; establish a formula for determining the fee for livestock grazing on public lands; address application of the National Environmental Policy Act to grazing permits and leases; and extend the term of grazing permits and leases from 10 to 15 years.

Senate amendment

The Senate version does not contain such provisions.

Conference agreement

The House recedes to the Senate position.

MAPPING

House bill

The House bill requires the Secretary of the Interior to conduct a surveying and mapping contracting program. In preparation for this contracting program, the bill requires the Secretary to conduct and publish an inventory of surveying and mapping activities to serve as a baseline. Additionally, the bill requires the Secretary to establish a plan that shall be based on the results of the inventory. The plan shall include, but not be limited to, the following actions:

A reduction in surveying and mapping activities by Department personnel that duplicates private sector capabilities;

Reduction in acquisition and maintenance of equipment that duplicates private sector;

A prohibition on Department performance of services for other government entities that can be obtained by contract from the private sector;

Increased use of contracts for requirements created through attrition in the Department;

Enhancement of the Department's role in:

Performing activities that are inherently governmental in nature,

Preparation of standards and specifications,

Research and technology transfer,

Coordination, cost sharing, and administration, and Establishing goals for contracting.

Additionally, the bill requires annual reports to track program progress. Regarding definitions, the bill defines the terms "surveying and mapping" and "contract" based on current regulations of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the government's largest contractor of these services.

Senate amendment

The Senate had no similar provision.

The House recedes to the Senate, due to Senate procedural requirements.

It is the conferees' intention that the Secretary of the Interior begin the process of implementing the major provisions of the House provision administratively. It is the conferees intent' that, over the next year, hearings will be held and legislation will be drafted which will incorporate—to the maximum extent possible—components of the legislation passed by the House. The conferees urge the Secretary to report to the House Committee on Resources and the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources by Spring 1996 on the status of the Department's efforts to increase contracting out of mapping and charting activities.

NEED FOR CONTRACTING OUT OF MAPPING

In the Department of the Interior, there are 1827 employees engaged in surveying and mapping (as of September 30, 1994), according to data from the Office of Personnel Management. An Office of Management and Budget (OMB) survey (OMB Bulletin 93–14) estimated $761.7 million in budget authority in the Interior Department for geographic data activities (acquisition, management and dissemination) in FY 1993, and estimated the President's FY 1994 budget request at $801.5 million. In FY 1994, only 212 service contracts for geographic data activities totaling just $18.4 million were awarded to the private sector.

There is a capable and qualified private sector of more than 250 mapping firms and 6,000 surveying firms in the United States. The Interior mapping establishment duplicates the capabilities of the commercial, private sector. Moreover, not only do Federal agencies not contract a significant amount of their own work, but many agencies do work for other Federal agencies, as well as State, local and foreign governments, in direct competition with the private sector.

The conference report from the Senate-House Budget Resolution specifically addressed surveying and mapping, saying, "U.S. Geological Survey conducts research and provides basic scientific and information concerning natural hazards and environmental issues, as well as water, land, and mineral resources. The USGS has three main divisions: the National Mapping Division [NMD], the Water Resources Division [WRD] and the Geologic Division. This proposal assumes that the NMD will aggressively price its products for additional revenue to the Treasury. It also assumes greater contracting out to the private sector, appropriate data gathering, and map and digital data production. Finally, it calls for consolidation of overlapping mapping efforts. Within the WRD, savings are first assumed in the Federal program for such subprograms as global change hydrology and core program hydrology research. Savings could also be achieved by increasing the State and local matching formula for the Federal/State Cooperative Program."

In sum, the Conferees believe that agencies in the Department of the Interior should contract with the private sector where appropriate for surveying and mapping activities. While it is appropriate, proper, and necessary for the Department to be involved in setting standards and specifications, research and technology transfer, and coordination in the area of geographic data, the actual collection of data, through surveying and mapping, is a commercial activity and should be performed by the private sector.

TERRITORIES

House bill

The House measure contained a provision that would terminate further direct annual assistance to the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands and would also eliminate the Office of Territorial and International Affairs within the Department of the Interior, reduce the number of Assistant Secretaries for the Department by one, and prohibit future discretionary appropriations in certain territory accounts.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment did not contain any language on this subject.

Conference agreement

The House and Senate authorizing committees have reported, and the Senate has passed, legislation addressing these issues with markedly different approaches. The Conferees agreed the issue would be best resolved by the authorizing committees within the context of that legislation.

INDIAN GAMING

House bill

The House included a provision that increased funding under section 18(a) of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act from $1.5 million to $2.5 million and eliminate funding for the operation of the Commission.

Senate amendment

The Senate had no similar provision.

Conference agreement

The Conferees agreed to delete this provision.

CONSULTATION

House bill

The House measure contained a provision that amended section 7 of the Endangered Species Act to prohibit federal agencies and applicants for a permit or license from making any irreversible or irretrievable commitments of resources that would foreclose any reasonable and prudent alternative.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contained no similar language.

Conference agreement

The conferees agreed to delete this provision.

SKI AREA SALE

House bill

The House measure contained a provision that would direct the Secretary of Agriculture to offer for sale at least 40 ski areas on Forest Service lands.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment did not contain any language on this subject.

Conference agreement

The Conferees agreed to delete this provision.

FOLSOM

House bill

The House Bill contains a provision declaring that for the purpose of water transfers, the city of Folsom, California, shall be considered a Central Valley Project contractor.

Senate amendment

The Senate version does not contain such provisions.

Conference agreement

The House recedes to the Senate position because of Byrd Rule concerns.

POWER MARKETING ADMINISTRATIONS STUDY

House bill

The House provision repealed the current prohibition on studying the ratemaking or privatization of the Power Marketing Administrations (PMA's). In addition, it provided for a study of the Southeastern Power Administration (SEPA), the Southwestern Power Administration (SWPA) and the Western Area Power Administration (WAPA) for purposes of their ultimate sale. The House bill provided for an independent and experienced private sector firm to serve as an advisor in completing such a study. Because of the ongoing deregulation of the electric utility industry, and the competitive issues which currently exist among providers of electric power, the study also called for a review of tax consequences of potential transfers.

Since federal electric power is generally a by-product of facilities primarily designed and built for water management, the study was set-up to recognize and assume the continued operations and priorities of the projects as they currently exist. In addition, because there are a variety of uses and purposes for facilities that produce PMA power, the study was designed to inventory existing operations and uses so that these operations and uses could be preserved as part of any PMA transfer.

Senate amendment

The Senate had no similar provisions.

Conference agreement

The conferees recognize that there are numerous problems with the existing Power Marketing Administration operations and the underlying power generation facilities. These include: generating units in the SEPA service area that have been off-line and unable to provide power for years, deferred maintenance in many of the underlying facilities which are causing loss of power production, failure to provide current technology which could improve power output and environmental protection, accounting systems which do not fully recover the costs to the federal government from the systems, and inefficient operations stemming from government operating constraints. The conferees believe that Congress should begin addressing these issues, without preconditions as to the ultimate resolution of the issues.

The future solutions, for the issues which have been raised, must deal with the recognition of existing uses, priorities, and operations as well as the rapidly developing competitive electric industry and the impacts on ratepayers. Recently released information indicates that a detailed review and analysis of the PMA's is warranted.

Although only 6% of the nation's electricity is generated and transmitted from these sources, the potential for production from these facilities represents an important component of our domestic energy supply. Accordingly, while the study provision in the House bill was removed because of procedural issues with the Senate, the conferees believe and expect that the Congress will investigate and review the information pertaining to the future of the PMA's including operation and maintenance. The conferees believe that a fully considered review by the Congress should precede development of any specific proposal by the Executive Branch.

The Clinton Administration's 1996 legislative budget proposed to sell all the PMA's to the current customers at the discounted repayment. Such a "one size fits all" approach to the PMA's is simplistic and impractical. In addition to responsibilities to current customers, the federal government has important responsibilities for water management at these facilities as well as to Indian Tribes and to others dependent on the projects. Future Congressional reviews should consider the differing situations and problems facing each of the major components that comprise the PMA's.

House conferees

The conferees are concerned that the American public has made a substantial investment in these facilities and that all citizens should benefit from the rehabilitation and privatization of the PMA's. The conferees believe that those facilities can be operated more efficiently and that any sale can be structured in a way to maximize proceeds while limiting rate increases to the ultimate customers.

In addition to market forces which are likely to prohibit significant rate increases from any sale, studies of these issues should specifically evaluate alternatives that would address rate increase issues. The conferees are not persuaded by the rate concerns enunciated by sale opponents. As a result of the Energy Policy Act of 1992, customers have been afforded the opportunity to purchase their power from any source they wish. Thus, the conferees believe it impractical that a purchaser of a grouping of PMA assets would raise rates substantially because of the risk attendant with that customer leaving and purchasing from other sources in the competitive wholesale power market.

Senate conferees

The Senate conferees share many of the concerns of the House with respect to the present condition of the generating capacity of the PMA's and what the future may hold given sharply reduced budgets for the managing agencies. While consideration of the future of the PMA's is important, the Senate conferees are not prepared to suggest, recommend, or support any particular initiative at this time.

TITLE VI—FEDERAL RETIREMENT AND RELATED PROVISIONS

SUBTITLE A—CIVIL SERVICE AND POSTAL SERVICE PROVISIONS

EXTENSION OF DELAY IN COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENTS IN FEDERAL EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT BENEFITS

House bill

Section 5001 of the House bill continues the current delay in payment of Federal retiree cost-of-living adjustments to April of each year through fiscal year 2002. Under the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993, the effective date for cost-of-living adjustments in Federal employee retirement benefits was delayed from January until April for fiscal years 1994, 1995 and 1996. This section would extend that delay through fiscal year 2002.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is identical

Conference Agreement

The Conference agreement includes the language of the Senate and House provisions.

INCREASED CONTRIBUTIONS TO FEDERAL CIVILIAN RETIREMENT SYSTEMS

House bill

Section 5002 provides for increased contributions to both Federal civilian retirement systems. Agencies will be required to increase their contributions to the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) for their employees who participate in CSRS. Employees participating in both CSRS and the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS) will be required to increase their contributions to the systems.

The increase in employee contributions to CSRS will apply to all employees participating in that system including Members of Congress, congressional employees, law enforcement officers, firefighters, Capitol Police, bankruptcy judges, judges for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces, U.S. magistrates, Claims Court judges, and employees of the United States Postal Service. The change in the contribution rate will also apply to employees participating in the Foreign Service retirement systems.

The amount deducted from basic pay for an individual participating in CSRS will be increased above the level in effect on the date of enactment by .25 percent in 1996, by an additional .15 percent in 1997, and by an additional .10 percent in 1998. The increase will then remain constant at .5 percent through 2002.

The bill also requires all Federal agencies, except for the United States Postal Service, to contribute an additional 1.5 percent each year above the percentage an agency is now contributing for each individual employee participating in CSRS. This 1.5 percent increase in employer contributions does not apply to the United States Postal Service which currently contributes the full actuarial cost of each employee's retirement under CSRS.

This section also provides that repayment for any military service between January 1, 1996, and December 31, 2002, for which an employee or Member of Congress would like to receive retirement credit under CSRS, would be at the contribution rate in effect for employees during the period for which such credit is provided.

Likewise, the section provides that repayment for any covered volunteer service between January 1, 1996, and December 31, 2002, for which an employee or Member of Congress would like to receive retirement credit under CSRS would be at the contribution rate in effect for employees during the period for which such credit is provided.

The House bill also requires increased employee contributions from all employees participating in the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS), including Members of Congress, congressional employees, law enforcement officers, firefighters, Capitol Police, bankruptcy judges, judges for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces, U.S. magistrates, Claims Court judges, and employees of the United States Postal Service. The change in the contribution rate will also apply to employees participating in the Foreign Service retirement systems. and congressional employees. These employees are required to increase their contributions to FERS by .25 percent in 1996, an additional .15 percent in 1997, and by an additional .10 percent in 1998. The increase in the contribution over the percentage an employee currently pays into the system will then remain at .5 percent through 2002.

This subsection provides that repayment for any military service between January 1, 1996, and December 31, 2002, for which an employee or Member of Congress would like to receive retirement credit under FERS would reflect the increased employee contributions resulting in the following repayment percentages: calendar year 1996, 3.25 percent; calendar year 1997, 3.4 percent; calendar years 1998-2002, 3.5 percent.

In addition, this subsection provides that the repayment for any covered volunteer service between January 1, 1996 and December 31, 2002 for which an employee or Member of Congress would like to receive retirement credit under FERS would reflect the increased employee contributions resulting in the following repayment percentages: calendar year 1996, 3.25 percent; calendar year 1997, 3.4 percent; calendar years 1998-2002, 3.5 percent.

This subsection also prohibits agencies from reducing their contributions to FERS for each individual employee by a percentage equal to any percentage increase in individual employee contributions. Under current law, agency contributions would automatically decrease with any increase in employee contributions. The section prohibits the Postal Service and all other Federal agencies from reducing their contributions to FERS.

The effective date for the increased contributions for employees and agencies is the first day of the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1996.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is substantially the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The Conference agreement includes the language of the Senate and House bills with modifications. The percentage by which agencies are required to increase their current contribution rates for their employees who participate in the Civil Service Retirement System, is 1.51% rather than 1.5%. In addition, a distinction is made to ensure that the Washington Metropolitan Airport Authority (WMAA) is not required to pay increased employer contributions on behalf of its employees who participate in the Civil Service Retirement System. The employees of the WMAA are required to make increased contributions to the Civil Service Retirement System or the Federal Employees Retirement System. The WMAA is prohibited from decreasing its contributions to FERS. A drafting error which states the amount the United States Postal Service must contribute on behalf of employees and law enforcement officers is corrected.

The conference agreement adjusts the contribution rates for United States bankruptcy judges, magistrates, Claims Court judges and judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces to ensure their parity with federal and congressional employees. The contribution rates for Capitol Police are adjusted to provide parity with other federal law enforcement officers.

FEDERAL RETIREMENT PROVISIONS RELATING TO MEMBERS OF CONGRESS AND CONGRESSIONAL EMPLOYEES

House bill

Section 5003 would reform the pensions of Members of Congress and congressional staff. Under current law, participating Members of Congress and congressional employees contribute a higher percentage of base pay toward retirement. Under CSRS, Members contribute 8 percent, while congressional employees contribute 7.5 percent. Members and congressional employees participating in FERS contribute 1.3 percent. The section amends the contribution rates to bring them into line with those applicable to most General Schedule Federal employees, 7 percent for CSRS and .8 percent for FERS. The accrual rates used to determine the annuities for Members of Congress and congressional employees would be reduced to ensure parity with those of other federal employees. The basic accrual rates for most General Schedule employees (1.5 percent for the first five years of service, 1.75 percent for the next five years, and 2 percent for all remaining years) would also apply to Members of Congress and congressional staff. All service prior to January 1, 1996, for which the higher amount was contributed would be computed using the accrual rate in effect during that service.

The contribution amounts and accrual rates for Members of Congress and congressional employees in CSRS and FERS are amended to conform with those used for the majority of General Schedule. New accrual rates and contribution amounts apply only to service performed on or after January 1, 1996. The changes take effect upon the date of enactment. The Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House are given the authority necessary to prescribe regulations to implement the changes in the retirement benefits of Members of Congress and congressional employees. The House bill also retains the higher congressional accrual rate after January 1, 1996 for Capitol Police who retire at age 55 with 30 years of service.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is almost identical to the House bill. The Senate amendment however does not include the provision retaining the higher congressional accrual rate after January 1, 1996 for Capitol Police who retire at age 55 with 30 years of service.

Conference agreement

The Conference agreement includes most of the House language, but adds a provision to clarify that Members of Congress and congressional employees who have paid the higher contribution rate prior to January 1, 1996 would have their annuity computed using the higher accrual rate for that period once they have a total of five years of Member of Congress or congressional employee service. The House Capitol Police language is modified to provide that a member of the Capitol Police who retires as a congressional employee (rather than as a law enforcement officer) would receive the higher accrual rate which was in effect prior to January 1, 1996 for any period of service before that date during which the higher contribution rate was paid.

The conference retains the January 1, 1996 effective date for the reform of Member and staff pensions, but includes an alternate effective date of January 1, 1997 for use only in the event the courts determine that the January 1, 1996 violates the Twenty-seventh Amendment to the Constitution.

Judicial retirement

The conference agreement adds a new section proposed by the House which prospectively adjusts the accrual rate of Title V of the United States Code bankruptcy judges, judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces, United States magistrates and Claims Court judges to conform with that of other federal and congressional employees.

REPEAL OF POSTAL TRANSITION PAYMENTS

House bill

The House bill contained a provision (Sec. 5005) to repeal the permanent authorization of transitional appropriations for the United States Postal Service. Under the provision, payments to individuals due compensation from the Federal Employees Compensation Fund would not diminish. The United States Postal Service would instead be required to assume payment without federal reimbursement.

Senate amendment

No provision

Conference agreement

The Conference Agreement adopts the House provision.

SUBTITLE B—PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE

PATENT FEES

House bill

On September 19, 1995, the House Judiciary Committee forwarded legislation that it had approved extending the patent fees surcharge through Fiscal Year 2002. This extension was contained in Title VII of the House bill.

Senate amendment

On September 22, 1995, the Senate Judiciary Committee forwarded legislation that it had approved extending the patent fees surcharge. This extension, title IX of the Senate amendment, is the same provision.

Conference agreement

No change to the Senate or House language was necessary because the two versions were identical.

The action changes Section 10101 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (35 U.S.C. 41) extending the application of the surcharges on all fees authorized by Title 35 of the U.S. Code for Fiscal Years 1999 through 2002. These fees will be credited to a separate account established in the Treasury for Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) activities and will be available to the PTO when appropriated.

In extending the surcharge, the language specifies the maximum amount which the PTO can collect in patent surcharge fees for deposit into the Treasury. The limit is $119,000,000 for each of the four Fiscal Years 1999 through 2002.

SUBTITLE C—GSA PROPERTY SALES

SALE OF GOVERNORS ISLAND

House bill

Section 10402 of the House bill calls for the General Services Administration, notwithstanding any other provision of law, to sell, at fair market value, Governor's Island, New York. This property is currently being used as a Coast Guard facility. The sale of this 171 acre island, in the New York City harbor, is not subject to laws and regulations that normally apply to the disposal of real property by the Federal Government, including requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act, and the National Historic Preservation Act. It is recognized, however, that State and local environmental and historic preservation laws will protect the property upon sale and during any development of the property. The sale is intended for cash. The language provides for the State and City be given right of first refusal to purchase all or part of Governor's Island.

Such right may be exercised either by the State, the city, or both acting jointly. Sale can proceed while environmental remediation is ongoing. If the State or city elects to purchase part of the property, GSA can sell the remainder of the property. GSA would be authorized to fund its cost of disposal of this property from proceeds of the sale. Net proceeds from the sale, estimated to generate approximately $500 million, would be deposited in the miscellaneous account of the Treasury.

Senate amendment

There is no comparable provision in the Senate amendment.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes to the House.

UNION STATION AIR RIGHTS

House bill

Section 10403 of the House bill directs the sale of air rights over the train tracks at Union Station, Washington D.C. These air rights cover approximately 16.5 acres and are bounded by Union Station on the south, 2nd Street NE on the east, K street NE on the north and 1st Street NE on the west. The provision would direct the General Services Administration, notwithstanding any other provision of law, to sell these air rights, at fair market value, in a manner to be determined, during FY 1996. The air rights are a combination of the Department of Transportation and AMTRAK air rights. The provision calls for the transfer of AMTRAK air rights to DOT without compensation to AMTRAK, then GSA would sell the air rights. It is estimated that the air rights would support the development of 2.8 million square feet of office space, plus parking for 1,500 cars.

In 1992 the General Services Administration contracted for an appraisal of these air rights, and concluded that the value, net of the construction of any supporting structure over the train tracks, was $50 million. However, the Congressional Budget Office, in scoring the proposed sale, assigned a value of $40 million. Furthermore, CBO estimated that GSA would require about 18 months to effectively market and sell the air rights, which would include updating an appraisal, and any buyer would require some preliminary determination on zoning the property for future development. Proceeds from the sale would be deposited in the miscellaneous account of the Treasury.

Senate amendment

There is no comparable provision in the Senate amendment.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes to the House.

AVAILABILITY OF SURPLUS PROPERTY FOR HOMELESS ASSISTANCE

House bill

The House bill contained a provision that would increase the flexibility of the General Services Administration in disposing of surplus federal land and buildings. The provision would repeal Title V of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act, which gives homeless assistance groups a priority right to such surplus property. The provision would give the General Services Administration authority to donate, where warranted by the distinct facts and circumstances of each property disposition, surplus federal land and buildings to private-sector, non-profit groups which provide housing assistance for homeless and low-income individuals. The provision is intended to increase revenues from the sales of such properties while also allowing the GSA to aid local efforts to address the housing needs of homeless and low-income persons.

Senate amendment

There is no comparable provision in the Senate bill.

Conference agreement

The Senate recedes to the House language.

TITLE VII—TRANSFORMATION OF THE MEDICAID PROGRAM

(SEC. 16000–16002 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7190–7199 OF SENATE AMENDMENT)

Background and Need for Legislation

Established by President Lyndon Johnson in 1965, Medicaid is a joint Federal–State matching open-ended entitlement program that pays for medically necessary health care services provided to eligible beneficiaries by qualified providers. There are Medicaid programs in all States except Arizona, which runs a similar medical assistance program under a Federal waiver. (Federal funds for the Arizona program come from the Medicaid budget.) In addition, the Medicaid program is operated in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories, such as Puerto Rico and Guam.

According to the Congressional Budget Office (CBO), the Medicaid program will cost $156.5 billion in Fiscal Year 1995. Of this amount, the Federal government will be responsible for an estimated $89.2 billion. This expenditure represents a 11,050 percent increase over the program's initial cost to the Federal government of $800 million in Fiscal Year 1966. Since 1990, Medicaid has been the fastest-growing segment of the Federal government's budget, with costs soaring at annual rates as high as 31 percent. Placed in broader context, the Medicaid program's average annual rate of growth since 1990 has been four times that of private sector health care costs, which are rising at roughly 4–5 percent annually. Although CBO projects Medicaid spending will rise at a comparatively "stable" rate of 10 percent per year, at that rate total program costs will double by the year 2002 absent reform. As detailed in the section entitled "Program Growth versus Program Cuts" below, the MediGrant plan replaces the Medicaid program's unsustainable cost spiral with considerable and consistent funding to the States.

Medicaid's extraordinary rate of growth has made it the single largest item in many State budgets. According to the testimony of Governors and Medicaid officials appearing before the Committees of Congress, States have been compelled by the program's cost to restrict investment in other critical human services, including child welfare, education, mental health, and public safety. As described in the "Fiscal Impact of Medicaid Growth on the Federal and State Budgets" section below, the program's cost has been frequently underestimated and continues to threaten the budgetary stability of virtually every State.

Medicaid was also intended to operate as a joint Federal–State matching entitlement program providing medical assistance for low-income persons who are aged, blind, disabled, members of families with dependent children, and certain other pregnant women and children. Accordingly, States were permitted to design and administer their own programs, subject to specified Federal guidelines. In reality, however, the current Medicaid program hardly resembles that which was originally intended. Instead of allowing State and local officials the flexibility to best administer Medicaid, the Federal government created an extensive "one-size-fits-all" maze of Federal mandates and administrative requirements. The nature of this centralized approach to program administration is described in the "Medicaid Micromanagement" section below.

Finally, the operational and administrative inflexibility of the current Medicaid program has prevented States from developing innovative and cost-efficient mechanisms designed to meet the health care needs of their residents. Instead, they have been forced to shoulder the uncontrollable costs of what has become a rigid and ineffective health care program. The program's centralized micromanagement, complex bureaucratic requirements, and outdated service delivery is often cited by the States as impeding their ability to provide the quality health coverage, patient responsiveness, and efficient administration common in the private sector. As a result, States have long sought enhanced operational flexibility so that they can better meet the health care needs of their low-income residents. The current program's complex system of waivers and the anticipated impact of the MediGrant plan's flexibility is described below in the section entitled "Fostering Greater State Innovation."

The fiscal impact of medicaid growth

During the debate on the new MediGrant Program, the assertion has been repeatedly made that this legislation "cuts" health care spending for low-income people. This assertion is categorically false. Over the seven year period ending in Fiscal Year 2002, the average growth rate in the program is a guaranteed 5.2 percent annual increase. Total Federal spending between Fiscal Years 1996–2002 will total $791.1 billion. Total Federal expenditures in fiscal year 2002 will be $127.4 billion, a 43 percent cumulative increase over fiscal year 1995.

Federal expenditures on the Medicaid program during the past seven years have contributed significantly to the Federal budget deficit. However, Federal costs—while great—are only half the story. The States have been faced with even more extraordinary fiscal pressures because Medicaid mandates have made health care the fastest growing area of State budgets. Since almost all States are Constitutionally required to annually balance their budgets, the Medicaid financial squeeze has had dramatic effects.

The table below, prepared by the National Association of State Budget Officers (NASBO), documents the extraordinary growth of Medicaid expenditures as a percentage of State expenditures. In 1987, Medicaid represented approximately 10.2 percent of all State expenditures. By 1991, Medicaid's State spending share had risen to 14.2 percent, and by 1994 it was a striking 19.4 percent of all State spending, nearly double the percentage just seven years earlier.

As State Medicaid spending has experienced uncontrollable rates of growth, other critical State funding initiatives have suffered commensurately. The table below, also prepared by NASBO, documents the decline in State spending for elementary and secondary education, higher education, welfare, and transportation due to the growth in Medicaid. Based on NASBO data, State expenditures for elementary and secondary education declined 11 percent between 1987 and 1994; State higher education spending dropped 8 percent over the same time period; State welfare spending experienced a 13 percent decrease; and State investment in public transportation declined 16 percent. On the other hand, during the 1987–1994 time period, Medicaid spending increased by more than 90 percent!

This data clearly reveals why many States officials have described Medicaid mandates as the worst of all the Federal unfunded mandates placed on the States. As these mandates were enacted into law through budget reconciliation in the late 1980s and early 1990s, they created havoc with State budgets and ultimately drained State funds away from education and welfare programs.

Federal and state budgetary havoc within budget reconciliation

One of the most perplexing issues concerning the unconstrained fiscal growth of Medicaid is the manner in which it was achieved. Most of the Medicaid mandates were enacted through reconciliation bills which were supposed to be budget-cutting vehicles.

How was this accomplished? In the days of the Gramm–Rudman–Hollings Budgetary Act, it was accomplished by "budgetary tricks.'' For example, in the Concurrent Resolution of the Budget for fiscal year 1990 (H. Con. Res. 106), $200 million of new budget entitlement authority became available for fiscal year 1990 for Medicaid spending. With this $200 million, the House Energy and Commerce Committee was able to report out five new mandated Medicaid expansions by slipping effective dates on some of the pending provisions so that only one calendar quarter's worth of spending would occur in fiscal year 1990. By this ''budgetary trick'', the Medicaid provisions technically met the budget target in the Budget Resolution. However, in the out-years, these five Medicaid provisions would cost additional billions of dollars. In 1989, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) estimated that, taken together, these Medicaid provisions would increase Federal spending by approximately $8.6 billion over a five-year period.

Another perplexing issue in the enactment of Medicaid mandates has been the inability of the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) to provide accurate estimates of the projected costs of these laws. The table below documents the astounding inaccuracies in the CBO analysis of a number of Medicaid mandates enacted into law in the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1989 (OBRA 1989).

CBO OBRA 1989 MEDICAID MANDATES—ESTIMATES VS. ACTUAL FLORIDA EXPENDITURES FY1991

[In millions of dollars]

	CBO scoring for all states	Florida Federal expenditures
Mandatory Coverage of Pregnant Women	270	31
ESPDT	25	63
Payment for federally qualified health centers	15	8
Payment for obstetrical and pediatric services	11	4
Total	321	106

Florida represents 3.8% of all Federal Medicaid Expenditures—but accounted for 33% of Total Estimated Expenditures.

This table lists four major Medicaid mandates enacted into law in 1989: mandatory coverage of pregnant women up to 133 percent; mandatory coverage of early and periodic screening, diagnostic, and treatment services (EPSDT); enhanced payment for health care centers; and enhanced payments for obstetrical and pediatric services.[1] The first column is the official CBO estimate for all Federal expenditures for these benefits in Fiscal Year 1991. The second column is the actual Florida Federal expenditures provided by the Florida Medicaid Director at that time.

First, compare the totals for Fiscal Year 1991. The CBO calculated that the total Federal expenditures for these four mandates would be $321 million in fiscal year 1991 for all States. However, Florida's actual total was a whopping $106 million. Since Florida represents only 3.8 percent of all Federal Medicaid expenditures, the enormity of this error is obvious.

[1] In a 1990 official policy document of the National Governors' Association (NGA) entitled ''Short–Term Medicaid Policy,'' the nation's Governors identified several of these mandates as particularly troublesome. In this NGA official document, they asked for relief from mandates in general and specified detailed changes to the EPSDT benefit. Governor Florio of New Jersey chaired the NGA Health Care Task Force which produced this policy, and then–Governor Bill Clinton was a member of the Task Force.

With regard to the CBO cost estimate of the EPSDT benefit, the picture is even more disturbing. Incredibly, the CBO estimated that the total Federal expenditures for all States would be $25 million for fiscal year 1991. The State of Florida alone spent $63 million in fiscal year 1991 to comply with this mandate, or more than double the CBO official estimate![2]

If one projects the Florida cost experience for these OBRA 1989 mandates to the entire nation, the analysis leads to a disturbing conclusion. While CBO projected expenditures of $323 million in fiscal year 1991, estimated Federal expenditures were closer to $2.8 billion. Though forecasting is not an exact science, an error in the range of nearly 900 percent is truly indefensible. This staggering forecasting error not only contributed to the growth of the Federal budget deficit but was a devastating fiscal blow to the States.

Medicaid Micromanagement

According to many State officials, the explosion of Medicaid spending is due in large part to Congressional and Executive directives. As noted above, Federally mandated eligibility changes over the last decade fueled the expansion of the Medicaid-eligible population and the cost of the program. Although States have the discretion of supplementing Medicaid's mandated coverage standards, the Federal government frequently expanded the scope of these standards. As a result, States have been compelled to increase their spending levels in order to receive their share of Federally-matched Medicaid spending.

One of the most frequently heard State complaints regarding the Medicaid program concerns micromanagement by the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA). At the Federal level, Medicaid is administered by HCFA which, through a network of regional offices, is supposed to work with State Medicaid departments to ensure appropriate management of the Medicaid program. However, the reality of HCFA–State relations has been described by many State officials as less a matter of coordinated cooperation than as an example of Federal micromanagement in State affairs.

When questioned during the hearings on the Medicaid program, State Governors and Medicaid directors pointed to program mandates as evidence of excessive Federal interference. In the House Commerce Committee's June 8, 1995 hearing, the Subcommittee on Health and Environment heard from Florida Governor Lawton Chiles, Illinois Governor Jim Edgar, Michigan Governor John Engler, Tennessee Governor Don Sundquist, and Utah Governor Mike Leavitt. Speaking for many of his colleagues, Governor Edgar expressed grave concern over the impact on other critical human service priorities of spiraling Medicaid spending resulting from Federal Medicaid micromanagement.

"The Federal government has micromanaged the program by heaping mandate after mandate upon the States. It has told us whom we must serve and dictated how we must provide the service without regard to cost. In 1966, the first year of Medicaid, Illinois spent $87 million on the program. This year, we will spend 64 times that much, or nearly $6 billion. In Illinois, the tab for recent Federal mandates alone tops $480 million this year.''

[2] In 1990, the American Public Welfare Association (APWA), conducted a study of the effect of the EPSDT expansions of OBRA 1989. Preliminary results from just 13 states showed an increase of $468 million in State and Federal spending in fiscal year 1991. The States responding were: Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Florida, Idaho, Maryland, Missouri, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, and Wisconsin. The APWA study advises the reader to "be advised that this total figure is likely to increase as more states complete a budget analysis." Note that the two largest Medicaid programs—California and New York—were not included in this study.

Governor Engler cited the Boren Amendment, which requires States to pay ''reasonable rates'' for nursing and hospital care, as one of many Federal directives that have served to impose substantial burdens on State Medicaid programs. Intended to aid States in their efforts to contain program costs, the Boren Amendment's vague payment standard resulted in numerous lawsuits and the imposition of arbitrarily higher reimbursement levels.

''Creeping micromanagement has entangled us in a briar patch of perverse incentives that are costing taxpayers dearly. One example . . . is a direct result of the Boren Amendment: in 1989, Michigan Medicaid costs in a nursing facility were $35 a day. In 1994, they were up to $57 a day. We are paying a lot more money, but our patients are not getting a lot more care.''

Governors Edgar and Engler are neither the first nor the only State Executives to describe to Congress the burdens of HCFA and the Medicaid program it administers. On December 8, 1990, then–Governor Bill Clinton told the House Government Operations Committee that 'Medicaid used to be a program with a lot of options and few mandates—now, it's just the opposite.'

Not surprisingly, many States have sought to take advantage of one of the only forms of relief available to them: waivers granted by the Federal government. Faced with the bureaucratic complexity and escalating costs of the Medicaid program, States have sought to make more efficient use of Medicaid dollars by such means as managed care. In many instances, the savings realized from these measures have been used to help fund program expansions as part of State initiatives to extend coverage to uninsured individuals. Since significant use of managed care in Medicaid is not permitted under current Medicaid rules, States have sought waivers of statutory and regulatory requirements from the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

Currently, Federal Medicaid law makes two basic types of waivers available to the States. Section 1915 of the Social Security Act provides for ''program waivers,'' which allow States meeting specified conditions to operate certain types of special programs that are listed in the statute. Section 1115(a) provides much broader authority to grant ''demonstration waivers,'' under which nearly any provision of Medicaid law may be waived to allow States to experiment with program improvements.

The experience of those States with waivers permitted under Sections 1915 and 1115(a) has been mixed. While any relief from the Medicaid program's many restrictions is certainly appreciated by the States, the waiver process itself is a source of great dissatisfaction. The process by which States seek Section 1115 waivers is particularly complex and costly. In order to comply with HCFA's numerous application requirements, States must devote staff time and money to the process—resources that could be used to provide health care services to low-income State residents. When the application is complete, it typically contains enough paper to measure almost three feet in height.

Unfortunately, States still face often insurmountable obstacles to flexibility even after completing their waiver applications. To date, only ten of an estimated twenty-three Section 1115 waiver applications have been approved by HCFA. In addition, the length of Federal waiver application review averages an estimated twelve months.

According to Ohio's Medicaid Director, Arnold Tompkins, who appeared before the Health Subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee on June 22, 1995, HCFA's slow process for reviewing State waiver applications is largely due to the substantial flaws of the waiver process itself:

"Five months into the [waiver] process we learned that our approach to budget neutrality . . . was considered off-base by HCFA. We spent the summer redesigning the budget to meet HCFA's concerns. But this redesign was still not enough. In the ninth month we were told that the redrawn budget had to be redrawn again because Federal thinking had changed about how budget neutrality should be demonstrated."

Fostering Greater State Innovation

All across the nation, States are working to improve the quality, effectiveness, and efficiency of the health care assistance they provide to their low-income residents. However, they have little of the operational or administrative flexibility they need to make their medical assistance programs more responsive and efficient. As a result, Governors and other State officials have long complained that Medicaid has served as an obstacle, rather than as an opportunity, to developing innovative health care delivery strategies.

This is particularly difficult for many States to understand, given the success achieved by the relatively few States that have received waivers. For example, HCFA data reveals that States have achieved significant program efficiencies by means of waiver-facilitated managed care initiatives. In particular, Section 1915(b) waivers have enabled some States to establish limited managed care programs. Based on State reports to HCFA, the General Accounting Office has calculated that the national weighted average of the savings realized from such Medicaid managed care initiatives is an estimated 9.4 percent. In other words, States were able to serve the populations enrolled in these programs using almost 10 percent fewer dollars than required by the traditional Medicaid program.

According to State officials, the lesson to be drawn from such experiences is clear: if Medicaid is to be substantially improved and the growth rate of its costs brought under control, States must be empowered to restructure their Medicaid programs. They argue that the millions of low-income Americans who need health care assistance will be more effectively and efficiently served only when Governors and State Legislators are given the flexibility to tailor Medicaid to meet the unique conditions in their States.

In light of the inflexibility of the current Medicaid program and the ineffectiveness of its waiver process, many States have petitioned Congress for significant Medicaid reform. In fact, State Governors have forged a close working relationship with the 104th Congress in an effort to develop the MediGrant block grant reform initiative. Indeed, the Congress was advised by State Governors, Medicaid Directors, and other program experts to replace the current Medicaid program and its lengthy waiver process with a block grant reform initiative.

Described as the most effective means for transforming Medicaid into a truly State-driven program, block grants would give States unprecedented operational and administrative flexibility. According to State officials, a block grant program would enable States to develop innovative service delivery strategies to meet the health care needs of their low-income residents. In other words, Medicaid block grants would free States in a manner far surpassing any flexibility they may enjoy under a waiver. In fact, under the proposed block grant reform initiative, Medicaid would become the State-run program it was initially intended to be. In place of the current rigid, bureaucratic, and often inadequate service delivery system, States would be able to develop health service strategies tailored to match the differing characteristics of their communities. These can include capitation and managed care, enhanced maternal, child, and mental health care initiatives, and insurance premium subsidy programs.

Medicaid block grants would also create compelling incentives for States to achieve unprecedented program efficiency. Currently, the Medicaid program effectively penalizes States which save Medicaid resources. On average, 57 percent of all State savings revert to the Federal government, not the States that made the savings possible. Under a block grant approach, States would be able to utilize the full value of any savings they achieve because they would be free to reinvest those resources into better service delivery, expanded benefits, and new program innovations.

The contribution that the flexibility of block grants can make to State medical assistance programs may be ascertained by examining current State initiatives. While ongoing State innovations have been severely restricted by the current Medicaid system, they are indicative of how States would respond to the flexibility of a Medicaid block grant. As has been proven by initiatives that have been undertaken nationwide, State and managed care provider innovations appear capable of substantially improving Medicaid service delivery and administration while finally bringing an end to the program's explosive rate of growth.

PURPOSE; STATE PLANS (SEC. 2100 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2100 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

The bill would create an entitlement to States, called MediGrant, under Title XXI of the Social Security Act for block grants to enable States to provide medical assistance to low-income individuals and families. A State would be required to provide the Secretary with a plan that sets forth how the State intends to use the funds provided to provide medical assistance. An approved plan would continue in effect unless and until (1) the State amends the plan, (2) the State terminates participation in the program, or (3) the Secretary finds substantial noncompliance of the plan with the program's requirements.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

PART A—OBJECTIVES, GOALS, AND PERFORMANCE UNDER STATE PLANS

DESCRIPTION OF STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES AND PERFORMANCE GOALS (SEC. 2101 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2101 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

A State would be required to include in its MediGrant plan a description of its strategic objectives and performance goals for providing health care services, and the manner in which the plan is designed to meet the objectives and goals. Goals and objectives related to rates of childhood immunizations and reductions in infant mortality and morbidity would be required. With regard to other objectives and goals, the State could consider factors such as priorities for providing assistance to low-income populations, priorities for general public health and health status for low-income populations, the State's financial resources and economic conditions, and the adequacy of the State's health care infrastructure. To the extent practicable, a State would be required to establish one or more performance goals for each strategic objective and describe how performance would be measured and compared against goals. Strategic objectives would be required to cover a period of at least 5 years and would have to be updated and revised at least every 3 years. Performance goals would have to be established for dates not more than 3 years apart.

Senate amendment

Similar provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision.

ANNUAL REPORTS (SEC. 2102 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2102 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

By March 31 (beginning in 1998), each State with a MediGrant plan in effect for the preceding fiscal year would be required to submit a report to the Secretary and the Congress on program activities and performance for that Federal fiscal year. Each report would be required to include data on the following: (1) aggregate expenditures for each category of eligible individuals, expenditures by each category of eligibles for covered services provided on a fee-for-service basis, expenditures for payments to capitated organizations by each category of eligibles, and administrative expenditures; (2) utilization of services, including summary statistics, for each category of eligible individuals, of items and services provided on a fee-for-service basis and a summary of data reported by capitated health care organizations; (3) achievement of performance goals including actions to be taken in case a goal was not met; (4) program evaluations; (5) fraud and abuse and quality control activities; and (6) plan administration, including a description of the roles and responsibilities of State entities responsible for administering the program and organization charts for each, a description of any interstate compact entered into, and citations to State law and rules governing the State's activities under the program.

With respect to inpatient hospital services provided on a fee-for-service basis, the plan must include a description of the average amount paid per discharge compared to either the average charge, or to the State's estimate of the average amount paid by commercial insurers. For subsequent fiscal years, expenditures and utilization reports would be required to fit the reporting format specified by the MediGrant Task Force established under Title XXI. Categories of eligible individuals would be children, blind or disabled adults under age 65, persons 65 or older, and other adults.

PERIODIC, INDEPENDENT EVALUATIONS (SEC. 2103 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2103 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

Beginning in fiscal year 1998 and at least every third year thereafter, each State would be required to provide for evaluation of the operation of its MediGrant plan, conducted by an entity that is responsible neither for submission of the State plan nor for administering any activity under the plan.

CONSULTATION IN STATE PLAN DEVELOPMENT (SEC. 2105 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2105 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

Before submitting a plan or amendment to the Secretary, each State would be required to provide a public notice with a description of the plan or amendment, a means for the public to inspect or obtain a copy of the plan or amendment, and an opportunity for submittal and consideration of public comments. This provision would apply except when the State submitted a revision of a plan or amendment in response to a determination of disapproval by HHS.

Each State would be required to establish and maintain an advisory committee for consultation in the development, revision, and monitoring the performance of the plan. Such consultation would include the development of strategic objectives and performance goals, the annual report, and the research design for evaluating the State's plan operations. Members of the advisory committee should represent different geographic regions of the State although proportional representation would not be required. A State would be permitted to establish more than one advisory committee, including committees that represent the interests of specific population groups, provider groups, or geographic areas.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision. It is the intent of the Conferees that the composition of the advisory committees be chosen in a manner that assures geographical diversity.

TASK FORCE (SEC. 2106 OF MEDIGRANT)

House bill

The Secretary of HHS would be required to establish a MediGrant Task Force consisting of 6 members appointed by the chair of the National Governors Association (NGA) and 6 appointed by the vice chair of the NGA. The Task Force would be assisted by an advisory group composed of one representative from each of the following associations: National Committee for Quality Assurance; Joint Commission for the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations; Group Health Association of America; American Managed Care and Review Association; Association of State and Territorial Health Officers; American Medical Association; American Hospital Association; American Dental Association; American College of Gerontology; American Health Care Association; and associations identified by the Secretary as representing the interests of disabled individuals, children, the elderly, and mentally ill individuals. The Task Force would be required to: (1) specify the format of expenditure and utilization summaries by December 31, 1996; (2) study and report to Congress and the States by April 1, 1997, with recommendations on models for strategic objectives and performance goals; methodologies for measuring and verifying each objective or goal recommended; an assessment of the usefulness to States of quality assurance safeguards, utilization data sets, and accreditation programs used in the private sector; and designs and methodologies for providing for independent evaluations. States would not be required to adopt any of the objectives or goals suggested by the Task Force. The Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, or the Secretary, would be required to provide administrative support for the Task Force.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision. However, it is the intent of the Conferees that the Secretary of HHS establish a MediGrant Task Force. It is the intent of the Conferees that the MediGrant Task Force consist of 6 members appointed by the chair of the National Governors Association (NGA) and 6 appointed by the vice chair of the NGA. The Task Force would be assisted by an advisory group composed of one representative from each of the following associations: National Committee for Quality Assurance; Joint Commission for the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations; Group Health Association of America; American Managed Care and Review Association; Association of State and Territorial Health Officers; American Medical Association; American Osteopathic Association; American Hospital Association; Association of American Medical Colleges; American Dental Association; American College of Gerontology; American Health Care Association; National Healthcare Anti-Fraud Association; National Association of Health Data Organizations; American Academy of Actuaries; National Association of State Medicaid Directors; and associations identified by the Secretary as representing the interests of disabled individuals, children, the elderly, and mentally ill individuals.

It is the intent of the Conferees that the Secretary, through the work of the Task Force: (1) specify the format of expenditure and utilization summaries by December 31, 1996; (2) study and report to Congress and the States by April 1, 1997, with recommendations on models for strategic objectives and performance goals; methodologies for measuring and verifying each objective or goal recommended; an assessment of the usefulness to States of quality assurance safeguards, utilization data sets, and accreditation programs used in the private sector; and designs and methodologies for providing for independent evaluations. It is the expectation of the conferees that the Task Force will develop recommendations by which States may respond to needs of the chronically mentally ill, particularly those individuals with psychotic symptoms, such as schizophrenia, schizoaffective disorder, manic depression disorder, and autism, as well as severe forms of other mental disorders, such as major depression, panic disorder, and obsessive compulsive disorder. It is the intent of the Conferees that States may, but should not be required to, adopt any of the specific objectives or goals suggested by the Task Force.

PART B—ELIGIBILITY, BENEFITS, AND SET–ASIDES

GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF ELIGIBILITY AND BENEFITS (SEC. 2111 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2111 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

The State plan would be required to include a description of (a) the eligible population, including categories, duration of eligibility, financial standards and methodologies, and standards for the protection of income and resources of the community spouses of institutionalized beneficiaries; (b) duration and scope of covered services, including variations by population group; (c) the delivery method, such as use of vouchers, fee-for-service, or managed care arrangements; (d) required beneficiary cost-sharing, including any responsibility of parents and the spouses of recipients; (e) any incentives or requirements to encourage appropriate utilization; and (f) any payment provisions for community health centers, public hospitals, and certain hospitals serving a high share of low-income patients, along with a description of where and how enrollees previously using these facilities under Medicaid would obtain services (if these facilities were no longer available to them). A State using a fee-for-service system would also have to describe how it determines provider qualifications and sets reimbursement rates. The MediGrant plan would have to include coverage of immunizations for eligible children, in accordance with a schedule developed by the State health department in consultation with those responsible for administering the MediGrant plan. Payment rates for rural providers would have to equal those for comparable non-rural providers, except that States could offer incentives for providers in underserved areas. No MediGrant plan could deny or exclude services on the basis of a preexisting condition. If a State contracted with a capitated organization or other entity and allowed the organization to impose preexisting condition exclusions, the State would have to provide alternate coverage for any covered services denied as a result. MediGrant plans would be prohibited from requiring an adult child of moderate means to contribute to the cost of nursing facility and other long-term care services for the child's parent.

Senate amendment

Each Medicaid plan would have to meet the following requirements: (1) be designed to serve all political subdivisions in the State; (2) provide for making medical assistance available to any pregnant woman or child under age 13 whose family income is not over 100% of poverty; (3) provide for making medical assistance available to any disabled individual receiving cash SSI benefits, or receiving Medicaid under the State's options for SSI beneficiaries; and (4) describe how the State will provide medical assistance to any other population group. The State plan would be required to include a description of (a) the eligible population, including categories, duration of eligibility, financial standards and methodologies, and standards for the protection of income and resources of the community spouses of institutionalized beneficiaries; (b) duration and scope of covered services, including variations by population group; (c) the delivery method, such as use of vouchers, fee-for-service, or managed care arrangements; (d) required beneficiary cost-sharing, including any responsibility of parents of recipients under age 19 and the spouses of recipients; (e) any incentives or requirements to encourage appropriate utilization; and (f) any payment provisions for short-term acute general care hospitals or children's hospitals with a specified low-income utilization rate. A State using a fee-for-service system would also have to describe how it determines provider qualifications and sets reimbursement rates. The Medicaid plan would have to include coverage of immunizations for eligible children, in accordance with a schedule developed by the State health department in consultation with those responsible for administering the Medicaid plan. No Medicaid plan could deny or exclude services on the basis of a preexisting condition. If a State contracted with a capitated organization or other entity and allowed the organization to impose preexisting condition exclusions, the State would have to provide alternate coverage for any covered services denied as a result. The bill requires that States provide prepregnancy family planning services and supplies and prohibits the imposition of any treatment limits or financial requirements on mental illness services that are not imposed on services for other illnesses. Each State plan would have to provide that any State law solvency requirements that apply to private sector health plans and providers would apply to Medicaid plans and providers.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate provision with modifications. The agreement would require States to provide medical assistance, subject to State flexibility of benefits under Section 2116 of the bill, to the "disabled" as defined by the State (and subject to Section 2111(a)). The agreement follows the Senate provision regarding treatment of children's hospitals and certain disproportionate share hospitals. The agreement follows the House provision regarding the prohibition on requiring an adult child to contribute to the cost of long-term services for the child's parent. This "family responsibility" provision is not intended to affect estate recoveries. The agreement also establishes requirements relating to solvency standards for MediGrant capitated health care organizations.

SET-ASIDES OF FUNDS FOR POPULATION GROUPS (SEC. 2112 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2112 OF MEDICAID)

States would be required to devote specified minimum percentages of total program spending to services for each of three groups: low-income families, low-income elderly, and low-income blind and disabled. (Funds set aside for low-income families would have to be spent on families below 185 percent of poverty that included a pregnant woman or child.) For each group, the minimum percentage to be spent would be set equal to 85 percent of the average percentage of the State's Medicaid spending during fiscal year 1992 through fiscal year 1994 devoted to mandatory services for members of that group who were required to be covered under Federal Medicaid law. (The percentage would be set at 75 percent in the case of a State that covered only mandatory services during the base period.)

For the elderly, there would be an additional set-aside for Medicare premium assistance, again based on the percentage of the State's spending that went for such assistance to mandatory individuals in the base period. For purposes of computing the base period expenditures for the low-income elderly, all elderly persons who were in nursing homes would be treated as persons whose coverage was required. Thus, the computation of the base for elderly includes all current long-term spending for elderly who qualify under options that States may use for covering persons with higher income levels.

One of these options is the medically needy option. Medically needy persons have incomes too high to qualify for cash welfare, but incur medical expenses that deplete their assets and incomes to levels that make them needy according to State-determined standards. The base also includes State spending under a special income rule referred to as the "300% rule", for extending eligibility to persons needing nursing home care. Under this rule, States were allowed to cover persons needing nursing home care so long as their income did not exceed 300% of the basic Supplemental Security Income (SSI) cash welfare payment. Nursing home payments for these two groups of non-poor accounted for 61% of total program payments for all elderly beneficiaries and approximately 90% of all spending on nursing home services.[3]

In computing the base period spending percentages, payments to disproportionate share hospitals (DSH) would not be treated as payments for mandatory services.

The MediGrant plan prohibits any State from utilizing MediGrant funds for any purpose other than medical assistance for low-income residents and support functions essential to the provision of that assistance.

A State could establish a set-aside percentage for a population group below the specified minimum percentages if it determined and certified to the Secretary that the health care needs of that group (and any related performance goals in the MediGrant plan) could be met with a lower level of expenditure. Such exceptions could not apply before fiscal year 1998, and determinations would have to be renewed at intervals of no more than three years.

A State that spent less on any group than the required set-aside amount would not be found in substantial violation of the requirements if its spending for each of the three population groups was at least 95 percent of the required amounts and an independent actuary certified that the MediGrant plan was reasonably designed to result in expenditures of the required amounts.

Funds not required to be spent under the set-asides could be spent for additional medical assistance, program administration, or medically-related services, defined as services not included in the definition of medical assistance but related to or supporting the attainment of the strategic objectives and performance goals established under the State's MediGrant plan.

Senate amendment

Similar provision, except the Senate set-asides would be calculated based on expenditures rather than percentages.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with an amendment establishing a funding set-aside for Federally-qualified health centers and rural health clinics.

It is the Conferees' expectation that actual State MediGrant spending on the recipient populations designated by the set-asides will be significantly higher than is mandated by the set-asides. It is also the Conferees' intention that the set-aside calculations on dollar expenditures serve as a floor for providing health assistance for the elderly, disabled, pregnant women, and children. The set-aside floor serve as a federal guarantee that MediGrant expenditures will be fairly and equitably distributed to different types of beneficiaries.

In providing eligibility for the disabled under the MediGrant program set-aside, the Conferees urge States to consider the special circumstances of women and children with disabilities. An expedited eligibility determination process is especially important for people who have disabilities that are life-threatening and are at risk of dying before such a determination may be made. The Conferees also urge States to provide services to meet the preventive and primary care needs of people with disabilities, including such measures as the prevention of illness through prophylactic and early intervention drugs and the prevention of transmission of illness through measures such as the administration of antiviral drugs to HIV-positive women during pregnancy. Such measures may prevent needless disability and unnecessary medical costs.

PREMIUMS AND COST-SHARING (SEC. 2113 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2113 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

States would be permitted to impose premiums, copayments, coinsurance, or deductibles pursuant to a public schedule. Cost-sharing could be designed to encourage primary and preventive care and discourage unnecessary or less economical care and inappropriate use of emergency services. Amounts could be scaled to reflect economic factors, employment status, family size, availability of other health insurance, or participation in employment training, drug abuse or alcohol treatment, counseling, or other programs promoting personal responsibility. For a family below 100 percent of poverty and including a pregnant woman or child, no premium could be imposed and cost-sharing amounts would have to be nominal (except for cost-sharing designed to deter inappropriate emergency services).

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision.

DESCRIPTION OF PROCESS FOR DEVELOPING CAPITATION PAYMENT RATES (SEC. 2114 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2114 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

If a State contracted with HMOs or similar entities on a risk basis for a package of services including at least inpatient hospital and physician care, the MediGrant plan would have to describe: (1) the use of actuarial science in projecting expenditures and utilization for enrollees and setting capitation payment rates; (2) required qualifications for participating organizations; and (3) a process for dissemination to contractors of information on capitation rates and historical fee-for-service cost and utilization data. The State would also have to provide for public notice and an opportunity to comment on this information before each contract year; the notice would have to include the amounts of capitation payments made under the MediGrant plan in the preceding year and expected to be made in the coming year (unless exempt from disclosure under State law).

Senate amendment

Similar provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision.

PREVENTING SPOUSAL IMPOVERISHMENT (SEC. 2115 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2116 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

The income eligibility rules would not permit income of community spouses to be used in determining the nursing home spouse's eligibility unless the income were actually made available to the institutionalized spouse. As in current law, after eligibility has been determined, States would be required to set a minimum monthly maintenance needs allowance for living expenses of the community spouse according to statutory limits. (Currently, this minimum is $1,254 per month and the maximum is $1,871 per month. These amounts may be increased depending on the amount of the community spouse's actual shelter costs and other factors.)

From a couple's combined resources, an amount would be protected for the community spouse. This amount would be the greater of one-half of the couple's resources at the time the institutionalized spouse entered the nursing home, up to a maximum, or a standard established by the State. (Currently, the State resource standard may be no lower than $14,964 and no greater than $74,820.)

Senate amendment

Similar provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with a Senate amendment to exclude from determinations of income reparations payments from the Federal Republic of Germany.

CONSTRUCTION (SEC. 2116 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2115 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

The bill specifies that no provision shall be construed as creating an individual or group entitlement to medical assistance under Federal law. In addition, the bill grants states flexibility in determining: (a) coverage of any particular service or type of provider or any level of payment; (b) geographical coverage areas; and (c) selection of providers. The MediGrant plan also removes existing limitations on States' ability to contract with managed care plans or individual providers on a capitated or other basis, to contract for case management or coordination services, or to set capitation rates on the basis of competition or negotiation.

Senate amendment

Except for provisions related to immunizations for children and pre-pregnancy family planning services, no provision of this title would be construed as requiring a State to (a) cover any particular items or services; (b) provide for any particular type of provider or any level of payment; (c) provide for the same medical assistance in all geographical areas or political subdivisions of the State; (d) provide for comparability of services to eligible individuals; or (e) provide for freedom of choice of providers; or as limiting the State's ability to contract with managed care plans or individual providers on a capitated or other basis, to contract for case management or coordination services, or to set capitation rates on the basis of competition or negotiation.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with an amendment. The amendment moves to Section 7002 the construction that no federal entitlement under federal law has been created in any individual, including any provider.

LIMITATIONS ON CAUSES OF ACTION (SEC. 2117 OF MEDIGRANT)

House bill

The bill would remove the existing right for an applicant, beneficiary, provider or health plan to sue a State official under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 to require prospective enforcement of the Medicaid statute. However, the plan would have no effect on any action brought under State law.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with an amendment. The amendment moves to Section 2154 the limitation on causes of action under federal law.

PART C—PAYMENTS TO STATES

ALLOTMENT OF FUNDS AMONG STATES (SEC. 2121 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2121 OF MEDICAID)

House Bill

Beginning with fiscal year 1996, the bill would limit Federal obligations and outlays for each State to fixed allotments. (Obligations are binding agreements to make Federal payments, immediately or in the future. Outlays are actual payments to liquidate obligations.) The obligation allotments would include adjustments to reflect obligations incurred in one year that did not result in outlays until the following year.

For fiscal year 1996, the MediGrant outlay allotment for each State and the District of Columbia would be based on Federal Medicaid payments to the State in fiscal year 1994, increased by the ratio of $95,529,490,500 (the total available for outlay allotments to States and the District for fiscal year 1996) to $83,213,431,458 (the total of fiscal year 1994 Federal payments to the States and the District). For fiscal year 1997 and later years, the outlay allotment would be based on a formula allocation from a fixed pool of total MediGrant funds. A State could carry over any unused obligation allotment amount to a subsequent year.

The pool for fiscal year 1996 would be $95.663 billion (this represents outlay allotments to the States and the District plus allotments to Commonwealths and territories). The pool would be $102.748 billion for fiscal year 1997, $107.268 billion for fiscal year 1998, $111.827 billion for fiscal year 1999, $116.473 billion for fiscal year 2000, $121.311 billion for fiscal year 2001, and $126.351 billion for fiscal year 2002. For later years, the pool amount would be the previous year's amount increased by the lesser of 4.1546 percent or the growth in the consumer price index for all urban consumers (CPI–U) for the 12-month period ending in June before the start of the year in question. The increase in the pool amount over that for the preceding year would be designated the "national MediGrant growth percentage" (NMGP).

For fiscal year 1997 and later years, each State's outlay allotment from the pool would equal a needs-based amount times a scalar factor, subject to certain floors and ceilings. The needs-based amount for a State would be the product of its aggregate need and its old Federal medical assistance percentage for the previous year (FMAP; see below). The scalar factor would be a constant multiplier for all States used to ensure that floor and ceiling provisions, along with the allotments for Commonwealths and territories, do not cause total allotments to exceed the pool amount.

The State's aggregate need would be the product of four factors: residents in poverty, a case mix index, an input cost index, and national average spending per resident in poverty. Residents in poverty would be the average number of individuals in the State below the Federal poverty threshold in the most recent period of 3 calendar years for which data were available. The case mix index would equal the 3-year average ratio between the State's expected per recipient spending and national average per recipient spending, given the State's relative proportions of aged, disabled, and other recipients and assuming that the State's per recipient spending for each group was equal to the national average for that group. The case mix index could not be less than 0.9 or more than 1.15. The input cost index would be the sum of 0.15 and the product of 0.85 and a hospital wage index. This wage index would equal the ratio between annual average wages for hospital employees in the State and the national average; it would be based on the area wage indices computed under Medicare's prospective payment system for inpatient hospital services (or a comparable index if the Medicare index should no longer be available). National average spending per resident in poverty would be computed for fiscal year 1997 using fiscal year 1994 data; for fiscal year 1998 and later years, the figure would be increased by the NMGP.

State outlay allotments could not exceed certain floors and ceilings based on the State's prior allotment. In fiscal year 1997, a State would receive at least 103.5 percent of the fiscal year 1996 outlay allotment. In fiscal year 1998, the State minimum allotment (or floor) would equal 103 percent. In fiscal year 1999, the State floor would equal 102.5 percent. For all fiscal years after 1999, State outlay allotments would not be less than 102 percent. Beginning in fiscal year 1998, a higher floor would apply for certain States based on the one-time increase in the State's allotment from fiscal year 1996 to fiscal year 1997. For a State whose fiscal year 1996–97 outlay allotment increase was greater than 120 percent of the fiscal year 1997 NMGP, the floor would be 104 percent of the previous year's allotment. For those States whose fiscal year 1996–97 outlay allotment increase was greater than 75 percent of the fiscal year 1997 NMGP, but less than 120 percent the floor would equal 103 percent of the previous year's allotment. In fiscal year 1997, the allotment for a State could not exceed 109 percent of the fiscal year 1996 allotment, for each subsequent year the State allotment could not exceed 105.33 percent of the prior year's allotment. However, beginning in fiscal year 1998, the ceiling for the 10 States with the lowest rates of Federal Medicaid spending per resident-in-poverty is higher. In fiscal year 1998 and fiscal year 1999 the allotments for these States will not exceed 106 percent. In fiscal year 2000 the allotment ceiling for these States equals 106.0657 of the prior year's allotment. In fiscal year 2001 the allotment ceiling for these States equals 106.1488 percent of the prior year's allotment. In fiscal year 2002 and all subsequent years the allotment ceiling is set to 106.2319 percent of the prior year's allotments. Allotments for Commonwealths and territories would equal their previous year's allotments increased by the NMGP (in place of the percentage increases provided under current law).

To reduce variations in increases in outlay allotments over time, any State or the District could elect an alternative growth rate formula. A portion of the State's allotment for fiscal year 1996 could be deferred and applied to increase its allotment for one or more subsequent years, so long as the total of the increases did not exceed the amount deferred in fiscal year 1996. (Obligation allotments for the State would be adjusted accordingly.)

In fiscal year 1996 special adjustments are made to the State outlay allotments for Oregon and Tennessee. Oregon's outlay allotment is increased by $155.7 million, Tennessee's outlay allotment is increased by $195.5 million.

A supplemental allotment to be used by the twelve States with the highest number of undocumented aliens for emergency health care services would also be available between fiscal year 1996 and fiscal year 2002. This supplemental pool could not exceed $3 billion over the seven year period. Allotments to the States in any given year would be based on their relative share of undocumented aliens. Aggregate spending in any given year would be determined by taking into account the total $3 billion and the NMGP.

The Secretary would publish preliminary allotments for each fiscal year by April 1 of the preceding fiscal year. The General Accounting Office (GAO) would report to Congress by May 15 on the extent to which the allotments comply with statutory requirements. The Secretary would publish final allotments by July 1, taking into account the GAO analysis and explaining any changes from the preliminary allotments; the Secretary could not modify allotments thereafter. By August 1, GAO would report to Congress on the statutory compliance of the final allotments.

Senate amendment

Beginning with fiscal year 1996, the bill would limit Federal obligations and outlays for each State to fixed amounts. (Obligations are binding agreements to make Federal payments, immediately or in the future. Outlays are actual payments to liquidate obligations.) Obligation allotments would limit the amount the Secretary could agree to pay a State during a year. They would be based on outlay allotments, which represent the maximum actual payments to the State. The obligation allotments would include adjustments to reflect obligations incurred in 1 year that did not result in outlays until the following year.

The Medicaid obligation allotment would represent an amount slightly larger than the outlay allotment pool. In fiscal year 1996, the Medicaid obligation allotment for each State and the District of Columbia would equal the outlay pool of Medicaid outlays divided by 95% (i.e., the obligation amount would be roughly 105% of the outlay amount). Since fiscal year 1996 is a transition year, the fiscal year 1996 outlay allotment pool would be reduced to account for any obligations incurred under current law (the outlay pool amount would be reduced by $24.624 billion). For fiscal year 1997, the outlay would be divided by 98.6% to determine the obligation allotments. For fiscal year 1998, and all subsequent years the outlay allotment would be divided by 99.8% to determine the overall obligation allotment. A similar process is used for individual State obligation allotments.

The outlay pool for fiscal year 1996 would be $97.245 billion (this represents outlay allotments to the States and the District plus allotments to Commonwealths and territories). The pool would be $102.608 billion for fiscal year 1997, $106.712 billion for fiscal year 1998, $110.980 billion for fiscal year 1999, $115.420 billion for fiscal year 2000, $120.037 billion for fiscal year 2001, and $124.838 billion for fiscal year 2002. For later years, the pool amount would be the previous year's amount increased by the lesser of 4% or the growth in the gross domestic product (GDP) for the 12-month ending in June before the start of the year in question. The increase in the pool amount over that for the preceding year would be designated the "national Medicaid growth percentage" (NMGP).

In fiscal year 1996, each State's outlay allotment from the pool would equal 109 percent of the greater of: (1) Its Federal Medicaid expenditures in fiscal year 1995 (excluding any disproportionate share payments); (2) 103.38 percent of its Federal Medicaid expenditures in fiscal year 1994; or (3) 95 percent of Federal Medicaid expenditures in fiscal year 1993 (excluding any disproportionate share payments). This initial allotment would be adjusted to take into account the overall obligation allotment total for the program. All States' allotments would be adjusted in order that the sum of the allotments equal the total. A State could carry over any unused outlay allotment amount to a subsequent year.

For fiscal year 1997 and later years, each State's outlay allotment from the pool would equal a needs-based amount times a scalar factor, subject to certain floors and ceilings. The needs-based amount for a State would be the product of its aggregate need and its Federal medical assistance percentage for the previous year (FMAP; see below). The scalar factor would be a constant multiplier for all States used to ensure that floor and ceiling provisions, along with the allotments for Commonwealths and territories, do not cause total allotments to exceed the pool amount.

The State's aggregate need would be the product of four factors: residents in poverty, a case mix index, an input cost index, and national average spending per resident in poverty. Residents in poverty would be the average number of individuals in the State below the Federal poverty threshold in the most recent period of 3 calendar years for which data were available. The case mix index would equal the ratio between the State's expected per recipient spending and national average per recipient spending, given the State's relative proportions of aged, disabled, and other recipients and assuming that the State's per recipient spending for each group was equal to the national average for that group. The calculation of these average expenditures would not include disproportionate share payments. This index would be based on data that is available for the most recent 3 fiscal years. The input cost index would be the 3-year average of the sum of 0.15 and the product of 0.85 and a hospital wage index. This index would equal the ratio between annual average wages for hospital employees in the State and the national average; it would be based on the area wage data computed under Medicare's prospective payment system for inpatient hospital services (or a comparable index if the Medicare index should no longer be available). National average spending per resident in poverty would be computed for fiscal year 1997 using fiscal year 1995 expenditure data and State three year average numbers of residents in poverty; these average expenditures would then be increased by the NMGP for fiscal year 1997. In later years, the previous year's figure would be increased by the NMGP.

The minimum State outlay allotment is based on the greatest of three amounts: (1) no State would receive an outlay allotment less than 102% of the State's allotment in the previous year; (2) an amount less than 0.26% of the total pool amount; (3) or if the State's fiscal year 1998 allotment is greater than 103.8% of its fiscal year 1997 allotment:

A State's fiscal year 1999 allotment could not be less than 104.25% of its prior year's allotment;

For fiscal year 2000 and fiscal year 2001 the State's allotment could not be less than 104% of its prior year's allotment;

For fiscal year 2002 the State's allotment could not be less than 103.4% of its prior year's allotment.

State obligation allotments are also subject to a maximum increase. This maximum increase from the prior year's outlay allotment is the product of the NMGP and the following schedule. A State's increase its outlay allotment in:

Fiscal year 1997 can not be greater than 125.5% of the NMGP;

Fiscal year 1998 can not be greater than 132% of the NMGP;

Fiscal year 1999 can not be greater than 151% of the NMGP;

Fiscal year 2000 can not be greater than 156% of the NMGP;

Fiscal year 2001 can not be greater than 144% of the NMGP;

Fiscal year 2002 can not be greater than 146% of the NMGP.

Special outlay allotment rules apply to New Hampshire and Louisiana. For each of fiscal years 1996 through 2000, New Hampshire's outlay allotment would equal $360 million and Louisiana's outlay allotment would equal $2.622 billion. Beginning in fiscal year 1997, allotments for Commonwealths and territories would equal their previous year's allotments increased by the NMGP (in place of the percentage increases provided under current law).

To reduce variations in outlay allotments over time, any State or the District could elect an alternative growth rate formula. A portion of the State's allotment for fiscal year 1996 could be deferred and applied to increase its allotment for one or more subsequent years, so long as the total of the increases did not exceed the amount deferred in fiscal year 1996. (Obligation allotments for the State would be adjusted accordingly.) A State could choose to increase its fiscal year 1996 outlay allotment by a portion of its outlays for one or more of the fiscal years 1997 through 1999. This increase in the State's fiscal year 1996 outlay allotment could not be greater than 25% of the outlay allotment estimated under the regular allotment formula.

The Secretary would publish preliminary allotments for each fiscal year by April 1 of the preceding fiscal year. The General Accounting Office (GAO) would report to Congress by May 15 on the extent to which the allotments comply with statutory requirements. The Secretary would publish final allotments by July 1, taking into account the GAO analysis and explaining any changes from the preliminary allotments; the Secretary could not modify allotments thereafter. By August 1, GAO would report to Congress on the statutory compliance of the final allotments.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with amendments. Under the agreement, the growth rate following 2002 is established, the small state minimum is set at 0.24%, and special rules for Louisiana, New Hampshire and Nebraska are incorporated. The conference agreement also includes the House provision providing for a $3.5 billion national fund for emergency services provided to illegal aliens for 15 states over a 5 year period.

PAYMENTS TO STATES (SEC. 2122 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2122 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

Subject to the allotment limits, payments to States for medical assistance and medically-related services would equal the State's spending for the services times the applicable FMAP. This would be the greater of the old FMAP, computed as under current law, or a new FMAP, (or, if less, the old FMAP plus 10 percentage points). The new FMAP would equal 100 percent minus the product of (a) 0.39 and (b) the ratio of the total taxable resources (TTR) ratio for the State to the aggregate expenditure need ratio for the State. The TTR ratio would be the ratio of the most recent 3-year average of the State's TTR, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, to the sum of the average TTRs for all States (for the District of Columbia, a per capita income ratio would be substituted). The aggregate expenditure need ratio would be the ratio of the State's aggregate expenditure need (as determined in computing the State's allotment; see above) to the sum of the aggregate expenditure needs for all States. The new FMAP could not be less than 40 percent or greater than 83 percent. The FMAP for Commonwealths and territories would be 50 percent. The FMAP for services in Indian Health Service facilities (and for specified facilities of Indian tribes that are not Indian Health Service facilities) would continue to be 100 percent; in addition, no State matching would be required for services to unlawful aliens. For administrative services, the Federal matching percentage would generally be 50 percent, with enhanced matching for specified expenditures as under current law. Provisions of current Medicaid law relating to periodic payments to States and treatment of overpayments and disallowances would be retained.

Senate amendment

Subject to the allotment limits, payments to States for medical assistance and medically-related services would equal the State's spending for the services times the applicable FMAP. The FMAP would be calculated as under current law, except that Alaska's FMAP would be calculated with an adjustment. Alaska's FMAP would equal the average per capita income divided by the input cost index. This adjusted per capita measure would be compared to the per capita income of the continental United States. For all States, the FMAP could not be less than 60% or greater than 83%. The FMAP for Commonwealths and territories would be 50%. The FMAP for services in Indian Health Service facilities (and for specified facilities of Indian tribes that are not Indian Health Service facilities) would continue to be 100%; in addition, no State matching would be required for services to unlawful aliens. For administrative services, the Federal matching percentage would generally be 50%, with enhanced matching for specified expenditures as under current law. Provisions of current Medicaid law relating to periodic payments to States and treatment of overpayments and disallowances would be retained. As under current law, provider-related taxes and donations would be excluded from matching State medical assistance expenditures unless the donations met the definition of a bona fide provider-related donation, or a broad based health care tax. Furthermore, as under current law, donations associated with eligibility determination and outreach activities cannot exceed 10% of administrative spending in the State.

As under current law, States would be required to provide at least 40% of the non–Federal share of Medicaid expenditures. New Hampshire's state expenditures could not be less than 120% of $203 million in 1996, 140% of $203 million in 1997, 160% of $203 million in 1998, 180% of $203 million in 1999 and 200% of $203 million in 2000. Louisiana's state expenditures must be at least 120% of $355 million in 1996, and will follow the same percentage increase progression as New Hampshire through 2000. If not, federal funding will be reduced on a proportional basis.

If a State does not use its full outlay allotment, the difference between the payments and the obligation allotment can be used in the next fiscal year. This carryover amount can not be larger than the total carryover amount from the two preceding years. Any obligated allotment amounts that go unused will be reallocated to qualified States. In order to qualify a State can not have any carryover amount and must apply for the payments. These allotments will be obligated to qualifying States in the following order: (1) States with outlay allotments at their ceiling level; (2) States with allotments between the floor and the ceiling; and (3) States at their floor. If their are not enough funds to fulfill the request of any single group of the States, the funds will be proportionately allocated among the qualifying States in the group.

Special appropriations are provided to the following States: $63 million to Arizona, $250 million to Florida, $34 million to Georgia, $76.5 million to Kentucky, $181 million to South Carolina, $250 million to Washington, and $50 million to Vermont. These funds do not have to be used in any particular fiscal year and can be added to their outlay allotments.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with a Senate amendment revising the current law FMAP floor.

LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS (SEC. 2123 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2123 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

States could use Federal funds only to carry out the purposes of Title XXI. Federal payments would not be made to a State for nonemergency services provided or ordered by providers excluded under the maternal and child health or social services block grant, Medicare, or Medicaid. Spending for medically-related services could not exceed 5 percent of total spending under the MediGrant plan. Spending for administration could not exceed the sum of $20 million plus 10 percent of total spending under the MediGrant plan. This limit would not apply, during the first two years the MediGrant plan was in effect, to spending for quality assurance, utilization review, and similar activities or to spending needed to comply with reporting requirements. As under current law, Federal matching would not be available for services that would have been paid for by a private insurer but for a provision of the insurance contract making the insurer secondary to Medicaid. The definition of allowable emergency services for illegal aliens would be clarified. Payment could not be made for prescription drugs unless the manufacturer had entered into a MediGrant master rebate agreement with the Secretary (see below) and was in compliance with current requirements section 8126 of Title 38, including those for a master agreement with the Secretary of Veterans Affairs. Payment for abortions (or for health benefit coverage including abortions) would be permitted only to save the life of the mother, or in cases of rape or incest. Payment could not be made for drugs or services furnished to cause or assist in causing the death, suicide, euthanasia, or mercy killing of a person.

Senate amendment

States could use Federal funds only to carry out the purposes of Title XXI. Federal payments would not be made to a State for nonemergency services provided or ordered by providers excluded under the maternal and child health or social services block grant, Medicare, or Medicaid. Spending for medically-related services could not exceed 5% of total spending under the Medicaid plan. As under current law, Federal matching would not be available for services that would have been paid for by a private insurer or other payor but for a provision of the insurance contract making the insurer secondary to Medicaid. The definition of allowable emergency services for illegal aliens would be clarified. Federal funds could not be used for: the purchase of land, or to construct or remodel buildings; the payment of room and board (unless for respite care); certain educational services; or vocational rehabilitation services that are offered under other Federally funded programs.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with a Senate amendment that denies Federal financial participation in any MediGrant payment for expenditures for medical assistance if payment could have been made under any other federally operated or financed health care program, other than a program under the Indian Health Service.

GRANT PROGRAM FOR COMMUNITY HEALTH CENTERS AND RURAL HEALTH CENTERS (SEC. 2124 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The bill provides for 1% of the pool amount to be set aside and used for grants for primary and preventive health care services provided at rural health clinics and federally qualified health centers.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate Amendment. The agreement includes an alternate provision under Section 2112.

PART D—PROGRAM INTEGRITY AND QUALITY

USE OF AUDITS TO ACHIEVE FISCAL INTEGRITY (SEC. 2131 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2131 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

Each MediGrant plan would be required to provide for an annual audit of the State's medical assistance expenditures in compliance with the Single Audit Act (chapter 75 of title 31, United States Code). If the Secretary determined that a State's audit was performed in substantial violation of the chapter 75 provision, the Secretary would be permitted to conduct a verification audit or require that the State do so. Within 30 days of completion of an audit or verification audit, the State would be required to provide a copy of the audit report to the Secretary along with the State's response to the auditor's recommendation. The State also would be required to make the audit report available for public inspection.

Each State would be required to maintain fiscal controls, accounting procedures, and data processing safeguards that are reasonably necessary to assure the fiscal integrity of the State's activities. The State's controls and procedures would be required to be generally consistent with generally accepted accounting principles as recognized by the Governmental Accounting Standards Board or the Comptroller General.

Each MediGrant plan would be required to provide that the records of any provider could be audited to ensure that proper payments were made under the plan.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

FRAUD PREVENTION PROGRAM (SEC. 2132 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2132 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

To detect fraud and abuse by beneficiaries, providers, and others, each MediGrant plan would be required to have a program that follows the following. Certain program contractors and providers would be required to disclose ownership and control information to State agencies in accordance with sections 1124 and 1124(a) of the Social Security Act. An entity (other than an individual practitioner or a group of practitioners) would be required to supply information on ownership, controlling interests, and conviction of certain offenses upon request by the Secretary or the State agency. A State could exclude a provider from participation in the MediGrant plan on its own initiative, and would be required to exclude any entity when required to do so by the Secretary pursuant to section 1128 or 1128A of the Act. Whenever a provider was terminated, suspended, sanctioned, or prohibited from participating under a State's plan, the State agency would be required to notify the Secretary and, in the case of a physician, the State medical licensing board. States would be required to provide information and access to information respecting sanctions taken against practitioners and providers by State licensing authorities.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

INFORMATION CONCERNING SANCTIONS TAKEN BY STATE LICENSING AUTHORITIES AGAINST HEALTH CARE PRACTITIONERS AND PROVIDERS (SEC. 2133 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2133 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

The provision is identical to the current law provision. Each State would be required to have in effect a system for reporting and providing access to information for use by the Secretary and other officials concerning licensing revocations and other sanctions taken against providers and practitioners by State licensing authorities, peer review organizations, or accreditation entities. A State would be required to report any adverse action taken, whether a provider had surrendered a license or left the State, any other loss of license, and any negative action taken by a reviewing authority. The State would be required to provide the Secretary with access to whatever documents the Secretary needed to determine the facts and circumstances concerning the actions taken. Such information would have to be provided under arrangements made by the Secretary in the form the Secretary determined to be appropriate to (1) provide for the Secretary's activities, and (2) provide information to other specified authorities in order to protect their programs and services.

The Secretary would be required to safeguard the confidentiality of information furnished. However, any party authorized to disclose information would be permitted to do so. In implementing this section, the Secretary would be required to provide for maximum coordination of section 422 of the Health Care Quality Improvement Act of 1986.

STATE FRAUD CONTROL UNITS (SEC. 2134 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2134 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

Each MediGrant plan would be required to provide for a State MediGrant fraud control unit (FCU) unless the State demonstrated that such a unit would not be cost-effective because minimal fraud existed, and that beneficiaries would be protected from abuse and neglect without such a unit. The FCU would be required to be separate and distinct from the State agency responsible for the operation and administration of the MediGrant plan. It would have to be a part of the State Attorney General's office or coordinate with that office. It would be required to have statewide prosecutorial authority or the ability to refer to local prosecutors. The FCU would investigate and prosecute violations of State fraud laws, and review and prosecute cases involving neglect or abuse of beneficiaries in nursing homes and other facilities. It would be required to provide for the collection of overpayments it had discovered were made to health care providers. It would be required to employ auditors, attorneys, investigators, and other necessary personnel.

RECOVERIES FROM THIRD PARTIES AND OTHERS (SEC. 2135 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2135 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

Each MediGrant plan would be required to ascertain the legal liability of third parties to pay for care and services available under the plan and seek reimbursement to the extent of legal liability unless the cost of recovery was expected to exceed the amount of reimbursement.

MediGrant plans would be required to prohibit a provider from refusing to furnish a covered service to a beneficiary because of a third party's potential liability for the service, and from trying to collect payment from a beneficiary that exceeded payment that would be made under the plan. For violation of the collection provision, a MediGrant plan could provide for a payment reduction up to 3 times the amount sought to be collected.

States would be required to prohibit any health insurer, in enrolling an individual or in making payments for benefits, from taking into account that the individual was eligible for or was provided medical assistance under a MediGrant plan.

A State would be required to have laws in effect under which the State is considered to have acquired the rights of an individual to payments by a party that is liable for the individual's health care items and services. Each State would be required to provide for mandatory assignment of rights of payment for medical support and care to beneficiaries.

Each State with a MediGrant plan would be required to have in effect laws relating to medical child support. Each State would have to prohibit an insurer from denying enrollment of a child because the child was born out of wedlock, was not claimed as a dependent on the parent's Federal income tax return, or did not reside with the parent or in the insurer's area. In a case in which a parent was required by a court or administrative order to provide health coverage for a child, and the parent was eligible for family health coverage, State laws would have to require the employer and insurer to permit the parent to enroll the child upon application by either parent or by the State child support agency, and limit the circumstances under which the insurer could disenroll such a child. State laws would be required to prohibit an insurer from imposing requirements on a State agency that has been assigned the rights of an individual that are different from requirements applicable to an agent of any other covered individual; require an insurer, in the case of a child who has health coverage through the insurer of a non-custodial parent, to provide information to the custodial parent; permit the custodial parent to submit claims for covered services without the approval of the non-custodial parent, and make payment on claims to the custodial parent, the provider, or the State agency; permit the State agency to garnish the employment income of, and require withholding amounts from State tax refunds to, any person who is required by court or administrative order to cover the medical costs of a child who is eligible for medical assistance, has received payment from a third party for the costs of the child's services, and has not used the payment to reimburse the appropriate party.

A State would be permitted to take appropriate action to adjust or recover from an individual or the individual's estate amounts paid as medical assistance under a MediGrant plan.

Senate amendment

ASSIGNMENT OF RIGHTS OF PAYMENT (SEC. 2136 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2136 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

As a condition of eligibility for medical assistance under a State's MediGrant plan, an individual would be required to assign to the State any rights to medical support and payment for medical care from any third party of the individual or any other person who is eligible and on whose behalf the individual has the legal authority to execute an assignment of such rights. An individual would be required to cooperate with the State agency in establishing paternity of a child born out of wedlock and in obtaining support and payments for the individual and child unless the individual was a pregnant woman or was found to have good cause for refusing to cooperate as determined by the State. An individual would be required to cooperate with the State in identifying and providing information to assist the State to pursue any liable third party unless the individual had good cause for refusing to cooperate as determined by the State. The State would be required to provide for entering into cooperative arrangements (including financial arrangements) with any appropriate agency of any State and with appropriate courts and law enforcement officials, to assist the agency or agencies administering the State plan with respect to the enforcement and collection of rights to support or payment that had been assigned.

Any amount collected by the State under an assignment would be retained by the State to reimburse it for payments made on behalf of an individual with respect to whom the assignment was executed (with appropriate reimbursement to the Federal Government of its share of the payment). The remainder of such amount collected would be paid to the individual.

QUALITY ASSURANCE STANDARDS FOR NURSING FACILITIES (SEC. 2137 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2137 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

OBRA 87 nursing home reform provisions would be replaced with new requirements. State plans would be required to establish and maintain standards for facilities providing services under the State's program. Such standards would have to require nursing facilities to care for residents in a manner and environment that promote maintenance or enhancement of quality of life. Standards would also be required to address the following areas: the treatment of resident medical records; policies, procedures, and bylaws for operation; quality assurance systems; resident assessment procedures, including care planning and outcome evaluation; the assurance of a safe and adequate physical plant for the facility; qualifications for staff sufficient to provide adequate care, as defined by the State, and utilization review.

Standards for nursing facilities would also be required to provide for the protection and enforcement of resident rights, including rights to exercise the individual's rights as a resident of the facility and as a citizen or resident of the U.S.; to receive notice of rights and services; to be protected against the misuse of resident funds; to be provided privacy and confidentiality; to voice grievances; to examine the results of State certification program inspections; to refuse to perform services for the facility; to be provided privacy in communications and to receive mail; to have the facility provide immediate access to any resident by any representative of the State's certification program, the resident's individual physician, the State long-term care ombudsman, and any person the resident has designated as a visitor; to retain and use personal property; to be free from abuse, including verbal, sexual, physical and mental abuse, corporal punishment, and involuntary seclusion; to be provided with prior written notice of a pending transfer or discharge; to organize and participate in resident groups in the facility and to have family members meet in the facility with the families of other residents; to participate in social, religious, and community activities that do not interfere with the rights of other residents; to choose a personal attending physician, to be fully informed in advance about care and treatment, and (except with respect to a resident adjudged incompetent) to participate in care planning and treatment or changes in care and treatment. In the case of a resident adjudged incompetent under the laws of a State, the rights of the resident would devolve upon, and, to the extent judged necessary by a court, be exercised by the person appointed under State law to act on the resident's behalf.

States would be required to promulgate standards either through the State's legislature, regulatory, or other process, and they could take effect only after the State had provided the public with notice and an opportunity for comment.

State plans would also be required to provide for the establishment and operation of a program for the certification of nursing facilities that meet specified standards as well as the decertification of those facilities that fail to meet the standards. States would be required to ensure public access (as defined by the State) to the certification program's evaluations of participating facilities, including compliance records and enforcement actions and other reports by the State regarding ownership, compliance histories, and services provided by certified facilities. States would be required to audit their expenditures under the program, not less often than every 4 years, through an entity designated by the State which is not affiliated with the program.

States would be required to impose certain sanctions against nursing facilities not meeting requirements. If a State determined that a certified nursing facility no longer substantially met specified requirements and further determined that the facility's deficiencies immediately jeopardized the health and safety of residents, then the State would be required, at a minimum, to terminate the facility's certification for participation. If the facility's deficiencies did not immediately jeopardize the health and safety of residents, the State could, in lieu of termination, provide lesser sanctions, including denial of payment for persons admitted after a specified date.

States could not impose sanctions until a facility has had a reasonable opportunity to correct its deficiencies, following the initial determination that it no longer substantially met the requirements for certification, and, has been given reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing. A State's decision to deny payment for new admissions would be effective only after notice to the public and the facility, as may be provided for by the State. Denial of payment for new admissions would end when the State found that the facility was in substantial compliance (or was making good faith efforts to achieve substantial compliance). Facilities would, however, be required to be in compliance by the end of the eleventh month following the month when the decision to deny payments becomes effective. If facilities did not substantially meet the requirements by that time, States would be required to terminate their certification for participation.

Senate amendment

Current law nursing home reform provisions contained in section 1919 of the Social Security Act would apply to nursing facilities providing services under the State's plan. States with State law requirements for nursing facilities that are equivalent to or stricter than current law requirements, and contain State oversight and enforcement authority over nursing facilities, including penalty provisions, that are equivalent to or stricter than oversight and enforcement authority in current law, could apply to the Secretary for a waiver of current law requirements. The Secretary would determine whether State law requirements were equivalent to or stricter than current law and would be required to approve or deny a waiver application within 120 days after submission. A State granted a waiver would be subject to: (1) a penalty of up to 2 percent of its allotment if the Secretary determines that a State has failed to comply with current law nursing home reform requirements or any State law requirements in effect as a result of a waiver; (2) suspension or termination of the waiver; and (3) any other authority available to the Secretary to enforce the requirements of current law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate provision with modification providing for Federal enforcement of State facilities, and enhanced State enforcement of standards for other nursing facilities. The agreement also provides for Federal enforcement action in the case of failure of State enforcement to correct deficiencies.

OTHER PROVISIONS PROMOTING PROGRAM INTEGRITY (SEC. 2138 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2138 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

State agencies responsible for surveying health care facilities or organizations would be required to make public, in readily available form and place, pertinent findings on the compliance of the facility or organization with the requirements of law. Persons or institutions providing services under the State's plan would be required to keep such records (including ledgers, books, and original evidence of costs) as are necessary to fully disclose the extent of the services provided, and to furnish information about payments claimed, as the State may from time to time request.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision. It is the expectation of the conferees that States will respond to the needs of the chronically mentally ill. For this purpose, State MediGrant plans will provide under section 2139(c) quality assurance programs for individuals with chronic mental illness. For this purpose, chronic mental illness shall be defined through diagnosis, disability, and duration and shall include disorder with psychotic symptoms, such as schizophrenia, schizoaffective disorder, manic depression disorder, and autism, as well as severe forms of other mental disorders, such as major depression, panic disorder, and obsessive compulsive disorder.

PART E—ESTABLISHMENT AND AMENDMENT OF STATE PLANS

SUBMITTAL AND APPROVAL OF PLANS (SEC. 2151 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2151 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

States would be required to submit to the Secretary a MediGrant plan that meets the requirements of Title XXI. A State with a Title XXI fiscal year 1996 allotment of more than $10 billion would be required to have specific authorization of its State legislature to submit a plan. Unless the Secretary found that a plan substantially violated the requirements of Title XXI, the plan would be approved and would be effective beginning with the calendar quarter specified in the plan, but no earlier than the first calendar quarter that begins at least 60 days after the plan is submitted.

Senate amendment

Similar provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate provision.

SUBMITTAL AND APPROVAL OF PLAN AMENDMENTS (SEC. 2152 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2152 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

A State would be permitted to submit an amendment to its MediGrant plan at any time. However, any amendment that would eliminate or restrict eligibility or benefits under the plan could not take effect before it was transmitted to the Secretary, unless there was prior or contemporaneous public notice of the change, as provided under State law. Nor could it be effective for longer than a 60-day period unless the amendment had been transmitted to the Secretary before the end of the period. Any other amendment could not remain in effect after the end of a State fiscal year (or if later, the end of the 90-day period on which it becomes effective) unless the amendment had been transmitted to the Secretary. These requirements would not apply to an amendment submitted on a timely basis in response to an order of a court or the Secretary.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

PROCESS FOR STATE WITHDRAWAL FROM PROGRAM (SEC. 2153 OF MEDIGRANT)

House bill

A State could rescind its plan and discontinue participation in the program at any time after providing 90 days prior notice to the public and to the Secretary. Such discontinuation would not apply to Federal payments to States for expenditures made for items and services furnished under the plan before the effective date of the discontinuation.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

SANCTIONS FOR SUBSTANTIAL NONCOMPLIANCE (SEC. 2154 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2153 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

The Secretary would be required to review promptly MediGrant plans and plan amendments to determine if they substantially comply with requirements. If the Secretary determined that a plan or plan amendment substantially violated the requirements and, within 30 days of submittal, provided written notice to the State, the Secretary would be required to issue an order specifying that the plan or amendment would not be effective at the end of the 30-day period (or 120 days in the case of the initial submission of the MediGrant plan). Before making such a determination, the Secretary would be required to consult with the State and consider any clarifications and additional information submitted. The Secretary would be required to explain and justify any determination inconsistent with any previous determination. A plan or amendment would be considered to substantially violate a requirement if a provision were material and substantial in nature and effect, and were inconsistent with an express requirement. Failure to meet a strategic objective or performance goal would not be considered a substantial violation. A State could appeal the Secretary's determination through administrative and judicial procedures.

Senate amendment

Identical provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision with an amendment that provides for a process by which individuals may register complaints with the Secretary. It is the intent of the Conferees that the appropriate committees of Congress hold oversight hearings in cases where States fail to respond to notifications by the Secretary under section 2154(g).

The conference agreement also includes in section 2154(c) a provision stating that only the Secretary, in accordance with this Title, may compel a State under federal law to comply with the provisions of this Title and that no other cause of action may be filed under federal law against a State.

SECRETARIAL AUTHORITY (SEC. 2155 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2154 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

The Secretary would be permitted to negotiate a satisfactory resolution to any dispute concerning the approval of a plan or the compliance of a plan. The Secretary would be prohibited from delegating authority for approval of plans other than to the Administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration. The Administrator would be prohibited from making any further delegation of such authority. The Secretary would be required to administer the program only through a prospective formal rulemaking process, including issuing notices of proposed rule making, publishing proposed rules or modifications to rules in the Federal Register, and soliciting public comment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

PART F—GENERAL PROVISIONS

DEFINITIONS (SEC. 2171 OF MEDIGRANT; SEC. 2171 OF MEDICAID)

House bill

"Medical assistance" would be defined as including an extensive list of services similar to those specified under current law, and, in addition, enabling services to increase accessibility to primary and preventive services. "Eligible low-income individual" would mean an individual who has been determined eligible by the State and whose family income does not exceed a percentage specified in the plan that is not greater than 300% of the poverty line. In determining income, States would be permitted to exclude costs incurred for medical care. "Medicare cost sharing" would include Medicare premiums, coinsurance, and deductibles. Definitions of child, pregnant woman, and poverty line would be the same as in current law.

Senate amendment

Similar provision. "Eligible low-income individual" would be defined as an individual who had been determined eligible by the State and whose family income did not exceed a percentage that was specified in the plan and was not greater than 250% of the poverty line. In determining income, States would be permitted to exclude costs incurred for medical care. The term "retirement age" would have the same meaning as in section 216(l)(1) of the Social Security Act.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with amendments including provisions relating to home and community-based health care and supportive services, nursing care services, abortion and assisted suicide, and the definitions of "low-income individuals" and an "elderly individual."

It is the Committee's intention that the definition of "medical assistance" shall include services provided by a Christian Science sanatorium (nursing facility) and a Christian Science visiting nurse organization, listed and certified by The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, or the Commission for Accreditation of Christian Science Nursing Organizations/Facilities, Inc., and services provided in a home setting by a Christian Science nurse listed in the Christian Science Journal.

For services provided to Indians, the Federal matching rate to state Medicaid programs would be 100%.

Senate amendment

In a State in which there is at least one Indian Health Service facility, the State would have to describe (1) what provision, if any, has been made for payment of items and services furnished by the facilities, and (2) how medical assistance will be provided to eligible Indians, as determined by the State in consultation with appropriate Indian tribes and tribal organizations.

House bill

The House bill retains the current law Federal drug rebate program, with modifications.

Senate amendment

Similar provision with a provision prohibiting states from imposing supplemental rebates. The Senate amendment also would require the Secretary to establish a Medicaid Drug Rebate Program Task Force to study whether the Medicaid drug rebate program should be retained or repealed. By October 1, 1998 the Task Force would have to report its study results to the Secretary who would transmit the report to the Senate Committees on Finance and Aging and the House Committee on Commerce.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision, with the Senate amendment for supplemental rebates.

OTHER PROVISIONS (SEC. 16002 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7191 OF SENATE AMENDMENT)

House bill

Effective on the date of enactment, Title XIX would cease to be an entitlement program for individuals and Federal obligations to States would be limited to statutory obligation allotments for fiscal year 1996. The Secretary would be prohibited from entering into any obligation with a State for expenses incurred on or after the earlier of October 1, 1996, or the first day the State's plan under Title XXI was effective. A State that submitted claims for payment under Title XIX after the date of enactment would be deemed to have accepted the obligation limitation. State's claims for obligations incurred before the date of enactment would have to be submitted for payment by June 30, 1996.

Any cause of action that required a State to establish or maintain minimum payment rates under Title XIX that was not final as of the date of enactment would not be continued. For any payment made under Title XIX before October 1, 1995, for which disallowance was not taken or not completed by that date, the Secretary would be required to discontinue the disallowance proceeding. If the disallowance had been taken as of the date of enactment, the Secretary would be required to rescind any effected payment reductions and return payments to the State.

Any judicial or administrative decision applied to a State's Medicaid program under Title XIX would not apply to the State's MediGrant plan under Title XXI.

The Vaccines for Children program would be repealed effective on the date of enactment. Although the repeal would not affect the distribution of vaccines purchased and delivered before enactment, no further vaccine purchases could be made under any Title XIX contract.

A MediGrant plan under title XXI would be added to the term "State health care program." The role of the Inspector General under Title XIX would continue under Title XXI.

The bill would extend the existing waiver for the Dayton Area Health Plan to the last day of the last calendar quarter in which Ohio has a Title XIX Medicaid plan in effect.

Senate amendment

Similar provision, with a provision increasing medical assistance funding to Puerto Rico to $200 million for fiscal year 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision.

The Conferees would like to make special note of the repeal of the Vaccines for Children (VFC) program. The Clinton Administration developed a universal government vaccine purchase program (modified before enactment) based on the premise that cost was the most significant barrier to childhood immunization. It also used out-of-date data showing that immunization rates were very low. However, numerous Congressional witnesses and a June, 1995 General Accounting Office (GAO) report have contradicted these basic premises. GAO stated that there is insufficient evidence to conclude that the cost of vaccine has been a barrier to timely immunization. GAO found that 95 percent of the nation's children are vaccinated by school age, and that immunization rates for preschool children even before VFC were at or near the 90 percent national goals for 1996. GAO found that more important barriers to full immunization resulted from missed opportunities at health clinics and private providers' offices, lack of parental and provider understanding, less than optimal hours and organization.

GAO also has documented that the Secretary and the Centers for Disease Control have grossly mismanaged the program since its inception. In repealing Section 1928, the Conferees intend that all contracting authority under Section 1928 is terminated. Contracts currently in effect were negotiated under the authority granted to the Secretary under Section 1928 of the Social Security Act and Section 317 of the Public Health Service Act and will continue to their conclusion pursuant to authority under Section 317. With respect to subsequent contracts under Section 317, all procedures and requirements for purchase and delivery of vaccine will revert to those in place prior to enactment of Section 1928.

The Conferees understand that CDC has made representations to the states that federal reimbursement is available for distribution of vaccines pursuant to Section 1928(d). To avoid wastage of vaccine, any products already purchased and delivered to the states, and for which the state has a distribution contract in effect on the date of enactment, shall be eligible for reimbursement for such distribution.

TITLE VIII—MEDICARE

SUBTITLE A—MEDICAREPLUS/MEDICARE CHOICE

1. ESTABLISHMENT OF PROGRAM (SEC. 15001 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7001 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Persons enrolling in Medicare have two basic coverage options. They may elect to obtain services through the traditional fee-for-service system under which program payments are made for each service rendered. Under section 1876 of the Social Security Act, they may also elect to enroll with a managed care organization which has entered into a payment agreement with Medicare. Three types of managed care organizations are authorized to contract with Medicare: an entity that has a risk contract with Medicare, an entity that has a cost contract with Medicare, or a health care prepayment plan (HCPP) that has a cost contract to provide Medicare Part B services. Risk-contracts are frequently referred to as TEFRA risk contracts and cost contracts are frequently referred to as TEFRA cost contracts. TEFRA refers to the 1982 legislation, the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982, which established the rules governing these types of contracts.

A beneficiary in an area served by a health maintenance organization (HMO) or competitive medical plan (CMP) with a Medicare risk contract may voluntarily choose to enroll in the organization. Medicare makes a single monthly capitation payment for each of its enrollees. In return, the entity agrees to provide or arrange for the full range of Medicare services through an organized system of affiliated physicians, hospitals and other providers. The beneficiary must obtain all covered services through the HMO or CMP, except in emergencies. The beneficiary may be charged the usual cost-sharing charges or pay the equivalent in the form of a monthly premium to the organization. Beneficiaries are expected to share in the projected savings through the provision of benefits in addition to that included in Medicare's benefit package.

Beneficiaries may also enroll in organizations with TEFRA cost contracts. These entities must meet essentially the same conditions of participation as risk contractors; however they may have as few as 1,500 enrollees (rather than 5,000) to qualify. Under a cost contract, Medicare pays the actual cost the entity incurs in furnishing covered services (less the estimated value of beneficiary cost-sharing). Enrollees obtain supplemental benefits by paying a monthly premium. The entity must offer a basic package (which covers all or a portion of Medicare cost-sharing charges); any additional benefits must be priced separately. (Conversely, a risk-contractor may offer just one package.) Enrollees in TEFRA cost-contract entities may obtain services outside the entity's network; however, the entity has no obligation to cover the beneficiary's cost-sharing in this case.

A third type of managed care arrangement is the HCPP. A HCPP arrangement is similar to a TEFRA cost-contract except that it provides only Part B services. Further, there are no specific statutory conditions to qualify for a HCPP contract. Some HCPPs are private market HMOs, while others are union or employer plans. HCPPs have no minimum enrollment requirements, no requirement that the plan have non-Medicare enrollees, or a requirement for an open enrollment period. Unlike TEFRA cost contractors (but like risk contractors), HCPPs may offer a single supplemental package that includes both Part B cost-sharing and other benefits; cost-sharing benefits need not be priced separately.

Any Medicare beneficiary residing in the area served by an HMO/CMP may enroll, with two exceptions. The first exception applies to beneficiaries not enrolled in Part B. The second exception applies to persons qualifying for Medicare on the basis of end-stage renal disease (ESRD); however, persons already enrolled who later develop ESRD may remain enrolled in the entity.

The HMO/CMP must have an annual open enrollment period of at least 30 days duration. During this period, it must accept beneficiaries in the order in which they apply up to the limits of its capacity, unless to do so would lead to violation of the 50 percent Medicare-Medicaid maximum or to an enrolled population unrepresentative of the population in the area served by the HMO.

TEFRA risk contractors are required to hold an additional open enrollment period if any other risk-based entity serving part of the same geographic area does not renew its Medicare contract, has its contract terminated, or has reduced its service area to exclude any portion of the service area previously served by both contractors. In such cases, the Secretary must establish a single coordinated open enrollment period for the remaining contractors. These remaining HMOs/CMPs must then accept its enrollees during an enrollment period of 30 days.

An enrollee may request termination of his or her enrollment at any time. An individual may file disenrollment requests directly with the HMO or at the local social security office. Disenrollment takes effect on the first day of the month following the month during which the request is filed. The HMO may not disenroll or refuse to re-enroll a beneficiary on the basis of health status or need for health services.

The requirement for an open enrollment period does not apply to HCPPs. These entities may deny enrollment or terminate enrollment on medical or other grounds, if in doing so they guse the same criteria for Medicare and non-Medicare enrollees. As a result, employer or union plans may restrict enrollment to covered retirees.

The Secretary is authorized to prescribe procedures and conditions under which eligible organizations contracting with Medicare may inform beneficiaries about the organization. Brochures, applications forms, or other promotional or informational material may be distributed only after review and approval by the Secretary of HHS. HMOs may not disenroll or refuse to re-enroll a beneficiary because of health status or need for health care services. HMOs must provide enrollees, at the time of enrollment and annually thereafter, an explanation of rights to benefits, restrictions on services provided through nonaffiliated providers, out-of-area coverage, coverage of emergency and urgently needed services, and appeal rights. A terminating HMO must arrange for supplementary coverage for Medicare enrollees for the duration of any preexisting condition exclusion under their successor coverage for the lesser of 6 months or the duration of the exclusion period.

House bill

a. In General. The Social Security Act would be amended by establishing a MedicarePlus program. Sec. 15001 of the bill establishes a new sec. 1805 of the Social Security Act, relating to increasing choice under Medicare. (Sec. 15001)

b. Types of Choices. Every individual entitled to Medicare Part A and enrolled under Part B could elect to receive benefits through two options: (1) the existing fee-for-service system ("the non-MedicarePlus option") or (2) through a MedicarePlus product ("the MedicarePlus option"). A MedicarePlus product could be a product offered by a provider-sponsored organization; a high deductible policy which would be coupled with a Medisave account; or a product operating on a fee-for-service, or any other basis. It also could be offered by an organization that is a union, Taft-Hartley, or association sponsor. (New sec. 1805(a))

c. Special Rules. In general, an individual would be eligible to elect a MedicarePlus product offered by a MedicarePlus organization only if the organization served the geographic area in which in the individual resided. To enroll in a product offered by a limited-enrollment MedicarePlus organization, an individual would have to be affiliated with it. In the case of a product offered by a union or Taft-Hartley sponsor, the individual would have to elect the MedicarePlus product offered by the sponsor during the first enrollment period in which the individual was eligible to make such an election. An individual would not be eligible to elect a product offered by a union or Taft-Hartley sponsor if the individual previously had elected a MedicarePlus product offered by the organization and had subsequently discontinued to elect the product. An individual eligible for an annuity under the Federal Employee Health Benefit Program would not be eligible for a high-deductible/medisave product. (New sec. 1805(b))

d. Enrollment Procedures. The Secretary would be required to establish a process for electing non-MedicarePlus or MedicarePlus coverage in an expedited manner to permit election of MedicarePlus products in an area as soon as they became available. Elections would be made (or changed) only during specified coverage election periods. An individual who wished to elect a MedicarePlus product would do so by filing an appropriate election form with the organization. Disenrollment would be accomplished the same way. An individual failing to make an election during the initial election period would be deemed to have chosen the non-MedicarePlus option. An election would continue until the individual changed elections or the MedicarePlus product was discontinued. (New sec. 1805(c))

e. Assistance. The Secretary could enter into an agreement with the Commissioner of Social Security under which the Commissioner would be responsible for the administration of enrollment and disenrollment in MedicarePlus products. (New sec. 1805(c)(5))

f. Provision of Beneficiary Information to Promote Informed Choice. The Secretary would provide for activities to disseminate broadly information to current and prospective Medicare beneficiaries on the coverage options available in order to promote an active, informed selection among such options. The information would have to be provided so as to permit individuals to elect the MedicarePlus option during an initial election period. The Secretary would be required to contract with appropriate public and private entities to carry out such activities.

The Secretary would be required to provide for at least the following in all areas in which MedicarePlus products were offered: (1) publish and disseminate an information booklet during coverage election periods, including information in standardized format and in plain English on benefits and premiums, quality (including consumer satisfaction); and beneficiary rights and responsibilities; (2) maintain a toll-free number for inquiries regarding MedicarePlus options; and (3) include information in the Medicare Handbook on the MedicarePlus option. The information booklet would have to be updated regularly. (New sec. 1805(d))

g. Coverage Election Periods. For individuals newly eligible for Medicare after the transition period, elections would occur at the first time the individual both was entitled to benefits under Part A and enrolled under Part B. The transition period would be the period beginning when a MedicarePlus product first became available in an individual's area and ending with the month preceding the beginning of the first annual coordinated election period occurring in October 1997.

During the transition period, an individual who elected to enroll in the non-MedicarePlus option could change election to a MedicarePlus option at any time. An individual in a MedicarePlus product could change election to another MedicarePlus product or the non-MedicarePlus option.

In October, 1996, the Secretary would be required to conduct a MedicarePlus Health Fair which would provide for a nationally coordinated educational and publicity campaign to inform MedicarePlus eligible persons about MedicarePlus products and the election process, including the upcoming annual, coordinated election periods that would begin in October, 1997.

After the transition period, there would be an annual coordinated election period during October of each year (beginning 1997) in which individuals could change elections. An individual who elected the MedicarePlus product option (other than the high-deductible/medisave option) for the first time could discontinue such election through the filing of an appropriate notice for up to 90 days from the enrollment's effective date. An individual who discontinued an election would be deemed to have elected the Non-MedicarePlus option.

A person who had elected a high-deductible/medisave product could not change to a MedicarePlus option that was not a high-deductible/medisave product unless the individual made such change during an annual, coordinated election period, or the individual had had such election in effect for 12 months. The high-deductible/medisave option would become first available, effective January 1, 1997. Elections for 1997 would occur during the October 1996 election period.

Special election periods would be provided in which an individual could discontinue an election of a MedicarePlus product and make a new election if: (1) the organization's or product's certification was terminated or the organization terminated or otherwise discontinued providing the product; (2) the person who elected a MedicarePlus product was no longer eligible because of a change in residence or certain other changes in circumstances; (3) the individual demonstrated that the organization offering the product violated its contract with Medicare or misrepresented the product in its marketing; or (4) the individual met other conditions specified by the Secretary. (New sec. 1805(e))

h. Effectiveness of Elections. An election made during the initial election period would become effective when the individual became entitled to Medicare benefits, except as the Secretary might provide in order to prevent retroactive coverage. During the transition an election to discontinue a Medicare Plus option would take effect with the first calendar month after the election was made. In general, after the transition, elections made during an annual election period would take effect as of the first day of the following year. Elections during other periods would take effect in the manner specified by the Secretary to protect continuity of coverage. (New sec. 1805(f))

i. Payments to Plans in Lieu of Medicare Part A and Part B Payments. Payments under a contract with a MedicarePlus organization with respect to an individual electing a MedicarePlus product offered by an organization would be instead of the amounts which would otherwise been payable under Medicare Parts A and B. (New sec. 1805(g) of the House bill)

j. Administration. These provisions would be administered through an office in the Department of Health and Human Services that was separate from the Health Care Financing Administration, and whose primary function would be administration of the MedicarePlus and Medicare managed care programs. The director of this Division would be of equal pay and rank to that of the HCFA Administrator. The Secretary would be required to transfer personnel and other resources in HCFA to the newly designated division as are used to administer the current Medicare managed care program and as might be needed to administer than program and the requirements described above. (New sec. 1805(h))

Senate bill

a. In General. The Social Security Act would be amended to add a new Part D—Medicare Choice Plans, sections 1895A-1895S. Sec. 1895A provides for definitions; sec. 1895B provides for entitlement to Medicare choices. Additional sections provide for election and enrollment procedures. (New sec. 7001) b. Types of Choices. Every individual entitled to Medicare Part A and enrolled in Medicare Part B (except those with end stage renal disease) would be entitled to choose to receive benefits through two options: (1) through the existing (fee-for-service system ("traditional Medicare") or (2) by receiving payments toward the individual's enrollment in a Medicare Choice plan. Eligible Medicare Choice plans would include: an indemnity or fee-for-service plan; a coordinated care plan; or any other private plan for the delivery of health care. A coordinated care plan is defined as a private managed or coordinated care plan which provides health care services through an integrated network of providers including a qualified HMO, preferred provider organization plan (PPO), point-of-service plan, provider-sponsored network plan, or another coordinated care plan. A Medicare Choice plan also could be offered by a union, Taft-Hartley, or qualified association sponsor. (New sec. 1895A(b); 1895B)

c. Special Rules. In general, each Medicare choice eligible individual would be entitled to enroll in any Medicare Choice plan with a Medicare service area including the geographic area in which the individual resided. The Secretary would be required to establish special rules for enrollment of individuals in Medicare Choice plans that were union, Taft-Hartley, or association-sponsored plans. Individuals medically determined to have end stage renal disease would not be eligible to elect a Medicare Choice plan. (An individual who developed ESRD while enrolled in a Medicare Choice plan could continue to be enrolled in that plan.) By Dec. 31, 1999, the Secretary would be required to submit to Congress recommendations on expanding the definition of "Medicare Choice eligible individual" to include individuals with ESRD and the enrollment of such individuals in Medicare Choice plans. (New sec. 1895A(c)(2)(B) and 1895D(6))

d. Enrollment Procedures. Medicare Choice eligible individuals would enroll in any Choice plan serving the area in which they resided during (1) the annual open enrollment period; or (2) any specified other enrollment period that applied to the individual. Each eligible individual desiring to enroll or terminate enrollment would be required to provide the Secretary with notice during the enrollment period. To the extent feasible, the Secretary would be required to provide for the receipt of such notice by telephone, through the mail, and in person at local Social Security offices. The Secretary would be required to promptly provide each Choice plan with notice of an individual's enrollment or disenrollment. (New sec. 1895C(a) and 1895C(b))

e. Assistance in Enrollment Process. The Secretary would be authorized to enter into an agreement with the Commissioner of Social Security under which the Commissioner would perform administrative responsibilities relating to enrollment and disenrollment. (New sec. 1895C(e))

f. Provision of Information to Beneficiaries. By September 30 of each year after 1995, the Secretary would be required to mail a notice of eligibility to each Medicare Choice eligible individual and each individual entitled to benefits under Part A prior to the end of the annual open enrollment period. The Secretary would be required to mail a notice of eligibility to individuals who become newly eligible for Medicare Choice during additional enrollment periods no later than 2 months before their eligibility. The required notice and materials sent by the Secretary would have to include an informational brochure. Such information would have to be written in the most easily understandable manner possible and would have to include at least general information about coverage during the next year, including: (1) the Part B premium rates, (2) the deductible, copayment, and coinsurance amounts for coverage under traditional Medicare, (3) a description of the coverage under traditional Medicare and any changes in its coverage from the prior year, (4) a description of the individual's Medicare payment area, and the standardized per person Medicare payment amount; (4) information and instructions on how to enroll in a Medicare Choice plan, (5) the right of each Medicare Choice plan sponsor by law to terminate or refuse to renew its contract and the effect such termination could have on an enrollee, and (6) to the extent available, quality indicators for traditional Medicare and each Choice plan, including for the latter, disenrollment rates for the previous 2 years and information on satisfaction and health outcomes.

In addition, plan specific information would be required including: (1) the plan's Medicare service area; (2) the enrollee's rights to benefits under the plan, (including covered items and services and enrollee cost-sharing responsibilities); (3) the extent to which enrollees could select providers of their choice from within or outside the plan's network (if applicable) and the restrictions (if any) on the plan's payment for services furnished to enrollees by other than the plan's participating providers; (4) out-of-area coverage; (5) coverage of emergency services and urgently needed care; (6) enrollee appeal rights; (7) whether the plan was out of compliance with any Medicare Choice requirements; (8) the plan's premium price and an indication of the difference between the price and the standardized Medicare payment amount; and (9) any optional supplemental coverage available and its price. The Secretary could require additional information if he or she determined it would assist the individual's enrollment decision. To the maximum extent feasible, the Secretary would be required to contract with appropriate non-Federal entities to assist in providing notice and informational materials to Medicare Choice eligible individuals. (New sec. 1895C(c); 1895C(d); 1895C(e)(2))

g. Coverage Election Periods. Medicare Choice eligible individuals would enroll in any Choice plan serving the area in which they resided during (1) the annual open enrollment period; or (2) any other enrollment period that applied to the individual. With exceptions, an individual could not terminate enrollment before the next annual open enrollment period applicable to the individual. An individual could terminate enrollment if: (1) the individual moved to a new Medicare service area, or (2) the individual had experienced a qualifying event (as determined by the Secretary). An individual could terminate enrollment if the plan failed to meet quality or capacity standards or for other causes as determined by the Secretary.

After initial enrollment in a plan, an individual could terminate enrollment within 90 days and enroll in another Medicare Choice plan or traditional Medicare.

If an individual was enrolled in a Medicare Choice plan and failed to provide the Secretary with notice of his or her enrollment or disenrollment during any open enrollment period applicable to the individual, the individual would be deemed to have reenrolled in the plan.

Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to offer an annual open enrollment period in November of each year for the enrollment and termination of enrollment of Medicare choice eligible individuals for the next year. Each plan sponsor would be required to accept the enrollment of an individual in the plan: (1) during an initial Medicare enrollment period specified in section 1837 of existing law (relating to Medicare enrollment periods); and (2) during the period specified by the Secretary following any termination of the enrollment of the individual in a Medicare Choice plan. (New sec. 1895D(b); 1895(G)(b))

h. Effectiveness of Elections. An election during the annual open enrollment period would become effective for the calendar year following the open enrollment period. An individual enrolling in a special election period would be enrolled in the plan for the portion of the calendar year on or after the date on which the enrollment became effective (as specified by the Secretary). Except as specified above, an individual could not terminate enrollment before the next annual open enrollment period. (New sec. 1895D(b))

i. Payments to Plans in Lieu of Medicare Part A and Part B Payments. Payments under a contract to a Medicare Choice plan and any rebates (as described below) would be instead of the amounts which would have otherwise been payable under traditional Medicare for items and services furnished to individuals enrolled with the plan. (New sec. 1895D(c).

j. Administration. No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with modifications.

Section 8001 of the conference agreement would amend the Social Security Act to include a new Part C, new sections 1851 through 1859. New section 1851 includes provisions relating to: (a) choice of plans; (b) special rules, (c) providing information to promote informed choice, (d) coverage election periods, (e) effectiveness of elections, (f) guaranteed issue and renewal, (g) approval of marketing materials, (h) effect of election of MedicarePlus plan option, and (i) administration. (This represents a reordering of provisions in the House bill.)

With respect to types of choices, every MedicarePlus eligible individual could elect to receive benefits through FFS Medicare or through enrollment in a MedicarePlus plan which would include: (1) a coordinated care plan, including an HMO and PPO; (2) a combination of high deductible plan and contributions to a High-Deductible Medicare MSA; (3) plans offered by a PSO; (4) union, Taft-Hartley, or qualified association plan; (5) a fee-for-service plan that reimburses hospitals, physicians, and other providers on the basis of a privately determined fee schedule; and (6) other health care plans.

With respect to special rules, individuals medically determined to have ESRD would not be eligible to elect MedicarePlus, except that an individual who developed ESRD while enrolled could continue in that plan.

It is the intent of the conferees that not later than December 31, 1999, the Secretary would submit to Congress recommendations on expanding the definition of "MedicarePlus eligible individual" to include individuals with ESRD and the enrollment of such individuals in the MedicarePlus plans.

In the case of an individual who was enrolled with a coordinated care plan that offers a point-of-service option and who moved to an area outside the plan's service area, the Secretary would have to provide for continued enrollment with the plan.

An individual who was enrolled in the Federal Employees Health Benefit Plan would not be eligible to enroll in a high deductible plan until such time as the Director of the Office of Management and Budget certified to the Secretary that the Office of Personnel Management had adopted policies which would ensure that the enrollment of such individuals in such plans would not result in increased expenditures for the Federal Government for health benefit plans.

With respect to the provision of beneficiary information, the Secretary would be required to provide information directly to current and prospective Medicare beneficiaries on the MedicarePlus plans. First, at least 15 days before the beginning of each annual open enrollment period, the Secretary would be required to mail to each MedicarePlus eligible individual residing in an area a notice containing:

(1) General election information and information about the Medicare fee-for-service program;

(2) A list of plans and comparison of plan ;

(3) The Federal contribution amount with respect to the enrollment of the individual under a MedicarePlus plan;

(4) Additional information that the Secretary determined would assist in the individual's selection.

The mailing of such information would be coordinated with the mailing of the annual notice specified elsewhere in the bill.

Second, to the extent practicable and no later than 2 months before the beginning of the initial enrollment in Medicare, the Secretary would be required to mail the above described information to the individual. It would have to be written and formatted in the most easily understandable manner possible. The general election and plan information would have to be updated on at least an annual basis to reflect changes in MedicarePlus plans and the benefits and premiums for such plans. The conference agreement specifies the required elements of the general election information and information about the Medicare fee-for-service program and the information comparing plan options.

The MedicarePlus organizations would be required to provide to the Secretary the information on the organization and the plan it offered as the Secretary needed to meet these information requirements.

A MedicarePlus organization would be required to disclose, in a clear, accurate, and standardized form to each enrollee with a MedicarePlus plan offered by the organization under this part at the time of the enrollment and at least annually thereafter, the following information regarding the plan: (1) service area, (2) benefits, (3) out-of-area coverage, (4) emergency coverage, (5) optional supplemental coverage, (6) prior authorization rules, (7) plan grievance procedures, and (8) the quality assurance program.

With respect to coverage election periods, the conference agreement modifies the special 90-day disenrollment option in the House provision. In the case of the first time an individual elected any MedicarePlus plan (other than a high deductible plan) offered by a particular MedicarePlus organization, the individual could disenroll within the first 90 days but the disenrollment option would apply only once for an individual with respect to any particular MedicarePlus organization and could not apply more than twice for any individual in a calendar year. The individual could elect a new option, or in the absence of such an election, would be deemed at the time of disenrollment to have elected the fee-for-service Medicare option.

With respect to payments to plans in lieu of Medicare Part A and Part B payments, the conference agreement clarifies that only the MedicarePlus organization would be entitled to receive Medicare payments from the Secretary for services furnished to the individual.

2. LICENSING AND FINANCIAL REQUIREMENTS FOR MEDICAREPLUS/MEDICARE CHOICE PLANS (SEC. 15002 OF THE HOUSE BILL; SEC 7001 OF THE SENATE BILL)

Current law

Under section 1876 of the Social Security Act, Medicare specifies requirements to be met by an organization seeking to become a managed care contractor with Medicare. In general, these include the following: (1) the entity must be organized under the laws of the State and be a Federally qualified HMO or meet specified requirements (provide physician, inpatient, laboratory, and other services, and provide out-of-area coverage); (2) the organization is paid a predetermined amount without regard to the frequency, extent, or kind of services actually delivered to a member; (3) the entity provides physicians' services primarily through physicians who are either employees or partners of the organization or through contracts with individual physicians or physician groups; (4) the entity assumes full financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of covered services, except that it may obtain stop loss coverage and other insurance for catastrophic and other specified costs; and (5) the entity has made adequate protection against the risk of insolvency.

There is no provision under current law for high deductible/medisave products.

House bill

a. In General. The Social Security Act would be amended to create a new Part C—Provisions Relating to MedicarePlus Organizations; High Deductible/Medisave Products. (Sec. 15002 which establishes new sec. 1851 through 1858 of the Social Security Act) b. Entity Defined. A MedicarePlus organization would be defined as a public or private entity certified (as described below) as meeting the requirements described in the following provisions. (New sec. 1851(a))

c. Organized and Licensed under State Law. In general, a MedicarePlus organization would have to be organized and licensed under State law to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which it offered a MedicarePlus product. This would not apply to a union or Taft-Hartley sponsor, a qualified association, or a provider-sponsored organization (PSO). (New sec. 1851(b))

d. Prepaid Payment. A MedicarePlus organization would have to be compensated (except for deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments) by a fixed payment paid on a periodic basis and without regard to the frequency, extent, or kind of health care services actually provided to an enrollee. (New sec. 1851(c))

e. Assumption of Full Financial Risk. The organization would have to assume full financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of health services (other than hospice care) except the organization could obtain insurance or make other arrangements for: stop-loss coverage for aggregate costs in excess of $5,000; services needing to be provided other than through the organization; and for no more than 90 percent of the amount by which its costs for any of its fiscal years exceeded 115 percent of its income for such year. It could also make arrangements with providers or health institutions to assume all or part of the risk on a prospective basis for the provision of basic services. This requirement would not apply to a union or Taft-Hartley sponsor, or a qualified association with respect to MedicarePlus products offered by such organization and issued by an organization required to be organized and licensed under State law or by a provider-sponsored organization (PSO). (New sec. 1851(d))

f. Provision Against Risk of Insolvency. Each MedicarePlus organization would have to meet standards relating to financial solvency and capital adequacy, as specified below. An entity that is a union or Taft-Hartley plan would be deemed to meet this requirement. Additionally, a qualified association would also be deemed to meet this requirement with respect to MedicarePlus products if the product offered by the association and issued by an organization was one that was organized and licensed under State law or was a provider-sponsored organization (PSO). (New sec. 1851(e))

g. High Deductible/Medical Saving Account Definition. The bill authorizes a Medisave option within MedicarePlus. A Medisave plan combines high deductible insurance with a medical savings account. High deductible insurance would provide reimbursement for Medicare benefits and others the plan may elect to provide only after the enrollee incurred annual expenses equal to a deductible of not greater than $10,000. These thresholds would be increased yearly (and rounded to the nearest $50) by the percentage increase in the national average per capita growth rate (described below). For purposes of the deductible, the insurance would have to at a minimum count all expenses that would have been payable by Medicare and the enrollee under parts A and B. After the deductible was met, the insurance would have to reimburse all expenses that would have been paid without regard to deductibles or coinsurance under parts A and B. (New sec. 1851(f))

h. Organizations Treated as MedicarePlus/Medicare Choice Plans During Transition. Certain organizations would be considered qualified as MedicarePlus organizations for contract years beginning before January 1, 1998. These include:

HMOs organized under State law that are qualified under the Public Health Service Act; an organization that is recognized under State law as an HMO; or a similar organization regulated for solvency in the same manner and extent as an HMO.

Organizations that are organized under State laws and are licensed by a State agency as a health insurer or as a service benefit plan, but only for individuals residing in an area in which the organization is licensed to offer health insurance coverage; and

Organizations with Medicare risk contracts as of the date of enactment. (New sec. 1851(g))

i. Medigrant Demonstration Projects. The Secretary would be required to provide, in at least 10 States, for demonstration projects which would permit Medigrant programs under title XXI of the Social Security Act (Medicaid) to be treated as MedicarePlus organizations for individuals who are qualified to elect the MedicarePlus option and who are eligible to receive medical assistance under Medigrant. The purpose of such projects would be to demonstrate the delivery of primary, acute, and long-term care through an integrated delivery network which emphasized noninstitutional care. (New sec. 1851(h))

Senate bill

a. In General. The Social Security Act would be amended to create a new Part D—Medicare Choice Plans. New sections 1895A through 1895S would be added, including provisions establishing licensing and financial requirements for Medicare Choice plans. (New sec. 1895A and 1895I of Senate bill)

b. Entity Defined. A Medicare Choice plan would be defined to mean an eligible health plan with respect to which there was a contract in effect with Medicare to provide health benefits coverage to Medicare Choice eligible individuals. A Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be defined as a public or private entity which established or maintained a Medicare Choice plan. (New sec. 1895A(a))

c. Organized and Licensed Under State Law. In general, a Medicare Choice plan would be required to be organized and licensed under applicable State law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which a Medicare Choice plan enrolled individuals under this part. This would not apply to a union, Taft-Hartley, or association plan if the plan were exempt from State law requirements under ERISA. The requirement would apply to coordinated care plans except to the extent that such plans were subject to the temporary Federal certification process described below. (New sec. 1895I)

d. Prepaid Payment. A Medicare Choice plan would be compensated (except for deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments) by a fixed payment paid by the Secretary (and, where appropriate, the individual) on a periodic basis and without regard to the frequency, extent, or kind of health care service actually provided to the enrollee. In the event that a Medicare enrollee in a Medicare Choice plan received additional benefits as a result of a national coverage determination or due to overlapping periods of coverage, only the plan sponsor would be entitled to receive payments from the Secretary for services furnished to the individual. (New sec. 1895I(d))

e. Assumption of Full Financial Risk. The Medicare Choice plan sponsor would have to assume full financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of health services except the sponsor could obtain insurance or make other arrangements for: stop-loss coverage for aggregate costs in excess of $5,000; services needing to be provided other than through the plan sponsor; and for no more than 90 percent of the amount by which its costs for any of its fiscal years exceeded 115 percent of its income for such year. It could also make arrangements with providers or health institutions to assume all or part of the risk on a prospective basis for the provision of basic services. (New sec. 1895I(b))

f. Protection Against Risk of Insolvency. A Medicare Choice plan would be required to make adequate protection against the risk of insolvency (including provisions to prevent enrollees from being held liable to any person or entity for the plan sponsor's debts in the event of the plan sponsor's insolvency) as determined by the Secretary, or as determined by a State which the Secretary determined requires solvency standards at least as stringent as those set by the Secretary. In establishing solvency standards for coordinated care plans, the Secretary would be required to consult with interested parties and take into account: (1) a coordinated care plan sponsor's delivery system assets and its ability to provide services directly to enrollees through affiliated providers, and (2) alternative means of protecting against insolvency, including reinsurance, unrestricted surplus, letters of credit, guarantees, organizational insurance coverage, and partnerships with other licensed entities.

The Secretary would not be required to include the alternative means described above but could consider such alternatives where consistent with the standards. (New sec. 1895I(c))

g. High Deductible/Medical Savings Account Definition. No provision.

h. Organizations Treated as MedicarePlus/Medicare Choice Plans During Transition. No provision (but see new sec. 1895R(e) for treatment of plans that could be considered Federally certified under temporary Federal certification process for coordinated care plans).

i. Medigrant Demonstration. No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with modifications:

With respect to the requirement that an entity be organized and licensed under State law, the conference agreement provides that a MedicarePlus organization would be organized and licensed under State law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which it offered a MedicarePlus plan. The exception for certain union and Taft-Hartley sponsors would apply if the plan was exempt from State law requirements under ERISA.

An exception to the general requirement that a MedicarePlus plan be organized and licensed in a State would apply if the State required that the organization, as a condition of licensure, to offer any product or plan other than a MedicarePlus plan. In addition, an exception would apply in cases of unreasonable barriers to market entry. The conference agreement would provide for a MedicarePlus organization to apply to the Secretary for a waiver of the requirement, and specifies the standard on which the Secretary would determine whether to grant the waiver and the timing for doing so.

Special rules for PSOs would apply. In general, a PSO that sought to offer a MedicarePlus plan in a State could apply for a waiver of the State organization and licensure requirement for an organization in that State. The Secretary would be required to act on the application within 60 days after it was filed and would grant a waiver for an organization with respect to a State if the Secretary determined that:

(1) the State had failed to substantially complete action on a licensing application within 90 days of the receipt of a completed application, or

(2) the State denied such a licensing application and (a) the State's licensing standards or review process imposed any requirements, procedures, or other standards on such organizations that were not generally applicable to any other entities engaged in substantially similar business; (b) such standards or review process applied solvency standards and the State did not have approval to do so; and (c) the State used solvency standards to deny or discriminate against such an organization that had been provided a Federal certificate of solvency (as provided for in this bill). No period before the date of enactment could be included in determining the 90 day period described above.

In the case of a waiver granted under this paragraph for a PSO:

(1) the waiver would be effective for a 36-month period except it could be renewed based on a subsequent application filed during the last 6 months of such period;

(2) the waiver would be conditioned upon the pendency of the licensure application during the period the waiver was in effect; and

(3) any provision of State law related to the licensing of the organization and which prohibited the organization from providing coverage pursuant to a MedicarePlus contract would be preempted.

In the case of a waiver granted for a PSO, any provision of State law which related to the licensing of the organization and which prohibited the organization from providing coverage under a MedicarePlus contract would be superseded.

It is the intent of the conferees that nothing in this section restricts the ability of a State to operate a hospital reimbursement system recognized under section 1814(b) of the Social Security Act or to require payments by PSOs to be made on the basis of such system.

With respect to assumption of full financial risk, the conference agreement clarifies that a MedicarePlus organization would not have to accept full financial risk for hospice care. However, MedicarePlus organizations would have the option of assuming full financial risk as under current law.

The conference agreement includes an amendment relating to solvency requirements for PSOs. In the case of an entity that was a PSO operating in an approved State (as described below), the organization would have to meet solvency standards through licensure by the State. In the case of an entity that was a PSO operating in a State that had not been approved, then the organization would be required to meet solvency standards through application and certification licensure by the Secretary. The Secretary would be required to establish a process under which a State could apply to the Secretary for a determination that the State was applying to PSOs, through its process for licensing PSOs, solvency standards that were consistent with the solvency standards established below (see sec. 1856(c)). The Secretary would be required to approve such a State if he or she determined that the State was applying the standards. If the Secretary denied approval, the State could reapply for a determination. The Secretary would be required to publish a list of States that were approved.

The conference agreement modifies the definition of the high deductible plan. For the contract year 1997, the deductible could be no more than $6,000.

The conference agreement does not include the Medigrant Demonstration Projects. However, it is the intent of the conferees that the Secretary provide, in at least 10 States, for demonstration projects which would permit Medigrant programs under title XXI of the Social Security Act (Medicaid) to be treated as MedicarePlus organizations for individuals who are qualified to elect the MedicarePlus option and who are eligible to receive medical assistance under Medigrant. The purpose of such projects would be to demonstrate the delivery of primary, acute, and long-term care through an integrated delivery network which emphasized noninstitutional care.

3. REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO BENEFITS, PROVISION OF SERVICES, ENROLLMENT, AND PREMIUMS (NEW SEC. 1852 OF HOUSE BILL; NEW SEC. 1895A, 1895C, 1895D, 1895G, 1895H, 1895J, 1895N, 1895R OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Section 1876 provides for requirements relating to benefits, payment to the plans by Medicare, and payments to the plans by beneficiaries. In addition, it specifies standards for patient protection, quality assurance, and general contractor requirements.

A Medicare beneficiary enrolled in an HMO/CMP is entitled to receive all services and supplies covered under Medicare Parts A and B (or Part B only, if only enrolled in Part B). These services must be provided directly by the organization or under arrangements with the organization. Enrollees in risk-based organizations are required to receive all services from the HMO/CMP except in emergencies.

In general, HMOs/CMPs offer benefits in addition to those provided under Medicare's benefit package. In certain cases, the beneficiary has the option of selecting the additional benefits, while in other cases some or all of the supplementary benefits are mandatory.

Some entities may require members to accept additional benefits (and pay extra for them in some cases). These required additional services may be approved by the Secretary if it is determined that the provision of such additional services will not discourage enrollment in the organization by other Medicare beneficiaries.

The amount an HMO/CMP may charge for additional benefits is based on a comparison of the entity's adjusted community rate (ACR, essentially the estimated market price) for the Medicare package and the average of the Medicare per capita payment rate. A risk-based organization is required to offer "additional benefits" at no additional charge if the organization achieves a savings from Medicare. This "savings" occurs if the ACR for the Medicare package is less than the average of the per capita Medicare payment rates. The difference between the two is the amount available to pay additional benefits to enrollees. These may include types of services not covered, such as outpatient prescription drugs, or waivers of coverage limits, such as Medicare's lifetime limit on inpatient hospital care. The organization might also waive some or all of the Medicare's cost-sharing requirements.

The entity may elect to have a portion of its "savings" placed in a benefit stabilization fund. The purpose of this fund is to permit the entity to continue to offer the same set of benefits in future years even if the revenues available to finance those benefits diminish. Any amounts not provided as additional benefits or placed in a stabilization fund would be offset by a reduction in Medicare's payment rate.

If the difference between the average Medicare payment rate and the adjusted ACR is insufficient to cover the cost of additional benefits, the HMO/CMP may charge a supplemental premium or impose additional cost-sharing charges. If, on the other hand, the HMO does not offer additional benefits equal in value to the difference between the ACR and the average Medicare payment, the Medicare payments are reduced until the average payment is equal to the sum of the ACR and the value of the additional benefits.

For the basic Medicare covered services, premiums and the projected average amount of any other cost-sharing may not exceed what would have been paid by the average enrollee under Medicare rules if she or he had not joined the HMO. For supplementary services, premiums and projected average cost-sharing may not exceed what the HMO would have charged for the same set of services in the private market.

HMOs/CMPs contracting with Medicare can pay second to workers' compensation, automobile liability or other specified sources of insurance.

Current law also provides for Medicare managed care contracts with Health Care Prepayment Plans (HCPPs). An HCPP arrangement is similar to a TEFRA cost-contract except that it provides only Part B services. There are no specific statutory conditions to qualify for an HCPP contract.

Collectively bargained health plans and those sponsored by private multiemployer health plans (most of which are Taft-Hartley plans) are regulated under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA). Under ERISA, the States are authorized to regulate multiple employer welfare arrangements (MEWAs) to the extent that such regulation does not conflict with ERISA. Association plans may or may not be regulated as MEWAs and are generally regulated by the States.

Penalties apply for violations of limits on the use of "physician incentive plans," i.e., compensation arrangements between HMOs and physicians that might induce physicians to withhold services. An HMO may not make a specific payment to a physician as an inducement to reduce or limit services to a specific enrollee. In addition, if physicians or physician groups are placed at substantial financial risk for services other than their own, the HMO must provide adequate stop-loss protection to limit the physicians' potential liability and must periodically survey enrollee satisfaction.

There are no provisions in current law for provider protections, or for the Department of Labor to play a role in establishing and enforcing Medicare contractor standards for employer-sponsored health plans. In addition, there is no provision in current law for high-deductible/medisave products.

House bill

a. Basic Benefits Covered. Each MedicarePlus product would be required to provide benefits for at least the items and services for which benefits are available under parts A and B consistent with the standards for coverage of such items and services. A MedicarePlus product would meet this requirement if:

(1) in the case of benefits furnished through fee-for-service providers, the product provided for at least the dollar amount of payment for such items and services as would otherwise have been provided under Medicare Parts A and B; and

(2) in the case of benefits furnished through providers with a contract with the organization, the individual's liability for payment for services did not exceed (after taking into account any deductible which did not exceed any deductible under Parts A and B) the lesser of: (a) the amount of liability that the individual would have had (based on the provider being a participating provider) if the individual had elected the non-MedicarePlus option, or (b) the applicable coinsurance or copayment amounts (that would have applied under the non-MedicarePlus option) provided under the contract. (New sec. 1852(a))

b. Antidiscrimination. A MedicarePlus organization could not deny, limit, or condition the coverage or provision of benefits under this part based on the health status, claims experience, receipt of health care, medical history, or lack of evidence of insurability of an individual. (New sec. 1852(b))

c. Guaranteed Issue and Renewal/General Availability and Capacity Limits. Generally, a MedicarePlus organization would be required to provide that at any time during which elections were accepted, it would have to accept without restrictions individuals eligible to make such an election. If the Secretary determined that the organization had a capacity limit and the number of individuals who elected the product exceeded that limit, the organization could limit the election of individuals, but only if priority was given first to those individuals who had already elected the product, and then to others in a manner which did not discriminate. A MedicarePlus organization could not terminate or refuse to accept an individual's election except in the event of nonpayment of premiums, disruptive behavior, or the product was terminated with respect to all eligible Medicare individuals. (Those terminated would be deemed to have elected the non-MedicarePlus option). (New sec. 1852(c))

d. Special Rules for Limited Enrollment Organizations. MedicarePlus sponsors would have to limit enrollment for MedicarePlus products to specific individuals. A union sponsor would have to limit eligibility to individuals who were members and affiliated with the sponsor through an employment relationship or were the spouses of such members. A Taft-Hartley sponsor would have to limit eligibility to individuals who were entitled to obtain benefits under the terms of an applicable collective bargaining agreement.

A qualified association would be defined as an individual-membership association, religious fraternal organization, or other organization (a trade, industry, or professional association, a chamber of commerce, or a public entity association) that the Secretary found (1) was formed for purposes other than the sale of health insurance and did not restrict membership based on the health status, claims experience, receipt of health care, medical history, or lack of insurability of an individual; (2) did not exist solely or principally for the purposes of selling insurance; and (3) had at least 1,000 individual members. Association sponsors would have to limit eligibility to individuals who were members of the association (or their spouses). Associations could not terminate coverage of an individual because the individual was no longer an association member except pursuant to a change of election during an open election period occurring on or after the date of termination of membership.

These eligibility rules could not have the effect of denying eligibility to individuals on the basis of health status, claims experience, receipt of health care, medical history, or lack of evidence of insurability. (New sec. 1852(c)(4))

e. Submission and Charging of Premiums. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required annually to file with the Secretary the amount of the monthly premium for coverage under each of its products it would be offering in each payment area, and the enrollment capacity in relation to the product in each such area. The premium charged for a product offered in a payment area would equal $\frac{1}{12}$ of the amount (if any) by which the premium exceeded the MedicarePlus capitation rate (see below). Premiums could not vary among individuals who resided in the same payment area. An exception would apply to high-deductible/Medisave products which would be experience-rated based on specified risk factors. (These factors would be the identical demographic and other adjustments used for setting the MedicarePlus contribution level.) Each MedicarePlus organization would have to permit monthly payment of premiums. An organization could terminate election of individuals for a MedicarePlus product for failure to make premium payments but only under specified conditions.

In no case could the portion of a MedicarePlus organization's premium rate and the actuarial value of its deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments attributable to the minimum benefits (and not counting any amount attributable to balance billing) exceed the actuarial value of the coinsurance and deductible applicable in the non-MedicarePlus option. (New sec. 1852(d))

f. Requirement for Additional Benefits, Part B Premium Discount Rebates, or Both. If the actuarial value of the benefits under the MedicarePlus product (as determined based upon the adjusted community rate (ACR)—see below) for individuals was less than the average of the capitation payments made to the organization for the product at the beginning of an annual contract period, the organization could provide additional benefits, a monetary rebate (paid on a monthly basis) of the Part B monthly premium, or a combination of both. The value of these benefits, rebates or combination thereof would have to be at least as much as the amount by which the capitation payment exceeded the ACR, and would have to be applied uniformly for all enrollees in a product area. The rebate could not exceed the amount of the Part B premium (not taking into account penalties for late enrollment or the amount incurred as a result of affluence testing). The organization could provide that a part of the excess be withheld for the organization's stabilization fund. A MedicarePlus organization could provide additional benefits (over and above those required to be added as a result of the excess payment), and could impose a premium for such additional benefits. Cash or other types of rebates to induce enrollment or otherwise would be prohibited.

A MedicarePlus organization could provide that a part of the value of the excess actuarial amount be withheld and reserved in the HI and SMI trust funds (in such proportions as the Secretary determined to be appropriate) by the Secretary for subsequent annual contract periods, to the extent required to stabilize and prevent undue fluctuations in the additional benefits and rebates offered in those subsequent periods. Leftover amounts not provided as additional benefits would revert to the trust funds.

The Adjusted Community Rate (ACR) would mean, at the election of the MedicarePlus organization, either the rate of payment services which the Secretary annually determined would apply to the individuals electing a MedicarePlus product if the payment were determined under a community rating system, or the portion of the weighted aggregate premium which the Secretary annually estimated would apply to the individual but adjusted for differences between the utilization of individuals under Medicare and the utilization of other enrollees (or through another specified manner). For PSOs, the ACR could be computed using data in the general commercial marketplace or (during the transition period) based on the costs incurred by the organization in providing such a product. (New sec. 1852(e))

g. Rules Regarding Physician Participation. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to establish reasonable procedures relating to the participation of physicians by providing: (a) notice of rules of participation, (b) written notice of participation decisions that are adverse to providers, and (c) a process within the organization for appealing adverse decisions, including the presentation of information and views of the provider regarding such decision. The organization would be required to consult with physicians who have entered into participation agreements with the organization regarding the organization's medical policy, quality and credentialing criteria, and medical management procedures.

Each MedicarePlus organization would be prohibited from operating any physician incentive plan (i.e., any compensation arrangement between a MedicarePlus organization and a physician or physician group that directly or indirectly has the effect of reducing or limiting services provided to enrollees) unless certain requirements were met: (1) No specific payment could be made directly or indirectly under the plan to a physician or physician group as an inducement to reduce or limit medically necessary services provided with respect to a specific enrollee; (2) if a plan placed a physician or physician group at substantial financial risk for services not provided by the physician or group, the organization provided adequate and appropriate stop-loss protection and conducted periodic surveys of both individuals enrolled and previously enrolled to determine their degree of access to services and satisfaction with the quality of those services; and (3) the organization provided to the Secretary descriptive information sufficient to determine the plan's compliance.

A MedicarePlus organization would not be able to provide (directly or indirectly) for a provider (or group of providers) to indemnify the organization against any liability resulting from a civil action brought by or on behalf of an enrollee for any damage caused to the enrollee by the organization's denial of medically necessary care.

MedicarePlus fee-for-service plans (those organizations that do not have agreements between physicians and the organizations for the provision of services) would be exempt from these requirements. (New sec. 1852(f))

h. Provision of Information by Plan to Secretary. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to provide the Secretary with the information needed to prepare the information booklet described above. (New sec. 1852(g))

i. Coordinated Acute and Long-Term Care Benefits under MedicarePlus/Medicare Choice. States would be able to coordinate benefits under their MediGrant programs with those provided under a MedicarePlus product to assure continuity of a full range of acute and long-term care services to eligible poor elderly or disabled individuals. (New sec. 1852(h))

j. Transitional File and Use for Certain Requirements. In the case of MedicarePlus products proposed to be offered during the transition period, contractors could submit information to the Secretary demonstrating that the product met the requirements and standards relating to benefits and premiums. If the Secretary did not disapprove the product within 60 days, the product would be deemed as meeting these requirements. Contractors would still have to meet other MedicarePlus contract requirements and standards. (New sec. 1852(i))

k. Supplemental Benefits. A MedicarePlus Organization would be able to provide health care benefits in addition to benefits otherwise required and could charge a premium for such additional benefits (New sec. 1852(e)(1)(F))

l. Cost-Sharing. In no case could the portion of a MedicarePlus organization's premium rate and the actuarial value of its deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments attributable to the minimum benefits (and not counting any amount attributable to balance billing) exceed the actuarial value of the coinsurance and deductible applicable in the non-MedicarePlus option. (New sec. 1851(d)(5))

m. Organization as Secondary-Payer. The MedicarePlus organization could pay second in specified cases. (New sec. 1852(a)(2))

n. National Coverage Determination. See sec. 15721 of the House bill as described under Subtitle H.

o. Point-of-Service Coverage. No provision.

p. Prompt Payment. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Basic Benefits Covered. Each Medicare Choice plan would be required to provide to Medicare enrollees, through providers and other persons that meet the applicable requirements of Medicare and Part A of title XI (relating to General Provisions of the Social Security Act), those items and services covered under Medicare Part A and Part B which are available to individuals residing in the Medicare service area of the plan and additional health services as the Secretary might approve. The Secretary would be required to approve any such additional health care services which the plan proposed to offer to Medicare enrollees, unless the Secretary determined that including such additional services would substantially discourage enrollment by Medicare Choice eligible individuals. (New sec. 1895H(a))

b. Antidiscrimination. Each Medicare Choice plan would have to provide assurances to the Secretary that it would not deny enrollment to, expel, or refuse to reenroll any such individual because of the individual's health status or requirements for health care services, and that it would notify each individual of such fact at the time of their enrollment. (New sec. 1895J(e)(1))

c. Guaranteed Issue and Renewal/General Availability and Capacity Limits. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to provide that each eligible individual would be eligible to enroll in the plan during an applicable enrollment period if the plan's Medicare service area included the geographic area in which the individual resided. Each sponsor would have to provide that, at any time during which enrollments were accepted, the sponsor would accept eligible individuals in the order in which they applied up to the limits of the plan's capacity (as determined by the Secretary) and without restrictions, except as might be authorized in regulations. The preceding sentence would not apply if it would result in the enrollment of enrollees substantially nonrepresentative, as determined in accordance with regulations of the Secretary, of the Medicare population in the Medicare service area of the plan.

Each plan sponsor would be required to protide the Secretary with a demonstration of the plan's capacity to adequately service its expected enrollment. A plan could not cancel or refuse to renew a beneficiary except in the case of fraud or nonpayment of premiums. (New sec. 1895G(a), 1895J(d), 1895J(e)(1))

d. Special Rules for Limited Enrollment Organizations. A Medicare Choice plan sponsor of a union, Taft-Hartley plan, or association plan would be required to limit its enrollment to members of the sponsoring group who were entitled to all rights and privileges of any other members of the group and spouses of such members. An association plan sponsored by a religious fraternal benefit society could limit membership to individuals who shared the same religious convictions as the society.

A "union or association plan" is defined to mean an eligible health plan with a union sponsor, a Taft Hartley sponsor, or a qualified association sponsor that: (1) was organized for purposes other than to market a health plan; (2) could not condition its membership on health status, health claims experience, receipt of health care, medical history, or lack of evidence of insurability of a potential member; (3) could not exclude a member or spouse from health plan coverage based on those factors in item 2; (4) was a permanent entity which received a substantial majority of its financial support from active members; and (5) could not be owned or controlled by an insurance company. A "qualified association sponsor" is defined as an association, religious fraternal organization, or other organization (which could be a trade, industry, or professional association, chamber of commerce, or a public entity association) which established or maintained eligible health plans. (New sec. 1895A(b)(2); 1895G(a))

e. Submission and Charging of Premiums. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required annually to file with the Secretary the amount of the monthly premium for coverage under each of the plans it would be offering in each Medicare service area in which the plan was being offered. The enrolled individual: (1) would receive a rebate (as described below) if the plan's premium was less than the standardized Medicare payment amount; and (2) would be required to pay the plan's premium in excess of the standardized payment amount. The premiums charged by a plan sponsor could not vary among individuals who resided in the same Medicare payment area. Each plan sponsor would be required to permit monthly payment of monthly premiums. (New sec. 1895D(a); 1895N(a))

f. Requirement for Additional Benefits, Part B Premium Discount Rebates, or Both. If the standardized Medicare payment amount for the Medicare payment area in which an individual resided exceeded the amount of the monthly premium for the plan, the Secretary would be required to: (1) pay to the plan sponsor on behalf of the individual the monthly amount equal to the 100 percent of the excess for supplemental benefits; or (2) pay to the individual an amount equal to 75 percent of the remainder of such excess and deposit the remainder of the excess in the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund. Rebates would have to be paid on a monthly basis from the Trust Funds on a proportional basis as specified. (New sec. 1895N(b)) g. Rules Regarding Physician Participation. No provision.

h. Provision of Information by Plan to Secretary. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to provide such information as the Secretary requested with respect to its Medicare Choice plan in order to carry out activities relating to the Secretary's provision of plan information to beneficiaries. (New sec. 1895C(e)(3)).

i. Coordinated Acute and Long-Term Care Benefits under MedicarePlus/Medicare Choice. No provision.

j. Transitional File and Use for Certain Requirements. No provision (but see 1895R)

k. Supplemental Benefits. Each Medicare Choice plan could offer optional supplemental benefits for an additional premium. If the supplemental benefits were offered only to Medicare enrollees, the additional premium would have to be the same for all enrolled individuals in the Medicare payment area. Supplemental benefits could be marketed and sold by the sponsor outside of the enrollment process. (New sec. 1895H(b))

l. Cost-Sharing. The total deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments charged an individual under a Medicare Choice plan for basic benefits for a year could not exceed the average total amount of deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments charged an individual under the traditional Medicare program for a year. If the Secretary determined that adequate data were unavailable to determine the average cost-sharing under the plan, the Secretary could determine the amount with respect to all individuals in the Medicare payment area, the State, or in the U.S., eligible to enroll in the plan or on the basis of other appropriate data. (New sec. 1895H(c))

m. Organization as Secondary Payer. The Medicare Choice plan sponsor could pay second in specified cases. (New sec. 1895H(f))

n. National Coverage Determinations. If a national coverage determination was made in the period beginning on the date of an announcement of Medicare payment rates and ending on the date of the next announcement that the Secretary projected would produce a significant change in costs to the Medicare Choice plan and that the change in costs was not reflected in the Medicare payment amounts for that period: (1) the determination would not apply to contracts until the first contract year beginning after the end of such period, and (2) if the coverage determination provided for coverage of additional benefits or under additional circumstances, the individual would not obtain such coverage until the first contract year beginning after the end of such period unless otherwise required by law. (New sec. 1895H(d))

o. Point-of-Service Coverage. If a Medicare Choice sponsor offered a Choice plan that limited benefits to items and services furnished only by providers in a network of providers which contracted with the sponsor, the sponsor would also have to offer, at the time of enrollment, a Medicare Choice plan that permitted payment to be made under the plan for services obtained out of network by the individual (i.e., a point-of-service option). (New sec. 1895G(a)(3)) p. Prompt Payment. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to provide prompt payment consistent with existing provisions of law of claims submitted for services and supplies furnished to Medicare enrollees if the services or supplies were not furnished under a contract between the plan and the provider or supplier. In the case of a plan sponsor which the Secretary determined, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, had failed to make prompt payment, the Secretary could provide for direct payment of the amounts owed. If this occurred, the Secretary would provide for an appropriate reduction in the amount of payments otherwise made to the plan sponsor. (New sec. 1895J(f))

The conference agreement follows the House provision with modifications.

New section 1852 of the Social Security Act would provide for "Benefits and Beneficiary Protections," which incorporates largely House provisions on benefits and patient protection standards. The conference agreement also establishes a new section 1855, "Premiums and Rebates," which largely incorporates provisions of the House bill on the submission and charging of premiums.

With respect to basic benefits covered, the MedicarePlus plan would have to provide benefits to members through providers and other persons who meet the applicable requirements of Medicare and part A of title XI of the Social Security Act. The plan would have to provide such additional health services as the Secretary might approve. The Secretary would be required to approve any such additional health care services which the plan proposed to offer to such members, unless the Secretary determined that including such additional services would substantially discourage enrollment by MedicarePlus eligible individuals with the plan.

It is the conferees' intent that Christian Science nursing facility services that are currently covered under Part A of Medicare should be made available by MedicarePlus plans to enrollees who choose to use such services.

A MedicarePlus organization would be required to notify each MedicarePlus plan enrollee of the antidiscrimination protections at the time of the individual's enrollment.

The conference agreement modifies the House provision relating to priority of enrollment in the case of a plan reaching capacity limits. The priority rules would not apply if they would result in the enrollment of enrollees substantially nonrepresentative, as determined in accordance with regulations of the Secretary, of the Medicare population in the service area of the plan.

The conference agreement modifies the definition of a qualified association plan to require that it not be owned or controlled by an insurance company.

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision relating to supplemental benefits. Each Medicare Choice plan could offer optional supplemental benefits for an additional premium. If the supplemental benefits were offered only to Medicare enrollees, the additional premium would have to be the same for all enrolled individuals in the Medicare payment area. Supplemental benefits could be marketed and sold by the sponsor outside of the enrollment process.

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision relating to national coverage determinations. If a national coverage determination was made in the period beginning on the date of an announcement of Medicare payment rates and ending on the date of the next announcement that the Secretary projected would produce a significant change in costs to the MedicarePlus plan and that the change in costs was not reflected in the Medicare payment amounts for that period: (1) the determination would not apply to contracts until the first contract year beginning after the end of such period, and (2) if the coverage determination provided for coverage of additional benefits or under additional circumstances, the individual would not obtain such coverage until the first contract year beginning after the end of such period unless otherwise required by law.

The conference agreement establishes a new section on "Premiums and Rebates" modifying the House bill. The agreement defines the term "monthly premium" with respect to a MedicarePlus plan as the monthly premium filed with the Secretary for coverage for services, not taking into account the amount of any payment made to the plan by Medicare. It defines the term "net monthly premium" with respect to such plan and an individual enrolled with it as the "monthly premium" reduced by the payment made toward such premium by Medicare. In no case could the portion of the monthly premium for a MedicarePlus plan for an area and year attributable to required services exceed the ACR for the plan.

The net monthly premium charged by a MedicarePlus organization for a Medicare plan in a payment area to an individual would be equal to the amount (if any) by which

(1) the amount of the monthly premium for the plan involved exceeded

(2) $1/12$ of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for the area and year involved.

The requirement that there be a uniform premium within a payment area would apply to both the monthly premium and the net monthly premium (including rebates offered by a MedicarePlus organization).

With respect to rebates, the conference agreement includes the following provision: To the extent that the adjusted excess amount exceeded the value of additional benefits provided by the organization, then the organization would have to provide for payment of the amount of such excess as follows: (1) If the individual had a Rebate MSA and elected a rebate, the organization would have to pay the excess into the MSA. (2) Otherwise, the organization would have to pay 75% of the excess to the individual and 25% to the Hospital Insurance Trust Fund. The conference agreement does not include the House provision limiting cash rebates to the Part B premium amount.

4. PATIENT PROTECTION STANDARDS (NEW SEC. 1853 OF HOUSE BILL; NEW SEC. 1895C, 1895(G), AND 1895(J) OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare HMOs/CMPs must provide enrollees, at the time of enrollment and annually thereafter, an explanation of rights to benefits, restrictions on services provided through nonaffiliated providers, out-of-area coverage, coverage of emergency and urgently needed services, and appeal rights.

Medicare HMOs/CMPs must make all Medicare covered services and all other services contracted for available and accessible within its service area, with reasonable promptness and in a manner that assures continuity of care. Urgent care must be available and accessible 24 hours a day and 7 days a week. HMOs must also pay for services provided by nonaffiliated providers when services are medically necessary and immediately required because of an unforeseen illness, injury, or condition and it is not reasonable, given the circumstances, to obtain the services through the HMO.

Medicare HMOs/CMPs must enroll individuals and provide covered services to enrollees who live within the geographic area served by the organization. Regulations provide that geographic area means the area found by HCFA to be that within which the HMO furnishes, or arranges for furnishing, the full range of services it offers to its Medicare enrollees.

HMOs/CMPs are required to have arrangements for an ongoing quality assurance program that stresses health outcomes and provides review by physicians and other health care professionals of the process followed in the provision of health services. External review is conducted by a peer review organization (PRO), one of the groups that has contracted with the Secretary for review of the quality and appropriateness of hospital services. PRO reviews of HMOs/CMPs covers both inpatient and outpatient care. The Secretary also has the right to inspect or otherwise evaluate the quality, appropriateness, and timeliness of services provided and the facilities of the organization when there is reasonable evidence of some need for inspection.

In up to 25 States, the Secretary is authorized to designate another external agency, known as a quality review organization or QRO to perform reviews. QROs must meet many of the same standards as PROs, but have not contracted with the Department of HHS for the review of services other than those provided by an HMO/CMP.

HMOs/CMPs must have meaningful grievance procedures for the resolution of individual enrollee complaints, about such problems as failure to receive covered services or unpaid bills. In addition, an enrollee who believes that the HMO has improperly denied a service or imposed an excessive charge has the right to a hearing before the Secretary if the amount involved is greater than $100. If the amount is greater than $1,000, either the enrollee or the HMO may seek judicial review.

House bill

a. Disclosure of Information to Enrollees. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to disclose in clear, accurate, and standardized forms certain information including: (1) benefits, including coverage exclusions and, for a high-deductible/medisave product, a comparison of its benefits with those under other MedicarePlus products; (2) rules relating to prior authorization or other review requirements that could result in nonpayment; (3) liability for cost-sharing for out-of-network services; (4) the number, mix, and distribution of providers; (5) financial obligations of the enrollee; (6) enrollee satisfaction data; (7) enrollee rights and responsibilities; (8) a statement that use of the 911 number is appropriate in emergency situations; and (9) a description of the organization's quality assurance program. (New sec. 1853(a))

b. Access to Services. A MedicarePlus organization offering a MedicarePlus product could restrict the providers from whom benefits were to be provided so long as: (1) the organization made the benefits available to each individual electing the product within the service area with reasonable promptness and in a manner which assured continuity in the provision of benefits, (2) when medically necessary, the organization made benefits available and accessible 24 hours a day and 7 days a week, (3) the product provided for reimbursement to other organizations if the services were medically necessary and immediately required because of an unforeseen illness, injury, or condition and it was not reasonable given the circumstances to obtain the services through the organization, and (4) coverage was provided for emergency services without regard to prior authorization or the emergency care provider's contractual relationship with the organization.

Emergency services are defined as covered inpatient and outpatient services that are furnished by an appropriate source other than the organization, are needed immediately because of an injury or sudden illness, and are needed because the time required to reach the organization's providers or suppliers would have meant risk of serious damage to the patient's health.

If the MedicarePlus product provided out-of-network coverage (i.e., under a point of service option), the payment level for services furnished outside the network would have to be at least 70 percent (or, if the cost-sharing was 50 percent, at least 40 percent) of the lesser of the payment basis (determined without regard to deductibles and cost-sharing) that would have applied under Medicare Parts A and B, or the amount charged by the entity furnishing such items and services.

In the event that emergency services were furnished by a participating physician or provider of services to an individual enrolled in a MedicarePlus organization, the applicable participation agreement would be deemed to provide that the physician or provider of services would accept as payment in full from the organization the amount that would be payable if the individual were not enrolled with a MedicarePlus organization. In the event that emergency services were furnished by a nonparticipating physician, the limitations on actual charges otherwise applicable under Medicare Part B would apply in the same manner as they do to services furnished to individuals not enrolled in a MedicarePlus organization. (New sec. 1853(b))

c. Timely Authorization for Promptly Needed Care Identified as a Result of Required Screening Evaluation. No provision.

d. Confidentiality and Accuracy of Enrollee Records. Each MedicarePlus organization would have to establish procedures to safeguard the privacy of individually identifiable enrollee information, and maintain accurate and timely medical records. (New sec. 1853(d))

e. Quality Assurance and Accreditation Program. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to arrange (in accordance with regulations of the Secretary) for an ongoing quality assurance program meeting certain requirements such as: (1) stressing health outcomes; (2) providing the establishment of written protocols for utilization review, (3) providing review by physicians and other health care professionals of the process followed in the provision of services; (4) monitoring and evaluating high volume and high risk services and the care of acute and chronic conditions; (5) evaluating the continuity and coordination of care; (6) establishing mechanisms to detect underutilization and overutilization; (7) making information available on quality and outcomes to facilitate beneficiary comparison and choice; (8) evaluating on an ongoing basis the plan's effectiveness; and (9) providing for external accreditation or review, by a Peer Review Organization or other qualified independent review organization, that the quality of services meets professionally recognized standards of health care (including providing adequate access of enrollees to services). In addition, MedicarePlus fee-for-service plans would be exempt from the requirement that the organization have arrangements for an ongoing quality assurance program and that it maintain accurate and timely medical records for enrollees.

The Secretary would be required to provide that a MedicarePlus organization would be deemed to have met these requirements if it was accredited by a private organization under a process that the Secretary determined assured that the organization met standards that were no less stringent than those required by the bill. (New sec. 1853(d))

f. Coverage Determinations. Each MedicarePlus organization would have to make determinations regarding authorization requests for nonemergency care on a timely basis. Medical necessity decisions could only be made by a physician. Appeals of a determination would have to be decided within 30 days of receiving medical information and no later than 60 days after the date of the decision. Appeals relating to a life-threatening or emergency situation would have to be decided on an expedited basis. (New sec. 1853(e))

g. Grievances and Appeals. Each MedicarePlus organization would have to provide for meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances between the organization (and entities and individuals through which it provides services) and enrollees. An enrollee dissatisfied by reason of the enrollee's failure to receive health services would be entitled, if the amount in controversy was $100 or more, to a hearing before the Secretary. If the amount in controversy was $1,000 or more, the individual or organization, upon notifying the other party, would be entitled to judicial review. The Secretary would be required to contract with an independent, outside entity to review and resolve appeals of denials of coverage related to urgent or emergency services with respect to MedicarePlus products. The Secretary would be required to consult with the Secretary of Labor to ensure that these requirements, as they apply to grievances to which section 503 of ERISA applies, are applied in a manner consistent with the requirements of ERISA. (New sec. 1853(f))

h. Information on Advance Directives. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to maintain written policies and procedures respecting advance directives (as specified elsewhere in the Medicare statute). (New sec. 1853(g))

i. Approval of Marketing Materials. Each MedicarePlus organization could not distribute marketing material unless (1) at least 45 days before distribution, the organization submitted the material to the Secretary for review, and the Secretary did not disapprove the material. Standards established below would include guidelines for the review of such materials. Under these guidelines, the Secretary would be required to disapprove marketing material if it was materially inaccurate or misleading or otherwise made a material misrepresentation. To facilitate ''one stop shopping,'' materials submitted to the Secretary by an organization for a MedicarePlus product in an area that were not disapproved would be considered as such for all other areas covered by the product and organization. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to conform to fair marketing standards included in the MedicarePlus standards. Such standards would include a prohibition against a plan (or agent of such a plan) completing any portion of any election form on behalf of any individual. (New sec. 1853(h))

j. Supplemental Coverage if Plan Terminates the Contract. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Disclosure of Information to Enrollees. No provision for plan disclosure to enrollees. Secretary would disclose information to enrollees. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to provide such information as the Secretary requested regarding the plan in order for the Secretary to provide specific information to enrollees. (New sec. 1895C(e)(3))

b. Access to Services. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to: (1) make the basic services (and other services for which the sponsor contracted) available and accessible to each individual, within the Medicare service area of the plan with reasonable promptness, and in a manner which assured continuity; (2) provide for reimbursement with respect to such services provided to the enrollee other than through the plan's providers if: (A) the services were medically necessary and immediately required because of an unforeseen illness, injury, or condition, and (B) it was not reasonable given the circumstances to obtain the services through the plan's providers. (3) Provide access to appropriate providers, including credentialed specialists, for all medically necessary treatment and services; and (4) except as provided by the Secretary on a case-by-case basis, in the case of a coordinated care plan, provide primary care services within 30 minutes or 30 miles from an enrollee's place of residence if the enrollee resides in a rural area. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to provide the Secretary with a demonstration of the plan's capacity to adequately service the plan's expected Medicare enrollment. (New sec. 1895J(d))

c. Timely Authorization for Promptly Needed Care Identified as a Result of Required Screening Evaluation. A Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to provide access 24 hours a day, 7 days a week to such persons as might be authorized to make any prior authorizations required by the plan sponsor for coverage of items and services (other than emergency services) that a treating physician or other emergency department personnel identified pursuant to a screening examination required under section 1867(a) of the Social Security Act (relating to examination and treatment in a medical emergency) as being needed promptly by an enrollee. A plan sponsor would be deemed to have approved a request for such services if the physician or other emergency department personnel involved: (1) made a reasonable effort to contact the person for authorization to provide an appropriate referral or to provide the services; or (2) requested such authorization from the person and the person had not denied the authorization within 30 minutes after the request was made. Approval of a request for a prior authorization determination would be treated as approval of a request for any items and services that were requested to treat the medical condition identified as a result of the required screening examination. "Emergency services" and "emergency medical condition" are specifically defined (New sec. 1895J(h))

d. Confidentiality and Accuracy of Enrollee Records. No provision.

e. Quality Assurance and Accreditation Program. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be required to meet certain health plan standards, including those relating to quality assurance and accreditation.

Each sponsor would be required to establish an ongoing internal quality assurance program (in accordance with regulations established by the Secretary for health care services it provides to Medicare enrollees). This program would be required to (1) emphasize health outcomes; (2) provide for establishment of written protocols for utilization review; (3) provide review by physicians and other health care professionals of the process followed in the provision of services; (4) monitor and evaluate high volume and high risk services and the care of acute and chronic conditions; (5) evaluate the continuity and coordination of care; (6) establish mechanisms to detect underutilization and overutilization; (7) after identifying areas for improvement, establish or alter practice parameters; (8) take action to improve quality and assess the effectiveness of such action through systematic follow-up; (9) make information available on quality and outcomes to facilitate beneficiary comparison and choice; and (10) evaluate on an ongoing basis the plan's effectiveness.

Each sponsor also would be required to have an agreement with an independent quality review and improvement organization approved by the Secretary. Such an organization would be required to: (1) provide an alternative mechanism for addressing enrollee grievances; (2) review plan performance based on accepted quality performance criteria; (3) promote and make plans accountable for improved plan performance; (4) integrate into ongoing external quality assurance activities a new set of quality indicators and standards developed specifically for the Medicare population that would be used to determine whether a plan was providing quality care and appropriate continuity and coordination of care; and (5) report to the Secretary on those plans that demonstrated unwillingness or inability to improve their performance.

Each sponsor would be required to meet accreditation standards established by the Secretary or to be accredited by an external independent accrediting organization, recognized by the Secretary as requiring standards at least as stringent as those set by the Secretary.

The Secretary would be required to create incentives for sponsors to report aggregate encounter data, including data on physician visits, nursing home days, home health days, hospital inpatient days and rehabilitation services. (New sec. 1895J(a);1895J(b))

f. Coverage Determinations. The Secretary would be required to provide an expedited review procedure (under the requirements for the sponsor to provide a hearing for grievances) where a failure to receive any health care service or payment for such service would result in significant harm. (New sec. 1895J(e)(2)(C))

g. Grievances and Appeals. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor would have to provide for meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances between the organization (and entities and individuals through which it provides services) and enrollees. An enrollee dissatisfied by reason of the enrollee's failure to receive health services would be entitled, if the amount in controversy was $100 or more, to a hearing before the Secretary. If the amount in controversy was $1,000 or more, the individual or organization, upon notifying the other party, would be entitled to judicial review. The Secretary would be required to contract with an independent, outside entity to review and resolve appeals of denials of coverage related to urgent or emergency services with respect to Medicare Choice plans (see new sec. 1895J(b)(2)(B)); 1895J(e)).

h. Information on Advance Directives. A contract with Medicare would have to provide that a Medicare Choice plan maintain written policies and procedures respecting advance directives (as specified elsewhere in the Medicare statute). (new sec. 1895J(g))

i. Approval of Marketing Materials. In addition to informational materials required to be distributed by the Secretary, a Medicare Choice Plan sponsor could develop and distribute marketing materials and engage in marketing strategies in accordance with the following: Any marketing material developed or distributed by a Medicare Choice plan sponsor and any marketing strategy developed by such a sponsor: (1) would be required to accurately describe differences between health care coverage available under the plan and the coverage available under traditional Medicare; (2) would have to be pursued in a manner not intended to violate the nondiscrimination requirements; and (3) could not contain false or materially misleading information, and would have to conform to any other fair marketing and advertising standards and requirements applicable to such plans under law. A sponsor would not be allowed to distribute marketing material unless at least 45 days before distribution, the plan submitted the material to the Secretary for review, and the Secretary did not disapprove the material. The Secretary would be required to review all marketing materials under guidelines established by the Secretary. Under these guidelines, the Secretary would be required to disapprove marketing material if it was materially inaccurate or misleading or otherwise made a material misrepresentation. Materials submitted to the Secretary or a regional office of the Department of Health and Human Services that were not disapproved with respect to one area would be considered as such for all other areas covered by the plan. (New sec. 1895G(c))

j. Supplemental Coverage if Plan Terminates the Contract. Each Medicare Choice plan sponsor that provided coverage pursuant to a contract with Medicare would be required to provide assurances to the Secretary that in the event that the contract was terminated, the sponsor could provide or arrange for supplemental coverage of benefits under this title related to a preexisting condition with respect to any exclusion period, to all individuals enrolled with the entity who received Medicare benefits, for the lesser of 6 months or the duration of such period. (Sec. 1895(J)(e)(3))

The conference agreement follows the House provision with modifications. (See also previous section.)

With respect to access to services, the conference agreement does not include the House provision specifying minimum payment levels where providing out-of-network services pursuant to a point-of-service coverage. It does require that the organization provide access to appropriate providers, including credentialed specialists, for all medically necessary treatment and services, and that coverage be provided for emergency services without regard to prior authorization or the emergency care provider's contractual relationship with the organization.

The conference agreement clarifies that "certain fee-for-service" plans means "unrestricted fee-for-service plans." The latter is defined as a MedicarePlus FFS plan that provides for coverage of benefits without restrictions relating to utilization and without regard to whether the provider has a contract or other arrangement with the organization offering the plan for the provision of such benefits.

With respect to the required quality assurance and accreditation program, the conference agreement modifies the provision relating to external review for quality assurance. Each MedicarePlus organization, for each plan it operated, would have to have an agreement with an independent quality review and improvement organization approved by the Secretary.

With respect to grievances and appeals, the conference agreement modifies the requirement that the Secretary of HHS coordinate with the Secretary of Labor with respect to making the grievance process consistent with the requirements of section 503 of ERISA to ensure that the requirements provide for at least as much protection for beneficiaries as would have applied in its absence.

It is the intent of conferees that in the provision of information regarding advance directives that no health care provider or employee of a health care provider be required under this section to inform or counsel a patient regarding services which purposely cause the death of a person such as assisted suicide, euthansia, or mercy killing.

5. PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS (PSOS) (NEW SEC. 1854 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

PSOs do not qualify as eligible organizations for Medicare managed care contracts.

House bill

a. Provider-Sponsored Organization (PSO) Defined. A PSO means a public or private entity that (in accordance with standards established under this bill) is a provider or group of affiliated providers that provides a substantial portion of health care under the contract directly through the provider or affiliated group of providers. In defining substantial proportion, the Secretary would be required to consider the need for such an organization to assume responsibility for a substantial portion of services in order to assure financial stability and other factors. Affiliation is specifically defined. (New sec. 1854(a))

b. Process for Establishing Standards. These requirements are specified in other sections of the bill. (New sec. 1854(b))

c. Process for State Certification of PSOs. These requirements are specified in other sections of the bill. (New sec. 1854(c))

d. Preemption of State Insurance Licensing Requirements. In general, State law would be preempted which required that a PSO meet requirements for insurers of health services or HMOs doing business in the State with respect to initial capitalization and establishment of financial reserves against insolvency or imposed requirements that would have the effect of prohibiting the PSO from complying with the applicable requirements of the bill. The general preemption of State law would not apply with respect to State laws that met the bill's requirements for the Secretary to approve State PSO certification. Nothing in this provision would affect the operation of the Federal preemption of State law under section 514 of ERISA. (New sec. 1854(d))

Senate bill

No provision. (See new sec. 1895R on Temporary Federal Certification Process for Coordinated Care Plans.)

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with modifications. (See also discussion of conference agreement for Licensing and Financial Requirements.)

The conference agreement defines a provider-sponsored organization (PSO) as a public or private entity

(1) that is established or organized by a health care provider, or group of affiliated health care providers,

(2) that provides a substantial proportion (as defined by the Secretary) of health care under the contract directly through the provider or affiliated group of providers, and

(3) with respect to which those affiliated providers that share, directly or indirectly, substantial financial risk with respect to the provision of coverage have at least a majority financial interest in the entity.

The conference agreement provides a definition for "health care provider" and requires that the Secretary issue regulations to carry out this section.

(See also provisions relating to antitrust under Subtitle A. Part 3 of Conference Report.)

6. PAYMENTS TO MEDICAREPLUS ORGANIZATIONS (NEW SEC. 1855 OF HOUSE BILL; NEW SEC. 1895H, 1895M, 1895N AND SEC. 7003 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Under a Medicare risk contract, an HMO agrees to provide or arrange the full scope of covered Medicare services in return for a single monthly capitation payment issued by Medicare for each enrolled beneficiary. One of the numbers used to determine this payment is the adjusted average per capita cost, or AAPCC. The other, the adjusted community rate or ACR, is discussed above.

The AAPCC is Medicare's estimate of the average per capita amount it would spend for a given beneficiary (classified by certain demographic characteristics and county of residence) who was not enrolled in an HMO and who obtained services on the usual fee-for-service basis. Separate AAPCCs are established for enrollees on the basis of age, sex, whether they are in a nursing home or other institution, and whether they are also eligible for Medicaid, and the county of their residence. These AAPCC values are calculated in four basic steps:

Medicare national average calendar year per capita costs are projected for the future year under consideration. These numbers are known as the U.S. per capita costs (USPCCs) and are estimated average incurred benefit costs per Medicare enrollee and adjusted to include program administration costs. USPCCs are developed separately for Parts A and B of Medicare, and for costs incurred by the aged, disabled, and those with ESRD in those two parts of the program.

Geographic adjustment factors that reflect the historical relationships between the county's and the Nation's per capita costs are used to convert the national average per capita costs to the county level.

Expected Medicare per capita costs for the county are adjusted to a fee-for-service basis by removing both reimbursement and enrollment attributable to Medicare beneficiaries in prepaid plans.

The recalculated county per capita cost is converted into rates that vary according to the demographic variables enumerated above: age, sex, institutional status, Medicaid status.

For each Medicare beneficiary enrolled under a risk contract, Medicare will pay the HMO 95 percent of the rate corresponding to the demographic class to which the beneficiary is assigned.

House bill

a. In General. A MedicarePlus organization under a contract with the Secretary would be paid, with respect to coverage of an individual in a payment area for a month, an amount equal to the monthly adjusted MedicarePlus capitation rate with respect to that individual for that area. Each year, the Secretary would be required to determine and announce no later than September 7 the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for each payment area for the year, and the factors to be used in adjusting monthly payment rates. (New sec. 1855(a))

b. Notice of Methodological Changes. An explanation of the assumptions and changes in methodology would have to be included in sufficient detail so that organizations could compute monthly adjusted MedicarePlus capitation rates. The Secretary would be required to provide advance notice (at least 45 days prior to the announcement)of the proposed changes in the methodology and assumptions used to develop the rates, and give organizations an opportunity to comment. (New sec. 1855(a))

c. Calculation of Standardized Medicare Capitation Payment Amounts.

Monthly Adjusted MedicarePlus Capitation Rate. Each month, the MedicarePlus organization would be paid for an individual in a payment area, and in a class (as described below), $\frac{1}{12}$ of that year's annual MedicarePlus capitation rate. This amount would be adjusted to reflect the relative actuarial value of Medicare benefits with respect to individuals in a class compared to the national average for individuals in all classes. A payment area is a county (or equivalent area specified by the Secretary) except for the ESRD population, in which case the area is the State.

For purposes of calculating rates, the Medicare population would be divided into three separate groups: the aged, the disabled, and those who have been determined to have end stage renal disease (ESRD). The Secretary would be required to define appropriate classes of enrollees, based on age, gender, welfare status, institutionalization, and such other factors as the Secretary determined to be appropriate so as to ensure actuarial equivalence. The Secretary could add, modify, or substitute for such classes to improve determination of actuarial equivalence. The Secretary would be required to conduct the research needed to provide for greater accuracy in the adjustment of capitation rates. This could include research into the addition or modification of classes. The Secretary would have to report to Congress on this research by January 1, 1997. (New sec. 1855(b))

Per Capita Growth Rates. In general, payment rates for each area would be calculated so as to improve contribution levels in rural and low service utilization markets. Payments to health plans from 1996 onward would be "decoupled" from local fee-for-service expenditures and paid instead on a budgeted system. Rates would be established so that over time, payments to areas with higher-than-average utilization of services would be increased more slowly than payments to areas with lower-than-average utilization. In addition, payments would be calculated so as to ensure that legitimate costs of doing business in different areas (based on certain input prices) would be recognized in the contribution levels.

To establish the payment rates for 1996, areas would be classified according to their average per capita utilization of services (see below). Those areas experiencing the lowest utilization in services would be assigned a per capita growth rate of 9.0 percent, the next lower, 8.0 percent, the median, 5.1 percent, the next higher, 4.7 percent, and those with the highest utilization, being assigned a per capita growth rate of 4.0 percent. To assure that total capitation payments during 1996 were the same as the amount they would have been if the per capita growth rate for all such areas for 1996 were equal to the national average per capita growth rate, the Secretary would adjust the per capita growth rates as follows:

(1) The Secretary would first provide for the additional percent increase needed to assure that the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for each payment area was at least 12 times $300 for 1996.

(2) For payment areas assigned to the lowest cohort, the Secretary would then provide for the additional percent increase needed to assure that the total capitation payments during 1996 were the same as they would have been if the per capita growth rate for all such areas for 1996 were equal to the national average per capita growth rate. The increase could be applied to a payment area falling into the lowest utilization cohort and would be applied after the increase in the first step was applied.

To establish the payment rates for years after 1996, the Secretary would be required to compute a per capita growth rate for each year for each of the five service utilization cohorts. This computation of payments for each cohort is pegged to the national average per capita growth rate which is as follows: 1996 = 5.3%; 1997 = 3.8%; 1998 = 4.6%; 1999 = 4.3%; 2000 = 3.8%; 2001 = 5.5%; 2002 = 5.6%; Subsequent years = 5.0%.

The median service utilization cohort would receive the national average per capita growth rate for the year. Those areas assigned to the lowest service utilization cohort would get 187.5 percent of the national average growth rate, and those in the highest would get 75 percent. The Secretary would calculate intermediate growth rates for the second and fourth cohorts at an amount that would assure budget neutrality relative to the national average per capita growth rates. Specifically, the growth rates for each cohort are as follows:

lowest=187.5% of the national average per capita growth rate (NAGR); lower=150% of the NAGR or lower if needed to meet budget neutrality;

median=the average NAGR;

higher=gets a rate calculated to achieve budget neutrality, but not less than 75% of the NAGR; highest=75% of the NAGR.

After computing per capita growth rates for a year, the Secretary would be required to make a final adjustment of the growth rates. The Secretary would: (1) reduce the per capita growth rate for areas assigned to the median service utilization cohort by the ratio of .1 to 5.3; (2) if the year is 1997, increase the per capital growth rates for payment areas to the extent needed to assure that the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for each payment area for that year was at least 12 times $320; and (3) adjust the per capita growth rate for areas assigned to the lowest service utilization cohort by such proportion that would result in no net increase in outlays for the year. (New sec. 1855(c))

Assignment of Payment Areas to Service Utilization Cohorts. Each year the Secretary would assign each payment area to a utilization cohort based on a service utilization index value: lowest—less than .80; lower—.80–.89; median—.90-1.09; higher—1.10-1.19; highest—1.20 or more.

The service utilization index value would be equal to the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for each payment area divided by the input-price adjusted national capitation rate for that area for the year. (The utilization index for one year would be used to set cohorts for the update for the next year). The input-price adjusted capitation rate would be calculated by multiplying the weighted average capitation rate by an input price index (separate indices would be applied for different types of services). For 1996, the Secretary would apply an input price adjustment specified in the legislation; for 1997, the Secretary could continue to use the special rules for 1996. The Secretary would develop refined input price adjustments to be used in later years. (New sec. 1855(d))

d. Payment Process. The Secretary would be required to make monthly payments in advance to the plan for each individual enrolled with a MedicarePlus organization. The payment would be retroactively adjusted to take into account any differences between the actual number of individuals enrolled with an organization and the number of such individuals estimated to be so enrolled in determining the amount of the advance payment. (New sec. 1855(e))

e. Special Rules for Individuals Electing High-Deductible/Medisave Products. In the case of an individual who elected a high-deductible/medisave product, the payment to the MedicarePlus organization could not exceed the premium for the high-deductible product and the difference between the amount that would have otherwise been paid. Anything in addition to that amount would be paid directly into the individual's medisave account on a monthly basis. (New sec. 1855(f))

f. Payments from Trust Funds. Payments to the MedicarePlus organizations would be made from the HI and SMI trust funds in such proportion as the Secretary determined reflected the relative weights that benefits under Parts A and B represented of Medicare's actuarial value of the total benefits. (New sec. 1855(g))

g. Special Rule for Certain Inpatient Hospital Stays. In the case of an individual receiving inpatient hospital services from a hospital covered under Medicare's prospective payment system as of the effective date of the (1) individual's election of a MedicarePlus product: (a) payment for such services until the date of the individual's discharge would be made as if the individual did not elect coverage under the MedicarePlus organization; (b) the elected organization would not be financially responsible for payment for such services until the date of the individual's discharge; and (c) the organization would nevertheless be paid the full amount otherwise payable to the organization; or (2) termination of enrollment with a MedicarePlus organization: (a) the organization would be financially responsible for payment for such services after the date of termination and until the date of discharge; (b) payment for such services during the stay would not be made under Medicare's PPS system; and (c) the terminated organization would not receive any payment with respect to the individual during the period in which the individual was not enrolled. (New sec. 1855(h))

h. Demonstration Project on Market-Based Reimbursement and Competitive Pricing. No provision.

i. Special Rule for Calculation of Payment Rates for 1996. See above under "per capita growth rates," in which the calculation of 1996 growth rates is described. (sec. 1855(c) and 1885(d))

Senate bill

a. In General. Beginning with 1996 and no later than July 31 of each calendar year, the Secretary would be required to determine a standardized Medicare payment amount (according to the provisions of this section) for the following calendar year for each Medicare payment area. (A Medicare payment area is defined as a metropolitan statistical area (whether or not such an area is in a single State) or, in the case of a consolidated metropolitan statistical area, each primary metropolitan statistical area within the consolidated area; and one area within each State composed of all areas that do not fall within a metropolitan statistical area.) The secretary would be required to announce these amounts in a manner intended to provide notice to interested parties. (New sec. 1895M(a), 1895A(c))

b. Notice of Methodological Changes. At least 45 days before making the announcement of annual rates (beginning with the announcement for 1998), the Secretary would be required to provide for notice to Medicare Choice plans of proposed changes to be made in the methodology or benefit coverage assumptions from those made in the previous announcement and would have to provide plans an opportunity to comment on proposed changes. In each announcement, the Secretary would be required to include an explanation of the assumptions (including any benefit coverage assumptions) and changes in methodology used in the announcement in sufficient detail so that plans could compute Medicare payment rates for classes of individuals located in each Medicare payment area which were in whole or in part within the Medicare service area of the plan. (New sec. 1895M(e))

c. Calculation of Standardized Medicare Capitation Payment Amounts.

Calendar Year 1997. For calendar year 1997, the standardized Medicare payment amount for a Medicare payment area would be equal to the sum of:

> 50% of the modified per capita rate for calendar year 1996 and
> 50% of the adjusted average national per capita rate for calendar year 1996, increased by the percentage increase in the gross domestic product per capita for the 12-month period ending on June 30, 1996.

The modified per capita rate for calendar year 1996 for a Medicare payment area would be equal to the per capita rate which would have been determined (without regard to class) to derive the AAPCCs for 1995 if the applicable geographic area were the Medicare payment area, and 50% of any payments attributable to indirect medical education, direct graduate medical education, and disproportionate share hospital payments were not taken into account, increased by the percentage increase which the Secretary estimated would occur in Medicare expenditures per capita for 1996 over those for 1995.

The adjusted average national per capita rate for a Medicare payment area for calendar year 1996 would be equal to the sum, for all types of Medicare services, of the product for each type of:

the average national per capita rate for 1996;

the proportion of such rate for the year which is attributable to the type of services; and an index that reflects for 1996 and the type of service the relative input price of such services in the Medicare payment area as compared to the national average input price for the service. (In applying this, the Secretary would use those indices that are used in applying (or updating) medical payment areas for specific areas and localities.)

The average national per capita rate for 1996 would be the weighted average of the modified per capita rates described above for all Medicare payment areas for 1996.

For succeeding years, the standardized Medicare payment for any calendar year after 1997 in a Medicare payment area would be an amount equal to the standardized Medicare payment amount determined for each area for the preceding year, increased by the percentage increase in the per capita GDP for the 12-month period ending in June 30 of the preceding calendar year.

However, for 1998, the standardized Medicare payment amount for the preceding calendar year would be the amount which would have been determined if 100% of the adjusted average national per capita rate for calendar year 1996 had been applied instead of 50%.

A special rule would apply with respect to individuals with ESRD. In computing the standardized Medicare payment amount for any Medicare payment area, individuals with ESRD or medical expenditures on them would not be taken into account. (New sec. 1895M(b))

Adjustments for Payments to Plan Sponsors. Payment rates to a Medicare Choice plan sponsor would be equal to the standardized Medicare payment amount for the Medicare payment area, adjusted for such risk factors as age, disability status, gender, institutional status, health status, and such other factors as the Secretary determined to be appropriate to ensure actuarial equivalency. The Secretary could add to, modify, or substitute for such classes if such changes would improve the determination of actuarial equivalence. The Secretary would be required to establish a separate rate of payment with respect to ESRD enrollees. This rate would have to be actuarially equivalent to rates paid for other enrollees in the Medicare payment area (or such other area as specified by the Secretary). (New sec 1895M(c))

Geographical Adjustments. Unless Congress provides otherwise and starting with calendar years after 1999, the Secretary would be required to make annual differential adjustments to the standardized Medicare payment amounts for calendar years 2000 and 2001 so as to achieve appropriate and equitable variation across payment areas by calendar year 2002. This variation would be required to be reasonably related to measurable geographic differences in Medicare payment areas. The Secretary would be required to adjust the standardized Medicare payment amounts in a manner that assured that total payments for a year were not greater or less than they would have been in the absence of the geographical adjustment (i.e., budget neutrality). The geographic adjustment process would be informed by an analysis that the Secretary would be required to conduct in consultation with interested parties. Such analysis would focus on the measurable input cost differences across payment areas, including wage differentials, and other measurable variables identified by the Secretary. The Secretary would also be required to determine the degree to which Medicare beneficiaries, including those in rural and underserved areas, have access to more health choices by the year 2000 under this Act, and the extent to which standardized payment amounts limited or enhanced such choices. The Secretary would be required to submit a report to the appropriate committees of Congress that included the results of the analysis and the differential adjustments that the Secretary intended to implement for calendar years 2000 and 2001. (New sec. 1895M(d))

d. Payment Process. The Secretary would be required to make monthly payments in advance to the Medicare Choice plan sponsor for each Medicare individual is enrolled consistent with the payment rates described below. The payment would be retroactively adjusted to take into account any differences between the actual number of individuals enrolled in the plan and the number of such individuals estimated to be so enrolled in determining the amount of the advance payment. (New sec. 1895O(a))

e. Special Rules for Individuals High-deductible/Medisave Products. No provision.

f. Payments from Trust Funds. Payments to Medicare Choice plan sponsors would be made from the HI and SMI trust funds in such proportion as the Secretary determined reflected the relative weights that benefits under Parts A and B represented of the actuarial value of the total benefits. (New sec. 1895O(b))

g. Special Rule for Certain Inpatient Hospital Stays. A contract under the Medicare Choice program would provide that in the case of an individual who was receiving inpatient hospital services from a hospital covered under Medicare's prospective payment system as of the effective date of the: (1) individual's enrollment with a Medicare Choice plan: (a) payment for such services until the date of the individual's discharge would be made as if the individual were not enrolled with the plan; (b) the plan sponsor would not be financially responsible for payment for such services until the date of the individual's discharge; and (c) the plan sponsor would nevertheless be paid the full amount otherwise payable to the plan; or (2) termination of enrollment with a Medicare Choice plan: (a) the plan sponsor would be financially responsible for payment for such services after the date of termination and until the date of discharge; (b) payment for such services during the stay would not be made under Medicare's PPS system; and (c) the plan sponsor would not receive any payment with respect to the individual during the period in which the individual was not enrolled. (New sec. 1895H(e))

h. Demonstration Project on Market-Based Reimbursement and Competitive Pricing. The Secretary would be required to establish one or more demonstration projects to determine the standardized Medicare payment amounts through competitive bidding by Medicare Choice plans in a Medicare payment area. By December 31, 2001, the Secretary would be required to submit a report to Congress on the success of such projects in determining standardized Medicare payment amounts that were reflective of market prices. (New sec. 1895M(f))

i. Special Rule for Calculation of Payment Rates for 1996. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the per capita rate under sec. 1876 of the Social Security Act for 1996 for any class for a geographic area would be equal to the sum of: (1) 75% of the updated per capita rate for a class for an area; and (2) 25% of the weighted average of the updated per capita rates for a class for all geographic areas. The latter would be adjusted in the same manner as prescribed under the above provisions for calculating the adjusted average national per capita rate for 1996 to reflect differences in input prices in the geographic area as compared to the national average input prices. In no event would any average per capita rate in a geographic area determined under the preceding sentence be less than the rate determined under section 1876 of the Social Security Act for 1995. For purposes of calculating the per capita rate, the updated per capita rate for any class would equal the per capita rate of payment for 1995 determined under existing law for a county (or equivalent area), increased by the percentage increase which the Secretary estimated would occur in Medicare expenditures per capita for 1996 over those for 1995. The Secretary would be required to publish the rates no later than 30 days after enactment. (Sec. 7003)

The conference agreement follows the Senate provision with modifications.

In general, under a MedicarePlus contract, the Secretary would be required to make monthly payments in advance to each MedicarePlus organization, with respect to coverage of an individual in a MedicarePlus payment area for a month, in an amount equal to 1/12 of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate with respect to that individual for that area. The payment would be adjusted for such risk factors as age, disability status, gender, institutional status, and other such factors as the Secretary determined to be appropriate, so as to ensure actuarial equivalence. The Secretary could add to, modify, or substitute for such factors, if such changes would improve the determination of actuarial equivalence.

Payments to plans would be calculated based on the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate. The Secretary would be required to annually determine, and announce (in a manner intended to provide notice to interested parties) no later than August 1 before the calendar year concerned: (1) the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for each MedicarePlus capitation area for year, and (2) the risk and other factors to be used in adjusting such rates for payments for months in that year.

Calculation of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate. The conference agreement modifies the Senate methodology for determining the payment to MedicarePlus plans. The annual MedicarePlus capitation rate, for a payment area for a contract for a calendar year would be equal to the greatest of the following:

(A) A blended capitation rate, defined as the sum of: (1) the area-specific percentage (as defined below) of the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year for the payment area and (2) the national percentage (as defined below) of the input-price adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year. (This sum is multiplied by a budget neutrality adjustment to ensure no more or less is spent on plan payments than would have otherwise been made under this part.)

(B) A minimum monthly payment amount set at $300 for 1996 and $350 for 1997;

(C) A monthly payment amount representing a minimum 2% increase over the previous year's rate.

The area-specific and national percentages referred to in (A) above are as follows:

1996—the area-specific percentage is 90% and the national percentage is 10%.

1997—the area-specific percentage is 90% and the national percentage is 10%.

1998—the area-specific percentage is 85% and the national percentage is 15%.

1999—the area-specific percentage is 80% and the national percentage is 20%.

2000—the area-specific percentage is 75% and the national percentage is 25%.

After 2000—the area-specific percentage is 70% and the national percentage is 30%.

The annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for a MedicarePlus payment area would be:

> For 1996—the annual per capita rate of payment for 1995 (as determined under the current law calculation to derive 95% of the AAPCC), increased by the national average per capita growth percentage for 1996 (as defined below), or
> For a subsequent year—the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for the previous year, increased by the national average per capita growth percentage for such subsequent year.

The conference agreement defines the input-price-adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for a MedicarePlus payment area for a year to equal the weighted sum, for all types of Medicare services, of:

> the national standardized annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year, defined as the weighted average of all area-specific capitation rates for that year multiplied by—> an index that reflects (for the year and the type of services) the relative input price of such services in the area as compared to the national average input price of such services. (In applying this, the Secretary would use those indices that are used in applying (or updating) national payment rates for specific areas and localities.)

A special rule would apply in determining the input-price adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for 1996, and at the Secretary's discretion, for 1997.

The national average per capita growth percentage would be defined as follows: 1996 = 8.0%; 1997 = 3.8%; 1998 = 4.6%; 1999 = 4.3%; 2000 = 3.8%; 2001 = 5.5%; 2002 = 5.6%; Subsequent years = 5.0%.

A MedicarePlus payment area is defined as a county or equivalent area specified by the Secretary. In the case of individuals who are determined to have ESRD, the MedicarePlus payment area would be each State. The conference agreement would modify the Senate provision for making geographic adjustments. Upon request of a State for a contract year (beginning after 1996) made at least 7 months before the beginning of the year, the Secretary would redefine MedicarePlus payment areas in the State to: (1) a single Statewide MedicarePlus payment area; (2) the metropolitan system described below; or (3) a single MedicarePlus payment area consolidating noncontinuous counties (or equivalent areas) within a State. This adjustment would be effective for payments for months beginning with January of the year following the year in which the request was received. The Secretary would be required to make an adjustment to payment areas in the State to ensure budget neutrality.

The metropolitan system referred to above follows the Senate bill by providing for a payment system based on metropolitan statistical areas (MSAs) in which all portions of each MSA in the State or in the case of a consolidated MSA, all of the portions of each primary MSA within the consolidated areas within the State, are treated as a single MedicarePlus payment area, and all areas in the State that do not fall within a MSA are treated as a single MedicarePlus payment area.

The conference agreement does not include the Senate provisions relating to geographical adjustments, including the provision that the Secretary provide analysis of input cost differences across payment areas and the report to Congress on this analysis.

It is the intent of the conferees that the Secretary conduct an analysis, based on the developments in the MedicarePlus program up to December 31, 1998, of the variation in Medicare payment amounts, taking into consideration measurable input cost differences, and the degree to which MedicarePlus payment amounts have enhanced or limited beneficiary choice of health plans in areas. The Secretary would report the findings to the appropriate committees of the Congress, and the public, not later than December 31, 2000.

In the case of an individual who elected a high-deductible plan, the amount of the monthly payment to the MedicarePlus organization offering the high deductible plan could not exceed the monthly premium for the plan. Any additional amount would be paid directly into the individual's High Deductible MedicarePlus MSA. No payment would be made unless the individual had established a High Deductible MSA before the beginning of the month and if the case of multiple accounts, the individual had designated one for purposes of receiving the contribution. Deposits would be made to the account as a lump sum in the first month. In the case of a termination of election of this option, the Secretary would be required to provide for a procedure for recovery of deposits attributable to the remaining months of the year.

The conference agreement includes an amendment providing that effective January 1, 1997, if a member of a Federally qualified HMO certified that a Rebate MedicarePlus MSA had been established for his or her benefit, the HMO could reduce the basic health services payment otherwise determined under the applicable law by requiring the payment of a deductible.

Rebates would be provided as follows: In general, if the amount of the monthly premium for a MedicarePlus plan (other than a high deducible plan) for a MedicarePlus payment area was less than $\frac{1}{12}$ of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for the area and year involved, at the election of an individual enrolled under the plan, the Secretary would either:

(1) In the case of an individual who had a Rebate MedicarePlus MSA account, deposit 100% of such difference into the account specified by the individual,

(2)(a) pay to the MedicarePlus organization on behalf of the individual 100% of the difference (up to the premium amount) for supplemental benefits; or (b) pay to the individual an amount equal to 75% of the remainder of the difference, and deposit any remainder of the difference in the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund.

The conference agreement follows the House provision with respect to payments in the case of an individual receiving inpatient hospital services from a hospital covered under Medicare's prospective payment system as of the effective date of the (1) individual's election of a MedicarePlus product.

7. ESTABLISHMENT OF STANDARDS FOR MEDICAREPLUS ORGANIZATIONS/MEDICARE CHOICE PLANS (NEW SEC. 1856 OF HOUSE BILL; NEW SEC. 1895S OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Under section 1876 of the Social Security Act, Medicare specifies requirements to be met by an organization seeking to become a managed care contractor with Medicare. There is no provision for NAIC to play a role in developing or establishing these requirements. There is no provision for Provider-Sponsored Organizations.

House bill

a. Federal Standards Applicable to State-Regulated Organizations and Products. The Secretary would be required to request the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) to develop and submit within 12 months after enactment proposed standards consistent with the bill requirements for MedicarePlus organizations (other than sponsoring organizations and PSOs) and products. Such proposed standards could relate to qualified associations only with respect to MedicarePlus products offered by them and only if such products were issued by organizations which were organized and licensed under State law.

If the NAIC's submission was timely, the Secretary would review the proposed standards within 90 days and promulgate them with modifications to the extent they did not meet the requirements. If the Association's submission was not timely, the Secretary would be required to promulgate proposed standards no later than otherwise required. Until such standards were established, the Secretary would provide interim standards as might be appropriate. Such interim standards would have to be issued no later than June 1, 1996. (New sec. 1856(a))

b. Standards Applicable to Union and Taft-Hartley Sponsors, and Qualified Associations. The Secretary would also develop and promulgate MedicarePlus standards for sponsoring organizations and products except for products offered by qualified associations organized and licensed under State law to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage. With respect to union and Taft-Hartley sponsors, the Secretary would be required to consult with the Secretary of Labor and the standards would be promulgated about the same time as the general MedicarePlus standards. (New sec. 1856(b))

c. Standards Applicable to Provider-Sponsored Organizations. With respect to provider-sponsored organizations, the Secretary would establish standards on an expedited basis using the negotiated rule-making process under title 5 United States Code.

The target publication date for the rule would be September 1, 1996.

Within 45 days after enactment, the Secretary, after consulting with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the American Academy of Actuaries, organizations representing Medicare beneficiaries, and other interested parties, would publish the notice required by section 564(a) of title 5.

The period for submitting comments would be shortened to 15 days, and within 30 days thereafter the Secretary would be required to provide for the appointment of a negotiated rulemaking committee. The Secretary would be required to provide for a facilitator no later than 10 days after the establishment of the committee.

The negotiated rulemaking committee would be required to report to the Secretary no later than June 1, 1996, regarding its progress towards reaching consensus and whether that was likely to occur before one month prior to the target publication date. If the committee reported it had failed to make significant progress towards reaching consensus, or if it was unlikely to reach consensus by the target date, the Secretary could terminate the process and provide for the publication of the rule through other methods. Otherwise, the committee would be required to submit a report containing the proposed rule no later than one month before the target publication date.

The Secretary would publish the rule in the Federal Register by the target publication date. The rule would be effective and final immediately on an interim basis, but subject to revision after public notice and opportunity for comment of not less than 60 days. The Secretary would be required to provide for consideration of such comments and republication of the rule not later than one year after the target publication date.

With the initial publication of the final rule, the Secretary would be required to specify a process for timely review and approval of entities to be certified as provider-sponsored organizations. Completed applications would be acted upon within 60 days of receipt.

After consulting with the negotiated rulemaking committee, the Secretary by March 1, 1996, would be required to circulate a proposed application form. (New sec. 1856(c))

d. Coordination Among Final Standards to Promote Equitable Treatment. In establishing MedicarePlus standards other than on an interim basis, the Secretary would be required to try to be consistent where appropriate in order to promote the equitable treatment of different types of MedicarePlus organizations and the consistent protection for individuals who chose their products. (New sec. 1856(d))

e. Use of Current Standards for Interim Standards. Standards established on an interim basis could be based on currently applicable standards, such as those established for analogous provisions of section 1876 or the private health insurance market. (New sec. 1856(e))

f. Application of New Standards to Entities with Existing Contracts. At the time MedicarePlus standards change, an organization with a contract in effect could elect not to have the changes apply until the end of the contract year (or, if there is less than 6 months remaining in the contract year, until one year after its end). (New sec. 1856(f))

g. Relation to State Laws. Standards under this section would supersede any State law or regulation (to the extent it was inconsistent with the standards) with respect to MedicarePlus products which were offered by MedicarePlus organizations that were organized and licensed under State law to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage. (New sec. 1856(g))

h. Secretary's Proposal for Conforming Amendments. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Federal Standards Applicable to State-Regulated Organizations and Products. The Secretary would be required to establish such regulations as might be necessary to carry out the purposes of the Medicare Choice provisions, including regulations setting forth the requirements to meet all quality, access, and solvency standards specified above.(New Sec. 1895S(a))

b. Standards Applicable to Union and Taft-Hartley Sponsors, and Qualified Associations. No provision.

c. Standards Applicable to Provider-Sponsored Organizations. No provision (but see new sec. 1895R on Temporary Federal Certification Process for Coordinated Care Plans).

d. Coordination Among Final Standards to Promote Equitable Treatment. No provision.

e. Use of Interim Standards. The Secretary could, within 120 days after enactment, promulgate regulations (as described in (a) above) on an interim basis, after notice and opportunity for comment. (New sec. 1895S(b)) f. Application of New Standards to Entities with Existing Contracts. No provision (but see sec. 1895R on Temporary Federal Certification Process for Coordinated Care Plans).

g. Relation to State Laws. No provision (but see sec. 1895R on Temporary Federal Certification Process for Coordinated Care Plans).

h. Secretary's Proposal for Conforming Amendments. No later than 90 days after enactment, the Secretary would be required to submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a legislative proposal providing for such technical and conforming amendments in the law as are required by the Medicare Choice provisions. (New sec. 1895S(c))

Conference agreement

The conference agreement combines provisions on establishment of standards for MedicarePlus organizations with provisions for certification of MedicarePlus organizations and plans. The agreement is described below.

8. PROCESS FOR CERTIFICATION OF MEDICAREPLUS ORGANIZATIONS AND PRODUCTS (NEW SEC. 1857 OF HOUSE BILL; NEW SEC. 1895R OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Eligibility to be a Medicare managed care contractor is determined by the Department of Health and Human Services. States do not play a role in certifying organizations as eligible to become Medicare managed care contractors.

House bill

a. Federal Certification of Plans. Beginning on the date MedicarePlus standards were established, for States for which certification programs were not approved and operating, the Secretary would be required to establish a process for certifying that such organizations (other than unions sponsors, Taft-Hartley sponsors, and PSOs) and their products met the standards. The Secretary would be required to publish and periodically update a list of approved State programs. (New sec. 1857(a)(5))

1. Coordinated care plans. No provision (but see new sec. 1857(a)(5))

2. Other plans. The Secretary would be required to establish a process for certifying that sponsoring organizations and their respective MedicarePlus products met MedicarePlus standards. With respect to union and Taft-Hartley sponsors, the process would be established and operated in cooperation with the Secretary of Labor. To the maximum extent practicable, the Federal process would use private accreditation processes that the Secretary finds apply standards no less stringent than the requirements of this part. The use of private accreditation processes would be valid only for periods specified by the Secretary. The Secretary could impose user fees on organizations seeking certification to finance its cost. (New sec. 1857(b))

3. Provider-Sponsored Organizations. See new sec. 1856(c) as described above in sec. 7(c) of the House provisions.

b. State Certification Process. The Secretary would be required to approve a MedicarePlus certification and enforcement program established by a State for applying MedicarePlus standards to MedicarePlus organizations and products if the Secretary determined that the program effectively provided for the application and enforcement of the MedicarePlus standards. State certification would not apply to union or Taft-Hartley sponsors or, except as follows, provider-sponsored organizations. State certification programs would have to provide for certification of compliance of MedicarePlus organizations and products not less often than once every three years. A State could impose user fees on organizations seeking certification to finance its cost. A MedicarePlus organization or product with State certification would be considered to be certified with respect to offerings of the product to individuals residing in the State. (New sec. 1857(a))

1. Federal approval of State certification. The Secretary would be required to periodically review approved State certification programs to determine if they continued to provide for certification and enforcement. States found to be out of compliance would be allowed an opportunity to adopt a plan of correction. If the failure continued, the Federal certification process would be applied. (New sec. 1857(a))

2. State certification of PSOs. The Secretary would be required to establish a process under which States could propose to certify provider-sponsored organizations, but State proposals would not be approved unless the Secretary determined that they were identical to the standards of this part and would not result in a lower level or quality of enforcement. (New sec. 1857(c))

c. Continued State Regulation of Products Offered by Qualified Association Plans. The certification provisions of this section would not limit the authority of States to regulate products offered by MedicarePlus organizations that are qualified associations and meet specified conditions. (New sec. 1857(e))

d. Notice to Enrollees in Case of Decertification. In the event that a MedicarePlus organization or product was decertified, the plan would have to notify each enrollee. (New sec. 1857(d))

e. Sunset of Temporary Federal Certification Process. No provision.

f. Transition Treatment for Existing Risk Contracts. No provision (but see new sec. 1856(f))

g. Partial Capitation Demonstration. No provision.

h. Report on Temporary Federal Certification. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Federal Certification of Plans. The Secretary would establish a process for certification of a coordinated care plan and its sponsor. The process would (1) set forth standards for certification, (2) provide that final action would be taken within 120 business days of receipt of the completed application, (3) provide that State laws and regulations would apply to the extent they were not found to be unreasonable barriers to market entry, and (4) require any person receiving a certificate to provide the Secretary with all reasonable information to ensure compliance with certification. A certificate issued under these procedures could not be for more than 36 months and could not be renewed. A person receiving the certificate would be required to continue seeking State licensure during the period the certificate is in effect. (New sec. 1895R(b))

1. Coordinated care plans. The Secretary would evaluate applications from coordinated care plan sponsors if a State failed to substantially complete action within 90 days of receipt of a completed application or if a State denied the application and the Secretary determined that the State's licensing standards or review process created an unreasonable barrier to market entry. State standards or review processes would not be treated as unreasonable barriers if they were applied consistently to all coordinated care Medicare Choice plan applications, [and] were not in conflict or inconsistent with Federal standards. (New sec. 1895(a))

2. Other plans. No provision.

3. Provider-Sponsored Organizations. No provision.

b. State Certification Process. No provision (but a person receiving a certificate under this section would be required to continue to seek State licensure during the period the certificate was in effect. (New sec. 1895R(b)(3)(B))

1. Federal approval of State certification. No provision (but see new sec. 1895R(b))

2. State certification of PSOs. No provision.

c. Continued State Regulation of Products Offered by Qualified Association Plans. No provision (but see new sec. 1895R(b))

d. Notice to Enrollees in Case of Decertification. No provision.

e. Sunset of Temporary Federal Certification Process. No certificate would be issued under Federal procedures after December 31, 2000, and no such certificate would remain in effect after December 31, 2001 (New sect. 1895R(b)(3)(C))

f. Transition Treatment for Existing Risk Contracts. A Medicare choice plan sponsor that was an eligible organization (under sec. 1876(b) of current law) and that had a risk-sharing contract in effect as of enactment or had an application for such a contract filed before enactment and the contract was entered into before July 1, 1996 would be treated as meeting the Federal standards in effect under this section for any contract years beginning before January 1, 2000. (New sec. 1895R(e))

g. Partial Capitation Demonstration. The Secretary would be required to conduct a demonstration on alternative partial risk-sharing arrangements with health care providers. The Secretary would be required to report to Congress no later than December 31, 1998, on the administrative feasibility of such partial capitation methods and the information necessary to implement the arrangements. (New sec. 1895R(f))

h. Report on Temporary Federal Certification. The Secretary would be required to report to Congress no later than December 31, 1998, on the temporary Federal certification system. The report would include analysis of State efforts to adopt licensing standards and review processes that take into account the fact that coordinated care plan sponsors provide services directly to enrollees through affiliated providers. (New sec. 1895R(c))

Conference agreement

The conference agreement combines provisions on establishment of standards for MedicarePlus organizations with provisions for certification of MedicarePlus organizations and plans.

The agreement follows the House bill with modifications. The agreement provides that State certification programs (as approved by the Secretary) may apply to provider-sponsored organizations other than with respect to solvency standards. Such organizations would be among those for which the Secretary would ask the National Association of Insurance Commissioners to develop and submit proposed standards (except for solvency). The Secretary would establish solvency standards for provider-sponsored organizations on an expedited basis and using a negotiated rulemaking process as under the House bill. In establishing the latter standards, the Secretary shall consult with interested parties and take into account (1) the delivery system assets of an organization and the ability of the organization to provides services directly to enrollees through affiliated providers and (2) alternative means of protecting against insolvency including reinsurance, unrestricted surplus, letters of credit, guarantees, organizational insurance coverage, partnerships with other licensed entities, and valuation attributable to the ability of such an organization to meet its service obligations through direct delivery of care.

9. CONTRACT AUTHORITY (NEW SEC. 1858 OF HOUSE BILL; NEW SEC. 1895P AND 1895Q OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Contracts with HMOs are for 1 year, and may be made automatically renewable. However, the contract may be terminated by the Secretary at any time (after reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing) in the event that the organization fails substantially to carry out the contract, or carries out the contract in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of Medicare HMO law, or no longer meets the requirements specified for Medicare HMOs. The Secretary also has authority to impose certain lesser sanctions, including suspension of enrollment or payment and imposition of civil monetary penalties. These sanctions may be applied for denial of medically necessary services, overcharging, enrollment violations, misrepresentation, failure to pay promptly for services, or employment of providers barred from Medicare participation.

To be eligible to be a risk contractor, HMOs/CMPs must have at least 5,000 members; if, however, they primarily serve members outside urbanized areas, they may have fewer enrollees (defined in regulation as at least 1,500). Organizations eligible for Medicare cost contracts may have fewer members than 5,000 (specified in regulation as at least 1,500).

No more than 50 percent of the organization's enrollees may be Medicare or Medicaid beneficiaries. This rule may be waived, however, for an organization that serves a geographic area where Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries make up more than 50 percent of the population or (for 3 years) for an HMO that is owned and operated by a governmental entity.

During its annual open enrollment period of at least 30 days duration, HMOs must accept beneficiaries in the order in which they apply, up to the limits of its capacity, unless to do so would lead to violation of the 50 percent Medicare-Medicaid maximum or to an enrolled population unrepresentative of the population in the area served by the HMO. If an HMO chooses to limit enrollment because of its capacity, regulation provides that it must notify HCFA at least 90 days before the beginning of its open enrollment period and, at that time, provide HCFA with its reasons for limiting enrollment.

In areas where Medicare has risk contracts with more than one HMO and an HMO's contract is not renewed or is terminated, the other HMOs serving the area must have an open enrollment period of 30 days for persons enrolled under the terminated contract.

House bill

a. In General. The Secretary would not permit the election of a MedicarePlus product and no payment would be made to an organization unless the Secretary had entered into a contract with the organization with respect to the product. A contract could cover more than one MedicarePlus product. Contracts would provide that organizations agree to comply with applicable requirements and standards. (New sec. 1858(a))

b. Minimum Enrollment Requirements. The Secretary would be prohibited from entering into a contract with a MedicarePlus organization other than a union or Taft-Hartley sponsor unless the organization had at least 5,000 individuals (or 1,500 individuals in the case of a PSO) who were receiving health benefits through the organization. An exception would apply if the MedicarePlus standards permitted the organization to have a lesser number of beneficiaries (but not less than 500 for a PSO) if the organization primarily served individuals residing outside of urbanized areas. The Secretary could waive this requirement during an organization's first 3 contract years. Minimum enrollment requirements would not apply to a contract that related only to high-deductible/medisave product. (New sec. 1858(b))

c. Contract Period and Termination. The contract would be for at least one year, could be made automatically renewable in the absence of notice by either party of intention to terminate. The Secretary could terminate any contract at any time or impose intermediate sanctions described below on the organization if the Secretary found that the organization (a) had failed substantially to carry out the contract; (b) was carrying it out in a manner substantially inconsistent with efficient and effective administration; (c) was operating in a manner that was not in the best interests of the individuals covered under the contract; or (d) no longer substantially met MedicarePlus conditions. Contracts would specify their effective date, but those for coverage under a high-deductible/medisave account could not take effect before January 1997. The Secretary would not have to contract with an organization that had voluntarily terminated its contract with Medicare in the previous 5 years. The authority of the Secretary with respect to Medicare Choice plans could be performed without regard to laws or regulations relating to contracts of the United States that the Secretary determined were inconsistent with the purposes of Medicare. (New sec. 1858(c))

d. Protections Against Fraud and Beneficiary Protections. Each contract would provide that the Secretary or his or her designee would have the right to inspect or otherwise evaluate the quality, appropriateness and timeliness of services, as well as the organization's facilities if there were reasonable evidence of need for such inspection; in addition, they would have the right to audit and inspect any books and records that pertain to (1) the ability of the organization to bear risk of financial loss and (2) services performed or determinations of amounts payable under the contract. The contract would also require the organization to provide and pay for written notice in advance of a termination, as well as a description of alternatives for obtaining benefits, to each enrollee. MedicarePlus organizations would be required to report financial information to the Secretary (and to enrollees, if requested), including information demonstrating that the organization was fiscally sound, a copy of the financial report filed with HCFA, and a description of transactions between the organization and parties in interest. The contract would require the organization to notify the Secretary of loans and other special financial arrangements with subcontractors, affiliates, and related parties. (New sec. 1858(d))

e. Additional Contract Terms. Contracts would contain other terms and conditions (including requirements for information) as the Secretary found necessary and appropriate. (New sec. 1858(e))

f. Intermediate Sanctions. The Secretary would be authorized to carry out specific remedies in the event that a MedicarePlus organization: (1) failed substantially to provide medically necessary items and services required to be provided, if the failure adversely affected (or had the substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) the individual; (2) imposed premiums on individuals that were in excess of the premiums permitted; (3) expelled or refused to re-enroll an individual; (4) engaged in any practice that would reasonably be expected to have the effect of denying or discouraging enrolling by eligible individuals with the organization whose medical condition or history indicates a need for substantial future medical services; (5) misrepresented or falsified information; (6) failed to comply with other specified requirements; or (7) employed or contracted with any individual or entity that was excluded from Medicare or Medicaid participation for the provision of health care, utilization review, medical social work, or administrative services, or employed or contracted with any entity for the provision through such an excluded individual or entity.

The remedies would include civil money penalties of not more than $25,000 for each determination of a failure described above or with respect to certain failures (such as denying enrollment to persons with a preexisting medical condition or misrepresenting information furnished to the Secretary), of not more than $100,000. In cases of the latter, the Secretary could also levy a $15,000 fine for each individual not enrolled. In the case of an organization determined to have charged excess premiums, the Secretary could also recover twice the excess amount and return the excess amount to the affected individual. In addition, the Secretary could suspend enrollment of individuals and payment to the organization after notifying it of an adverse determination, until the Secretary was satisfied that the failure had been corrected or would not recur. The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) would apply to the determinations of failures and the remedies described above.

Under his or her authority to terminate contracts, if the Secretary determined that a failure had occurred other than those described above, other intermediate sanctions could be imposed. These include: (1) civil money penalties up to $25,000 if the deficiency directly adversely affected (or had the likelihood of adversely affecting) an individual under the organization's contract; (2) penalties of not more $10,000 for each week after the Secretary initiated procedures for imposing sanctions; and (3) suspension of enrollment until the deficiency had been corrected and the Secretary determined it was unlikely to recur. (New sec. 1858(f))

g. Procedures for Imposing Sanctions. The Secretary could terminate a contract or impose the sanctions described above in accordance with formal investigation and compliance procedures under which (A) the Secretary provides the organization with an opportunity to develop and implement a corrective action plan, (B) the Secretary imposes more severe sanctions on organizations that have a history of deficiencies or have not taken steps to correct those the Secretary brought to their attention, (C) there are no unreasonable or unnecessary delays between finding a deficiency and imposing sanctions, and (D) the Secretary provides reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing, including the right to appeal an initial decision. (New sec. 1858(g)) a. In General. The Secretary would enter into a contract with any Medicare Choice plan sponsor in a Medicare payment area if requirements pertaining to the plan and sponsor are met. (New sec. 1895P)

Senate bill

b. Minimum Enrollment Requirements. No provision.

c. Contract Period and Termination. Except for termination for cause, each contract may be made automatically renewable in the absence of notice by either party of intention to terminate. The Secretary may terminate a contract with a Medicare Choice plan sponsor at any time or may impose the intermediate sanctions described below if the Secretary finds that the sponsor (1) has failed substantially to carry out the contract, (2) is carrying it out in a manner substantially inconsistent with efficient and effective administration, or (3) no longer substantially meets Medicare Choice conditions. The Secretary would not have to have a contract with a sponsor that had voluntarily terminated its contract with Medicare in the previous 5 years. The authority the Secretary with respect to Medicare Choice plans may be performed without regard to laws or regulations relating to contracts of the United States that the Secretary determines are inconsistent with the purposes of Medicare. (New sec. 1895Q(b), 1895Q(d), and 1895Q(e))

d. Protections Against Fraud and Beneficiary Protections. Each contract would provide that the Secretary or his or her designee would have the right to inspect or otherwise evaluate the quality, appropriateness and timeliness of services, as well as the sponsor's facilities if there were reasonable evidence of need for such inspection; in addition, they would have the right to audit and inspect any books and records that pertain to the ability of the sponsor to bear risk of financial loss. The contract would also require the sponsor to provide and pay for written notice in advance of a termination, as well as a description of alternatives for obtaining benefits, to each enrollee. In addition, except as provided by the Secretary, the contract would require the sponsor to comply with Public Health Service Act provisions relating to financial information disclosures and liability arrangements, [and to provide information described in sec. 1866(b)(2)(C)(ii)]. The contract would require the sponsor to notify the Secretary of loans and other special financial arrangements with subcontractors, affiliates, and related parties. (New sec. 1895Q(c))

e. Additional Contract Terms. Contracts would contain other terms and conditions (including requirements for information) as the Secretary finds necessary and appropriate. (New sec. 1895Q(c))

f. Intermediate Sanctions. The Secretary would be authorized to carry out specific remedies in the event that a Medicare Choice plan sponsor: (1) failed substantially to provide medically necessary items and services required to be provided, if the failure adversely affected (or had the substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) the individual; (2) imposed cost sharing on individuals that were in excess of the cost sharing permitted; (3) expelled or refused to re-enroll an individual; (4) engaged in any practice that would reasonably be expected to have the effect of denying or discouraging enrolling by eligible individuals with the sponsor's plan whose medical condition or history indicates a need for substantial future medical services; (5) misrepresented or falsified information; (6) failed to comply with other specified requirements; or (7) employed or contracted with any individual or entity that was excluded from Medicare or Medicaid participation for the provision of health care, utilization review, medical social work, or administrative services, or employed or contracted with any entity for the provision through such an excluded individual or entity.

The remedies would include civil money penalties of not more than $25,000 for each determination of a failure described above or with respect to certain failures (such as denying enrollment to persons with a preexisting medical condition or misrepresenting information furnished to the Secretary), of not more than $100,000. In cases of the latter, the Secretary could also levy a $15,000 fine for each individual not enrolled. In the case of a plan sponsor determined to have charged excess premiums, the Secretary could also recover twice the excess amount and return the excess amount to the affected individual. In addition, the Secretary could suspend enrollment of individuals and payment to the plan sponsor after notifying it of an adverse determination, until the Secretary was satisfied that the failure had been corrected or would not recur. The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) would apply to the determinations of failures and the remedies described above.

Under his or her authority to terminate contracts, if the Secretary determined that a failure had occurred other than those described above, other intermediate sanctions could be imposed. These include: (1) civil money penalties up to $25,000 if the deficiency directly adversely affected (or had the likelihood of adversely affecting) an individual under the organization's contract; (2) penalties of not more than $10,000 for each week after the Secretary initiated procedures for imposing sanctions; and (3) suspension of enrollment until the deficiency had been corrected and the Secretary determined it was unlikely to recur. (New sec. 1895Q(f))

g. Procedures for Imposing Sanctions. The Secretary could terminate a contract or impose the sanctions described above in accordance with formal investigation and compliance procedures under which (A) the Secretary first provides the sponsor with reasonable opportunity to develop and implement a corrective action plan, which the sponsor fails to do, (B) the Secretary considers aggravating factors such as whether the sponsor has a history of deficiencies or has not taken action to correct those the Secretary brought to its attention, (C) there are no unreasonable or unnecessary delays between finding a deficiency and imposing sanctions, and (D) the Secretary provides reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing, including the right to appeal an initial decision. (New sec. 1895Q(b))

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

The conference agreement does not include the provision for termination of contracts if the plan was operating in a manner that was not in the best interests of the individuals covered under the contract.

Note that New Section 1858 of the Conference Agreement on "Standards for MedicarePlus Information Transactions and Data Elements," are discussed under Subtitle H, Part D of the Conference Report.

10. DUPLICATION AND COORDINATION OF MEDICARE-RELATED PRODUCTS (SEC. 15003 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Many Medicare beneficiaries purchase private health insurance to supplement their Medicare coverage. These individually purchased policies are commonly known as Medigap policies. OBRA 90, P.L. 101–508 provided for a standardization of Medigap policies. OBRA 90 also substantially modified the antiduplication provision contained in law. The intent of the OBRA 90 anti-duplication provision was to prohibit sales of duplicative Medigap policies. However, the statutory language applied, with very limited exceptions, to all "health insurance policies" sold to Medicare beneficiaries. Observers noted that this provision could thus apply to a broad range of policies including hospital indemnity plans, dread disease policies, and long-term care insurance policies.

The Social Security Amendments of 1994 (P.L. 103–432) included a number of technical modifications to the Medigap statute, including modifications to the anti-duplication provisions. Under the revised language, it is illegal to sell or issue the following policies to Medicare beneficiaries: (i) a health insurance policy with knowledge that it duplicates Medicare or Medicaid benefits to which a beneficiary is otherwise entitled; (ii) a Medigap policy, with knowledge that the beneficiary already has a Medigap policy, or (iii) a health insurance policy (other than Medigap) with knowledge that it duplicates private health benefits to which the beneficiary is already entitled. A number of exceptions to these prohibitions are established. The sale of a medigap policy is not in violation of the provisions relating to duplication of Medicaid coverage if: (i) the State Medicaid program pays the premiums for the policy; (ii) in the case of qualified Medicare beneficiaries (QMBs), the policy includes prescription drug coverage; or (iii) the only Medicaid assistance the individual is entitled to is payment of Medicare Part B premiums.

The sale of a health insurance policy (other than a Medigap policy) that duplicates private coverage is not prohibited if the policy pays benefits directly to the individual without regard to other coverage. Further, the sale of a health insurance policy (other than a Medigap policy to an individual entitled to Medicaid) is not in violation of the prohibition relating to selling of a policy duplicating Medicare or Medicaid, if the benefits are paid without regard to the duplication in coverage. This exception is conditional on the prominent disclosure of the extent of the duplication, as part of or together with, the application statement.

P.L. 103–432 provided for the development by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) of disclosure statements describing the extent of duplication for each of the types of private health insurance policies. Statements were to be developed, at a minimum, for policies paying fixed cash benefits directly to the beneficiary and policies limiting benefits to specific diseases. The NAIC identified 10 types of health insurance policies requiring disclosure statements and developed statements for them. These were approved by the Secretary and published in the Federal Register on June 12, 1995.

House bill

The provision would modify the anti-duplication provisions. It would be unlawful to sell to a Medicare beneficiary (including a person under MedicarePlus) a health insurance policy (other than a Medigap policy) with knowledge that it duplicated benefits under Medicare or Medicaid. It would be unlawful to sell, to persons not electing MedicarePlus, a Medigap policy with knowledge that the person is entitled to benefits under another Medigap policy. It would be unlawful to sell to a person electing MedicarePlus a Medigap policy duplicating benefits to which the individual is otherwise eligible under Medicare or another Medigap policy. A policy would be considered duplicative if the policy provided specific reimbursement for identical items and services to the extent paid for under Medicare. A policy would not be considered duplicative if it provided for payment of benefits without regard to other health benefits coverage of the individual. The provision would change the disclosure requirements contained in P.L. 103–432 to require plans to disclose the extent to which they may coordinate benefits with Medicare as part of their outlined coverage.

A health insurance policy (or a rider to an insurance contract which is not a health insurance policy) that coordinates against or excludes items and services covered under Medicare, and for policies sold after January 1, 1996, discloses such coordination or exclusion in the policy's outline of coverage would not be considered duplicative. For this purpose, health insurance policies would include policies providing benefits for long-term care, nursing home care, home health care, or community-based care.

The provision would prohibit the imposition of criminal or civil penalties or the bringing or continuing of legal action relating to selling duplicative policies if the penalty or action was based on actions occurring after November 1, 1991 and before enactment of OBRA of 1995 and if the policy was not duplicative under the revised language. The provision would also prohibit a State from imposing any requirement related to the sale or issuance of a policy (or rider) to a Medicare beneficiary based on the premise that the policy or rider was duplicative. The provision would require the Secretary to report within 3 years of enactment on the advisability of restricting the sale to Medicare beneficiaries of health insurance policies that duplicate other insurance policies the individual may have.

The provision would specifically exclude MedicarePlus products from the definition of Medigap policies. It would also exempt health insurance products sold to persons electing MedicarePlus from requirements relating sale of standardized benefits packages and minimum loss ratios.

The provision would make it unlawful to sell or issue a health insurance policy covering expenses which would otherwise be counted toward meeting the annual deductible amount under a high deductible/medisave product.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision with a modification.

It is the intent of the conferees that this provision be administered as though it were included in OBRA 1990. The agreement specifies that it is illegal to sell suppplemental policies that cover the deductible for persons who have high-deductible MedicarePlus plans.

11. TRANSITIONAL RULES FOR CURRENT MEDICARE HMO PROGRAM (SEC. 15004 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7002 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

a. Termination of Current Contracts. The Secretary would be prohibited from entering into any new risk sharing contract under section 1876 with an eligible organization for any contract year beginning on or after the date MedicarePlus standards are first established with respect to MedicarePlus organizations that are insurers or health maintenance organizations unless a contract with the organization had been in effect under section 1876 for the previous contract year. The Secretary could not extend or continue any risk-sharing contract for any contract year beginning on or after one year after the MedicarePlus standards are established.

The Secretary would also be prohibited from entering into any cost reimbursement contract under section 1876 beginning in any contract year starting on or after the enactment of this legislation. The Secretary could not extend or continue any cost reimbursement contract for any contract year beginning on or after January 1, 1998.

b. Conforming Payment Rates. For individuals entitled to benefits under both part A and part B, payments for risk-sharing contracts for months beginning with January 1996 would be computed by substituting the payment rates specified in this bill in as timely a manner as possible. For individuals entitled to benefits only under part B, the substitution would be based upon the proportion of those rates that reflects the proportion of payments under title XVIII attributable to part B. Payments under cost reimbursement contracts under section 1876(a) would take into account the adjustments to part A and part B payments made by this legislation.

c. Elimination of 50:50 Rule. The 50:50 rule under section 1876(f)] would not apply to contract years beginning on or after January 1, 1996.

d. HMO Limits on Deductibles. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Termination of Current Contracts. Section 1876 would not apply to risk-sharing contracts effective for contract years beginning on or after January 1, 1997. An individual who is enrolled in part B only and is enrolled in an organization with an 1987 contract on December 31, 1996, may continue his or her enrollment. The Secretary would be required to issue regulations relating to such individuals and organizations not later than July 1, 1996.

b. Conforming Payment Rates. (See sec. 7003 of the bill, as described under F(i) of the Senate provisions above.)

c. Elimination of 50:50 Rule. No specific provision, but section 1876 of the Social Security Act would terminate in 1997.

d. HMO Limits on Deductibles. If a member certifies that a Medicare Choice account has been established for his or her benefit, an HMO may reduce the basic health services payment otherwise determined under section 1301(a) of the Public Health Service Act by requiring payment of a deductible by the member.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House provision with a modification.

The Secretary would be prohibited from entering into, renewing, or continuing any risk-sharing contract for any contract year beginning on or after the date standards are established for MedicarePlus organization or in the case of such an organization with a contract in effect as of the date standards were established, one year after such date. The Secretary could not enter into, renew, or continue any risk-sharing contract for any contract year beginning on or after January 1, 2000.

An individual who is enrolled in part B only and was enrolled in an organization with a risk-sharing contract on December 31, 1996, could continue his or her enrollment. The Secretary would be required to issue regulations relating to such individuals and organizations not later than July 1, 1996.

PART 2. SPECIAL RULES FOR MEDICAREPLUS MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

1. DESCRIPTION OF TAXATION OF MEDICARE MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

Present law

Under present law, the value of Medicare coverage and benefits is not includible in taxable income. There are no specific tax provisions for Medicare medical savings accounts ("MMSAs") or Rebate MSAs.

House bill

In general

Under the House bill, individuals who are eligible for Medicare may choose either the traditional Medicare program or a plan with a high deductible insurance policy and an MMSA. To the extent an individual chooses such a plan, the Secretary of Health and Human Services makes a specified contribution directly into an MMSA designated by the individual. Only contributions by the Secretary of Health and Human Services could be made to an MMSA and such contributions are not taxable. Income earned on amounts held in an MMSA are not currently includible in taxable income. Withdrawals from an MMSA are excludable from taxable income if used for the qualified medical expenses of the MMSA holder.

Taxation of distributions from an MMSA

Distributions from an MMSA that are used to pay the qualified medical expenses of the account holder are excludable from taxable income. Qualified medical expenses generally are defined as under the rules relating to the itemized deduction for medical expenses (sec. 213). However, for this purpose, qualified medical expenses do not include any insurance premiums other than premiums for long-term care insurance. Distributions from an MMSA that are excludable from gross income cannot be taken into account for purposes of the itemized deduction for medical expenses.

Distributions for purposes other than qualified medical expenses are includible in taxable income. An additional tax of 50 percent of the amount includible in taxable income applies to the extent the total distributions for purposes other than qualified medical expenses in a taxable year exceed the amount by which the value of the MMSA as of December 31, of the preceding taxable year exceeds 60 percent of the deductible of the plan under which the individual is covered. The additional tax does not apply to distributions on account of the disability or death of the account holder.

The provision includes rules that apply on the death of the MMSA owner. No estate tax applies, and the income tax treatment depends on who is the beneficiary.

Effective date

The provision is effective with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1996.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with modifications. Under the conference agreement, as under the House bill, individuals enrolled in a high deductible plan automatically have contributions made to a high deductible MMSA. In addition, under the conference agreement, if an individual chooses a MedicarePlus option other than the high deductible plan, the individual may direct that the difference between the Medicare payment amount and the cost of the plan is deposited in a rebate MMSA. The Rebate MSA is separate from and cannot be commingled with the high deductible MMSA.

Rebate MMSAs are generally subject to the same rules as high deductible MMSAs, except with respect to the taxation of distributions for nonmedical purposes. With respect to rebate MMSAs, such distributions are includible in income, and subject to a 10-percent additional tax unless the distribution is made after death or disability. The 50-percent excise tax rule does not apply to a Rebate MSA.

2. TAX TREATMENT OF REBATES

Present law

Present law does not provide for cash payments to individuals under Medicare.

House bill

Under the House bill, certain individuals are entitled to cash rebates under the MedicarePlus program. These rebates are not includible in income.

Effective date.—The provision applies to rebates received after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Under the Senate amendment, certain individuals are entitled to cash rebates under the Medicare Choice program. These rebates are includible in income.

Effective date.—Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the House bill with modifications.

PART 3. SPECIAL ANTITRUST RULES FOR PROVIDER SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS

1. APPLICATION OF ANTITRUST RULE OF REASON TO PROVIDER SERVICE NETWORKS (SEC. 15021 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Under Federal antitrust law, agreements among competitors that fix prices or allocate markets are per se (automatically) illegal. Some joint activities, however, if deemed to create an entity separate from and in addition to the competitors who create them (i.e., true joint ventures), are judged under the rule of reason, which finds them legal if they are considered reasonable. The Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission have issued Statements of Enforcement Policy Relating to Health Care and Antitrust, pursuant to which they have attempted to indicate the limited circumstances under which they will consider "physician network joint ventures" not violations of Federal antitrust law.

House bill

Rule of Reason Standard. This provision states that the conduct of a provider service network in negotiating, making, or performing a contract (including the establishment and modification of a fee schedule and the development of a panel of physicians), to the extent such contract is for the purpose of providing health care services to individuals under the terms of a health benefit plan, would not be a per se violation of Federal or State antitrust laws. In addition, the conduct of any member of such a provider service network for the purpose of providing such health care services under a contract to provide health care services to individuals would not be deemed illegal per se under Federal or State antitrust laws. Such conduct shall be judged on the basis of its reasonableness, taking into account all relevant factors affecting competition in properly defined markets.

Definitions. This section defines "antitrust laws" to include those set out in subsection (a) of the first section of the Clayton Act, 15 U.S.C. § 12, as well as § 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, 15 U.S.C. § 45, to the extent that § 5 applies to unfair methods of competition. "Health benefit plan" is defined as a hospital or medical expense incurred policy or certificate, a hospital or medical service plan contract, a health maintenance subscriber contract, or a multiple employer welfare arrangement or employee benefit plan (as defined under ERISA). "Health care provider" is defined as any individual or entity engaged in the delivery of health care services that must be licensed or certified by State law or regulation to deliver such services. "Health care service" means any service for which payment may be made under a health benefit plan, including services related to the delivery or administration of such service. "Provider services network" is defined as an organization that meets the following requirements: It is organized by, operated by, and composed of members who are health care providers and for purposes that include health care services. It is funded in part by capital contributions made by the members of such organization. With respect to each contract made by such organization for the purpose of providing a type of health care service to individuals under the terms of a health benefit plan, the organization requires all members of the organization to agree to provide health care services of such type under such contract, receives the compensation paid for the provision of such health care services, and provides for the distribution of such compensation. It has established programs based on written guidelines to review the quality, efficiency, and appropriateness of treatment methods, health care services, and all patients participating in the health benefit plan, as well as internal procedures to correct any identified deficiencies, to monitor and control utilization of health care services in order to improve efficient care and eliminate the provision of unnecessary health care services. It coordinates the delivery of health care services by all health care providers to all patients participating in the health care plan so as to enhance the quality of health care services provided. And, it has established a grievance and appeal process to review and promptly resolve patient or beneficiary grievances or complaints. "State" is defined as the States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and any other territory or possession of the United States.

Issuance of Guidelines. This provision requires the Attorney General and the Federal Trade Commission, within 120 days after enactment of this bill, to issue joint guidelines specifying the enforcement policies and analytical principles they will apply with respect to the operation of the rule of reason standard.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the House bill with modifications.

The Rule of Reason standard is made applicable to members of a provider-sponsored organization and to members of an unaffiliated group of health care providers.

Protected conduct includes the exchange of information among health care providers relating to costs, sales, profitability, marketing, prices, or fees of any health care product or service if the exchange of information was solely for the purpose of establishing a provider-sponsored organization and reasonably required to do so.

PART 4. COMMISSIONS

1. MEDICARE PAYMENT REVIEW COMMISSION. (SEC. 15031 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

The Prospective Payment Assessment Commission was established by Congress through the Social Security Act Amendments of 1983 (P.L. 98–21). The Commission is charged with reporting each year its recommendation of an update factor for PPS payment rates and for other changes in reimbursement policy. It is also required each year to submit a report to Congress which provides background information on trends in health care delivery and financing. The Physician Payment Review Commission was established by the Congress through the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (P.L. 99–272). It was charged with advising and making recommendations to the Congress on methods to reform payment to physicians under the Medicare program. In subsequent laws, Congress mandated additional responsibilities relating to the Medicare and Medicaid programs as well as the health care system more generally. Both Commissions are appointed by the Director of the Office of Technology Assessment and are funded through appropriations from the Medicare trust funds.

House bill

The provision would establish the Medicare Payment Review Commission (hereafter referred to as "the Commission") to review and make recommendations to Congress concerning payment policies under this title. The Commission would be required to submit a report to Congress by June 1 of each year containing an examination of issues affecting the Medicare program, including implications of changes in health care delivery and in the market for health care services on the Medicare program. The Commission would be authorized to submit from time to time other reports as it deemed appropriate. By May 1, 1997, it would be required to submit a report to Congress on major issues in implementation and further development of the MedicarePlus program. The Secretary would be required to respond to recommendations of the Commission in notices of rulemaking proceedings.

The Commission would be charged with the following specific responsibilities, including reviewing: (1) the appropriateness of the methodology for making payments to the health plans; (2) the appropriateness of the risk adjustment mechanisms and the need to adjust such mechanisms to take into account health status; (3) implications of risk selection; (4) the development and implementation of quality assurance mechanisms with respect to MedicarePlus organizations; (5) the impact of the MedicarePlus program on beneficiary access to care; (6) the feasibility and desirability of extending the rules for open enrollment that apply during the transition period to apply in each county during the first 2 years in which MedicarePlus products are made available; and (7) other issues in implementation and further development of the MedicarePlus program.

The Commission would also be required to review specific aspects of the failsafe budget mechanism established under the bill, including: (1) the appropriateness of the expenditure projections by the Secretary and growth factors for each Medicare sector; (2) the appropriateness of the mechanism for implementing reductions in payment amounts for different sectors; (3) the impact of the failsafe mechanism on provider participation; and (4) the appropriateness of the Medicare benefit budget, especially for fiscal years after 2002.

In addition, the Commission would be required to review payments policies under Medicare parts A and B (fee-for-service), including: (1) factors affecting expenditures in different sectors; (2) payment methodologies; and (3) the impact of payment policies on access and quality of care. It would also look at the effect of Medicare payment policies on the delivery of Medicare services and assess the implications of changes in the health services market on Medicare.

The Commission would be composed of 15 members appointed by the Comptroller General, with the first appointments being made by March 31, 1996. These members would have to meet specific qualifications, (such as national recognition for their expertise in health finance), including representatives of consumers and the elderly. Consideration in the initial appointment would be given to individuals who were already serving on the Physician Payment Review Commission or the Prospective Payment Assessment Commission. Commissioners would serve for 3-year terms. The bill provides for a mechanism for filling vacancies, compensating commissioners, appointing a chair and vice chair; convening meetings; and providing for staff, experts, and consultants. The Commission would be authorized to secure directly from any department or agency information to carry out these provisions. It would be required to collect and assess information (which would be available on an unrestricted basis to GAO). The Commission would be subject to periodic audit by GAO.

The provision authorizes such sums as may be necessary to be appropriated from the Medicare trust funds (60 percent part A and 40 percent from part B). The Comptroller General would be required to provide for appointment of members to the Commission by March 31, 1996. The Prospective Payment Assessment Commission and Physician Payment Review Commission would be abolished within 30 days after a majority of the Medicare Payment Review Commission were appointed. To the extent possible, the Comptroller General would be required to provide for the transfer from the former to the new commission assets and staff without any loss of benefits or seniority by virtue of such transfers. The Commission would be responsible for the preparation and submission of reports required by law to be submitted (and which had not been submitted by the time it was established) by the former commissions.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision with modifications.

With respect to Commission responsibilities, the conference agreement deletes "appropriateness" in the charge to the Commission to review payment and risk adjustment methodology.

The conference agreement does not include the provision requiring the Commission to review specific aspects of the failsafe budget mechanism established under the bill.

It is the intent of the conferees that to the extent possible, in first appointing members to the Commission, the Comptroller General consider appointing individuals who (as of the date of enactment of this section) were serving on ProPAC and PPRC.

In addition, it is the intent of the conferees that the Commission analyze and report on the reasonableness of the ACR, looking at any amounts being charged above the contribution rate and assessing the relationship between that charge and insuring companies' commercial rates. The Commission would also analyze and assess the prevalence of plans in major areas that provide MedicarePlus for the Government's capitated amount.

2. COMMISSION ON THE EFFECT OF THE BABY BOOM GENERATION ON THE MEDICARE PROGRAM (SEC. 15032 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would establish a commission to be known as the Commission on the Effect of the Baby Boom Generation on the Medicare Program, hereafter referred to as "the Commission." It would be required to: (1) examine the financial impact on the Medicare program of the significant increase in the number of Medicare eligible individuals which will occur approximately during 2010 and lasting for approximately 25 years, and (2) make specific recommendations to Congress with respect to a comprehensive approach to preserve the Medicare program for the period during which such individuals are eligible for Medicare. In making its recommendations, the Commission would be required to consider: (1) the amount and sources of Federal funds to finance Medicare, including innovative financing methods; (2) the most efficient and effective manner of administering the program, including the appropriateness of continuing the failsafe mechanism after 2002; (3) methods used by other nations to respond to comparable demographics; (4) modifying age-based eligibility to correspond to that under the OASDI program; and (5) trends in employment-related health care for retirees, including the use of medical savings accounts and similar financing devices.

The Commission would be composed of 15 members, 3 appointed by the President, 6 by the Majority Leader of the Senate in consultation with the Minority Leader, of whom no more than 4 are of the same party; and 6 by the Speaker of the House, after consultation with the Minority Leader, of whom no more than 4 are in the same party. The provision spells out the appointment of a chair and vice chair, appointment of staff and consultants, compensation, the procedure for filling vacancies, and requirements relating to meetings and quorums. Upon request of the Commission, the Comptroller General would be required to conduct such studies or investigations as the Commission determined were needed to carry out its duties. The Director of CBO would be required to provide the commission with cost estimates, for which CBO would be compensated. The Commission would be authorized to detail to it employees of Federal agencies, and to obtain technical assistance and information from Federal agencies.

The Commission would be required to submit to Congress a report, no later than May 1, 1997, containing its findings and recommendations regarding how to protect and preserve the Medicare program in a financially solvent manner until 2030 (or, if later, throughout a period of projected solvency of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund). The report would be required to include detailed recommendations for appropriate legislative initiatives respecting how to accomplish this objective. The Commission would terminate 60 days after the date of submission of the mandated report. An amount of $1.5 million would be authorized to be appropriated.

PART 5. TAX TREATMENT OF HOSPITALS WHICH PARTICIPATE IN PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS (SEC. 15041 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

To qualify as a charitable tax-exempt organization described in Internal Revenue Code (“Code”) section 501(c)(3), an organization must be organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, testing for public safety, literary, or educational purposes, or to foster international sports competition, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals. Although section 501(c)(3) does not specifically mention furnishing medical care and operating a nonprofit hospital, such activities have long been considered to further charitable purposes, provided that the organization benefits the community as a whole.[1]

No part of the net earnings of a 501(c)(3) organization may inure to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual. No substantial part of the activities of a 501(c)(3) organization may consist of carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, and such organization may not participate in, or intervene in, any political campaign on behalf of (or in opposition to) any candidate for public office. In addition, under section 501(m), an organization described in section 501(c)(3) or 501(c)(4) is exempt from tax only if no substantial part of its activities consists of providing commercial-type insurance.

[1] Although not-for-profit hospitals generally are recognized as tax-exempt by virtue of being “charitable” organizations, some may also qualify for exemption as “educational organizations” because they are organized and operated primarily for medical education purposes.

A tax-exempt organization may, subject to certain limitations, enter into a joint venture or partnership with a for-profit organization without affecting its tax-exempt status. Under current ruling practice, the IRS examines the facts and circumstances of each arrangement to determine (1) whether the venture itself and the participation of the tax-exempt organization therein furthers a charitable purpose, and (2) whether the sharing of profits and losses or other aspects of the arrangement entail improper private inurement or more than incidental private benefit.[2]

House bill

The House bill provides that an organization shall not fail to be treated as organized and operated exclusively for a charitable purpose for purposes of Internal Revenue Code (the "Code") section 501(c)(3) solely because a hospital which is owned and operated by such organization participates in a provider-sponsored organization ("PSO") (as defined in section 1845(a)(1) of the Social Security Act), whether or not such PSO is exempt from tax. Thus, participation by a hospital in a PSO (whether taxable or tax-exempt) would be deemed to satisfy the first part of the inquiry under current IRS ruling practice.[3]

The House bill does not change present-law restrictions on private inurement and private benefit. However, the House bill provides that any person with a material financial interest in such a PSO shall be treated as a private shareholder or individual with respect to the hospital for purposes of applying the private inurement prohibition in Code section 501(c)(3). Accordingly, the facts and circumstances of each PSO arrangement will be evaluated to determine whether the arrangement entails impermissible private inurement or more than incidental private benefit (e.g., where there is a disproportionate allocation of profits and losses to the non-exempt partners, the tax-exempt partner makes loans to the joint venture that are commercially unreasonable, the tax-exempt partner provides property or services to the joint venture at less than fair market value, or a non-exempt partner receives more than reasonable compensation for the sale of property or services to the joint venture).

The House bill does not change present-law restrictions on lobbying and political activities. In addition, the restrictions of section 501(m) on the provision of commercial-type insurance continue to apply.

[2] See IRS General Counsel Memorandum 39862; Announcement 92–83, 1992–22 I.R.B. 59 (IRS Audit Guidelines for Hospitals). Even where no prohibited private inurement exists, however, more than incidental private benefits conferred on individuals may result in the organization not being operated "exclusively" for an exempt purpose. See, e.g., American Campaign Academy v. Commissioner, 92 T.C. 1053 (1989).

[3] The qualification of a hospital as a tax-exempt charitable organization under section 501(c)(3) would be determined as under present law. See Rev. Rul. 69–545, 1969–2 C.B. 117.

Effective date.—The House bill is effective on the date of enactment.

SUBTITLE B—FRAUD AND ABUSE

PART 1—GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. INCREASING AWARENESS OF FRAUD AND ABUSE (SEC. 15101 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7103 AND SEC. 7121 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

a. Beneficiary Outreach Efforts. This provision would require the Secretary to make ongoing efforts to alert individuals entitled to Medicare benefits of the existence of fraud and abuse committed against the program, of the costs of such fraud and abuse, and of a toll-free telephone line operated by the Secretary to receive information about such fraud and abuse.

b. Clarification of Requirement to Provide Explanation of Medicare Benefits. The Secretary would be required to provide an explanation of Medicare benefits with respect to each item or service for which payment may be made, without regard to whether a deductible or coinsurance may be imposed with respect to the item or service.

c. Provider Outreach Efforts; Publication of Fraud Alerts. Any person may, at any time, request the Secretary to publish a special fraud alert, which is defined as a notice that informs the public of practices the Secretary considers to be suspect or of particular concern under the Medicare program or a State health care program. Upon receipt of a request for a special fraud alert, the Secretary would be required to investigate to determine whether to issue a special fraud alert. If he determines issuance of a special fraud alert appropriate, he would be required, in consultation with the Attorney General, to publish a special fraud alert in the Federal Register. In determining whether to issue a special fraud alert, the Secretary could consider whether and to what extent the practices in question may result in the consequences described in the criteria used to modify and establish safe harbors, and the extent and frequency of the conduct in question. Each notice issued by the Health Care Financing Administration that informs the public of practices the Secretary considers to be suspect or of particular concern under the Medicare program or a State health care program would be required to be published in the Federal Register, without regard to whether it was issued by a regional office of the Health Care Financing Administration.

d. Establishment of the Health Care Fraud and Abuse Data Collection Program. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Beneficiary Outreach Efforts. No provision.

b. Clarification of Requirement to Provide Explanation of Medicare Benefits. No provision.

c. Provider Outreach Efforts; Publication of Fraud Alerts. Any person may request the Inspector General to issue a special fraud alert informing the public of practices which the Inspector General considers to be suspect or of particular concern under section 1128B(b) of the Social Security Act (anti-kickback provisions). After investigation the subject matter of the request, and, if appropriate, the Inspector General shall issue a special fraud alert in response to the request, published in the Federal Register.

d. Establishment of the Health Care Fraud and Abuse Data Collection Program

In General. The Secretary of Health and Human Services is required to establish a national health care fraud and abuse data collection program for reporting final adverse actions (not including settlements in which no findings of liability have been made) against health care providers, suppliers, or practitioners.

Each government agency and health plan would, on a monthly basis, report any final adverse action taken against a health care provider, supplier, or practitioner. Certain information would be included in the report, including a description of the acts or omissions and injuries upon which the final adverse action was taken. The Secretary would, however, protect the privacy of individuals receiving health care services.

The Secretary would, by regulation, provide for disclosure of the information about adverse actions, upon request, to the health care provider, supplier, or licensed practitioner and provide procedures in the case of disputed accuracy of the information. Each government agency and health plan is required to report corrections of information already reported about any final adverse action taken against a health care provider, supplier, or practitioner in such form and manner that the Secretary prescribes by regulation.

The information in the database would be available to Federal and State government agencies and health plans. The Secretary may approve reasonable fees for the disclosure of information in the database (other than with respect to requests by Federal agencies). The amount of such a fee shall be sufficient to recover the full costs of operating the data base.

No person or entity would be held liable in any civil action with respect to any report made as required by this section, unless the person or entity knows the information is false.

Improved Prevention in Issuance of Medicare Provider Numbers. The Secretary may impose appropriate fees on physicians to cover the costs of investigation and recertification activities with respect to the issuance of identifiers for physicians who furnish services for which Medicare payments are made.

The conference agreement also clarifies that this program is an authorized use of funds under the fraud and abuse control program.

2. BENEFICIARY INCENTIVE PROGRAMS (SEC. 15102 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7152 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

a. Program to Collect Information on Fraud and Abuse. This provision would require the Secretary, within three months after enactment of this bill, to establish a program to encourage individuals to report to the Secretary information on individuals and entities who are engaging or who have engaged in acts or omissions that constitute grounds for sanctions under sections 1128, 1128A, or 1128B of the Social Security Act, or who have otherwise engaged in fraud and abuse against the Medicare program. If an individual reports information to the Secretary under this program that serves as a basis for the collection by the Secretary or the Attorney General of any amount of at least $100 (other than amounts paid as a penalty under section 1128B), the Secretary may pay a portion of the amount collected to the individual, under procedures similar to those applicable under section 7623 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

b. Program to Collect Information on Program Efficiency. The Secretary would be required, within three months after enactment of this bill, to establish a program to encourage individuals to submit to the Secretary suggestions on methods to improve the efficiency of the Medicare program. The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with a modification adding a requirement to provide explanations of Medicare benefits under certain circumstances.

3. INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS FOR MEDICARE HEALTH MAINTENANCE ORGANIZATIONS (SEC. 15103 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7115 OF SENATE BILL)

Current Law

A contract between the Secretary and a Medicare Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) is generally for a one year term, with an option for automatic renewal. However, the Secretary may terminate any such contract at any time, after reasonable notice and an opportunity for a hearing, if the Medicare HMO has failed substantially to carry out the contract, or is carrying out the contract in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of the requirements of section 1876 of the Social Security Act, or if the Medicare HMO no longer substantially meets the statutory requirements contained in Section 1876(b),(c),(e) and (f).

House bill

a. Application of Intermediate Sanctions for Any Program Violations. This provision would add a ground for termination of a Medicare HMO contract by the Secretary, specifying that the Secretary may terminate such a contract if the organization is operating in a manner that is not in the best interests of the individuals covered under the contract. In addition, the Secretary would have the discretion to either terminate the contract or to impose certain intermediate sanctions on the eligible organization.

If the basis for the determination by the Secretary that an intermediate sanction should be imposed on an eligible organization is other than that the organization has failed substantially to carry out its contract with the Secretary, then the Secretary may apply intermediate sanctions as follows: civil money penalties of not more than $25,000 for each determination if the deficiency that is the basis of the determination has directly adversely affected (or has the substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) an individual covered under the organization's contract; civil money penalties of not more than $10,000 for each week of a continuing violation; and suspension of enrollment of individuals until the Secretary is satisfied that the deficiency has been corrected and is not likely to recur.

Whenever the Secretary seeks to either terminate a Medicare HMO contract or impose intermediate sanctions on such an organization, the Secretary must do so pursuant to a formal investigation and under compliance procedures which provide the organization with an opportunity to develop and implement a corrective action plan to correct the deficiencies that were the basis of the Secretary's adverse determination. The Secretary would impose more severe sanctions on organizations that have a history of deficiencies or that have not corrected deficiencies brought to their attention. The Secretary's compliance procedures must also include reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing (including the right to appeal an initial decision) before the Secretary imposes any sanction or terminates the contract of a Medicare HMO, and there must not be any unreasonable or unnecessary delay between the finding of a deficiency and the imposition of sanctions.

b. Effective Date. The amendments made by this section would apply to contract years of eligible organizations beginning on or after January 1, 1996.

Senate bill

a. Application of Intermediate Sanctions for Any Program Violations. Under this section the Secretary may terminate a contract with a Medicare Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) or may impose certain intermediate sanctions on the organization if the Secretary determines that the Medicare HMO has failed substantially to carry out the contract; is carrying out the contract in a manner substantially inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of this section; or, if the Medicare HMO no longer substantially meets the statutory requirements contained in Section 1876(b),(c),(e) and (f) of the Social Security Act.

If the basis for the determination by the Secretary that intermediate sanctions should be imposed on an eligible organization is other than that the organization has failed substantially to carry out its contract with the Secretary, then the Secretary may apply intermediate sanctions as follows: civil money penalties of not more than $25,000 for each determination if the deficiency that is the basis of the determination has directly adversely affected (or has the substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) an individual covered under the organizations's contract; civil money penalties or not more than $10,000 for each week of a continuing violation; and suspension of enrollment of individuals until the Secretary is satisfied that the deficiency has been corrected and is not likely to recur.

Whenever the Secretary seeks to either terminate a Medicare HMO contract or impose intermediate sanctions on such an organization, the Secretary must do so pursuant to a formal investigation and under compliance procedures which provide the organization with a reasonable opportunity to develop and implement a corrective action plan to correct the deficiencies that were the basis of the Secretary's adverse determination. In making a decision whether to impose sanctions the Secretary is required to consider aggravating factors such as whether an entity has a history of deficiencies or has not taken action to correct deficiencies the Secretary has brought to their attention. The Secretary's compliance procedures must also include notice and opportunity for a hearing (including the right to appeal an initial decision) before the Secretary imposes any sanction or terminates the contract of a Medicare HMO, and there must not be any unreasonable or unnecessary delay between the finding of a deficiency and the imposition of sanctions.

b. Agreements with Peer Review Organizations. Under this section each risk-sharing contract with a Medicare HMO must provide that the organization will maintain a written agreement with a utilization and quality control peer review organization or similar organization for quality review functions.

Effective Date. The amendments made by this section shall apply to contract years beginning on or after January 1, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

4. VOLUNTARY DISCLOSURE PROGRAM (SEC. 15104 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Current law does not provide for a program permitting the Secretary to mitigate penalties for parties who voluntarily disclose acts or omissions under Section 1128, 1128A, or 1128B. Section 1128 directs the Secretary to impose mandatory exclusions from the Medicare program and State health care programs for convictions of criminal offenses related to the delivery of an item or service under Medicare or State health care programs, as well as for convictions relating to patient abuse in connection with the delivery of a health care item or service. The Secretary has permissive exclusion authority for a number of criminal offenses relating to health care-related fraud, theft, embezzlement, financial misconduct, kickbacks, misuse of controlled substances, and activities relating to license revocations or suspensions, claims for excessive charges or unnecessary services, and the like. Section 1128A prescribes civil money penalties for a number of illegal activities relating to the submission of claims for reimbursement under the Medicare and Medicaid programs. Violations which are subject to civil money penalties include submitting claims for items or services not provided or which were false or fraudulent, providing services when not a properly licensed physician, and providing items or services by an excluded practitioner. Civil money penalties may also be imposed on a hospital which knowingly makes a payment to a physician, or a physician who knowingly accepts payment from a hospital, as inducement to limit or reduce care to a Medicare or Medicaid patient. Section 1128B sets forth criminal penalties under Medicare and State health care programs for offenses such as false statements in benefit applications or in determining rights under such benefits, concealing information relating to benefits, submitting claims from non-licensed physicians, and soliciting and receiving kickbacks for referrals or soliciting or receiving remuneration for admitting a Medicaid patient.

House bill

Under this section a new provision would be added to Title XI of the Social Security Act directing the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services to establish a program encouraging individuals and entities to voluntarily disclose to the Secretary information on acts or omissions which constitute grounds for the imposition of a sanction under Section 1128, 1128A, or 1128B of the Social Security Act.

Under this program the Secretary would have the authority to mitigate any applicable sanction which the Secretary might otherwise have imposed under Section 1128, 1128A or 1128B. The Secretary would not be required to reduce or mitigate applicable sanctions, but may do so, following a voluntary disclosure. This section would specify that no qui tam lawsuit could be brought under the False Claims Amendments Act of 1986, by private parties against the individual or entity with respect to a voluntarily disclosed act or omission under sections 1128, 1128A or 1128B.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

5. REVISIONS TO CURRENT SANCTIONS. (SEC. 15105 OF HOUSE BILL; SECS. 7102, 7111, 7112, 7113, 7114, 7131 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Section 1128 of the Social Security Act authorizes the Secretary to impose mandatory and permissive exclusions of individuals and entities from participation in the Medicare program, Medicaid program and programs receiving funds under the Maternal and Child Health Service Block Grant, or the Social Services Block Grant. Mandatory exclusions are authorized for convictions of criminal offenses related to the delivery of health care services under Medicare and State health care programs, as well as for convictions relating to patient abuse in connection with the delivery of a health care item or service. In the case of an exclusion under the mandatory exclusion authority the minimum period of exclusion could be no less than five years, with certain exceptions. Permissive exclusions are authorized for a number of offenses relating to fraud, kickbacks, obstruction of an investigation, and controlled substances, and activities relating to license revocations or suspensions, claims for excessive charges or unnecessary services, and the like.

Under Section 1128A of the Social Security Act civil monetary penalties may be imposed for false and fraudulent claims for reimbursement under the Medicare and State health care programs.

Under section 1128B, upon conviction of a program-related felony, an individual may be fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both.

House bill

a. Doubling the Amount of Civil Monetary Penalties. The maximum amount of civil monetary penalties set forth in Sec. 1128A of the Social Security Act would be doubled.

b. Establishment of Minimum Period of Exclusion for Certain Individuals and Entities Subject to Permissive Exclusion. This section would establish a minimum period of exclusion of three years for permissive exclusions of individuals or entities convicted, under Federal or State law, of health care criminal offenses relating to fraud, theft, embezzlement, breach of fiduciary responsibility or other financial misconduct, as well as for convictions relating to obstruction of an investigation, or of a criminal offense involving misuse of controlled substances. The Secretary may determine that a shorter period than three years is appropriate in cases of mitigating circumstances, or that a longer period is appropriate because of aggravating circumstances.

Permissive exclusions in cases relating to license revocations or suspensions for reasons bearing on an individual's or entity's professional competence or financial integrity, and permissive exclusions following the suspension, exclusion or sanction or an individual or entity from any Federal or State health care program for reasons bearing on professional competence or financial integrity, would be not less than the period during which the individual's or entity's license to provide health care has been revoked or suspended, or the individual or entity has been excluded or suspended from a Federal or State health care program.

In cases where the Secretary has permissive authority to exclude an individual or entity from Medicare or State health care programs due to submission of claims for excessive charges or for medically unnecessary services, the period of exclusion would be not less than one year.

Effective Date. The amendments made by this section would apply to acts or omissions occurring on or after January 1, 1996.

c. Application of Certain Health Anti-Fraud and Abuse Sanctions to Fraud and Abuse Against Federal Health Programs. No provision.

d. Mandatory Exclusion From Participation in Medicare and State Health Care Programs. No provision.

e. Permissive Exclusion of Individuals With Ownership or Control Interest in Sanctioned Entities. No provision.

f. Sanctions Against Practitioners and Persons for Failure to Comply With Statutory Obligations. No provision.

g. Social Security Act Civil Monetary Penalties. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Doubling the Amount of Civil Monetary Penalties. No provision.

b. Establishment of Minimum Period of Exclusion for Certain Individuals and Entities Subject to Permissive Exclusion. This section would establish a minimum period of exclusion for certain permissive exclusions from participation in Medicare and State health care programs.

For convictions of misdemeanor criminal health care fraud offenses, criminal offenses relating to fraud in non-health care Federal or State programs, convictions relating to obstruction of an investigation of health care fraud offenses, and convictions of misdemeanor offenses relating to controlled substances, the minimum period of exclusion would be three years, unless the Secretary determines that a longer or shorter period is appropriate, due to aggravating or mitigating circumstances.

For permissive exclusions from Medicare or State health care programs due to the revocation or suspension of a health care license of an individual or entity, the minimum period of exclusion would not be less than the period during which the individual's or entity's license was revoked or suspended.

For permissive exclusions from Medicare or State health care programs due to exclusion from any Federal health care program or State health care program for reasons bearing on an individual's or entity's professional competence or financial integrity, the minimum period of exclusion would not be less than the period the individual or entity is excluded or suspended from a Federal or State health care program.

For permissive exclusions from Medicare or State health care programs due to a determination by the Secretary that an individual or entity has furnished items or services to patients substantially in excess of the needs of such patients or of a quality which fails to meet professionally recognized standards of health care, the period of exclusion would be not less than one year.

c. Application of Certain Health Anti-Fraud and Abuse Sanctions to Fraud and Abuse Against Federal Health Programs.

This section would extend certain criminal penalties for fraud and abuse violations under the Medicare and Medicaid programs to similar violations in other Federal health care programs generally. Other Federal health care programs include health insurance plans or programs funded, in whole or part, by the Federal government, such as the Department of Defense CHAMPUS program and the Office of Personnel Management Federal Employees Health Benefit Program. Violations would include willful submission of false information or claims and anti-kickback activities in Federal health care programs. Penalties include misdemeanor and felony fines and possible imprisonment.

The Secretary may identify community service opportunities for the satisfaction of court-imposed community service obligations in cases resulting from convictions of offenses under this section.

Effective Date. January 1, 1996.

d. Mandatory Exclusion From Participation in Medicare and State Health Care Programs.

Individual Convicted of Felony Relating to Health Care Fraud. This section would require the Secretary to exclude individuals and entities from Medicare and State health care programs who have been convicted of felony offenses relating to health care fraud for a minimum five year period. The Secretary would also retain the discretionary authority to exclude individuals from Medicare and State health care programs who have been convicted of misdemeanor criminal health care fraud offenses, or who have been convicted of a criminal offense relating to fraud, theft, embezzlement, breach of fiduciary responsibility, or other financial misconduct in programs (other than health care programs) funded in whole or part by any Federal, State or local agency.

Individual Convicted of Felony Relating to Controlled Substance. This section would require the Secretary to exclude individuals and entities from Medicare and State health care programs who have been convicted of felony offenses relating to controlled substances for a minimum five year period. The Secretary would retain the discretionary authority to exclude individuals from Medicare and State health care programs who have been convicted of misdemeanor offenses relating to controlled substances.

Effective Date. This section would apply to convictions after the date of the enactment of this statute.

e. Permissive Exclusion of Individuals With Ownership or Control Interest in Sanctioned Entities.

Entities owned, controlled, or managed by a sanctioned individual are already subject to permissive exclusion from participation in Medicare and State health programs by the Secretary. Under this new authority an individual who has a direct or indirect ownership or control interest of 5 percent or more in an entity, or who is an officer or managing employee of an entity may also be excluded from participation in Medicare and State health care programs by the Secretary if the entity has previously been convicted of an offense listed in Section 1128(a) or (b)(1), (2) or (3) or otherwise excluded form program participation. Under the new provision, the culpable individual would also be subject to program exclusion, even if not initially convicted or excluded.

f. Sanctions Against Practitioners and Persons for Failure to Comply With Statutory Obligations.

Minimum Period of Exclusion for Practitioners and Persons Failing to Meet Statutory Obligations. Under this section the Secretary may exclude a practitioner or person for such period as the Secretary may prescribe, except that such period shall be not less than one year.

Repeal of "Unwilling or Unable" Conditions for Imposition of Sanction. The Secretary, in making his determination that a practitioner or person should be sanctioned for failure to comply with certain statutory obligations relating to quality of health care, will no longer be required to prove that the individual was either unwilling or unable to comply with such obligations.

g. Social Security Act Civil Monetary Penalties.

General Civil Monetary Penalties. The provisions under the Medicare and Medicaid programs which provide for civil money penalties for specified fraud and abuse violations would apply to similar violations involving other Federal health care programs. Federal health care programs would include any health insurance plans or programs funded, in whole or part, by the Federal government, such as CHAMPUS and FEHBP.

Civil money penalties and assessments received by the Secretary would be deposited into the Health Care Fraud and Abuse Control Account established under this Act.

Excluded Individual Retaining Ownership or Control Interest in Participating Entity. Any person who has been excluded from participating in Medicare or a State health care program and who retains a direct or indirect ownership or control interest of 5 percent or more in an entity, or who is an officer or managing employee of an entity that is participating in Medicare or a State health care program would be subject to a civil money penalty of not more than $10,000 for each day the prohibited relationship occurs.

Modification of Amounts of Penalties and Assessments. This section would amend the civil money penalty provisions of Section 1128A(a) by increasing the amount of a civil money penalty from $2,000 to $10,000 for each item or service involved. This section also increases the assessment which a person may be subject to from ''not more than twice the amount'' to ''not more than three times the amount'' claimed for each such item or service in lieu of damages sustained by the United States or a State agency because of such claim.

Claim for Item or Service Based on Incorrect Coding or Medically Unnecessary Services. This section would add two practices to the list of prohibited practices for which civil money penalties may be assessed. The first occurs when a person (including an organization or agency, but excluding a beneficiary) engages in a pattern or practice of presenting a claim for an item or service based on a code that the person knows or has reason to know will result in greater payments than appropriate. The second is the practice whereby a person submits a claim or claims that the person knows or has reason to know is for a medical items or services that are not medically necessary.

Permitting Secretary to Impose Civil Monetary Penalty. This section would permit the Secretary to impose an intermediate civil money penalty of not more than $10,000 per violation for violations of the Medicare/Medicare anti-kickback statute. In addition, such person (or entity, but not a beneficiary) shall be subject to an assessment of not more than twice the total amount of the remuneration offered, paid, solicited, or received in the prohibited activity. Calculation of the assessment amount shall be without regard to whether some portion may have been intended to serve a non-prohibited purpose.

Sanctions Against Practitioners and Persons for Failure to Comply with Statutory Obligations. The Secretary has the authority to impose administrative sanctions against practitioners and persons who have failed to comply with certain statutory obligations relating to the quality of medical care rendered. Under this section the Secretary may require, in cases involving medically improper or unnecessary health care services, that the practitioner or person pay the United States an amount up to $10,000 for each instance of medically improper or unnecessary health care services. In such cases the practitioner or person would be permitted to continue to be eligible to receive reimbursement for health care services rendered to program beneficiaries.

Procedural Provisions. The procedural provisions outlined in Section 1128A, such as notice, hearings, and judicial review rights shall apply to civil money penalties assessed against Medicare Health Maintenance Organizations in the same manner as they apply to civil money penalties assessed against health care providers generally.

Prohibition Against Offering Inducements to Individuals Enrolled Under Programs or Plans. This section would add a new practice to the list of prohibited practices for which civil money penalties may be assessed. Any person (including an organization or agency, but excluding a beneficiary) who offers remuneration to an individual eligible for benefits under Medicare or a State health plan to induce that individual to order or receive from a particular provider, practitioner or supplier any item or service reimbursable under Medicare or a State health care program shall be subject to the various civil money penalties, assessments and exclusion provisions of section 1128A of the Social Security Act.

The term "remuneration" is defined to include the waiver of part or all of coinsurance and deductible amounts, as well as transfers of items or services for free, or for other than fair market value. There are exceptions to this definition. The waiver of part or all of coinsurance and deductible amounts would not be considered remuneration under this section if the waiver is not offered as part of any advertisement or solicitation, the person does not routinely waive coinsurance or deductible amounts, and the person either waives the coinsurance and deductible amounts because the individual is in financial need, or fails to collect the amounts after reasonable collection efforts, or provides for a permissible waiver under regulations issued by the Secretary. In addition, the term remuneration would not include differentials in coinsurance and deductible amounts as part of a benefit plan design if the differentials have been disclosed in writing to all beneficiaries, third party payors, and providers, and if the differentials meet the standards defined in the Secretary's regulations. Remuneration would also not include incentives given to individuals to promote the delivery of preventive care under the Secretary's regulations.

Effective Date. January 1, 1996.

Current law

Currently Medicare's program integrity functions are subsumed under Medicare's general administrative budget. These functions are performed, along with general claims processing functions, by insurance companies under contract with the Health Care Financing Administration.

House bill

a. Establishment of Medicare Integrity Program. This provision would establish a Medicare Integrity Program under which the Secretary would promote the integrity of the Medicare program by entering into contracts with eligible private entities to carry out certain activities. These activities would include the following: (1) review of activities of providers of services or other individuals and entities furnishing items and services for which payment may be made under the Medicare program, including medical and utilization review and fraud review, (2) audit of cost reports, (3) determinations as to whether payment should not be, or should not have been, made by reason of the Medicare as secondary payor provisions, and recovery of payments that should not have been made, and (4) education of providers of services, beneficiaries, and other persons with respect to payment integrity and benefit quality assurance issues. The Secretary would impose certain eligibility requirements on entities entering into contracts under this Medicare Integrity Program.

The Secretary would be authorized to establish, by regulation, procedures for entering into contracts, including procedures relating to the number of contracts and the timing of contracts, competitive procedures for new contracts, and waiver of competitive procedures for renewed contracts under certain circumstances.

The Secretary would be required to provide, by regulation, for the limitation of a contractor's liability under the Medicare Integrity Program. The Secretary would employ, to the extent he finds appropriate, the same or comparable standards and other substantive and procedural provisions as are contained in section 1157 of the Social Security Act.

The Secretary would be required to transfer, for each fiscal year, from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund, to the Medicare Anti-Fraud and Abuse Trust Fund an amount equal to the total amount of expenditures that the Secretary would have made under this title during the year to carry out the activities described herein if the Medicare Integrity Program had not been in effect.

Such transfer would be in an allocation as reasonably reflects the proportion of such expenditures associated with part A and part B.

There would be established in the Treasury of the United States the Anti-Fraud and Abuse Trust Fund, which would consist of such gifts and bequests as may be made unconditionally to the Trust Fund and such amounts as may be deposited in the Trust Fund as provided in this section. The Secretary of the Treasury would be required to invest such amounts of the Funds as he determines are not required to meet current withdrawals from the Fund in government account serial securities. Any interest derived from investments would be credited to the Fund.

Certain amounts would be deposited in the Trust Fund, including moneys from fines, penalties and damages assessed under various Medicare and State health care programs. There would be appropriated from the Trust Fund for each fiscal year such amounts as are necessary to carry out the Medicare Integrity Program, subject to specific limitations for fiscal years 1996 through 2002. The Secretary would submit an annual report to Congress on the revenues generated and disbursed by the Trust Fund each fiscal year.

Elimination of FI and Carrier Responsibility for Carrying Out Activities Subject to Program. This provision prohibits any agency, organization, or carrier, from carrying out (or receiving payment for carrying out) any activity pursuant to an agreement under this section to the extent that the activity is carried out pursuant to a contract under the Medicare Integrity Program.

Conforming Amendment. This section specifies that certain penalties and assessments be deposited in the Trust Fund as provided herein.

Direct Spending for Medicare-Related Activities of Inspector General. Under this section certain amounts, subject to specified limitations, are appropriated from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Supplementary Medicare Insurance Trust Fund to the Inspector General of HHS for activities relating to the Medicare program. These activities include prosecuting medicare-related matters through criminal, civil, and administrative proceedings, conducting investigations, audits and inspections, and conducting provider and consumer education activities regarding fraud and abuse provisions.

Senate bill

a. Establishment of Medicare Integrity Program. No provision.

b. Fraud and Abuse Control Program. The Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (acting through the Office of the Inspector General) and the Attorney General would be required to jointly establish a national health care fraud and abuse control program to coordinate Federal, State and local law enforcement efforts to combat fraud and abuse in the delivery of and payment for health care in the United States. To facilitate the enforcement of this fraud and abuse control program the Secretary and Attorney General would be authorized to conduct investigations, audits, evaluations and inspections relating to the delivery and payment for health care, and would be required to arrange for the sharing of data with representatives of public and private third party payers. This program, implemented by guidelines issued by the Secretary and the Attorney General, would also facilitate the enforcement of applicable Federal statutes relating to health care fraud and abuse, and would provide for the provision of guidance to health care providers through the issuance of safe harbors, interpretive rulings and special fraud alerts.

The Secretary and Attorney General would consult with and share data with representatives of health plans. Guidelines issued by the Secretary and Attorney General would ensure the confidentiality of information furnished by health plans, providers and others, as well as the privacy of individuals receiving health care services. Monies derived from the coordinated health care anti-fraud and abuse program from imposition of civil money penalties, fines, forfeitures and damages assessed in criminal, civil or administrative health care cases, along with any gifts or bequests would be transferred into the Medicare HI trust fund. There are also appropriated from the HI trust fund to the Account such sums as the Secretary and the Attorney General certify are necessary to carry out certain functions, subject to specified limits for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2002. These functions include prosecuting health care matters, investigations, audits of health care programs and operations, inspections and other evaluations, and provider and consumer education regarding compliance with fraud and abuse provisions. Amounts in the Account would also be available to the various State Medicaid fraud control units to reimburse such units for the costs of certain activities. The Secretary and the Attorney General are required to submit a joint annual report to Congress on the revenues and expenditures, and the justification for such disbursements of the Health Care Fraud and Abuse Control Account.

Senate bill

This section would provide procedures for the Attorney General to make investigative demands in cases regarding health care fraud. Under this section, the Attorney General could issue a summons for records and/or a witness to authenticate the records, although a witness would not be required to appear at any hearing more than 500 miles distant from the place where he was served with a subpoena. Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision, with a modification to limit applicability to matters involving federal health care programs.

11. GRAND JURY DISCLOSURE (SEC. 15131 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7144 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Attorneys for the United States government are generally forbidden from disclosing matters occurring before the grand jury under Rule 6(e)(2) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. Exceptions to this requirement include the following: Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(I), which allows a government attorney to disclose matters occurring before a grand jury (excluding deliberations and the vote of any grand juror) to an attorney for the government for use in the performance of such attorney's duties; Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(ii), which allows similar disclosure to such government personnel as are deemed necessary to an attorney for the government to assist in the enforcement of federal criminal law; and Rule 6(e)(3)(C)(I), which allows a court to direct disclosure of grand jury proceedings in connection with or preliminary to a judicial proceeding. The Supreme Court has interpreted these exceptions narrowly, however, holding that the disclosure allowed under Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(I) and (ii) must be relevant to the criminal process which is the focus of the grand jury, and that disclosure under Rule 6(e)(3)(C)(I) will only be directed by a court under a strong showing of particularized need. United States v. Sells Engineering, Inc., 463 U.S. 418 (1983). Thus, a government attorney prosecuting a criminal case before a grand jury may not be able to divulge information occurring before the grand jury to a government attorney engaged in a civil investigation or proceeding on the same matters.

House bill

A person who is privy to grand jury information concerning a Federal health care offense received in the course of duty as an attorney for the Government or disclosed under Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(I) may disclose such information to another attorney for the Government to use in any investigation or civil proceeding relating to health care fraud.

Senate bill

A person who is privy to grand jury information concerning a Federal health care offense received in the course of duty as an attorney for the Government or disclosed under Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure Rule 6(e)(3)(A)(I) may disclose such information to another attorney for the Government to use in any investigation or civil proceeding relating to health care fraud.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include either the House or Senate provisions.

12. MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENT TO TITLE 18, UNITED STATES CODE (SEC. 15132 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7148, 7142 OF SENATE BILL)

a. Laundering of Monetary Instruments

Current law

The current Federal money laundering provision is found at 18 U.S.C. § 1956(c)(7), but does not include money laundering as related to health care fraud.

House bill

An act or activity constituting a Federal health care offense would be considered a "specified unlawful activity" for purposes of the prohibition on money laundering, so that any person who engages in money laundering in connection with a Federal health care offense would be subject to existing criminal penalties.

Senate bill

An act or activity constituting a Federal health care offense would be considered a "specified unlawful activity" for purposes of the prohibition on money laundering, so that any person who engages in money laundering in connection with a Federal health care offense would be subject to existing criminal penalties.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

b. Enhanced Penalties (Telemarketing)

Current law

18 U.S.C. § 2325 provides for enhanced penalties for offense occurring during a telemarketing scheme. The present law does not apply specifically to Federal Health Care offense.

House bill

This section would provide that a person convicted of a Federal Health Care offense which occurred in the course of a telemarketing scheme which targeted persons over fifty-five, or which victimized ten or more persons over 55, may be imprisoned up to an additional ten years.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

c. Authorization for Interception of Wire, Oral, or Electronic Communication

Current law

18 U.S.C. § 2516 sets forth the federal statutes for which authorization to place a wire-tap may be sought from the courts. Federal Health Care offenses are not specifically included in this list.

House bill

This section would establish a court's authority to approve an application for a wiretap to be placed in order to gather evidence related to a Federal Health Care Offense, as defined in § 15121.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

d. Definitions (RICO)

Current law

A RICO violation may be summarized as follows: whoever participates in a commercial "enterprise" or an "enterprise" which has an impact on commerce through a pattern of specific criminal "racketeering" activity can be found to be in violation of RICO. Typical "racketeering" activity includes murder, kidnapping, robbery, arson, bribery, loan-sharking, mail fraud, wire fraud, obstruction of justice, witness retaliation, or extortion. Federal Health Care Offenses are not specifically listed as a "racketeering activity."

House bill

This section would establish a Federal Health Care Offense as a predicate offense for purposes of establishing a pattern of "racketeering activity" under RICO.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference provision does not include the House provision.

e. Criminal Forfeiture

Current law

Depending on the facts of a particular case, criminal forfeiture may be imposed on persons convicted under federal money laundering statutes, racketeering statutes, and other related laws.

House bill

A court imposing a sentence on a person convicted of a Federal health care offense would order the person to forfeit all real or personal property that is derived, directly or indirectly, from proceeds traceable to the commission of the offense.

Senate bill

A court imposing a sentence on a person convicted of a Federal health care offense would order the person to forfeit all real or personal property that is derived, directly or indirectly, from proceeds traceable to the commission of the offense. After payment of the costs of asset forfeiture have been made, the Secretary of the Treasury would deposit into the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund an amount equal to the net amount realized from the forfeiture of property by reason of a federal health care offense.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

13. STATE HEALTH CARE FRAUD CONTROL UNITS (SEC. 7151 OF SENATE BILL)

Current Law

State Medicaid Fraud Control Units are presently authorized under the Medicaid program and are certified annually by the Secretary if they meet certain requirements. Such units must be a unit of State government with either (a) statewide authority to investigate and prosecute individuals for criminal violations of State laws regarding fraud in the provision of medical assistance under the Medicaid program, or (b) have formal procedures providing effective coordination with the activities of the State Attorney General's office or other office with prosecutive authority. State Medicaid Control Units must also have procedures for reviewing complaints of abuse and neglect of patients of health care facilities receiving Medicaid payments and, where appropriate, acting on such complaints or referring them for action.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

a. Extension of Concurrent Authority to Investigate and Prosecute Fraud in Other Federal Programs. This section changes the State Medicaid Fraud Control Unit authorization language to specify that those units will have concurrent authority to investigate and prosecute health care fraud in other Federal programs at the approval of the relevant Federal agency.

b Extension of Authority to Investigate and Prosecute Patient Abuse in Non-Medicaid Board and Care Facilities. States have the option, under this section, to establish procedures for reviewing complaints of abuse or neglect of patients residing in board and care facilities and, where appropriate, acting on such complaints or referring them for action. "Board and care facility" is defined as a residential setting which receives payment from or on behalf of two or more unrelated adults who reside in such facility, and for whom either nursing care services are provided, or personal care services are provided, or both.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with a clarification that concurrent authority of Medicaid Fraud Control Units to investigate and prosecute health care fraud requires approval of the chief executive officer of the State or such officer's designee, as well as of the relevant Federal agency.

SUBTITLE C—REGULATORY RELIEF

A. PHYSICIAN OWNERSHIP AND REFERRAL REFORM

1. REPEAL OF PROHIBITIONS BASED ON COMPENSATION ARRANGEMENTS (SEC. 15201 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

The law establishes a ban on certain financial arrangements between a referring physician and an entity. Specifically, if a physician (or immediate family member) has an ownership or investment interest in or a compensation arrangement with an entity, the physician is prohibited from making a referral to the entity for services for which Medicare would otherwise pay. Further, the entity may not bill for such services. For purposes of the ban, an ownership or investment interest may be through equity or debt or other means and includes an interest in an entity that holds an ownership or investment interest in any entity providing designated health services. A compensation arrangement is generally defined as any arrangement involving any remuneration between a physician (or immediate family member) and an entity.

The law includes general exceptions to the ban. Some are general exceptions to both the ownership and compensation arrangement prohibitions, while others relate only to ownership or only to compensation arrangements.

House bill

The provision would repeal the prohibitions based on compensation arrangements.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

2. REVISION OF DESIGNATED HEALTH SERVICES SUBJECT TO PROHIBITION (SEC. 15202 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

OBRA 89, which established the initial self-referral ban applied the ban to referrals for clinical laboratory services only. OBRA 93 (as modified by P.L. 103–432) extended the ban to additional “designated health services”, effective January 1, 1995. These designated health services are: (i) physical therapy services; (ii) occupational therapy services; (iii) radiology, including magnetic resonance imaging, computerized axial tomography scans, and ultrasound services; (iv) radiation therapy services and supplies; (v) durable medical equipment and supplies; (vi) parenteral and enteral nutrients, equipment and supplies; (vii) prosthetics, orthotics, and prosthetic devices; (viii) home health services and supplies; (ix) outpatient prescription drugs; and (x) inpatient and outpatient hospital services.

House bill

The provision revises the list of "designated health services". Under the provision, the referral ban would apply only to: (i) clinical laboratory services, (ii) parenteral and enteral nutrients, equipment and supplies; (iii) magnetic resonance imaging and computerized tomography services; and (iv) outpatient physical or occupational therapy services.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision with an amendment modifying the description of item (iii) to read "radiology services, including magnetic resonance imaging, computerized tomography, and ultrasound services."

3. DELAY IN IMPLEMENTATION UNTIL PROMULGATION OF REGULATIONS (SEC. 15203 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

The self-referral provisions included in OBRA 89 applied to Medicare referrals for clinical laboratory services made on or after January 1, 1992. OBRA 93 expanded the referral ban to a list of "designated health services" and extended the prohibition to Medicaid. OBRA 93 also included significant revisions to the OBRA 89 provisions. In general, the amendments made by OBRA 93 (as amended by P.L. 103–432) apply with respect to referrals made on or after January 1, 1995; however some provisions had a retroactive effective date of January 1, 1992.

On August 14, 1995, DHHS issued final regulations implementing the OBRA 89 requirements. These regulations are effective September 13, 1995. DHHS noted that these regulations relate only to referrals for clinical laboratory services and address only those provisions that had an effective date, including a retroactive effective date, of January 1, 1992.

House bill

The proposal specifies that the amendments made by OBRA 93 would not apply to any referrals made before the effective date of the final implementing regulations promulgated by the Secretary of DHHS.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

4. EXCEPTION TO PROHIBITIONS (SEC. 15204 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

a. In-Office Ancillary Services. The law includes general exceptions to the self-referral ban. Some are general exceptions to both the ownership and compensation arrangement prohibitions, while others relate only to ownership or only to compensation arrangements.

A general exception applies to in-office ancillary services which are defined as furnished by the physician making the referral, another physician in the same group practice, or personally by individuals directly supervised by the physician or another physician in the same group practice.

The in-office ancillary services exception contains a site-of-service requirement. To meet the exception, the services must be furnished in: (i) a building in which the referring physician or other member of the group practice provides services unrelated to the furnishing of designated health services; or (ii) in a building used for the centralized provision of the group's designated health services. OBRA 93 specified that for clinical laboratory services only, the exception only applies if the services are provided in a centralized location.

b. Rural Providers. The law includes an exception, related only to the ownership and investment prohibition, for rural providers. To be eligible for an exception, the entity must be in a rural area. Further, the exception only applies if substantially all of the designated health services furnished by the entity are furnished to individuals residing in rural areas.

c. Prepaid Health Plans. The law includes a general exception for services provided by a prepaid health plan to enrollees. The definition of prepaid plans includes those either meeting Medicare requirements, operating as prepaid plans under a Medicare demonstration project, or meeting the requirements of a federally-qualified health maintenance organization.

d. Exceptions for Other Entities. No provision.

House bill

a. In-Office Ancillary Services. The provision would modify the exception for in-office ancillary services. It would repeal the site-of-service requirement. It would also provide that non-physician personnel must be under the general supervision (rather than the direct supervision) of a physician. An individual would be under the general supervision of a physician (or a group practice of which the physician is a member) if the physician is legally responsible for the services performed by the individual and for ensuring the individual meets licensure and certification requirements regardless of whether or not the physician is physically present when the services are delivered.

b. Rural Providers. The provision would modify the provision relating to rural providers. To qualify for an exception, not less than 75 percent of the designated health services must be furnished to individuals residing in rural areas.

c. Prepaid Plans. The provision would modify the definition of prepaid plans to refer to managed care plans. It would expand the definition to include HMOs which have a contract under MedicarePlus or which have a contract with the State to provide Medicaid services. It would add an exception for other entities under the following conditions. The entity must provide for or arrange for the provision of services pursuant to a written agreement between the organization and an individual or entity. The agreement must place the individual or entity at substantial financial risk for the cost or utilization of services which the individual or entity is obligated to provide. This obligation may be through withhold, capitation, incentive pool, per diem payment, or any other similar risk arrangement which places the individual or entity at substantial financial risk.

d. Exceptions for Other Entities. The provision would add a new exception for shared facility services. The services must be furnished by the facility to patients of shared facility physicians; the physicians must have a financial relationship under a shared facility arrangement with the facility. A shared facility arrangement is one: (i) which is only between physicians who are providing services (unrelated to shared facility services) in the same building; (ii) in which the overhead expenses are shared among the physicians in accordance with previously determined methods; and (iii) which, in the case of a corporation, is wholly owned and controlled by shared facility physicians.

The provision would add a new exception for services furnished in communities which the Secretary of DHHS determines do not have access to alternative providers.

The provision would add an exception for services furnished in ambulatory surgical centers, renal dialysis facilities, comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facilities, and hospice programs.

Senate bill

a. In-Office Ancillary Services. No provision.
b. Rural Providers. No provision.
c. Prepaid Health Plans. No provision.
d. Exceptions for Other Entities. No provision.

Conference agreement

a. In-Office Ancillary Services. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

b. Rural Providers. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

c. Prepaid Health Plans. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

d. Exceptions for Other Entities. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

5. REPEAL OF REPORTING REQUIREMENTS (SEC. 15205 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

The law establishes a reporting requirement for entities providing services under Medicare. Reports are to include information on the entity's ownership, investment and compensation arrangements.

House bill

The provision would delete the reporting requirements.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

6. PREEMPTION OF STATE LAW (SEC. 15206 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would specify that the self-referral provisions preempt State law to the extent State law was inconsistent.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

7. EFFECTIVE DATE (SEC. 15207 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would apply to referrals made on or after August 14, 1995, regardless of whether or not regulations are promulgated to carry out such amendments. The provision delaying the applicability of the effective date of OBRA 93 changes until issuance of regulations would be effective as if included in OBRA 93.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision modified to revise the effective date to "upon enactment."

B. OTHER MEDICARE REGULATORY RELIEF

1. REPEAL OF MEDICARE AND MEDICAID COVERAGE DATA BANK (SEC. 15211 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Under the Medicare secondary payer (MSP) program, the individual's employer-based group health insurance, liability insurance, or no-fault insurance may be the primary payer in certain cases. The OBRA 93 provided for the establishment of a Medicare and Medicaid Coverage Data Bank by the Secretary of DHHS. OBRA 93 required employers having or contributing to a group health insurance plan to submit employee health insurance information to the Secretary, on an annual basis, for calendar years 1994–1997. The 1994 submission was due by February 1995. The information was intended to facilitate the identification of both Medicare secondary payer cases and those circumstances in which employer-based insurance, rather than Medicaid, should be the primary payer.

A number of employers voiced strong opposition to the Data Bank requirements. One of the principal concerns was that employers would be required to report information which they did not routinely collect. In response to these concerns, the Conference agreement accompanying the FY 1995 Labor, DHHS, and Education appropriations bill (P.L.103–333) contained specific language relating to the Data Bank. It directed that no DHHS funds should be used for the implementation of or planning for implementation of the Bank.

House bill

The provision would repeal the Data Bank requirement.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

2. CLARIFICATION OF LEVEL OF KNOWLEDGE REQUIRED FOR IMPOSITION OF CIVIL MONETARY PENALTIES (SEC. 15212(A) OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Civil money penalties may be imposed for seeking reimbursement under the Medicare and Medicaid programs for items or services not provided or for services provided by someone who was not a licensed physician, whose license was obtained through misrepresentation, or who misrepresented his or her qualification as a specialist, or where the claim is otherwise fraudulent. Civil penalties may also be sought for presenting a claim for payments which are in violation of: 1) contracts limiting payment due to assignment of a patient, 2) agreements with state agencies limiting permitted charges, 3) agreement with participating physicians or suppliers, and 4) agreements with providers of service. Civil penalties may also be sought against persons who provide false or misleading information that could reasonably be expected to influence a decision to discharge a person from a hospital. A person is subject to these provisions if they presented a claim and he or she "knows or should have known" that the claim fell into one of the categories listed above.

House bill

This section adds a requirement, similar to the False Claims Act, that a person is subject to this provision when the person "knowingly" presents a claim that the person "knows or should know" fell into one of the prohibited categories. Thus, an assessment under this provision would only be made where a person had actual knowledge that he or she had submitted a claim or had provided false or misleading information, and where the person had actual knowledge of the fraudulent nature of the claim, acted in deliberate ignorance, or acted in reckless disregard. The requirement that a person "knowingly" presents a claim or "knowingly" makes a false or misleading statement which influences discharge would prevent charging persons who inadvertently perform these acts.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

3. CLARIFICATION OF EFFECT AND APPLICATION OF SAFE HARBOR EXCEPTIONS (SECTION 15212(B) OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

The Medicare and Medicaid anti-kickback provisions generally prohibit anyone from providing or offering to provide remuneration in cash or in kind in return for a patient referral whose treatment is paid for in whole or in part by Medicare or Medicaid. The provisions in section 1128B(b) of the Social Security Act also prohibit the solicitation or receipt of such remuneration and arranging or recommending a referral for remuneration. Violations are felonies and are subject to a fine of up to $25,000 or imprisonment for up to five years, or both. Certain business practices are exempted from the application of these provisions and the DHHS Office of Inspector General is directed to issue safe harbor regulations for additional payment practices that would not be subject to criminal prosecution or provide a basis for exclusion from participation in Medicare and Medicaid. If an individual or entity engages in a business arrangement which is the subject of a safe harbor provision and complies with all of the applicable requirements of the provision that individual or entity will be assured that he or she will not be prosecuted.

House bill

This section provides that the specification of any payment practice by the Secretary under this provision is to be solely for the purpose of adding additional exceptions to the types of conduct, and are not for the purpose of limiting the scope of such exceptions. In addition, an acceptable payment practice shall apply notwithstanding the intent of the party engaging in that practice.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

4. LIMITING IMPOSITION OF ANTI-KICKBACK PENALTIES TO ACTIONS WITH SIGNIFICANT PURPOSE TO INDUCE REFERRALS (SEC. 15212(C) OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

The anti-kickback provisions in Section 1128B(b) prescribe criminal penalties for individuals or entities who knowingly and willfully offer or pay remuneration to induce business reimbursed under Medicare or State health care programs.

House bill

This section would amend Section 1128B(b)(2) to provide that person was subject to the anti-kickback provisions only if the remuneration which is offered is done so "for the significant purpose of inducing" business which would be reimbursed under Medicare or State health care programs. This would narrow the application of the anti-kickback provisions to only those situations where inducement was a significant purpose of remuneration.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

5. CLARIFICATION OF AND ADDITIONS TO EXCEPTIONS TO ANTI-KICKBACK PENALTIES (SEC. 15213 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7116 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

The anti-kickback provisions in Section 1128B(b) contain several exceptions. These exceptions include discounts or other reductions in price obtained by a provider of services or other entity under Medicare or a State health care program if the reduction in price is properly disclosed and appropriately reflected in the costs claimed or charges made by the provider or entity under Medicare or a State health care program; any amount paid by an employer to an employee for employment in the provision of covered items or services; any amount paid by a vendor of goods or services to a person authorized to act as a purchasing agent for a group of individuals or entities under specified conditions; a waiver of any coinsurance under Part B of Medicare by a Federally qualified health care center with respect to an individual who qualifies for subsidized services under a provision of the Public Health Service Act; and any payment practice specified by the Secretary as a Safe Harbor exception.

House bill

This section would add new exception to the anti-kickback provisions allowing remuneration between a MedicarePlus organization under part C of Title XVIII and an individual or entity providing services pursuant to a written agreement between the MedicarePlus organization and the individual or entity. Remuneration would also be allowed between an organization and an individual or entity if a written agreement places the individual or entity at substantial financial risk for the cost or utilization of the items or services which the individual or entity is obligated to provide. The risk arrangement may be provided through a withhold, capitation, incentive pool, per diem payment or other similar risk arrangement. This amendment would apply to acts or omissions occurring after January 1, 1996.

Senate bill

The Secretary of DHHS is directed to conduct a study evaluating the benefits of discounting and other reductions in price obtained by a provider of services or other entity under Medicare or State health care programs. The study would identify mechanisms to assure that the Medicare program benefits from such discounts. The Secretary would report on the findings of the study to Congress and develop budget neutral regulations based on study's findings.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision with a clarification.

6. SOLICITATION AND PUBLICATION OF MODIFICATIONS TO EXISTING SAFE HARBORS AND NEW SAFE HARBORS (SEC. 15214 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7103 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

The 1987 Medicare and Medicaid Patient and Program Protection Act specified various payment practices which, although potentially capable of inducing referrals of business under Medicare or State health care programs, are protected from criminal prosecution or civil sanction under the anti-kickback provisions of the law. The 1987 law also established authority for the Secretary to promulgate regulations specifying additional payment practices, known as "safe harbors", which will not be subject to sanctions under the fraud and abuse provisions.

House bill

The Secretary would publish an annual notice in the Federal Register soliciting proposals for modifications to existing safe harbors, new safe harbors, interpretive rulings and special fraud alerts. After considering such proposals the Secretary, in consultation with the Attorney General, would, after notice and comment, issue final rules modifying existing safe harbors and establishing new safe harbors, as appropriate. The Secretary, in considering these proposals, may consider the extent to which such a proposal would affect access to health care service, quality of health care services, patient freedom of choice among health care providers, competition among health care providers, cost of health care programs to Government, over-utilization of health care services, and any other factors appropriate to prevent fraud and abuse in health care programs of the Federal Government. The Inspector General would issue an annual report on the proposals received by the Secretary, the proposals issued by the Secretary, and an explanation of the reason for rejection of any of the proposals received.

Senate bill

The Secretary would publish an annual notice in the Federal Register soliciting proposals for modifications to existing safe harbors and new safe harbors. After considering such proposals the Secretary, in consultation with the Attorney General, would issue final rules modifying existing safe harbors and establishing new safe harbors, as appropriate. The Inspector General would submit an annual report to Congress describing the proposals received, as well as the action taken regarding the proposals. The Secretary, in considering proposals, may consider a number of factors including the extent to which the proposals would affect access to health care services, quality of health care services, patient freedom of choice among health care providers, competition among health care providers, ability of health care facilities to provide services in medically underserved areas or to medically underserved populations, and the like.

The Secretary of Health and Human Services would publish the first notice in the Federal Register soliciting proposals for new or modified safe harbors no later than January 1, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

7. ISSUANCE OF ADVISORY OPINIONS/INTERPRETATIVE RULINGS UNDER TITLE XI (SEC. 15215 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7103 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary would issue regulations to provide for a procedure by which a party may seek an advisory opinion from the Secretary. These opinions would be binding, and could include matters such as what constitutes prohibited remuneration, what arrangements are excluded from these prohibitions, whether an arrangement satisfies the criteria established by the Secretary for activities which do not result in prohibited remuneration, what constitutes an inducement to reduce or limit services, and whether an activity constitutes grounds for imposition of penalties. Such opinions would not address whether the fair market value was received for goods and whether an individual is a bona fide employee for tax purposes. The Secretary would respond to advisory opinion requests within 30 days, and a fee equal to the costs incurred would be charged. The effective date of this section is January 1, 1996.

Senate bill

Interpretive rulings may be requested, at any time, by any person, and would be issued by the Inspector General, in consultation with the Attorney General, not later than 90 days after receiving such a request. Interpretive rulings would be published in the Federal Register, but would not have the force of law. If the Inspector General does not issue an interpretive ruling, he or she would notify the requester within sixty days of the request and give the reasons for denial.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

8. PRIOR NOTICE OF CHANGES IN BILLING AND CLAIMS PROCESSING REQUIREMENTS FOR PHYSICIANS' SERVICES

Current Law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would require the Secretary, unless otherwise specifically provided by Congress, to give at least 120 days notice before making changes in billing and processing requirements for physicians claims.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

C. PROMOTING PHYSICIAN SELF-POLICING

1. EXEMPTION FROM ANTITRUST LAWS FOR CERTAIN ACTIVITIES OF MEDICAL SELF-REGULATORY ENTITIES (SEC. 15221 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would provide an exemption from Federal and State antitrust laws for health care service activities which are considered safe harbors under the provision. A safe harbor is generally described as any activity of a medical self-regulatory entity relating to standard setting or standard enforcement activities that are designed to promote the quality of health care services provided to patients. However, no activity of a medical self-regulatory entity could be deemed to be a safe harbor under this section if the activity was conducted for purposes of financial gain, or the activity interfered with the provision of health care services by any health care provider who was not a member of the specific profession which was subject to the authority of the medical self-regulatory entity.

For purposes of the provision, the term "antitrust laws" would have the meaning given it in subsection (a) of the first section of the Clayton Act, except that the term includes section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act to the extent that section applies to unfair methods of competition. A "medical self-regulating entity" would be defined as a medical society or association, a specialty board, a recognized accrediting agency, or a hospital medical staff, and includes the members, officers, employees, consultants, and volunteers or committees of such an entity. "Standard setting or standard enforcement activities" mean accreditation of health care practitioners, health care providers, medical education institutions, or medical education programs, as well as technology assessment and risk management activities, the development and implementation of practice guidelines or practice parameters, or official peer review proceedings undertaken by a hospital medical staff or a medical society for purposes of evaluating the professional conduct or quality of health care provided by a medical professional. This section also defines "health care service", "health care provider" and "health benefit plan".

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

SUBTITLE D—MEDICAL LIABILITY REFORM

A. General Provisions

1. FEDERAL REFORM OF HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTIONS (SEC. 15301 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

There are no uniform Federal standards governing health care liability actions.

House bill

The provision would provide for Federal reform of health care liability actions. It would apply to any health care liability action brought in any State or Federal court. The provisions would not apply to any action for damages arising from a vaccine-related injury or death or to the extent that the provisions of the National Vaccine Injury Compensation Program apply. The provisions would also not apply to actions under the Employment Retirement Income Security Act. The provisions would preempt State law to the extent State law provisions were inconsistent with the new requirements. However, it would not preempt State law to the extent State law provisions were more stringent.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

2. DEFINITIONS (SEC. 15302 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would define the following terms for purposes of the Federal reforms: actual damages; alternative dispute resolution system; claimant; clear and convincing evidence; collateral source payments; drug; economic loss; harm; health benefit plan; health care liability action; health care liability claim; health care provider; health care service; medical device; noneconomic damages; person; product seller; punitive damages; and State.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

3. EFFECTIVE DATE (SEC. 15303 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current Law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would specify that Federal reforms apply to any health care liability action brought in any State or Federal court that is initiated after the date of enactment. The provision would also apply to any health care liability claim subject to an alternative dispute resolution system, Any health care liability claim or action arising from an injury occurring prior to enactment would be governed by the statute of limitations in effect at the time the injury occurred.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

B. Uniform Standards for Health Care Liability Actions

1. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS (SEC. 15311 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

To date reforms of the malpractice system have occurred primarily at the State level and have generally involved changes in the rules governing tort cases. (A tort case is a civil action to recover damages, other than for a breach of contract.)

House bill

The provision would establish uniform standards for health care liability claims. It would establish a uniform statute of limitations. Actions could not be brought more than two years after the injury was discovered or reasonably should have been discovered. In no event could the action be brought more than five years after the date of the alleged injury.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

2. CALCULATION AND PAYMENT OF DAMAGES (SEC. 15312 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would limit noneconomic damages to $250,000 in a particular case. The limit would apply regardless of the number of persons against whom the action was brought or the number of actions brought.

The provision would specify that a defendant would only be liable for the amount of noneconomic damages attributable to that defendant's proportionate share of the fault or responsibility for that claimant's injury.

The provision would permit the award of punitive damages (to the extent allowed under State law) only if the claimant established by clear and convincing evidence either that the harm was the result of conduct that specifically intended to cause harm or the conduct manifested a conscious flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of others. The amount of punitive damages awarded could not exceed $250,000 or three times the amount of economic damages, whichever was greater. The determination of punitive damages would be determined by the court and not be disclosed to the jury The provision would not create a cause of action for punitive damages. Further, it would not preempt or supersede any State or Federal law to the extent that such law would further limit punitive damage awards.

The provision would permit either party to request a separate proceeding (bifurcation) on the issue of whether punitive damages should be awarded and in what amount. If a separate proceeding was requested, evidence related only to the claim of punitive damages would be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether actual damages should be awarded.

The provision would prohibit the award of punitive damages in a case where the drug or device was subject to premarket approval by the Food and Drug Administration, unless there was misrepresentation or fraud. A manufacturer or product seller would not be held liable for punitive damages related to adequacy of required tamper resistant packaging unless the packaging or labeling was found by clear and convincing evidence to be substantially out of compliance with the regulations.

The provision would permit the periodic (rather than lump sum) payment of future losses in excess of $50,000. The judgment of a court awarding periodic payments could not, in the absence of fraud, be reopened at any time to contest, amend, or modify the schedule or amount of payments. The provision would not preclude a lump sum settlement.

The provision would permit a defendant to introduce evidence of collateral source payments. Such payments are those which are any amounts paid or reasonably likely to be paid by health or accident insurance, disability coverage, workers compensation, or other third party sources. If such evidence was introduced, the claimant could introduce evidence of any amount paid or reasonably likely to be paid to secure the right to such collateral source payments. No provider of collateral source payments would be permitted to recover any amount against the claimant or against the claimant's recovery.

SUBTITLE E—TEACHING HOSPITALS; GRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION

A. ESTABLISHMENT OF FUND; PAYMENTS TO TEACHING HOSPITALS (SEC. 15401 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Medicare recognizes the costs of graduate medical education in teaching hospitals and the higher costs of providing services in those institutions. Medicare recognizes the costs of graduate medical education under two mechanisms: direct graduate medical education (GME) payments and an indirect medical education (IME) adjustment. The direct costs of approved GME programs include the salaries of residents and faculty, and other education costs for residents, nurses, and allied health professionals trained in provider-operated programs and are paid on the basis of a formula that reflects each hospital's per resident costs. The IME is designed to reimburse hospitals for indirect costs due to a variety of factors, including the extra demands placed on the hospital staff as a result of the teaching activity, greater severity of patient illness, or additional tests and procedures that may be ordered by residents.

House bill

The proposal would add a new title XXII to the Social Security Act (SSA) creating a trust fund in the Treasury known as the Teaching Hospital and Graduate Medical Education Trust Fund, which would make annual payment distributions to teaching hospitals. The Fund would consist of three accounts: the Indirect-Costs Medical Education Account, the Medicare Direct-Costs Medical Education Account, and the General Direct-Costs Medical Education Account.

Beginning in FY1997 and each subsequent year thereafter, the bill would appropriate amounts from the Treasury and allocations would be made from Medicare's Part A and B trust funds, and would be transferred into the Trust Fund for allocation to accounts within the Trust Fund. Appropriations from the Treasury would be: $1.3 billion in FY1997; $1.5 billion in FY1998; $2.3 billion in FY1999; $3.1 billion in FY2000; $3.6 billion in FY2001; and $4.00 billion in FY2002. For FY2003 and each subsequent fiscal year, the appropriation amount would be the greater of the amount appropriated for the preceding fiscal year, or the product of the amount appropriated for the preceding fiscal year and an amount equal to 1 plus the percentage increase in the nominal gross domestic product for the one-year period ending upon July 1 of the preceding fiscal year. The appropriated amounts would be allocated to the accounts by the Secretary based on the total amount of payments made under Medicare for indirect medical education (IME) and direct graduate medical education (GME) payments for FY1994, and the percentage of the total amount of payments for IME and GME.

The proposal would require that teaching hospitals submit a payment document for FY1997 and any subsequent fiscal year to the Secretary to receive a payment from the Fund equal to the sum of amounts related to IME and direct GME. The payment document would contain such information as necessary for the Secretary to make payments, and the Secretary would be permitted to require that the information be submitted by the teaching hospitals in periodic reports. The proposal would also authorize the Secretary to make payments to authorized consortia of providers.

For a teaching hospital's indirect costs, the proposal would determine an amount for a fiscal year as the product of: (1) the amount in the Indirect-Costs Medical Education Account for the applicable date, and (2) the hospital-specific percentage determined for the hospital. Once determined, the hospital-specific percentage would remain in effect for all subsequent fiscal years. The hospital-specific percentage would be the mean average of the respective percentages for the applicable period, adjusted by the Secretary on a pro rata basis to ensure that the sum of the percentages for all teaching hospitals would be equal to 100 percent. Generally, the applicable period would be fiscal years 1992–1994. The percentage determined for a teaching hospital for a fiscal year of the applicable period would be constituted by the ratio of: (1) the total amount of IME payments received by the hospital for the fiscal year involved, to (2) the sum of the respective amounts of IME payments for all teaching hospitals.

To determine the direct costs of graduate medical education for a teaching hospital for a fiscal year, the proposal would determine an amount equal to the sum of the amount determined under the General Direct-Cost Medical Education Account, and the amount determined under the Medicare Direct-Costs Medical Education Account. A teaching hospital's payment amount from the General Account would be equal to the product of: (1) the amount in the General Direct-Costs Medical Education Account, and (2) the hospital-specific percentage. A teaching hospital's hospital-specific percentage for each fiscal year of the applicable period (1992–1994), would be determined in the same manner as for IME payments, except using data on GME payments received by the hospitals.

Payment from the Medicare Direct-Costs Medical Education Account for a teaching hospital for a fiscal year would be the product of (1) the amount in the Medicare Direct-Costs Medical Education Account, and (2) the hospital-specific percentage determined for the teaching hospital. Unlike the other accounts, the hospital-specific percentage for Medicare Direct-Costs would be determined annually based on the Secretary's estimate of what the hospital would have received for the year if the Medicare rules for GME were applicable. The hospital-specific percentage would be the ratio of: (1) the estimate made by the Secretary of the GME payment amount for a teaching hospital in a fiscal year under Medicare's GME if the payments had not been discontinued; to (2) the sum of the respective estimates of GME payments for all teaching hospitals.

Special rules would be applied to teaching hospitals that consolidated or merged and to new teaching hospitals. In the case of two or more teaching hospitals consolidating or merging that had received IME and GME payments under Medicare, the applicable percentage would be the sum of the percentage that would have been determined if the consolidation or merger had not occurred. For new teaching hospitals that had not received IME and GME payments under Medicare, the Secretary would be required to estimate the appropriate hospital-specific percentage based on the amount of IME and GME payments the teaching hospital would have received under Medicare. Special rules would also be applied to teaching hospitals that first received IME or GME payments under Medicare in FY1995 and FY1996, with the hospital-specific percentages being estimated by the Secretary based on the most recent data available.

The proposal would make payments to qualifying consortium for the costs of graduate medical education. Qualifying consortium would consist of a medical residency training program of a teaching hospital and one or more of the following entities: schools of medicine or osteopathic medicine; other teaching hospitals; community health centers; medical group practices; managed care entities; entities furnishing outpatient services; and other such entities the Secretary determines to be appropriate. Payments from the accounts in the Trust Fund for consortium would equal the sum of: (1) the aggregate amount determined for the teaching hospitals of the consortium under the proposal; and (2) an amount determined using the methodology provided under the Medicare Direct-Costs Medical Education Account for consortia payments. Aggregate total payments to qualifying consortia could not exceed the sum of the aggregate total amount that would have been paid to the teaching hospitals of the consortia, and an amount equal to 1 percent of the amount in the Medicare Direct-Costs Medical Education Account.

The Secretary would be required to collect data to determine whether the estimates of Medicare's payments for the costs of IME and GME in each fiscal year were substantially accurate, and make corrective adjustments in subsequent transfers to the Trust Fund and payments to teaching hospitals.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision with modifications. The Fund would include five accounts: the General MedicarePlus Incentive Account; the General Indirect-Costs Medical Education Account; the General Direct-Costs Medical Education Account; the Medicare Indirect-Costs Medical Education Account; and the Medicare Direct-Costs Medical Education Account.

Appropriations from the Treasury into the Trust Fund would be as follows: $1.1 billion for FY1997; $1.3 billion for FY1998; $2.0 billion for FY1999; $2.6 billion for FY2000; $3.1 billion for FY2001; and $3.4 billion for FY2002. For FY2003 and each subsequent fiscal year, the appropriation amount would be the greater of the amount appropriated for the preceding fiscal year, or the product of the amount appropriated for the preceding fiscal year and an amount equal to 1 plus the percentage increase in the nominal gross domestic product for the one-year period ending upon July 1 of the preceding fiscal year. Of the appropriated amounts, the following percentage amounts would be allocated to the MedicarePlus Incentive Account: 20 percent for FY1997; 30 percent for FY1998; 40 percent for FY1999; and 50 percent for FY2000 and each subsequent year. Each teaching hospital that serves MedicarePlus patients will receive an amount from the MedicarePlus Incentive Account corresponding to it's share of total MedicarePlus patients served at all U.S. teaching hospitals. The remaining amounts would be allocated to the General Indirect-Costs Medical Education Account and the General Direct-Costs Medical Education Account, with the percentages determined by the Secretary based on: (1) the total amount of payments that were made under Medicare for IME and GME in FY1992–1994; (2) the percentage of such total constituted by payments under IME; and (3) the percentage of such total constituted by payments under GME. Formula payments for teaching hospitals for the fiscal year would be equal to the sum of: (1) the amount determined relating to the MedicarePlus program; (2) the amount determined relating to indirect costs of graduate medical education; and (3) the amount determined relating to direct costs of graduate medical education.

The Secretary would be permitted to require hospitals to submit periodic reports providing information relating to Medicare patients when teaching hospitals submit the payment document. The information would include: (1) the number of inpatient discharges attributable to individuals enrolled in the MedicarePlus program; (2) the Medicare patient load of the hospital as defined for the purposes of the Medicare direct GME payment formula; and (3) for each discharge with respect to which payment is received from the Secretary under Medicare Part A, the diagnosis-related group (DRG) within which the discharge is classified.

Qualifying consortia can receive payments for direct costs. Such consortia would consist of a teaching hospital and one or more of the following entities: schools of allopathic or osteopathic medicine; other teaching hospitals; approved medicine residency programs; Federally qualified health centers; medical group practices; managed care entities; entities furnishing outpatient services; and, such other entities as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

B. TRANSFERS TO TEACHING HOSPITAL AND GRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION TRUST FUND (SEC. 15411 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The proposal would amend Medicare law by adding a new subsection (j) at the end of section 1886 of the SSA, under which the Secretary would, beginning in FY1997 transfer amounts to the Teaching Hospital and Graduate Medical Education Trust Fund. Amounts transferred to the Indirect-Costs Medical Education Account would be from the Medicare Part A trust fund on the basis of an estimate of the nationwide total of the amount that would have been paid to hospitals under Medicare's IME payment. Also, the Secretary would be required to transfer from Medicare Part A and B Trust Funds into the Medicare Direct-Costs Medical Education Account the amount estimated to be spent for teaching hospitals and consortia under Medicare's direct GME payment.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

C. MODIFICATION IN PAYMENT POLICIES REGARDING GRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION (SEC. 15412 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

1. Indirect Medical Education. Medicare makes payments to teaching hospitals under PPS for the indirect costs attributable to approved medical education programs. These indirect costs may be due to a variety of factors, including the extra demands placed on the hospital staff as a result of the teaching activity or additional tests and procedures that may be ordered by residents. Congressional reports on the PPS authorizing legislation indicated that the indirect medical education payments are also to account for factors not necessarily related to medical education which may increase costs in teaching hospitals, such as more severely ill patients, increased use of diagnostic testing, and higher staff-to-patient ratios.

The additional payment to a hospital is based on a formula that provides an increase of approximately 7.7 percent in the Federal portion of the DRG payment, for each 0.1 percent increase in the hospital's intern and resident-to-bed ratio on a curvilinear basis (i.e., the increase in the payment is less than proportional to the increase in the ratio of interns and residents to beds).

2. Direct Graduate Medical Education. The direct costs of approved graduate medical education (GME) programs (such as the salaries of residents and faculty, and other costs related to medical education programs) are excluded from PPS and are paid on the basis of a formula that reflects Medicare's share of each hospital's per resident costs. Medicare's payment to each hospital equals the hospital's costs per full-time-equivalent (FTE) resident, times the weighted average number of FTE residents, times the percentage of inpatient days attributable to Medicare Part A beneficiaries. Each hospital's per FTE resident amount is calculated using data from the hospital's cost reporting period that began in FY1984, increased by 1 percent for hospital cost reporting periods beginning July 1, 1985, and updated in subsequent cost reporting periods by the change in the CPI. OBRA 93 provided that the per resident amount would not be updated by the CPI for costs reporting periods during FY1994 and FY1995, except for primary care residents in obstetrics and gynecology. The number of FTE residents is weighted at 100 percent for residents in their initial residency period (i.e., the number of years of formal training necessary to satisfy specialty requirements for board eligibility). Residents in preventive care or geriatrics are allowed a period of up to 2 additional years in the initial residency training period. For residents not in their initial residency period, the weighing factor is 50 percent. On or after July 1, 1986, residents who are foreign medical graduates can only be counted as FTE residents if they have passed designated examinations.

House bill

1. Indirect Medical Education. The proposal would reduce the IME amount under Medicare by changing the current formula multiplier to 1.48, resulting in a 6.0 percent aggregate payment adjustment for FY1996–FY1998, with a further reduction of the multiplier to 1.38 beginning in FY1999 and for each subsequent fiscal year, which would result in a 5.6 percent aggregate payment adjustment, for every 10 percent increase in teaching intensity measured by the ratio of interns and residents per bed, and the number of discharges expected under PPS.

2. Direct Graduate Medical Education. The GME formula would be modified to limit the number of residents that could be counted by a teaching hospital. The total number of full-time-equivalent (FTE) residents in an approved residency program would be limited to the total number of residents at a hospital as of August 1, 1995, for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1995, and on or before September 30, 2002. For hospital cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, the weighting factor for a resident in the initial residency period would be 1.0 FTEs, and the weighting factor for a resident who had completed the initial residency period would be 0.0 FTEs. For cost reporting periods beginning during FY1996, the FTE amount paid for medical residents who are not citizens, nationals, or permanent resident aliens of the United States, or Canadian citizens, would be reduced and ultimately eliminated by lowering the FTE weight that a hospital would be allowed to count for GME payments to: 0.75 in FY1996; 0.50 in FY1997; and 0.25 in FY1998 and for any subsequent fiscal year.

The effective date for these provisions, unless otherwise specified would, apply to hospital cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1995.

Senate bill

1. Indirect Medical Education. The proposal would reduce the IME amount under Medicare by changing the current formula multiplier to 1.65 resulting in a 6.7 percent aggregate payment adjustment for FY1996; to 1.48 resulting in a 6.0 percent aggregate adjustment in FY1997; to 1.33 resulting in a 5.4 percent aggregate adjustment in FY1998; and to 1.23 resulting in a 5.0 percent aggregate adjustment in FY1999 through FY2001.

2. Direct Graduate Medical Education. No provision.

Conference agreement

1. Indirect Medical Education. The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with modifications. The IME formula multiplier would be set at 1.654 for FY 1996, resulting in a 6.7 percent aggregate payment adjustment; at 1.481 in FY1997 and FY1998, resulting in a 6.0 percent aggregate adjustment; at 1.383 in FY1999, resulting in a 5.6 percent aggregate adjustment; at 1.309 in FY2000, resulting in a 5.3 percent aggregate adjustment: and at 1.235 in FY2001 and thereafter, resulting in a 5.0 percent aggregate adjustment.

2. Direct Graduate Medical Education. The conference agreement includes the House provision with modifications. For cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, the weighting factor for a resident who had completed the initial residency period would be 0.25 FTEs. For cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1995, and on or before September 30, 2002, the Secretary is required to adjust payments to approved medical residency training programs in the fields of allopathic medicine and osteopathic medicine if the total number of such FTE residents in the fiscal year exceeds the number of FTE residents with respect to all such programs as of August 1, 1995. The Secretary is required to adjust payments to such approved medical residency training programs so that the total amount of payments does not exceed the amount that would have been paid if the number of FTE residents for all programs in a fiscal year did not exceed the number of FTE residents in all such programs as of August 1, 1995. The Secretary is authorized to provide that approved medical residency training programs that reduced or did not expand the number of FTE residents for a cost reporting period are not subject to the reduction in payments. The conference agreement does not include the House provision related to non-citizen medical residents.

D. ESTABLISHMENT OF ADVISORY PANEL FOR RECOMMENDING POLICIES REGARDING TEACHING HOSPITALS AND GRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION (SEC. 15421 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The bill would require the Chair of the Medicare Payment Review Commission to establish an advisory panel on reform in the financing of teaching hospitals and graduate medical education. The advisory panel would be required to study and make recommendations on reforming Federal policies regarding teaching hospitals and financing of graduate medical education. The recommendations of the panel would include the following: (1) the financing of graduate medical education, including consideration of alternative broad-based sources of funding; (2) the financing of teaching hospitals, including consideration of the competitive difficulties such hospitals face; (3) the methodology for making payments and the selection of entities to receive the payments; (4) Federal policies regarding international medical graduates; (5) the dependence of schools of medicine on service generate income; (6) the effects of the amendments made by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1995; and (7) the feasibility and desirability of reducing payments for graduate medical education for high-cost residency programs under Medicare.

The advisory panel would be composed of 19 members with expertise on matters related to graduate medical education. The advisory panel would be required to provide Congress with a first interim report (not later than one year after enactment), a second interim report (not later than 2 years after enactment), and final report (not later than 3 years after enactment). The advisory panel would terminate 180 days after the date on which the final report was submitted to Congress. The bill would authorize appropriations of such sums as may be necessary for each of the fiscal years 1996 through 2000.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision. The conferees believe that further study of graduate medical education funding is needed. Included among the issues requiring further study are: (1) the financing of graduate medical education, including consideration of alternative broad-based sources of funding for such education and the method of financing used for the MedicarePlus program under Part C of Title XVIII of the Social Security Act; (2) Federal policies regarding international medical graduates; and (3) the dependence of schools of medicine on service-generated income. The conferees would expect that Prospective

Payment Assessment Commission would study these issues and forward its findings to the relevant congressional committees.

SUBTITLE F—PROVISIONS RELATING TO MEDICARE PART A

A. General Provisions Related to Hospitals

1. REDUCTIONS IN INFLATION UPDATES FOR PPS HOSPITALS (SEC. 15501 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7011 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Hospitals are paid on the basis of a prospectively fixed payment rate for costs associated with each discharge. Each hospital's basic payment rate is based on a national standardized payment amount, which is higher for hospitals in large urban areas than for other hospitals. Each standardized payment amount is adjusted by a wage index. Payment also depends on the relative costliness of the case, based on the diagnosis related group (DRG) to which the discharge is assigned. Additional payments are made for: extraordinary costs (outliers); indirect costs of medical education; and for hospitals serving a disproportionate share of low-income patients. Other exceptions and adjustments are made.

PPS payment rates are annually updated using an "update factor." The annual update factor applied to increase the Federal base payment amounts is determined, in part, by the projected increase in the hospital market basket index, which measures the costs of goods and services purchased by hospitals. Under the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (OBRA 93), the PPS update factor for all PPS hospitals is equal to the percentage increase in the market basket minus 2 percentage points.

House bill

The proposal sets the update factor for FY1996 at MBI minus 2.5 percentage points for all hospitals in all areas, for FY1997–2002, at MBI minus 2.0 percentage points for all hospitals in all areas, and for FY2003 and each subsequent fiscal year equal to the MBI for all hospitals in all areas.

Senate bill

The bill sets the update factor for FY1996 through FY2002 for hospitals in all areas, the greater of: (1) the MBI minus 2.5 percentage points, or (2) 1.1 percent (1.3 percent for discharges during FY1996, 1.2 percent for discharges during FY1997). For FY2003 and each subsequent year, equal to the MBI for all hospitals in all areas.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

2. REDUCTIONS IN DISPROPORTIONATE SHARE PAYMENT ADJUSTMENTS (SEC. 15502 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7014 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Under PPS, an adjustment is made to the payment to hospitals that serve a disproportionate share of low-income patients. The DSH adjustment is intended to compensate hospitals that treat large proportions of low-income patients. The factors considered in determining whether a hospital qualifies for a DSH payment adjustment include the number of beds, the number of patient days, and the hospital's location. A hospital's disproportionate patient percentage is the sum of (1) the total number of inpatient days attributable to Federal SSI beneficiaries divided by the total number of Medicare patient days, and (2) the number of Medicaid patient days divided by total patient days, expressed as a percentage. A hospital is classified as a DSH under any of the following circumstances:

(1) If its disproportionate patient percentage equals or exceeds:

(a) 15 percent for an urban hospital with 100 or more beds, or a rural hospital with 500 or more beds (the latter is set by regulation);

(b) 30 percent for a rural hospital with more than 100 beds and fewer than 500 beds or is classified as a sole community hospital;

(c) 40 percent for an urban hospital with fewer than 100 beds; or

(d) 45 percent for a rural hospital with 100 or fewer beds, or

(2) if it is located in an urban area, has 100 or more beds, and can demonstrate that, during its cost reporting period, more than 30 percent of its net inpatient care revenues are derived from State and local government payments for care furnished to indigent payments. (This provision is intended to help hospitals in States that fund care for low-income patients through direct grants rather than expanded Medicaid programs.)

For a hospital qualifying on the basis of (1)(a) above, if its disproportionate patient percentage is greater than 20.2 percent, the applicable PPS payment adjustment factor is 5.88 percent plus .825 percent of the difference between 20.2 percent and the hospital's disproportionate patient percentage. If the hospital's disproportionate patient percentage is less than 20.2 percent, the applicable payment adjustment factor is equal to: 2.5 percent plus 65 percent of the difference between 15 percent and the hospital's disproportionate patient percentage. If the hospital qualifies as a DSH on the basis of (1)(b), the payment adjustment factor is determined as follows:

(a) if the hospital is classified as a rural referral center, the payment adjustment factor is 4 percent plus 60 percent of the difference between the hospital's disproportionate patient percentage and 30 percent;

(b) if the hospital is a SCH, the adjustment factor is 10 percent;

(c) if the hospital is classified as both a rural referral center and a SCH, the adjustment factor is the greater of 10 percent or 4 percent plus 60 percent of the difference between the hospital's disproportionate patient percentage and 30 percent; and

(d) if the hospital is not classified as either a SCH or a rural referral center, the payment adjustment factor is 4 percent.

If the hospital qualifies on the basis of (1)(c), the adjustment factor is equal to 5 percent. If the hospital qualifies on the basis of (1)(d), the adjustment factor is 4 percent. If the hospital qualifies on the basis of (2) above, the payment adjustment factor is 35 percent.

House bill

The proposal would reduce the DSH payment by 20 percent for discharges occurring on or after October 1, 1995, and on or before September 30, 1996; 25 percent for discharges occurring on or after October 1, 1996, and on or before September 30, 1997; and 30 percent for discharges occurring on or after October 1, 1997.

Senate bill

The bill would reduce the DSH payment by 5 percent for discharges occurring during FY1996; 10 percent in FY1997; 15 percent in FY1998; 20 percent in FY1999; and 25 percent for fiscal years 2000 through 2002.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with modifications. The DSH payment would be reduced from current law spending by 5.0 percent in FY1996; an additional 5 percent in FY1997; an additional 7.5 percent in FY1998; an additional 7.5 percent in FY1999; an additional 5 percent in FY2000; and remain at 30 percent for FY2001 through FY2002.

3. PAYMENTS FOR CAPITAL-RELATED COSTS FOR INPATIENT HOSPITAL SERVICES (SEC. 15503 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7013 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

In FY1992, Medicare began phasing in prospectively-determined per case rates for capital-related costs. During the 10-year transition to a single capital rate, payments will reflect both hospital-specific costs and a single Federal capital payment rate. During the transition, hospitals are paid according to either a fully prospective method or a "hold harmless" method of payment.

Capital payment rates are updated annually. For the first 5 years of the transition to prospectively determined per-case rates, historical cost increases were used to increase the Federal and hospital-specific rates. Under a budget neutrality requirement, per case capital rates were adjusted in the first 5 years of the transition so that total payments equaled 90 percent of estimated Medicare-allowed capital costs. In fiscal year 1996, the budget neutrality requirement will be lifted. In addition, the cost-based updates will be replaced by an "update framework" (developed by HCFA and proposed in the June 2, 1995 Federal Register), which will determine payment rate growth. This analytical framework is to take into account changes in the price of capital and appropriate changes in capital requirements resulting from development of new technologies and other factors.

Capital costs for PPS exempt hospitals are reimbursed on a reasonable cost basis.

Medicare's capital-related costs include local property taxes and property "fees" paid by nonprofit hospitals. The hospital-specific component of capital payments is based on a hospital's spending in a base year (generally 1990). Hospitals that have changed from nonprofit or public to proprietary may become subject to property taxes not included in their base; this may also occur as a result of changes in State or local law.

House bill

The provision would reduce aggregate payments for PPS and PPS-exempt capital payments by 15 percent of the allowable amount for FY1996 through FY2002. The capital payment reduction would not apply to payments for sole community hospitals or rural primary care hospitals (defined in the bill).

The provision would provide an adjustment for the amount of capital-related tax costs for eligible hospitals for discharges occurring after September 30, 1995. Eligible hospitals would be facilities that may otherwise receive capital payments, are not public hospitals, and incur capital-related tax costs for the fiscal year.

The provision would also amend the provision of additional exception payments for PPS-exempt hospital capital costs as follows: (1) urban hospitals with 100 beds would be eligible without regard to its DSH patient percentage or whether it qualifies for capital additional payments amounts; (2) the minimum payment level for qualifying hospitals would be 85 percent; (3) hospitals would be considered to meet the requirement that it completed a project involved no later than the end of the hospital's last cost reporting period beginning after October 1, 2001, if (I) the hospital obtained a certificate of need for the project approved by the State or a local planning authority, and (ii) by September 1, 1995, the hospital had expended on the project at least $750,000 or 10 percent of the estimated cost of the project; and (4) the amount of the exception payment made would not be reduced by any offsetting amounts.

Senate bill

The provision would reduce aggregate payments for PPS and PPS-exempt capital payments by 15 percent of the allowable amount for FY1996 through FY2002. The capital payment reduction would not apply to payments for sole community hospitals or rural primary care hospitals (defined in the bill).

The provision would provide an adjustment for the amount of capital-related tax costs for eligible hospitals for discharges occurring after September 30, 1995. Eligible hospitals would be facilities that may otherwise receive capital payments, are not public hospitals, and incur capital-related tax costs for the fiscal year.

The provision would also amend the provision of additional exception payments for PPS-exempt hospital capital costs as follows: (1) urban hospitals with 100 beds would be eligible without regard to its DSH patient percentage or whether it qualifies for capital additional payments amounts; (2) the minimum payment level for qualifying hospitals would be 80 percent; (3) hospitals would be considered to meet the requirement that it completed a project involved no later than the end of the hospital's last cost reporting period beginning after October 1, 2001, if (i) the hospital obtained a certificate of need for the project approved by the State or a local planning authority, and (ii) by September 1, 1995, the hospital had expended on the project at least $750,000 or 10 percent of the estimated cost of the project; and (4) the amount of the exception payment made would not be reduced by any offsetting amounts.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with an amendment to reduce capital payments for PPS-exempt hospitals by 10 percent. Capital exceptions would have a minimum payment amount of 85 percent.

4. REDUCTION IN ADJUSTMENT FOR INDIRECT MEDICAL EDUCATION (SEC. 15504 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7015 OF SENATE BILL)

House bill

The proposal would reduce the IME amount under Medicare by changing the current formula multiplier to 1.48, resulting in a 6.0 percent aggregate payment adjustment for FY1996-FY1998, with a further reduction the multiplier beginning in FY1999 and for each subsequent fiscal year, for a 5.6 percent aggregate payment adjustment, for every 10 percent increase in teaching intensity measured by the ratio of interns and residents per bed, and the number of discharges expected under PPS. (See Subtitle E above)

Senate bill

The proposal would reduce the IME amount under Medicare by changing the current formula multiplier to 1.65 resulting in a 6.7 percent aggregate payment adjustment for FY1996; to 1.48 resulting in a 6.0 percent aggregate adjustment in FY1997; to 1.33 resulting in a 5.4 percent aggregate adjustment in FY1998; and to 1.23 resulting in a 5.0 percent aggregate adjustment in FY1999 through FY2001.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with modifications. (See Subtitle E above)

5. TREATMENT OF PPS-EXEMPT HOSPITALS (SEC. 15505 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7012 OF SENATE)

Current law

Under Medicare, five types of specialty hospitals (psychiatric, rehabilitation, long-term care, children's and cancer) and two types of distinct-part units in general hospitals (psychiatric and rehabilitation) are exempt from PPS. They are subject to the payment limitations and incentives established in the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (TEFRA). Each provider is paid on the basis of reasonable cost subject to a rate of increase ceiling on inpatient operating costs. The ceiling is based on a target amount per discharge. The target amount for a cost reporting period is equal to the hospital's allowable inpatient operating costs (excluding capital and medical education costs) per discharge in a base year increased by applicable update factors for subsequent years. This amount is then multiplied by Medicare discharges, to yield the ceiling or upper limit on operating costs.

OBRA 93 provided that the applicable rate of increase percentage, or update, would be equal to the MBI minus 1.0 percent for FY1994-1997.

House bill

The provision would extend the target amount updates of the MBI minus 1 percentage point through FY2002.

The provision would also provide for rebasing the target amount for certain long-term care hospitals for discharges occurring on or after October 1, 1995.

The provision would also apply to long-term care units of hospitals not treated as PPS hospitals for discharges occurring on or after September 30, 1995. Not later than 12 months after the majority of the members of the Medicare Payment Review Commission have been appointed, the Commission would be required to report to Congress their recommendations for appropriate revisions in the treatment of long-term care hospitals located in the same building or the same campus as another hospital. The Secretary would also be required to report to Congress by June 1, 1996, after consultation with the Prospective Payment Assessment Commission and other appropriate parties, on the advisability and feasibility of providing for payment based on a prospective payment system for inpatient services of rehabilitation hospitals and units under Medicare.

Senate bill

The provision would set the update factor to the cost limits for PPS-exempt hospitals equal to the MBI minus 2.5 percentage points for FY1996 through FY2002. The update adjustment would vary for hospitals above and below TEFRA limits.

The Secretary would also be required to adjust, for hospitals receiving updates, the inflation update to be no less than 1.4 percent in FY1996; 1.3 percent in FY1997; and 1.1 percent for fiscal years 1998-2002.

The provision would adjust the TEFRA limits for new and existing PPS-exempt rehabilitation hospitals and units, and long-term care hospitals that begin receiving PPS-exempt payments on or after October 1, 1995.

The Secretary would also be directed to report on a prospective payment system for PPS-exempt hospitals no later than June 1, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with several modifications. The conference agreement includes House language regarding rebasing of certain long term care hospitals with modifications. The conference agreement includes House language regarding classification of long term care hospitals within other hospitals. There are no market basket floors. There is no requirement for the Secretary to report on a prospective payments system for PPS-exempt hospitals.

6. REDUCTION IN PAYMENTS TO HOSPITALS FOR ENROLLEES' BAD DEBTS (SEC. 15506 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Certain hospital and other provider bad debts are reimbursed by Medicare on an allowable cost basis. To be qualified for reimbursement, the debt must be related to covered services and derived from deductible and coinsurance amounts left unpaid by Medicare beneficiaries. The provider must be able to establish that reasonable collection efforts were made and that sound business judgement established that there was no likelihood of recovery at any time in the future.

House bill

The proposal would reduce bad debt payments to providers by 75 percent for cost reporting periods beginning during FY1996; 60 percent for cost reporting periods beginning during FY1997; and 50 percent for subsequent cost reporting periods.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

7. PROPAC RECOMMENDATIONS ON URBAN MEDICARE DEPENDENT HOSPITALS (SECTION 7077 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision would require ProPAC to report its recommendations to Congress, beginning in 1996, on an appropriate update to be used for urban hospitals with a high proportion of Medicare patient days and on actions to ensure that Medicare beneficiaries served by such hospitals retain the same access and quality of care as Medicare beneficiaries nationwide.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House or Senate provision. The conference agreement establishes a separate payment update for certain hospitals with a high proportion of Medicare patient days. Hospitals qualifying include: (1) urban hospitals with no Medicare teaching or disproportionate share payments, 60 percent Medicare patient days; and (2) rural hospitals with more than 100 beds with no Medicare teaching or disproportionate share payments. Qualifying hospitals could receive an annual inflation update of market basket minus 2.0 percentage points in FY1996; market basket minus 1.7 percentage points in FY1997; and market basket minus 2.0 percentage points in FY1998 through FY2002.

8. PERMANENT EXTENSION OF HEMOPHILIA PASS-THROUGH (SEC. 15507 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Medicare makes additional payments for the costs of administering blood clotting factor to Medicare beneficiaries with hemophilia admitted for hospital stays where the clotting factor was furnished between June 19, 1990 and September 30, 1994.

House bill

The proposal would make the payment permanent.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

9. CONFORMING AMENDMENT TO CERTIFICATION OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PROVIDERS (SEC. 15508 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7057(B) OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Certain services furnished by a Christian Science sanatorium are covered under Medicare Part A if the institution is operated or listed and certified by the First Church of Christ, Scientists, Boston, Mass. Such a sanatorium qualifies as both a hospital and as a skilled nursing facility.

House bill

The provision would expand coverage of Christian Science sanatorium to include facilities (both hospitals and skilled nursing facilities) certified by the Commission for Accreditation of Christian Science Nursing Organizations/Facilities, Inc.

Senate bill

The provision would expand coverage of Christian Science sanatorium to include facilities (both hospitals and skilled nursing facilities) certified by the Commission for Accreditation of Christian Science Nursing Organizations/Facilities, Inc.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

10. SOLE COMMUNITY HOSPITALS (SEC. 15511 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Sole Community Hospitals (SCHs) are facilities located in geographically isolated areas and are the sole provider of inpatient, acute cure hospital services in a geographic area based on distance, travel time, severe weather conditions, and/or market share. SCHs are paid the greater of what would be payable under PPS or a target amount comparable to that for PPS-exempt hospitals. Target amounts for SCHs are updated by an "applicable percentage increase" which is specified by statute and is generally pegged to the hospital market basket index. OBRA 93 provided separate SCH updates of MBI minus 2.2 percent for FY1995 and MBI minus 2.0 percent for FY1996. For FY1997 and thereafter, the update for SCHs is the same as for all PPS hospitals.

House bill

The provision would set the target amount update to the MBI minus 1 percentage point for fiscal years 1996–2000; and for FY2001 and each subsequent fiscal year, the applicable update would be applied.

The provision would require the Medicare Payment Review Commission to conduct a study of the impact of the designation of hospitals as SCHs on the delivery of health care services to individuals in rural areas, and include an analysis of the characteristics of the hospitals so designated. The Commission would be required to submit the report to Congress within 12 months after a majority of Commission members are first appointed.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

11. CLARIFICATION OF TAXES CREDITED TO FUND (SEC. 15531 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

The Social Security Amendments of 1983 made up to half of Social Security benefits taxable for beneficiaries with incomes above a threshold level. That legislation provided that the Federal income tax revenue accruing from taxation of benefits would be credited to the Social Security trust funds. When OBRA of 1993 raised the maximum proportion of Social Security benefits subject to income taxation from 50% to 85%, effective Jan. 1, 1994, the additional income tax revenue was credited to the HI Trust Fund, effective upon enactment.

House bill

A House-passed tax bill (H.R. 1215) would repeal the 1993 legislation that raised the maximum taxable portion of Social Security benefits from 50% to 85%. That legislation was added to OBRA of 1995 before House passage of OBRA. Without corrective amendments, that legislation would result in a loss of revenue for the HI Trust Fund. Thus, Sec. 15531 of OBRA of 1995 would add language to Sec. 121(e) of the Social Security Amendments of 1983 to direct the Secretary of the Treasury to credit the HI Trust Fund with receipts from the taxation of Social Security benefits without regard to changes in the taxation of Social Security benefits that take affect after Dec. 31, 1993. Coupled with Sec. 19001(a)(2) of OBRA of 1995, which amends the provisions of H.R. 1215 that repeal the higher taxation of Social Security benefits, this language would place the HI fund in the same position financially with respect to credits from income tax revenue as it would be if taxation of Social Security benefits were not changed by OBRA of 1995. These transfers to HI would come from the general fund.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

12. GRADUATE MEDICAL EDUCATION AND DISPROPORTIONATE SHARE PAYMENT ADJUSTMENTS FOR MEDICARE CHOICE (SEC. 7016 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare's HMO payment amount includes the costs of graduate medical education (direct graduate medical education (GME) payments and indirect medical education (IME) adjustments) in an area. Hospitals incurring graduate medical education and disproportionate share hospital (DSH) costs associated with Medicare HMO patients do not receive a direct payment from Medicare for such costs. The current formulas used to calculate a hospital's IME and GME payment amounts do not account for Medicare HMO patients.

House bill

No provision. (See Part VII)

Senate bill

The provision would change Medicare's current formulas for GME, IME, and DSH payments to count Medicare Choice patients in determining Medicare's hospital payments. In addition, the provision removes area hospitals' costs for IME, GME, and DSH from the calculation of Medicare Choice payments. Hospitals that care for Medicare Choice patients would bill Medicare and receive an additional Medicare payment or adjustment under GME, IME, and DSH.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

B. PAYMENTS FOR HOSPICE SERVICES (SEC. 7017 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare covers hospice care for terminally ill beneficiaries with a life expectancy of 6 months or less. Payment for hospice care is based on one of four prospectively determined rates, which correspond to four different levels of care, for each day a beneficiary is under the care of the hospice. The four categories are routine home care, continuous home care, inpatient respite care, and general inpatient care. These rates are updated annually by the hospital market basket index (MBI). OBRA 93 decreased the update for the payment rates as follows: FY 1994—MBI minus 2.0 percentage points; FY 1995—MBI minus 1.5 percentage point; FY 1996—MBI minus 1.0 percentage point; and FY 1997—MBI minus 0.5 percentage point. Beginning with FY 1998, the full hospital market basket percentage update will again apply.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

For each of the fiscal years 1996 through 2002, hospice payment rates would be updated by the greater of the market basket minus 2.5 percentage points, or 1.1 percent (1.4 percent in FY 1996 and 1.2 percent in 1997).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with two amendments. Hospice payment rates would be updated by the market basket minus 2 percentage points for each of the fiscal years 1996 through 2002. There are no minimum market basket updates.

C. EXTENSION OF HI TAX TO ALL STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES (SEC. 7108 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare Part A coverage and payment of the HI tax apply to State and local government employees who are not under a retirement plan or who were hired after Mar. 31, 1986. State and local employees hired on or before that date may be covered at the election of the employer, however.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

Effective for services performed after Dec. 31, 1995, Sec. 3121(u)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and Sec. 210(p) of the Social Security Act would be amended to extend Medicare coverage to employees of State and local governments on the same basis as for other employees. Thus, all State and local employees would pay the HI tax. Appropriations would be authorized to the HI Trust Fund to cover benefits and administrative costs resulting from this provision and to offset losses in trust fund interest income associated with these expenditures. The Secretary of Health and Human Services would be directed to provide information to State and local employees about their Medicare coverage.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate provision.

D. PAYMENTS TO SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES (SNFS)

1. DEFINITION OF ROUTINE SERVICE COSTS (SEC. 15521 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7031 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

SNFs are generally reimbursed on the basis of reasonable costs, subject to limits that are applied to per diem routine service costs (nursing, room and board, administrative, and other overhead). Non-routine, or ancillary services (such as therapy and certain equipment), and capital-related costs are excluded from the cost limits and are generally paid on the basis of reasonable costs.

Separate per diem limits for routine service costs are established for freestanding and hospital-based SNFs by urban or rural area. Freestanding SNF cost limits are set at 112 percent of the average per diem labor-related and nonlabor-related costs. Hospital-based SNF limits are set at the limit for freestanding SNFs, plus 50 percent of the difference between the freestanding limits and 112 percent of the average per diem routine services costs of hospital-based SNFs. The limits are adjusted by the hospital wage index to reflect differences in wage levels. The law authorizes the Secretary to allow for exceptions to the limits, based on case mix or circumstances beyond the control of the facility. The Secretary is required to rebase cost limits every 2 years, i.e. to develop cost limits using the latest available SNF cost report data every 2 years. In the interim the Secretary applies a SNF market basket developed by the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) to reflect changes in the price of goods and services purchased by SNFs.

SNFs providing less than 1,500 days of care per year to Medicare patients in the preceding year have the option of being paid a prospective payment rate set at 105 percent of the regional mean for all SNFs in the region. The rate covers routine and capital-related costs (and not ancillary services) and is calculated separately for urban and rural areas, adjusted to reflect differences in wage levels. Prospective rates can not exceed the routine service cost limit that would be applicable to the facility, adjusted to take into account average capital-related costs with respect to the type and location of the facility. For low-volume SNFs, the Secretary is required to establish on an annual basis, prospective payments that reflect current SNF costs using the most recent data available from SNF cost reports. For SNFs receiving prospectively determined payment rates, the Secretary may pay for ancillary services on a reasonable charge basis, rather than on a cost basis, if the Secretary determines that a reasonable charge basis provides an equitable level of payment and eases the SNF's reporting burden.

House bill

For cost reporting periods beginning in FY 1997, the Secretary would be required to redefine routine service costs that would be subject to the routine cost limits. These would include all items used in the current definition—nursing, room and board, administrative, and other overhead—and, in addition, all ancillary services (including supplies and equipment), with the exception of non-routine services listed below.

Senate bill

In establishing an interim payment system (that would be in effect before the implementation of a prospective payment system for SNF care), the Secretary would be required, for cost reporting periods beginning in FY 1996, to redefine routine service costs that would be subject to the routine cost limits. These would include all items used in the current definition—nursing, room and board, administrative, and other overhead—and, in addition, all ancillary services (including supplies and equipment), with the exception of non-routine services listed below.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

2. INCENTIVES FOR COST EFFECTIVE MANAGEMENT OF COVERED NON-ROUTINE SERVICES (SEC. 15522 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7032 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Currently non-routine ancillary services are generally paid on the basis of reasonable costs and are not subject to limits.

House bill

For cost reporting periods beginning in FY 1997, new payment limits would be established for non-routine services provided to Medicare beneficiaries receiving SNF care. For these purposes, non-routine services would be defined to include therapy services (physical and occupational therapy, speech language pathology, and respiratory therapy, including supplies and support services incident to the therapy services); prescription drugs; complex medical equipment; intravenous therapy and solutions (including enteral and parenteral nutrients, supplies, and equipment); radiation therapy; and diagnostic services, including laboratory, pulmonary, and radiology services (including tomography and imaging services).

The non-routine limit for a stay would be the sum of the following two amounts: 50 percent would be the facility-specific amount for these services; and 50 percent would represent the national average amount paid for these services for all SNF stays. The facility-specific amount would be calculated by summing (1) the average amount of payments made to a facility under Part A for non-routine services during a stay and (2) the Secretary's best estimate of the average amount of payments made under Part B for covered non-routine services furnished to all residents provided SNF care under Part A.

In establishing base year payments for the new limits, the Secretary would be required to use cost reporting periods ending September 30, 1994. These base year payments would be updated to FY 1997 by the SNF market basket. In subsequent years, per stay limits would be updated by the SNF market basket minus 2 percentage points. National average payments used for determining a facility's per stay limit would be calculated separately for freestanding and hospital-based SNFs. Separate per stay limits would apply to residents of SNFs who require intensive nursing or therapy services. The Secretary, after consulting with the Medicare Payment Review Commission and SNF experts, would be required to develop and publish this separate limit by June 30, 1996, and would be required to ensure its budget neutrality. The Secretary would also be required to rebase facility-specific amounts for cost reporting periods beginning October 1, 1999, and every 2 years thereafter. A SNF stay would be defined by the number of continuous days a beneficiary spent in the facility during a covered spell of illness.

An aggregate payment limit for non-routine services would also be determined annually for each SNF. This would be calculated by multiplying the number of SNF stays for which payments for these services were made times the blended payment limit. This amount would be compared to actual interim payments made to the SNF for these services; these payments would be based on the facility's reasonable costs of providing these services. If total payments for the year were below the SNF's aggregate payment limit, then the SNF would be allowed to retain 50 percent of the difference, up to 5 percent of total amount paid to the facility for covered non-routine services. In the event that total payments exceeded the SNF's payment limit, the Secretary would be required to reduce payments for new stays in the next fiscal year at such times and in a manner the Secretary considers appropriate.

SNFs would be required to bill Medicare for all services provided to beneficiaries eligible for SNF care, regardless of whether the service was provided by the facility, by others under arrangements with the facility, or under any other contracting or consulting arrangement. For beneficiaries residing in SNFs not eligible for Part A SNF benefits but receiving covered non-routine services, the SNF would again be required to bill for covered Part B services (except for portable x-ray or portable electrocardiogram services treated as a physician service). SNFs would be required to maintain records of all covered non-routine services furnished beneficiaries.

The Secretary could provide for exceptions to the per stay limits, so long as additional payments were budget neutral and did not exceed 5 percent of aggregate payments to all SNFs for covered non-routine services. New SNFs not receiving payments for non-routine services in the base year period of FY 1994 would be subject to the national average payment limit described above. Low-volume SNFs receiving prospective payments would not be subject to the new non-routine limits. Before furnishing a covered x-ray service to a Medicare beneficiary, SNFs would be required to consider the appropriateness of portable x-ray services, taking into account the cost effectiveness of the service and the convenience to the resident.

Senate bill

Under the interim payment system, new payment limits would be established for non-routine services provided to Medicare beneficiaries receiving SNF care during cost reporting periods beginning in FY 1996. For these purposes, non-routine services would be defined to include therapy services (physical and occupational therapy, speech language pathology, and respiratory therapy); prescription drugs; complex medical equipment; intravenous therapy and solutions (including enteral and parenteral nutrients, supplies, and equipment); radiation therapy; and diagnostic services, including laboratory, pulmonary, and radiology services (including tomography and imaging services).

The non-routine limit for a stay would be a facility-specific amount. The facility-specific amount would be calculated by summing (1) the amount of payments made to a facility under Part A for non-routine services during a stay and (2) the Secretary's best estimate of the amount of payments made under Part B for covered non-routine services furnished to all residents provided SNF care under Part A, and then dividing this sum by the average number of days per stay for all residents of the SNF.

In establishing base year payments for the new limits, the Secretary would be required to use cost reporting periods ending September 30, 1994. These base year payments would be updated to FY 1996 by the SNF market basket. In subsequent years, per stay limits would be updated by the greater of the SNF market basket minus 2.5 percentage points or 1.2 percent (1.1 percent for fiscal years after 1997). Separate per stay limits would apply to residents of SNFs who require intensive nursing or therapy services. The Secretary, after consulting with the Prospective Payment Assessment Commission and SNF experts, would be required to develop and publish this separate limit and would be required to ensure its budget neutrality. A SNF stay would be defined by the number of continuous days a beneficiary spent in the facility during a covered spell of illness.

An aggregate payment limit for non-routine services would also be determined annually for each SNF. This would be calculated by multiplying the number of SNF stays for which payments for these services were made times the per stay payment limit. This amount would be compared to actual interim payments made to the SNF for these services; these payments would be based on the facility's reasonable costs of providing these services. If total payments exceeded the SNF's aggregate payment limit, the Secretary would be required to reduce payments for new stays in the next fiscal year at such times and in a manner the Secretary considers appropriate.

SNFs would be required to bill Medicare for all services provided to beneficiaries eligible for SNF care, regardless of whether the service was provided by the facility, by others under arrangements with the facility, or under any other contracting or consulting arrangement. For beneficiaries residing in SNFs not eligible for Part A SNF benefits but receiving covered non-routine services, the SNF would again be required to bill for covered Part B services. SNFs would be required to maintain records of all covered non-routine services furnished beneficiaries.

The Secretary could provide for exceptions to the per stay limits, so long as additional payments were budget neutral and did not exceed 5 percent of aggregate payments to all SNFs for covered non-routine services. New SNFs not receiving payments for non-routine services in the base year period of FY 1994 would be subject to the national average payment limit described above. The Secretary would be required to determine an appropriate manner in which to apply the non-routine limits to low-volume SNFs receiving prospective payments.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with amendments. In establishing base year payments for new non-routine limits, the Secretary would be required to use cost reporting periods ending December 31, 1994. Beginning in FY 1997, per stay non-routine limits would be updated by the SNF market basket minus 2 percentage points. Non-routine services would include supplies and support services directly related to therapy. SNFs would be required to bill for all covered Part B services, except for portable x-ray or portable electrocardiogram services treated as a physician service, and physician services that are not covered routine or non-routine services. Before furnishing a covered x-ray service to a Medicare beneficiary, SNFs would be required to consider the appropriateness of portable x-ray services, taking into account the cost effectiveness of the service and the convenience to the resident.

3. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEM FOR SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES (SEC. 7025 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

For cost reporting periods beginning in FY 1998, the Secretary would be required to establish a prospective payment system for SNF care under which fixed payments would be made for episodes of care. Payments would be required to cover all services, including all routine and non-routine services (except for physician services) and capital costs. Payment amounts would be required to take into account case-mix, patient acuity, and such other factors as the Secretary determines appropriate. Total payments under the new prospective system could not exceed 90 percent of amounts that would have been made for routine and non-routine and capital expenditures if the system were not established. The Secretary would be required to reduce the prospective payment rates to take into account beneficiary coinsurance payments. The prospective payment system would also be required to reflect savings from the new payment limits established for non-routine services, savings from the OBRA 93 freeze on routine costs limits, and the 15 percent reduction in capital payments.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

4. REVISED SALARY EQUIVALENCE LIMITS (SEC. 7037 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare statute authorizes the Secretary to set limits on allowable costs incurred by a provider of services for which payment may be made under Medicare.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The Secretary would be required to determine the non-routine facility-specific per stay payment amounts as if salary equivalency guidelines were in effect for occupational, physical, respiratory, and speech pathology therapy services for the last 12-month cost reporting period of the facility on or before September 30, 1994.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate provision.

5. PAYMENTS FOR ROUTINE SERVICE COSTS (SEC. 15523 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7033 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

OBRA 93 required that there be no changes in SNF cost limits (including no adjustments for changes in the wage index or updates of data) for cost reporting periods beginning in FY 1994 and FY 1995, or in prospective payment amounts for low-volume SNFs during these cost reporting periods. The Secretary was also required, when granting or extending exceptions to cost limits, to limit any exception to the amount that would have been granted if there were no restriction on changes in cost limits. OBRA 93 also repealed the requirement that additional payments be made to hospital-based SNFs for costs attributable to excess overhead allocations, effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1993. Payments to proprietary SNFs for return on equity were also eliminated, effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1993.

House bill

Beginning in FY 1996, the proposal would permanently extend the savings stream, but not the OBRA 93 freeze on SNF cost limits, by not allowing for the inflation that occurred during the freeze years. Low-volume SNFs receiving prospective payments would be subject to the permanent extension of the savings stream of the freeze.

Reimbursements for exceptions to routine cost limits in FY 1997 would be limited to aggregate payments made in FY 1996, adjusted for increases in the SNF market basket. In future fiscal years, increases in aggregate payments for exceptions to the limits would be limited by percentage increases in the SNF market basket. The Secretary would be required to provide exceptions only to those facilities that make annual applications for adjustments.

Senate bill

Beginning in FY 1996, the proposal would permanently extend the savings stream, but not the OBRA 93 freeze on SNF cost limits, by not allowing for the inflation that occurred during the freeze years. Low-volume SNFs receiving prospective payments would be subject to the permanent extension of the savings stream of the freeze. Beginning in FY 1996, the Secretary would be required to take into account the new definition of routine service costs in determining routine cost limits.

Reimbursements for exceptions to routine cost limits in FY 1996 would be limited to aggregate payments made in FY 1994, updated to FY 1996 by the SNF market basket. In future fiscal years, increases in aggregate payments for exceptions to the limits would be limited by percentage increases in the SNF market basket. The Secretary would be required to provide exceptions only to those facilities that make annual applications for adjustments.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

6. REDUCTIONS IN PAYMENT FOR CAPITAL-RELATED COSTS (SEC. 15524 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7034 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Capital-related costs of SNFs are paid on the basis of reasonable costs and are excluded from cost limits.

House bill

SNF capital cost payments would be reduced by 15 percent for cost reporting periods occurring during FY 1996–2002.

Senate bill

SNF capital cost payments would be reduced by 15 percent for cost reporting periods occurring during FY 1996–2002.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with an amendment to reduce capital payments by 10 percent.

7. TREATMENT OF ITEMS AND SERVICES PAID FOR UNDER PART B (SEC. 15525 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7035 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Certain covered Part B services provided in SNFs are paid the lesser of reasonable costs or charges.

House bill

For services billed at the lesser of costs or charges, reasonable costs would be reduced by 5.8 percent from amounts currently recognized as reasonable for cost reporting periods occurring during fiscal years 1996 through 2002. For Medicare covered Part B services (except for portable x-ray or portable electrocardiogram services treated as a physician service), payments would have to be made to the SNF, regardless of whether the service was provided by the facility, by others under arrangements with the facility, or under any other arrangement. These services would be excluded from coverage if not billed by the SNF.

Senate bill

For services billed at the lesser of costs or charges, reasonable costs would be reduced by 5.8 percent from amounts currently recognized as reasonable for cost reporting periods occurring during fiscal years 1996 through 2002. For Medicare covered Part B services (except for physicians providing evaluation and management services to patients under their care), payments would have to be made to the SNF, regardless of whether the service was provided by the facility, by others under arrangements with the facility, or under any other contracting or consulting arrangement. These services would be excluded from coverage if not billed by the SNF.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with an amendment. Payments would have to be made to SNFs for covered Part B services, except for portable x-ray and portable electrocardiogram services treated as a physician service, and physician services that are not covered routine or non-routine services.

8. CERTIFICATION OF FACILITIES MEETING REVISED NURSING HOME REFORM STANDARDS (SEC. 15526 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

OBRA 87 comprehensively revised Medicare and Medicaid requirements for nursing homes participating in the programs. These provisions, collectively referred to as nursing home reform law, are virtually identical in Medicare and Medicaid statutes. They have three major parts: (1) requirements that nursing homes must meet in order to be certified to participate in Medicare and/or Medicaid, including requirements about assessments of residents, available services, nurse staffing, nurse aide training, and resident rights; (2) provisions revising the survey and certification process that State survey agencies must use for determining whether nursing homes comply with the requirements for participation; and (3) provisions that expand the range of sanctions and penalties that States and the Secretary of HHS may impose against nursing homes found to be out of compliance with the requirements for participation.

The Commerce Committee has reported legislation transforming the Medicaid program into a new MediGrant program authorized under Title XXI of the Social Security program. The new program would replace the OBRA 87 nursing home reform provisions with more general requirements for assuring quality care in nursing homes.

House bill

Effective for cost reporting periods beginning in FY 1996, the proposal would repeal OBRA 87 nursing home reform requirements and require that SNFs participating in Medicare either be certified by the Secretary as meeting new requirements that would replace OBRA 87 reforms or be State-certified. State-certified facilities would include facilities licensed or certified as a SNF by the State in which it is located, or a facility which otherwise meets the requirements for nursing facilities specified under the Medicaid or new MediGrant authorities.

The Secretary would be required to establish and maintain standards in the following areas for SNFs providing Medicare covered services: the treatment of resident medical records; policies, procedures, and bylaws for operation; quality assurance systems; resident assessment procedures, including care planning and outcome evaluation; the assurance of a safe and adequate physical plant for the facility; qualifications for staff sufficient to provide adequate care; and utilization review.

Standards for SNFs would also be required to provide for the protection and enforcement of resident rights, including rights to exercise the individual's rights as a resident of the facility and as a citizen or resident of the U.S.; to receive notice of rights and services; to be protected against the misuse of resident funds; to be provided privacy and confidentiality; to voice grievances; to examine the results of certification program inspections; to refuse to perform services for the facility; to be provided privacy in communications and to receive mail; to have the facility provide immediate access to any resident by any representative of the certification program, the resident's individual physician, the State long-term care ombudsman, and any person the resident has designated as a visitor; to retain and use personal property; to be free from abuse, including verbal, sexual, physical and mental abuse, corporal punishment, and involuntary seclusion; and to be provided with prior written notice of a pending transfer or discharge.

Standards established by the Secretary for SNFs could take effect only after public notice and an opportunity for comment.

The Secretary would also be required to provide for the establishment and operation of a program for the certification of SNFs that meet specified standards as well as the decertification of those facilities that fail to meet the standards. The Secretary would be required to ensure public access (as defined by the Secretary) to the certification program's evaluations of participating facilities, including compliance records and enforcement actions and other reports regarding ownership, compliance histories, and services provided by certified facilities. The Secretary would be required to audit expenditures under the program, not less often than every 4 years, through an entity designated by the Secretary and not affiliated with the program.

The Secretary would be required to impose certain sanctions against SNFs not meeting requirements. If the Secretary determines that a facility certified either by the Secretary or State no longer substantially meets the requirements for participation and further determines that the facility's deficiencies immediately jeopardize the health and safety of residents, then the Secretary would be required, at a minimum, to terminate the facility's certification for participation. If the facility's deficiencies do not immediately jeopardize the health and safety of residents, the Secretary could, in lieu of termination, provide lesser sanctions, including denial of payment for persons admitted after a specified date.

The Secretary could not impose sanctions until a facility has had a reasonable opportunity to correct its deficiencies, following the initial determination that it no longer substantially meets the requirements for certification, and, has been given reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing. The Secretary's decision to deny payment for new admissions would be effective only after notice to the public and the facility, as may be provided for by the Secretary. Denial of payment for new admissions would end when the Secretary finds that the facility is in substantial compliance (or is making good faith efforts to achieve substantial compliance). Facilities would, however, be required to be in compliance by the end of the eleventh month following the month when the decision to deny payments becomes effective. If facilities did not substantially meet the requirements by that time, the Secretary would be required to terminate their certification for participation.

House bill

The newly established Medicare Payment Review Commission would be required to report on Medicare's method for paying for SNF care and would be required to include in the report: (1) an analysis of the effect of the new payment limits for non-routine services on payments for and the quality of SNF services (2) an analysis of the advisability of determining the amount of payment for covered non-routine services on the basis of amounts paid for such services under Part B of the program; (3) an analysis of the desirability of maintaining separate limits for hospital-based and freestanding SNFs; (4) an analysis of the quality of services furnished by SNFs; and (5) an analysis of the adequacy of the process and standards used for exceptions to routine cost limits.

Senate bill

The Prospective Payment Assessment Commission would be required to report on Medicare's method for paying for SNF care and would be required to include in the report: (1) an analysis of the effect of the new payment limits for non-routine services on payments for and the quality of SNF services (2) an analysis of the advisability of determining the amount of payment for covered non-routine services on the basis of amounts paid for such services under Part B of the program; (3) an analysis of the desirability of maintaining separate routine cost limits for hospital-based and freestanding SNFs; (4) an analysis of the quality of services furnished by SNFs; (5) an analysis of the adequacy of the process and standards used for exceptions to routine cost limits; and (6) an analysis of the effect of the new SNF prospective payment methodology on the payments for and quality of SNF services, including an evaluation of the baseline used in establishing a system for payment of SNF services.

12. NURSE AIDE TRAINING IN SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES SUBJECT TO EXTENDED SURVEY (SEC. 7019 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Skilled nursing facilities (SNFs) are prohibited from offering a nurse aide training program by or in the facility if within the previous 2 years it has had a waiver of the registered nurse staffing requirement, or has been subject to an extended survey as a result of a finding that it has provided substandard care, or has been subject to sanctions for noncompliance with requirements.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision would allow SNFs otherwise prohibited from offering a nurse aide training program to do so, if the State determines that there would be no other program offered within a reasonable distance, provided notice of the approval to the State long-term care ombudsman, and assured through an oversight effort that an adequate environment exists for the program.

PROVISIONS RELATING TO RURAL ISSUES

1. MEDICARE-DEPENDENT, SMALL RURAL HOSPITALS (SECTION 7071 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare dependent hospitals are hospitals located in a rural area, with 100 beds or less, that are not classified as a sole community provider, and for which not less than 60 percent of inpatient days or discharges in the hospital cost reporting period are attributable to Medicare. These hospitals are reimbursed on the same basis as sole community hospitals. The designation for Medicare-dependent, small rural hospitals expired on July 30, 1994.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision would re-institute the Medicare-dependent hospital program effective for cost reporting periods on or after September 1, 1995 and before October 1, 2000.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

2. CRITICAL ACCESS HOSPITAL (SEC. 7072 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision would amend section 1820 to provide the Medicare Rural Hospital Flexibility Program, a limited service hospital program available to all States. Certain grants would be available to States to establish rural hospital networks consisting of at least one critical access hospital and limited service hospitals. Hospitals seeking to become limited service hospitals would be required to have an average length of stay of 72 hours and 6 beds; hospitals participating in the swing bed program could use 12 beds. Medicare would pay these facilities on a reasonable cost basis. The provision would authorize appropriations of $25 million for the program from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund for grants to States.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

3. RURAL EMERGENCY ACCESS CARE HOSPITALS (REACHS) (SEC. 15513 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7073 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The bill would provide for the establishment of a new category of hospitals under Medicare to provide for medical screening examinations and treatment for emergency medical conditions and active labor for rural facilities that are in danger of closing due to low inpatient utilization rates and operating losses and whose closing would reduce access to emergency services. Such facilities would have to meet specific requirements including those relating to appropriate medical staffing, referral arrangements; and diagnostic and laboratory services. Facilities would be reimbursed on a reasonable cost basis.

4. CLASSIFICATION OF RURAL REFERRAL CENTERS (SEC. 15514 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Referral centers are paid prospective payments based on the applicable urban payment amount rather than the rural payment amount, as adjusted by the hospital's area wage index. The applicable amount is the "other urban" rate (i.e., the rate for urban areas with 1 million or fewer people) for all referral centers except those (if any) located in MSAs greater than 1 million. These centers are defined as:

(1) rural hospitals having 275 or more beds;

(2) hospitals having at least 50 percent of their Medicare patients referred from other hospitals or from physicians not on the hospital's staff, at least 60 percent of their Medicare patients residing more than 25 miles from the hospital, and at least 60 percent of the services furnished to Medicare beneficiaries are furnished to those who live 25 miles or more from the hospital; or

(3) rural hospitals meeting the following criteria for hospital cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1985:

(a) a case mix index equal to or greater than the median case mix for all urban hospital (the national standard), or the median case mix for urban hospitals located in the same census region, excluding hospitals with approved teaching programs;

(b) a minimum of 5,000 discharges, the national discharge criterion (3,000 in the case of osteopathic hospitals), or the median number of discharges in urban hospitals for the region in which the hospital is located; and

(c) at least one of the following three criteria: more than 50 percent of the hospital's medical staff are specialists, at least 60 percent of discharges are for inpatients who reside more than 25 miles from the hospital, or at least 40 percent of inpatients treated at the hospital have been referred either from physicians not on the hospital's staff or from other hospitals.

OBRA 93 extended the classification through FY1994 for those referral centers classified as of September 30, 1992.

House bill

The bill would prohibit the Medicare Geographic Classification Review Board from denying a referral centers request for reclassification on the basis of any comparison between the average hourly wage of the hospital and the average hourly wage of hospitals in the area in which it is located. Hospitals would be allowed to submit applications to the Board during the 30-day period beginning on the date of enactment requesting a change in classification for purposes of determining the area wage index applicable to the hospital for FY1997, if the hospital would be eligible for such change except for its failure to meet the deadline for applications.

The bill would, beginning in FY1996, extend the referral center classification of any hospital classified as a referral center for FY1994, and such hospitals would continue to be classified as a referral center for each subsequent fiscal year.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

5. FLOOR ON AREA WAGE INDEX (SEC. 15515 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

As part of the methodology for determining prospective payments to hospitals under PPS, the Secretary is required to adjust a portion of the standardized amounts for area differences in hospital wage levels by a factor reflecting the relative hospital wage level in the geographic area of the hospital compared to the national average hospital wage level.

House bill

For discharges occurring on or after October 1, 1995, the area wage index applicable for any hospital which was not located in a rural area could not be less than the average of the area wage indices applicable to hospitals located in rural areas in the State in which the hospital was located. The Secretary would be required to make any adjustments in the wage index in a budget neutral manner.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

6. CLARIFICATION OF TREATMENT OF ESSENTIAL ACCESS COMMUNITY HOSPITAL/RURAL PRIMARY CARE HOSPITAL (EACH/RPCH) (SEC. 15512 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7072 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Under the EACH demonstration program up to 7 States may be designated by the Secretary to receive grants to develop rural health networks consisting of essential access community hospitals (EACHs) and rural primary care hospitals (RPCHs). Individual hospitals may be designated as EACHs and RPCHs. In order to receive designation by a State as a RPCH, a facility must meet certain criteria, including a requirement that inpatient stays not exceed 72 hours.

Montana also has a limited hospital program called the Medical Assistance Facility (MAF).

House bill

The provision would allow the EACHs to continue to receive special payments under Medicare determined in the same manner as for sole community hospitals (SCHs), and RPCHs to continue to receive Medicare payments for their services, even in fiscal years in which the program did not receive appropriations.

Senate bill

The provision would allow EACHs to continue to receive payments under Medicare determined in the same manner as for SCHs, and RPCHs to continue to receive Medicare payments for their services. The MAF program would also be continued for all qualifying facilities in Montana.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

7. ADDITIONAL PAYMENTS FOR SERVICES FURNISHED IN SHORTAGE AREAS (SEC. 7074 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

The law authorizes a bonus payment of an additional 10 percent for physicians services furnished in a health professional shortage area.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision would increase the bonus payment in health professional shortage areas from 10 percent to 20 percent and limit the bonus to primary care services. Such payments would be continued for the three year period following the withdrawal of the health professional shortage area designation for an area, provided such withdrawal occurs on or after January 1, 1996. Carriers would be required to provide information periodically to the Secretary on the types of providers to whom the carrier makes bonus payments.

The Physician Payment Review Commission would be required to conduct a study of the effectiveness of bonus payments in recruiting physicians to provide services in health professional shortage areas. Within one year of enactment, the Secretary would be required to submit a report to Congress, together with recommendations, on such study.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

8. PAYMENTS TO PHYSICIAN ASSISTANTS AND NURSE PRACTITIONERS (SEC. 7075 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Physician assistants are paid directly for their services, when provided under the supervision of a physician: (i) in a hospital, skilled nursing facility, or nursing facility, (ii) as an assistant at surgery; or (iii) in a rural area designated as a health manpower shortage area. Payments equal a percentage of what would be paid if the services were performed by a physician, namely 65% of the fee schedule amount for services performed as an assistant at surgery, 75% for other hospital services, and 85% for other services.

Nurse practitioners are paid directly for services provided in collaboration with a physician which are furnished in a nursing facility. Payments equal 85% of the physician fee schedule amount. Nurse practitioners are also paid directly for services provided in collaboration with a physician in a rural area. Payments equal 75% of the physician fee schedule amount for services furnished in a hospital and 85% of the fee schedule amount for other services.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision would permit direct payment for services in outpatient or home settings provided by physician assistants and nurse practitioners in collaboration with a physician. Payment would equal 80% of the lesser of either the actual charge or 85% of the physician fee schedule amount.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

9. TELEMEDICINE DEMONSTRATION (SEC. 7076 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Certain grants have been available through the Office of Rural Health Policy's Rural Telemedicine Grant Program to demonstrate and collect information on the feasibility, cost, appropriateness, and acceptability of telemedicine consultations for improving access to health services for rural residents and reducing the isolation of rural practitioners.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision would establish a new grant program through the Office of Rural Health to award grants to eligible entities to establish demonstration projects under which are eligible entity would establish a rural-based consortium that would enable members of the consortium to utilize the telecommunications network in the delivery of health care services in rural areas through the use of telemedicine. The provision would authorize appropriations of $10 million for each of the fiscal years 1996 through 1998.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

SUBTITLE G—PROVISIONS RELATING TO MEDICARE PART B

A. PROVIDER/PRACTITIONER PAYMENTS

1. PAYMENTS FOR PHYSICIANS SERVICES (SEC. 15601 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7041 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Payments for physicians services are made on the basis of a fee schedule. The fee schedule assigns relative values to services based on the time, skill, and intensity it takes physicians to provide them. The relative values are adjusted for geographic variations in the costs of practicing medicine. The adjusted relative values are converted into a dollar payment amount by a conversion factor. There are three conversion factors: one for surgical services, one for primary care services, and one for all other services. The 1995 conversion factors are $39.45 for surgical services, $36.38 for primary care services, and $34.62 for other services.

Conversion factors are updated each year by a default formula. The update equals inflation as measured by the Medicare Economic Index (MEI), plus or minus the difference between actual physician spending for the category of services in a base period compared to the Medicare Volume Performance Standard (MVPS) for that category for the period. (If spending was below the MVPS, the update is larger than the MEI; if spending exceeded the MVPS, the update is less than the MEI).

The MVPS is a goal for the rate of expenditure growth from one fiscal year to the next. The calculation of the MVPS for a year is based on estimates of several factors (changes in fees, enrollment, volume and intensity, and laws and regulations). The MVPS derived from the calculation is subject to a reduction which is known as the performance standard factor. The performance standard factor is four percentage points for FY 1995 and subsequent years.

House bill

a. Replacement of Medicare Volume Performance Standard. The provision would replace the MVPS with a sustainable growth rate beginning for FY 1996. The provision would establish the sustainable growth rate for FY 1996 based on: (I) changes in the MEI, (ii) changes in Medicare enrollment (excluding Medicare Plus and HMO enrollees), (iii) growth in the real gross domestic product from FY 95 to FY 96 plus 2 percentage points; and (iv) changes resulting from changes in law (determined without taking into account changes in volume or intensity or changes resulting from changes in the calculation of the conversion factor update). For each subsequent fiscal year beginning in 1997, the sustainable growth rate would equal the previous year's rate, updated by the same factors used to set the FY 96 rate.

b. Conversion Factor Update. The provision would modify the calculation of the update beginning in 1997. The provision would specify that the update for a year would equal the MEI, subject to an adjustment to match the cumulative sustainable growth rate. Specifically, the update for a year would equal the MEI, plus or minus the difference between the percentage increase in actual physician spending for the 12-month period ending the previous June compared to the allowable growth rate for the year. The allowable growth rate would be based on the cumulative sustainable growth rate from the base year 1995. If spending was below the cumulative sustainable growth rate, the update would be larger than the MEI; if spending exceeded the cumulative sustainable growth rate, the update would be less than the MEI. However, limits would be established on allowable variation from the MEI. The update could not be more than 103 percent of the MEI. It could not be less than 93 percent of the MEI in 1996, 92.25 percent of the MEI in 1998, or 92 percent of the MEI in 1999 and subsequent years.

The provision would require the Secretary to submit to Congress by November 1 of each year, beginning in 1996, a report describing the update in the conversion factor for the following year. The Medicare Review Commission would review the report and submit to Congress by December 1 a report containing an analysis of the conversion factor.

c. Single Conversion Factor. The provision would provide for the establishment of a single conversion factor, rather than three conversion factors, effective January 1, 1996. It would set the factor for 1996 at $35.42.

Senate bill

a. Replacement of Medicare Volume Performance Standard. The provision would require the Secretary to transmit to the Congress by April 15 of each year (beginning with 1996) a recommendation on the sustainable growth rate for the upcoming fiscal year. In making the recommendation, the Secretary would be required to confer with organizations representing physicians. The Secretary is to consider inflation; changes in numbers of enrollees (other than Medicare Choice and HMO enrollees); changes in the age composition of enrollees; (other than Medicare Choice and HMO enrollees); changes in technology; evidence of inappropriate utilization of services; evidence of lack of access to necessary physicians services; and other factors the Secretary considers appropriate. The Physician Payment Review Commission would review the recommendation and make its recommendation to Congress by May 15. The Secretary would be required to publish the sustainable growth rate published in the last 15 days of October of that year. For 1997, the Secretary would be required to publish the sustainable growth rate as specified in the law by January 1, 1997.

The provision would replace the MVPS with a sustainable growth rate beginning for FY 1996. The provision would establish the sustainable growth rate for FY 1996 based on: (I) changes in the MEI, (ii) changes in Medicare enrollment (excluding Medicare Choice and HMO enrollees), (iii) growth in the real gross domestic product from FY 95 to FY 96 plus 2 percentage points; and (iv) changes resulting from changes in law (determined without taking into account changes in volume or intensity or changes resulting from changes in the calculation of the conversion factor update). For each subsequent fiscal year beginning in 1997, the sustainable growth rate would equal the previous year's rate, updated by the same factors used to set the FY 96 rate.

b. Conversion Factor Update. The provision would require the Secretary by April 15 of each year (beginning in 1996) to transmit a report to Congress that includes a recommendation on the appropriate update in the conversion factor taking into account the change in the MEI; factors that enter into the calculation of the update adjustment factor and access to services. The Secretary may also consider unexpected changes made by physicians in response to implementation of the fee schedule, unexpected changes in outlay projections, changes in the quality or appropriateness of care, any other relevant factors not measured in the resource based payment methodology; and changes in the volume or intensity of services. The Physician Payment Review Commission would be required to review the report and submit its recommendations to Congress by May 15.

Unless The Congress otherwise provided, the update for a year (beginning in 1997) would be determined under a modified update calculation. The provision would specify that the update for a year would equal the MEI, subject to an adjustment to match the cumulative sustainable growth rate. Specifically, the update for a year would equal the MEI, plus or minus the difference between the percentage increase in actual physician spending for the 12-month period ending the previous June compared to the allowable growth rate for the year. The allowable growth rate would be based on the cumulative sustainable growth rate from the base year 1995. If spending was below the cumulative sustainable growth rate, the update would be larger than the MEI; if spending exceeded the cumulative sustainable growth rate, the update would be less than the MEI. However, limits would be established on allowable variation from the MEI. The update could not be more than 103 percent of the MEI or less than 93 percent of the MEI.

c. Single Conversion Factor. The provision would provide for the establishment of a single conversion factor, rather than three conversion factors, effective January 1, 1996. It would set the factor for 1996 at $35.42.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with a clarification of one of the factors used to the calculate the sustainable growth rate for FY 1997 and subsequent years. The factor for changes resulting from changes in law must include changes made by the Secretary in response to the failsafe provision. The provision further clarifies that the recommendations are to be made by the Medicare Payment Review Commission rather than the Physician Payment Review Commission.

It is the conferees understanding that HCFA has commissioned a study of practice expenses. The conferees intend that the Secretary consider analyzing the codes for portable x-ray/EKGs and transportation separately in this cost study to ensure fair and accurate evaluation of such resource-based practice expenses.

2. ELIMINATION OF FORMULA-DRIVEN OVERPAYMENTS FOR CERTAIN OUTPATIENT HOSPITAL SERVICES (SEC. 15602 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7042 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare payments for hospital outpatient ambulatory surgery, radiology, and other diagnostic services equals the lesser of: (1) the lower of a hospital's reasonable costs or its customary charges, net of deductible and coinsurance amounts, or (2) a blended amount comprised of a cost portion and a charge portion, net of beneficiary cost-sharing. The cost portion of the blend is based on the lower of the hospital's costs or charges, net of beneficiary cost sharing, and the charge portion is based, in part, on ambulatory surgery center payment rates, net of beneficiary coinsurance.

A hospital may bill a beneficiary for the coinsurance amount owed for the outpatient service provided. The beneficiary coinsurance is based on 20 percent of the hospital's submitted charges for the outpatient service, whereas Medicare usually pays based on the blend of the hospital's costs and the amount paid to ambulatory surgery centers for the same service. This results in an anomaly whereby the amount a beneficiary pays in coinsurance does not equal 20 percent of the program's payment and does not result in a dollar-for-dollar decrease in Medicare program payments.

House bill

The provision would require that beneficiary coinsurance amounts be deducted later in the reimbursement calculation for hospital outpatient services, so that Medicare payments for covered services would be lower. Medicare's payment for hospital outpatient services would equal the blended amount less any amount the hospital may charge the beneficiary as coinsurance for services furnished during portions of cost reporting periods occurring on or after October 1, 1995.

Senate bill

The provision would require that beneficiary coinsurance amounts be deducted later in the reimbursement calculation for hospital outpatient services, so that Medicare payments for covered services would be lower. Medicare's payment for hospital outpatient services would equal the blended amount less any amount the hospital may charge the beneficiary as coinsurance for services furnished during portions of cost reporting periods occurring on or after October 1, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

3. DURABLE MEDICAL EQUIPMENT (DME) (SEC. 15603 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7044 AND 7045 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

a. Freeze in DME Updates. DME is reimbursed on the basis of a fee schedule. Items are classified into five groups for purposes of determining the fee schedules and making payments: (1) inexpensive or other routinely purchased equipment (defined as items costing less than $150 or which is purchased at least 75 percent of the time); (2) items requiring frequent and substantial servicing; (3) customized items; (4) oxygen and oxygen equipment; and (5) other items referred to as capped rental items. In general, the fee schedules establish national payment limits for DME. The national limits have floors and ceilings. The floor is equal to 85 percent of the weighted median of local payment amounts and the ceiling is equal to 100 percent of the weighted median of local payment amounts. Fee schedule amounts are updated annually by the consumer price index for all urban consumers, CPI-U. OBRA 93 changed the basis for the floors and ceiling for the DME fee schedules from the weighted average to the weighted median, effective January 1, 1994.

b. Freeze in Orthotics and Prosthetics Update. Prosthetics and orthotics are reimbursed on the basis of a fee schedule. Items covered by this fee schedule include leg, arm, and neck braces, artificial limbs and eyes, and items that replace all or part of an internal body organ. The fee schedule establishes regional payment limits for covered items. The regional limits have floors and ceilings. The floor is equal to 90 percent of the weighted average of local payment amounts and the ceiling is equal to 120 percent of the weighted average of local payment amounts. Fee schedule amounts are updated annually by CPI-U. OBRA 93 eliminated updates for prosthetics and orthotics for 1994 and 1995.

c. Oxygen and Oxygen Equipment. Oxygen and oxygen equipment is paid according to a DME fee schedule.

d. Upgraded DME. If a beneficiary wishes to purchase a more expensive or upgraded DME item or supply, the beneficiary must make full payment to the supplier and submit a claim to Medicare for reimbursement of the amount of the approved standard item. For approved items, on the other hand, the beneficiary pays suppliers only the 20 percent coinsurance required for the covered item, and the supplier bills Medicare for the remaining 80 percent of the approved fee schedule amount.

e. Freeze for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrients (PEN), Supplies, and Equipment. Parenteral and enteral nutrients, supplies, and equipment are paid on the basis of the lowest reasonable charge levels at which items are widely and consistently available in the community. OBRA 93 froze 1994 and 1995 reasonable charge payments for PEN at 1993 levels.

House bill

a. Freeze in DME Updates. The 1 provision would eliminate updates to the DME fee schedules for the period 1996 through 2002.

b. Freeze in Orthotics and Prosthetics Update. The update for prosthetics and orthotics would be limited to 1 percent for each of years 1996 through 2002.

c. Oxygen and Oxygen Equipment. The provision would reduce in 1996 the national payment limit for oxygen and oxygen equipment by 20 percent.

d. Upgraded DME. The provision would authorize payment for upgraded DME to be made in the same manner as payment for a standard item, with the supplier receiving payment for the item as if it were a standard item and the beneficiary paying the difference between the supplier's charge and the amount paid by Medicare. The supplier's charge for an upgraded item could not exceed the applicable fee schedule amount (if any) for the item. The Secretary would be required to issue regulations providing for consumer protection standards for upgraded DME. These regulations would be required to provide for full disclosure by the supplier of the availability and price of standard items and proof of disclosure to the beneficiary; conditions of participation for suppliers of upgraded items, including conditions relating to billing procedures; sanctions (including exclusion) of suppliers who are determined to have engaged in coercive or abusive practices; and such other safeguards as the Secretary determines necessary.

e. Freeze for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrients (PEN), Supplies, and Equipment. Payments for PEN would be frozen at 1993 levels for the period 1996 through 2002.

Senate bill

a. Freeze in DME Updates. The provision would eliminate updates to the DME fee schedules for the period 1996 through 2002.

b. Freeze in Orthotics and Prosthetics Update. The update for prosthetics and orthotics would be eliminated for the period 1996 through 2002.

c. Oxygen and Oxygen Equipment. The provision would reduce in 1996 the national payment limit for oxygen and oxygen equipment by 40 percent.

d. Upgraded DME. The provision would authorize payment for upgraded DME to be made in the same manner as payment for a standard item, with the supplier receiving payment for the item as if it were a standard item and the beneficiary paying the difference between the supplier's charge and the amount paid by Medicare. The supplier's charge for an upgraded item could not exceed the applicable fee schedule amount (if any) for the item. The Secretary would be required to issue regulations providing for consumer protection standards for upgraded DME. These regulations would be required to provide for full disclosure by the supplier of the availability and price of standard items and proof of disclosure to the beneficiary; conditions of participation for suppliers of upgraded items, including conditions relating to billing procedures; sanctions (including exclusion) of suppliers who are determined to have engaged in coercive or abusive practices; and such other safeguards as the Secretary determines necessary.

e. Freeze for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrients (PEN), Supplies, and Equipment. Payments for PEN would be frozen at 1993 levels for the period 1996 through 2002.

Conference agreement

a. Freeze in DME Updates. The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

b. Freeze in Orthotics and Prosthetics Update. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

c. Oxygen and Oxygen Equipment. The conference agreement includes the House provision with an amendment to reduce the national payment limit for oxygen and oxygen equipment by 20 percent in 1996, 21⅔ percent in 1997, 23⅓ percent in 1998, 25 percent in 1999, 26⅔ percent in 2000, 28⅓ percent in 2001, and 30 percent in 2002.

d. Upgraded DME. The conference agreement does not include either provision.

e. Freeze for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrients (PEN), Supplies, and Equipment. The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

The conferees are concerned that there are no specific on-going quality or service standards required of a durable medical equipment provider. The conferees strongly encourage the Secretary to implement a process to establish quality standards for DME.

4. PAYMENTS FOR CLINICAL LABORATORY TESTS (SEC. 15604 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7043 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare pays for clinical laboratory services on the basis of areawide fee schedules which are periodically updated. There is no update for 1994 and 1995. In addition, the law establishes a ceiling on payment amounts. In 1995, this ceiling is set at 80 percent of the median of all fee schedules for the test; in 1996 and subsequent years the ceiling is set at 76 percent of the national median. No beneficiary cost-sharing is required.

House bill

a. Update. The provision would provide for no update in the fee schedules through 2002.

b. Cap. The provision would lower the ceiling on payment amounts to 65 percent of the median, effective January 1, 1997.

c. Study. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Update. The provision would provide for no update in the fee schedules through 2002.

b. Cap. The provision would lower the ceiling on payment amounts to 65 percent of the median, effective January 1, 1997.

c. Study. The provision would require the Secretary to conduct a study of the laboratory fee schedule and the options for rebasing or otherwise revising the payment amounts, taking into account the amounts paid for services by other large payers. A report on the study is to be submitted to Congress within one year of enactment.

Conference agreement

a. Update. The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

b. Cap. The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

c. Study. The conference agreement does not include the Senate provision.

5. EXTENSION OF REDUCTIONS IN PAYMENTS FOR COSTS OF HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT SERVICES (SEC. 15605 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7046 AND 7047 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

a. Capital-Related Costs. Hospitals receive payments for Medicare's share of capital costs associated with outpatient departments. OBRA 93 extended a 10 percent reduction in payments for the capital costs of outpatient departments through FY 1998.

b. Non-Capital-Related Costs. Certain hospital outpatient services are paid on the basis of reasonable costs. OBRA 93 extended a 5.8 percent reduction for those services paid on a cost-related basis through FY 1998.

House bill

a. Capital-Related Costs. The provision would extend the 10 percent reduction in payments for outpatient capital through FY 2002.

b. Non-Capital-Related Costs. The 5.8 percent reduction for outpatient services paid on a cost basis would be extended through FY 2002.

Senate bill

a. Capital-Related Costs. The provision would reduce payments for outpatient capital by an additional 5 percent for FY 1996–1998 (above OBRA 93's 10 percent reduction) and reduce capital payments by 15 percent for FY 1999–2002.

b. Non-Capital-Related Costs. The 5.8 percent reduction for outpatient services paid on a cost basis would be extended through FY 2002.

Conference agreement

a. Capital-Related Costs. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

b. Non-Capital-Related Costs. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

6. FREEZE IN PAYMENTS FOR AMBULATORY SURGICAL CENTER SERVICES (SEC. 15606 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7048 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare pays for ambulatory surgical center (ASC) services on the basis of prospectively determined rates. These rates are updated annually by CPI–U. OBRA 93 eliminated updates for ASCs for FY 1994 and FY 1995.

House bill

The provision would eliminate the inflation update for ASCs for each of the fiscal years 1996 through 2002.

Senate bill

The provision would eliminate the inflation update for ASCs for each of the fiscal years 1996 through 2002.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

7. RURAL EMERGENCY ACCESS CARE HOSPITALS (SEC. 15607 OF THE HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7073(C)(1) OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

See II. Medicare Part A, item 2 above.

House bill

The provision would make conforming amendments to Part B.

Senate bill

The provision would make conforming amendments to Part B.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

8. PAYMENTS FOR ANESTHESIA SERVICES (SEC. 15608 OF HOUSE BILL, SEC. 7050 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

a. Payment for Jointly Furnished Services. The law specifies how payment amounts are to be determined when anesthesia services are furnished by an anesthesiologist practicing alone and when an anesthesiologist is medically directing or medically supervising two to four certified registered nurse anesthetists (CRNAs). When an anesthesiologist and a CRNA are involved in a single case and no exceptional medical requirement exists, only the anesthesiologist is reimbursed.

b. Physician Supervision of CRNAs. Reimbursement for CRNA services is conditioned on physician supervision.

House bill

a. Payment for Jointly Furnished Services. The provision would specify how payments are to be calculated when services for a single case are furnished jointly by a physician and a CRNA and the carrier determines that the use of both the physician and the CRNA are not medically necessary. In 1996 and 1997, the fee schedule amount for the physician's services are to equal 55% of the amount that would be paid if the physician were practicing alone. In 1998 and subsequent years, the amount paid would equal 50% of the amount that would be paid if the physician were practicing alone. The amount paid to the CRNA would equal 40% of the amount that would otherwise be paid to a physician practicing alone in 1996 and 1997 and 50% in subsequent years.

b. Physician Supervision of CRNAs. No provision.

Senate bill

a. Payment for Jointly Furnished Services. No provision.

b. Physician Supervision of CRNAs. The provision would require the Secretary to revise any regulations describing conditions under which payment may be made for anesthesia services in a hospital or ambulatory surgical center. The revision would defer to State law in determining whether physician supervision of CRNAs is required as a condition of payment.

Conference agreement

a. Payment for Jointly Furnished Services. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

b. Physician Supervision of CRNAs. The conference agreement does not include the Senate provision.

9. STATEWIDE FEE SCHEDULE AREA FOR PHYSICIANS SERVICES IN WISCONSIN (SEC. 15609 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision

House bill

The provision would require the Secretary to treat the State of Wisconsin as a single fee schedule area for physicians services beginning in 1997. The provision would be implemented in a budget neutral fashion. Nothing in the section is to be construed as limiting the availability to the Secretary, the contractor or the physicians in the State of otherwise applicable administrative procedures for subsequently modifying the fee schedule areas.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

10. PAYMENTS FOR AMBULANCE SERVICES (SEC. 15609A OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7049 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Payments for ambulance services are based on reasonable charge screens developed by individual carriers based on local billings (which may take a variety of forms). Based on these local billing methods, carriers develop screens for one or more of the following main billing methods: (i) a single all-inclusive charge reflecting all services and supplies, and mileage; (ii) one charge reflecting all services and supplies, with separate charge for mileage; (iii) one charge for all services and mileage, with separate charges for supplies; and (iv) separate charges for services, mileage, and supplies. Within each broad payment method, additional distinctions are made based on whether the service is basic life support or advanced life support service, whether emergency or nonemergency transport was used, and if specialized advanced life support services were rendered.

House bill

a. Payment Amount. The provision would specify that beginning January 1,1998, payment for ambulance services would equal 80% of the lesser of the actual charge for the service or the fee schedule amount.

b. Fee Schedule. The provision would require the Secretary to establish a fee schedule through a negotiated rulemaking process. In establishing a fee schedule, the Secretary would be required to: (i) establish mechanisms to control increases in expenditures which fairly reflect the changing nature of the ambulance service industry; (ii) establish definitions for ambulance services which promote efficiency and link payments (including fees for assessment and treatment services) to the type of services provided; (iii) take into account regional differences which affect cost and productivity, including differences in the costs of resources and the costs of uncompensated care; (iv) apply dynamic adjustments to payment rates to account for inflation, demographic changes in the population of Medicare beneficiaries, and changes in the number of participating providers; (v) phase-in the application of the payment rates in an efficient and fair manner.

The provision would require the Secretary to implement the provision in 1998 in a budget neutral fashion. Beginning in 1999, the payment amounts under the fee schedule would equal the previous year's payment amount updated by the increase in the consumer price index for the 12-month period ending the previous June.

The provision would require the Secretary to regularly consult with the following groups when establishing the fee schedule: American Ambulance Association, the National Association of State Medical Directors, and other national organizations representing individuals and entities who furnish or regulate ambulance services. The Secretary in establishing the fee schedule would be required to share with the associations and organizations the data and data analysis used in establishing the fee schedule, including data on variations in payments for years prior to 1998 among geographic areas and types of providers.

Senate bill

a. Payment Amount. The provision would provide that when determining the reasonable cost or charge of ambulance services for fiscal years 1996 through 2002, the Secretary could not recognize any costs in excess of those recognized as reasonable in fiscal year 1995.

b. Fee Schedule. No provision.

Conference agreement

a. Payment Amount. The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

b. Fee Schedule. The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

11. STANDARDS FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY SERVICES FURNISHED BY PHYSICIANS (SEC. 15609B OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would prohibit payment under Medicare for physicians services consisting of outpatient physical therapy services or outpatient occupational therapy services if such services are furnished by a physician who does not meet the requirements specified in the law for such services when furnished by a clinic or rehabilitation agency.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

B. BENEFICIARY PAYMENTS

1. EXTENSION OF PART B PREMIUM (SEC. 15611 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7052 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

When Medicare was established in 1965, the Part B monthly premium was set at a level to finance one-half of Part B program costs. Beginning in 1974, however, Congress limited the percentage increase in the premium to the same percentage by which Social Security cash benefits were adjusted for changes in cost of living (i.e. cost-of-living adjustments or COLAs). Under this formula, revenues from premiums soon dropped from 50 percent to below 25 percent of program costs. This was because Part B program costs increased much faster than inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index on which the Social Security COLA is based.

Since the early 1980s, Congress has regularly voted to set Part B premiums at a level to cover 25 percent of program costs, in effect overriding the COLA limitation. The 25 percent provision first became effective January 1, 1984. General revenues cover the remaining 75 percent of Part B program costs. Congress took this general approach again in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (OBRA 90), but instead of leaving the calculations to the Secretary, the law set specific premium amounts for each year, 1991–1995, based on estimates of the program's costs. For 1995, the Part B premium is set at $46.10 per month. Part B program cost estimates have since proven to be too large, and the 1995 premium is now projected to cover approximately 31.5 percent of program costs. Most recently, OBRA 93 extended the policy of setting the Part B premium at a level to cover 25 percent of program costs through 1998, leaving the calculations to the Secretary. This would mean that the 1996 premium would be lower than the 1995 premium. Under current law, the provision limiting the annual percentage increase to the percentage increase in the social security COLA would again apply, beginning in 1999.

House bill

The provision would permanently set the Part B premium at 31.5 percent of program costs, beginning in 1996.

Senate bill

The provision would set the Part B premium at the following levels for the years 1996–2002: $53 in 1996, $57 in 1997, $61 in 1998, $66 in 1999, $74 in 2000, $80 in 2001, and $89 in 2002.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

2. INCOME-RELATED PART B PREMIUM (SEC. 15612 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7053 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Under current law, all beneficiaries, regardless of income pay the same Part B premium. The remaining costs of the Part B program are paid from Federal General revenues.

House bill

a. Amount. Under the provision, individuals with incomes over $75,000 and couples with incomes over $125,000 would be responsible for increases in the Part B premium. The Federal subsidy would be gradually phased out. Individuals with incomes at $100,000, couples (with one spouse enrolled in Part B) with incomes at $150,000, and couples (with both spouses enrolled in Part B) with incomes at $175,000 would be required to pay a premium equal to 100 percent of Part B program costs. The provision would apply to monthly Part B premiums beginning in 1997.

b. Administration. The Secretary of DHHS would be required to make an initial determination of the amount of an individual's actual adjusted gross income (AGI) for a year. The determination would be based on information supplied by the Secretary of the Treasury. Not later than October 1 of the preceding year, the Secretary would be required to notify each individual subject to an increased premium. The notice would include the Secretary's estimate of the individual's AGI for the year. The individual would have a 30-day period (beginning with the date on which the notice is provided) to provide information on the individual's anticipated AGI for the forthcoming year.

The Secretary would be required to make a premium adjustment if he or she determined (based on information provided by the Secretary of the Treasury) that actual AGI was different from the amount initially determined. The adjustment would be made to the subsequent year's premium to adjust for any overpayments or underpayments in the previous year. The Secretary would be authorized to make appropriate recovery efforts in the case of an individual who owed an additional amount, but was not enrolled in Part B in such subsequent year. The Secretary would also be authorized, in the case of a deceased individual, to make a payment to the surviving spouse, or an individual's estate, in the case of overpayments to the program.

The provision would generally define AGI as such term is used in the tax code. The determination of AGI would be made without regard to the provisions in the code relating to: income from U.S. savings bonds used to pay higher education costs; income for persons living abroad; and income from sources within the U.S. possessions and Puerto Rico. The definition of AGI would include interest income which is exempt from Federal taxes.

The provision would authorize the Secretary of the Treasury, upon written request from the Secretary of DHHS, to disclose to officers and employees of the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) return information for taxpayers required to pay a monthly Part B premium. The information would be limited to: taxpayer identity information, filing status, AGI, amounts excluded from gross income (under provisions relating to savings bonds used to pay higher education costs and citizens or residents living abroad); tax-exempt interest income to the extent such information is available; and amounts excluded from gross income (under provisions relating to income from sources within the U.S. possessions and Puerto Rico) to the extent such information is available. The information disclosed to HCFA could only be used for purposes of establishing the monthly Part B premium.

Senate bill

a. Amount. Under the provision, individuals with incomes over $50,000 and couples with incomes over $75,000 would be responsible for increases in the Part B premium. The Federal subsidy would be gradually phased out. Individuals with incomes at $100,000, couples with incomes at $150,000 would be required to pay a premium equal to 100 percent of Part B program costs. The provision would apply to monthly Part B premiums beginning in 1997.

b. Administration. Medicare enrollees would declare during the annual open enrollment period or during an enrollment period applicable to a specific individual, an estimate of their AGI for the forthcoming year. If an individual does not file an enrollment form for an enrollment period (and the individual's coverage therefore continues without modification), the AGI would be determined on the basis of the most recent available information. If the Secretary determines that an individual has filed incorrect information, based on information from the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary shall use the information obtained from the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Secretary would be required to notify the Social Security Administration of the amount of premium to be deducted from each enrollees check. The premium would be effective in the month in which the enrollment was effective or the month in which the notice was received, whichever was later.

The difference, if any, between the amount of the premium owed and the amount paid in a year would be reconciled in conjunction with the annual income tax filing process. If an additional amount was owed, a separate payment would be made to the Secretary, together with any interest owed. In the case of overpayments, the Secretary would credit the excess against any supplemental premium required or make a payment to the individual. The Secretary would also be authorized to make further adjustments, if required, based on information received from the Secretary of the Treasury.

The provision would generally define AGI as such term is used in the tax code. The determination of AGI would be made without regard to the provisions in the code relating to: income from U.S. savings bonds used to pay higher education costs; income for persons living abroad; and income from sources within the U.S. possessions and Puerto Rico. The definition of AGI would include interest income which is exempt from Federal taxes.

The provision would authorize the Secretary to enter into agreements with the Commissioner of Social Security or the head of any other appropriate Federal agency which performs administrative responsibilities under this section.

The provision would require the Secretary of the Treasury, upon written request from the Secretary of DHHS, to disclose whether or not and the amount by which an individual's AGI exceeds the minimum level subject to supplemental premiums. Return information could only be used by officers and employees of DHHS (or any other Federal agency with which an agreement was in effect) for the purpose of establishing an individual's correct supplemental premium amount.

Conference agreement

a. Amount. The conference agreement includes the House provision.

b. Administration. The conference agreement includes the House provision with a technical amendment. Individuals would be permitted to pay the Secretary if the amount of the estimated AGI is too low and results in a portion of the required premium not being deducted from the beneficiary's social security check.

It is the conferees intent that the Secretary of HHS not obtain any income-related information that is not necessary for the determination of the increase in the monthly premium.

3. PART B DEDUCTIBLE (SEC. 7051 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Beneficiaries enrolled in Part B must pay the first $100 each year of the programs recognized costs or charges for covered services.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision would increase the deductible to $150 in 1996 and increase it by $10 each year thereafter.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate agreement.

C. OTHER PROVIDER-RELATED PROVISIONS

1. ADMINISTRATION OF LABORATORY SERVICES (SEC. 15621 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would require the Secretary to adopt uniform coverage, administration and payment policies for clinical diagnostic laboratory tests within one year of enactment. The Secretary would be required to select 15 carrier medical directors to develop recommendations to the Secretary for such policies. The directors would be representative of geographic areas and have a varied range of interest in relevant fields including pathology and clinical laboratory practice. The directors would be required to consult with independent experts in each major discipline of clinical laboratory medicine (including clinical laboratory personnel, bioanalysts, pathologists, and practicing physicians). The medical directors would also solicit comments from other individuals and groups wishing to participate. The provision would provide that the process would be conducted as negotiated rule-making as provided under the Administrative Procedures Act.

The provision would provide that the negotiated rule-making would result in recommendations for uniform policies in the following areas: (I) beneficiary information required to be submitted with each claim; (ii) physicians' obligations regarding documentation and record keeping; (iii) procedures for filing claims and for providing remittances electronically; (iv) performance of post-payment review; (v) prohibition of documentation of medical necessity except where determined to be appropriate after identification of aberrant medical patterns through focused medical review; and beneficiary responsibility for payment.

The provision would prohibit carriers and intermediaries from implementing any new requirements for submission of claims retroactive to January 1, 1995 during the period when the Secretary is adopting new policies. Further, carriers would be prohibited from issuing new coverage, administration or payment policies unless they promote the goal of administrative simplification.

The provision would require the medical directors to forward their recommendations to the Secretary within six months of enactment. The Secretary would provide for publication of recommendations for public comment using negotiated rule-making. The Secretary would publish final uniform policies which would become effective 180 days following publication. Following publication, the Secretary would implement uniform documentation and processing policies.

The provision would permit any independent laboratory to select one carrier for processing all of its claims for payment regardless of where the laboratory, patient, or provider resides or conducts business. The election would be made by the laboratory and an agreement between the carrier and the laboratory would be forwarded to the Secretary. No laboratory would be required to select a single carrier.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

2. DIRECT BILLING FOR LABORATORY SERVICES (SEC. 15622 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

In general, payment may only be made under Medicare to persons or entities who perform or personally supervise the performance of a laboratory test. This is known as direct billing. Payment may be made to a physician with whom the physician performing the test shares a practice.

A limited exception to the direct billing requirement is provided for referring labs. A referring lab may bill for tests performed by another lab only if one of the following three conditions are met: (1) the referring laboratory is located in or is part of a rural hospital; (2) the referring laboratory is wholly-owned by the entity performing the test, the referring lab wholly-owns the entity performing the test; or both entities are wholly-owned by a third entity; or (3) not more than 30 percent of the clinical diagnostic tests for which the referring laboratory (not described in paragraph (2)) receives requests for testing during the year are performed by another laboratory.

House bill

The provision would establish a direct billing requirement for labs. Any person collecting amounts in violation of the requirement would be liable for the amounts. Any person that furnished clinical lab services for which payment is made under Medicare's clinical laboratory fee schedules would be subject to a penalty of $10,000 for each violation. The Secretary would be authorized to exclude from participation in any Federal health care program any individual the Secretary determined had repeatedly violated the direct billing requirement. A Federal health program would be defined as any plan or program that provides health benefits, whether directly, through insurance or otherwise, which is funded in whole or in part by the U.S. Government. Also included are State Medicaid programs, maternal and child health block grant and social services block grant programs.

The Secretary would also be authorized to suspend, revoke, or limit a laboratory's certification under the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Act if it violated the direct billing requirement on a repeated basis. The lab would be given reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing before such action was taken.

The provision would require the Secretary, on July 31, 1999, to prepare an actuarial estimate to determine whether the cost of clinical lab services under Medicare for the FY 1997–FY 2002 period were expected to be at least three percent less than projected on enactment. If not, the Secretary would be required to adjust the payment ceiling (set under the bill at 65% of the national median) in fiscal years 2000, 2001 and 2002 to achieve the requisite savings by September 30, 2002. The Congressional Budget Office would be required to make its own 1999 estimate.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

3. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR QUALITY STANDARDS FOR DURABLE MEDICAL EQUIPMENT (DME) (SEC. 15631 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary of DHHS would be required to establish a broadly based task force to develop recommendations for quality standards for DME covered under Part B. The Secretary would be required to include on the task force representatives of DME suppliers, consumers, and other users of equipment, and would also be required to assure representation from various geographic regions. The task force would be required to submit its recommendations for quality standards not later than 1 year after enactment.

Senate bill

No provision.

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

SUBTITLE H—PROVISIONS RELATING TO MEDICARE PARTS A AND B

A. HOME HEALTH SERVICES

1. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES (SEC. 15701 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7061 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

In provisions contained in the Orphan Drug Act of 1993, OBRA 87 and OBRA 90, Congress required the Secretary to develop alternative methods for paying for home health care on a prospective basis. In 1994, the Office of Research and Demonstration in the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) completed a demonstration project that tested prospective payment on a per visit basis. Preliminary analysis indicates that the per visit prospective payment methodology had no effect on cost per visit or volume of visits. HCFA has begun a second project, referred to as Phase II, to test prospective payment on a per episode basis.

House bill

The proposal would establish a prospective payment system for home health services. This system would be based on prospectively determined per visit rates that are subject to per episode limits applied in the aggregate. The proposal would have the following specific components.

Beginning in FY 1997, the Secretary would be required to establish national average per visit rates for each of the home health service disciplines covered under Medicare—skilled nursing care, physical therapy, speech pathology, occupational therapy, medical social services, and home health aide services. The per visit rates would be based on amounts paid during cost reporting periods ending June 30, 1994, updated by the home health market basket for fiscal years 1995 through 1997. The home health market basket is currently used to update cost limits. To reflect regional differences in the costs of providing services, the labor-related portion of the per visit rates would be adjusted by the hospital wage index. These adjusted per visit rates would be the amounts that home health care agencies would receive throughout the year for each of the particular mix of visits provided to a given home health care beneficiary.

Per visit rates would be subject to a per episode limit. The Secretary would calculate separate per episode limits for each of 18 different case categories of home health care. These 18 categories would be the same as those being used in HCFA's Phase II demonstration (or an alternative methodology developed by the Secretary), and would serve as a substitute for a true case-mix adjustment not yet available. The per episode limit for a category would cover all care provided to a beneficiary during a period of 120 days. No new episode of care would be recognized for reimbursement purposes until after a beneficiary has been discharged for a period of 60 days.

The per episode limit would be calculated as follows. For each of the 18 case categories, the Secretary would determine the mean number of visits of each type of home health services furnished during a period of 120 days following the initial admission of the beneficiary to the case during the base year FY 1994. The Secretary would then multiply the results by the per visit payment rates for services. This would become the target per episode limit for a case. Calculation of per episode limits would be done on an areawide basis; for these purposes the area in which an agency is located would be that area the Secretary finds most appropriate.

Each agency would be paid per visit payments throughout the year. At the end of the year, an agency's aggregate limit would be calculated by first multiplying the Secretary's regional target per episode limit for each of the 18 case categories times the number of episodes admitted by an agency to each of the 18 categories. The sum of these products becomes the agency aggregate payment limit.

Total per visit payments to an agency would be compared with the aggregate payment limit, i.e. the mix of an agency's episodes times the per episode limits. For these purposes, all visits provided during the first 165 days of care per episode would be counted against an agency's aggregate limit. If total payments for the year are below the agency's aggregate payment limit, then agencies would be allowed to retain 50 percent of the difference, up to 5 percent of an agency's aggregate Medicare payments in a year. For agencies with aggregate payments over the limit, the Secretary would be required to reduce payments to agencies in the following fiscal year in a manner the Secretary considers appropriate (including on an installment basis).

If a beneficiary continues to need home health visits after a period of 165 days, then an agency may request that additional payments be made on a per visit basis. These payments would not be subject to the aggregate limit. In order for fiscal intermediaries to approve such requests, agencies would be required to submit a physician's certification of the continuing need for care, as well as the reason for the need for additional visits, and a description of services to be furnished during the visits.

Beginning in FY 1998, per visit payment rates would be updated annually by the home health market basket minus 2 percentage points. The Secretary would be required to rebase the update at least once every 5 years with the most recent available data. Beginning in FY 1999, the Secretary would also be required to revise the mean number of visits in each case category to reflect the most recently available data on number of visits per episode. To deal with case-mix "creep," the Secretary would also be required to adjust per episode limits to assure that aggregate payments in a year do not exceed the previous year's payments because of changes in the number and type of home health visits within each episode.

The Secretary would be required to implement a medical review process for the new payment system, giving particular attention to fiscal years 1997 and 1998. The purpose of the medical review process would be to assess patterns of care to assure that beneficiaries receive appropriate services under the new prospective payment system. Medical reviews would be required to focus on short stay cases and cases over 165 days. Recertification of the need for care would have to be done at 30, 60, 90, 120, and 165 days of home health care.

The Secretary would be required make adjustments in payments to home health care agencies that circumvent the new payment system by discharging patients to another home health agency or similar provider; by altering corporate structure or name to avoid being subject to payment limits or for purposes of increasing Medicare payments; and by undertaking any other actions that are unnecessary for effective patient care and that are intended to maximize Medicare payments.

The Secretary would be required to develop a system to track home health patients who receive care from more than one agency during an episode. For such situations, the Secretary would be required to adjust payments to assure that total amounts paid to these agencies do not exceed the payment that would otherwise have been made if the patient had completed the episode in a single agency.

The Secretary would also be required to develop a system to adjust payments to agencies to eliminate any increase in growth in the percentage of low-cost episodes over the percentage of such cases occurring at the agency for the 12-month cost reporting period ending June 30, 1994. The Secretary would be required to define low-cost episode in a manner to assure that a home health agency has an incentive to be cost efficient in delivering services and that the volume of services does not increase as a result of factors other than patient needs.

Reimbursements for exceptions to the per episode limits would be limited to aggregate payments made in FY 1994 adjusted for increases in the home health market basket.

Separate Part B billings would be prohibited for any services covered under the per episode limit while the beneficiary is receiving home health services, and payment would have to be made to the home health agency, regardless of whether a service was provided by the agency, by others under arrangements with the agency, or under any other arrangement. Services would be excluded from coverage if not billed by the agency. Agencies would be required to bill prosthetics and orthotics furnished as part of a home health visit under Part B's prosthetics and orthotics fee schedule, just as durable medical equipment (DME) furnished by an agency as part of home health must now be billed under the fee schedules for DME.

Home health coverage under Medicare Part A would be limited to 165 days per spell of illness. Visits beyond this limit would be reimbursed under Part B and the Secretary would be prohibited from including these costs in the calculation of the Part B premium.

The Medicare Review Commission would be required to report on the effectiveness of the new payment system for each of the first three years of its operation. The Commission would also be required to make recommendations to Congress on (1) case-mix and volume increases, (2) quality monitoring of home health agency practices, (3) whether a capitated payment system for home health care patients using over 165 days of service is warranted; (4) whether public providers of service are adequately reimbursed; (5) the adequacy of the exemptions and exceptions to the limits; (6) the appropriateness of methods used to adjust the per episode limits and annual payment updates to reflect changes in the mix of services, number of visits, and assignment to case categories to reflect changing patterns of home health care; and (7) the geographic areas used to determine per episode limits.

Senate bill

The proposal would establish a prospective payment system for home health services. This system would be based on prospectively determined per visit rates that are subject to per episode limits applied in the aggregate. The proposal would have the following specific components.

Beginning in FY 1997, the Secretary would be required to establish national average per visit rates for each of the home health service disciplines covered under Medicare— skilled nursing care, physical therapy, speech pathology, occupational therapy, medical social services, and home health aide services. For FY 1997, the per visit rates would be based on amounts paid during cost reporting periods ending June 30, 1994. To reflect regional differences in the costs of providing services, the labor-related portion of the per visit rates would be adjusted by the hospital wage index. These adjusted per visit rates would be the amounts that home health care agencies would receive throughout the year for each of the particular mix of visits provided to a given home health care beneficiary.

Per visit rates would be subject to a per episode limit. The Secretary would calculate separate per episode limits for each of 18 different case categories of home health care. These 18 categories would be the same as those being used in HCFA's Phase II demonstration (or an alternative methodology developed by the Secretary), and would serve as a substitute for a true case-mix adjustment not yet available. The per episode limit for a category would cover all care provided to a beneficiary during a period of 120 days. No new episode of care would be recognized for reimbursement purposes until after a beneficiary has been discharged for a period of 60 days.

The per episode limit would be calculated as follows. For each of the 18 case categories, the Secretary would determine the mean number of visits of each type of home health services furnished during a period of 120 days following the initial admission of the beneficiary to the case during the base year FY 1994. The Secretary would then multiply the results by the per visit payment rates for services. This would become the target per episode limit for a case. Calculation of per episode limits would be done on an areawide basis; for these purposes the area in which an agency is located would be determined according to the same metropolitan statistical area/rural classification system used for the hospital wage index.

Each agency would be paid per visit payments throughout the year. At the end of the year, an agency's aggregate limit would be calculated by first multiplying the Secretary's regional target per episode limit for each of the 18 case categories times the number of episodes admitted by an agency to each of the 18 categories. The sum of these products becomes the agency aggregate payment limit.

Total per visit payments to an agency would be compared with the aggregate payment limit, i.e. the mix of an agency's episodes times the per episode limits. For these purposes, all visits provided during the first 165 days of care per episode would be counted against an agency's aggregate limit. If total payments for the year are below the agency's aggregate payment limit, then agencies would be allowed to retain 50 percent of the difference, up to 5 percent of an agency's aggregate Medicare payments in a year. For agencies with aggregate payments over the limit, the Secretary would be required to reduce payments to agencies in the following fiscal year in a manner the Secretary considers appropriate (including on an installment basis).

If a beneficiary continues to need home health visits after a period of 165 days, then an agency may request that additional payments be made on a per visit basis. These payments would not be subject to the aggregate limit. In order for fiscal intermediaries to approve such requests, agencies would be required to submit a physician's certification of the continuing need for care, as well as the reason for the need for additional visits, and a description of services to be furnished during the visits.

Beginning in FY 1998, per visit payment rates would be updated annually by the greater of the home health market basket minus 2.5 percentage points, or 1.1 percent (1.2 percent in FY 1997). The Secretary would be required to rebase the per visit rates with the most recent available data at least once every 2 years beginning with FY 2000. Beginning in FY 1999, the Secretary would also be required to revise the mean number of visits in each case category to reflect the most recently available data on number of visits per episode. To deal with case-mix "creep," the Secretary would also be required to adjust per episode limits for each of the fiscal years 1997–2000 to assure that aggregate payments in a year do not exceed the previous year's payments because of changes in the number and type of home health visits within each episode. In subsequent years, the Secretary would be required to adjust the limits to remove the effects of case-mix increases due to reporting improvements instead of real changes in patients' resource usage.

The Secretary would be required to implement a medical review process for the new payment system, giving particular attention to fiscal years 1997 and 1998. The purpose of the medical review process would be to assess patterns of care to assure that beneficiaries receive appropriate services under the new prospective payment system. Medical reviews would be required to focus on short stay cases and cases over 165 days. Recertification of the need for care would have to be done at 30, 60, 90, 120, and 165 days of home health care. The Secretary could use public or private organizations to conduct medical reviews.

The Secretary would be required make adjustments in payments to home health care agencies that circumvent the new payment system by discharging patients to another home health agency or similar provider; by altering corporate structure or name to avoid being subject to payment limits or for purposes of increasing Medicare payments; and by undertaking any other actions that are unnecessary for effective patient care and that are intended to maximize Medicare payments.

The Secretary would be required to develop a system to track home health patients who receive care from more than one agency during an episode. For such situations, the Secretary would be required to adjust payments to assure that total amounts paid to these agencies do not exceed the payment that would otherwise have been made if the patient had completed the episode in a single agency.

The Secretary would also be required to develop a system to adjust payments to agencies to eliminate any increase in growth in the percentage of low-cost episodes over the percentage of such cases occurring at the agency for the 12-month cost reporting period beginning during FY 1994. For these purposes, the Secretary would be required to profile each agency to determine the distribution of all episodes by length of stay and define low-cost episodes as those at the 25th percentile. The Secretary would be required to define low-cost episode in a manner to assure that a home health agency has an incentive to be cost efficient in delivering services and that the volume of services does not increase as a result of factors other than patient needs.

Reimbursements for exceptions to the per episode limits would be limited to aggregate payments made in FY 1994 adjusted for increases in the home health market basket.

Separate Part B billings would be prohibited for any services covered under the per episode limit while the beneficiary is receiving home health services, and payment would have to be made to the home health agency, regardless of whether a service was provided by the agency, by others under arrangements with the agency, or under any other arrangement. Services would be excluded from coverage if not billed by the agency. Agencies would be required to bill prosthetics and orthotics furnished as part of a home health visit under Part B's prosthetics and orthotics fee schedule, just as durable medical equipment (DME) furnished by an agency as part of home health must now be billed under the fee schedules for DME.

The Prospective Payment Assessment Commission would be required to report on the effectiveness of the new payment system for each of the first three years of its operation. The Commission would also be required to make recommendations to Congress on (1) case-mix and volume increases, (2) quality monitoring of home health agency practices, (3) whether a capitated payment system for home health care patients using over 165 days of service is warranted; (4) whether public providers of service are adequately reimbursed; (5) the adequacy of the exemptions and exceptions to the limits; (6) the appropriateness of methods used to adjust the per episode limits and annual payment updates to reflect changes in the mix of services, number of visits, and assignment to case categories to reflect changing patterns of home health care; and (7) the geographic areas used to determine per episode limits.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with amendments. Beginning in FY 1998, per visit payment rates would be updated annually by the home health market basket minus 2 percentage points. The Secretary would be required to rebase the per visit rates with the most recently available data at least once every 5 years for cost reporting periods beginning in FY 2000. Beginning in FY 1999, the Secretary would also be required to rebase at least once every 5 years the mean number of visits furnished during an episode for each case category to reflect the most recently available data. Recertification of the need for care would be have to done at 60 and 165 days of care.

2. MAINTAINING SAVINGS RESULTING FROM TEMPORARY FREEZE ON PAYMENT INCREASE FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES (SEC. 15702 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7062 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Home health care agencies are currently reimbursed on the basis of reasonable costs, up to specified limits. Cost limits are determined separately for each type of covered home health service (skilled nursing care, physical therapy, speech pathology, occupational therapy, medical social services, and home health aide), and according to whether an agency is located in an urban or rural area. Costs limits, however, are applied to aggregate agency expenditures; that is, an aggregate cost limit is set for each agency that equals the limit for each type of service multiplied by the number of visits of each type provided by the agency. Limits for the individual services are set at 112 percent of the mean labor-related and nonlabor per visit costs for freestanding agencies. Cost limits are updated annually by applying a market basket index to base year data derived from home health agency cost reports. The labor-related portion of a service limit is adjusted by the current hospital wage index.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (OBRA 93) required that there be no changes in home health cost limits (including no adjustments for changes in the wage index or other updates of data) for cost reporting periods beginning on or after July 1, 1994, and before July 1, 1996. The Secretary was also required, when granting or extending exceptions to cost limits, to limit any exception to the amount that would have been granted if there were no restriction on changes in the cost limits. OBRA 93 also repealed the requirement that additional payments be made to hospital-based home health agencies for costs attributable to excess overhead allocations, effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1993.

House bill

The provision would permanently extend the savings stream, but not the freeze, in setting future home health limits, by not allowing for the inflation that occurred during the freeze years.

Senate bill

The provision would permanently extend the savings stream, but not the freeze, in setting future home health limits, by not allowing for the inflation that occurred during the freeze years.

3. EXTENSION OF WAIVER OF PRESUMPTION OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE OF EXCLUSION FROM COVERAGE FOR HOME HEALTH AGENCIES (SEC. 15703 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7063 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

When a provider furnishes services that are not covered under Medicare, the provider is not normally entitled to Medicare payment for those services. The program, however, has recognized that circumstances may exist where providers of services or beneficiaries could not have reasonably known that services would not be covered. Medicare has paid for a limited number of services which are not covered services, so long as it is determined that the provider or beneficiary did not know and could not reasonably have been expected to know that services would be uncovered. The provider is presumed not to know that coverage for certain services would be denied—it qualifies for a “favorable presumption”—when its denial rate is below a certain level. With this favorable presumption, its liability for denied claims below the threshold is waived and it is paid for these claims. The provider receives waiver of liability protection for denied claims below the threshold.

For home health agencies, waiver of liability protection is available for two separate categories of denials. One waiver applies to medical denials, i.e., to claims that are denied because the care was not medically necessary or was determined to be custodial in nature. Another waiver applies to services determined to be noncovered because the beneficiary was not homebound or did not require intermittent skilled nursing care. These are referred to as technical denials.

For both categories, the principal criterion for meeting the favorable presumption test is a denial rate of 2.5 percent or less. Waiver of liability protection for both medical and technical denials expires December 31, 1995.

House bill

Waiver of liability for home health agencies would be extended through September 30, 1996.

Senate bill

Waiver of liability for home health agencies would be extended through September 30, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

4. REPORT ON RECOMMENDATIONS FOR PAYMENTS AND CERTIFICATION FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PROVIDERS (SEC. 15704 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary would be required to submit recommendations to Congress, not later than July 1, 1996, on an appropriate methodology for making payments under the Medicare program for home health services furnished by Christian Science providers who meet applicable requirements of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, and appropriate criteria for certifying these providers.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision with a modification to require that payments be made for home health services furnished by Christian Science providers. Providers must meet applicable requirements of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, and be certified under criteria established by the Secretary. Payments are to be made according to a methodology established by the Secretary. The provision is effective for services furnished during cost reporting periods which begin after the earlier of the date on which the Secretary establishes the payment methodology and certification criteria, or July 1, 1996.

5. EXTENSION OF PERIOD OF HOME HEALTH AGENCY CERTIFICATION (SEC. 15705 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

In order to determine compliance with requirements for participation, home health agencies must be subject to an unannounced standard survey that must be conducted not later than 15 months after the date of the previous standard survey. The average interval between standard surveys in a state must not exceed 12 months.

House bill

The provision would require that standard surveys for home health agencies be conducted not later 36 months after the date of the previous standard survey. The Secretary would be required to establish a frequency within this 36-month interval commensurate with the need to assure the delivery of quality home health services.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

B. MEDICARE SECONDARY PAYER

1. EXTENSION AND EXPANSION OF EXISTING REQUIREMENTS (SEC. 15711 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7055(A)–(C) OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Generally Medicare is the "primary payer," that is, it pays health claims first, with an individual's private or other public insurance filling in some or all of Medicare's coverage gaps. However, in certain instances, the individual's other coverage pays first, while Medicare is the secondary payer. This phenomenon is referred to as the MSP program. A group health plan offered by an employer (with 20 or more employees is required to offer workers age 65 or over (and workers spouses age 65 or over) the same group health insurance coverage as is offered to younger workers. If the worker accepts the coverage, the employer is the primary payer, with Medicare becoming the secondary payer

Similarly, a group health plan offered by a large employer (100 or more employees) is the primary payer for employees or their dependents who are on the Medicare disability program. The provision applies only to persons covered under the group plan because the employee is in "current employment status" (i.e. is an employee or is treated as an employee by the employer). The MSP provision for the disabled population expires October 1, 1998.

The MSP provisions apply to apply to end-stage renal disease (ESRD) beneficiaries with employer group health plans, regardless of employer size. The group health plan is the primary payer for 18 months for persons who become eligible for Medicare ESRD benefits. The employer's role as primary payer is limited to a maximum of 21 months (18 months plus the usual 3-month waiting period for Medicare ESRD coverage). The MSP provisions for the ESRD population expire October 1, 1998.

The law authorizes a data match program which is intended to identify potential secondary payer situations. Medicare beneficiaries are matched against data contained in Social Security Administration (SSA) and Internal Revenue Service (IRS) files to identify cases in which a working beneficiary (or working spouse) may have employer-based health insurance coverage. Cases of previous incorrect Medicare payments are identified and recoveries are attempted. The authority for the program extends through Sept. 30, 1998.

House bill

The provision would make permanent the MSP provisions for the disabled and the ESRD population. It would extend the period during which the employer group health plan is primary payer for an ESRD beneficiary from 18 to 24 months. The provision would also make permanent the data match requirement.

Senate bill

The provision would make permanent the MSP provisions for the disabled and the ESRD population. It would extend the period during which the employer group health plan is primary payer for an ESRD beneficiary to 30 months. The provision would also make permanent the data match requirement.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

2. PAYMENT RECOVERIES (SEC. 15712 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Recent court action may lessen the effectiveness of the data match program. In many cases where recoveries are sought, claims have never been filed with the primary payer. Identification of potential recoveries under the data match process usually takes in excess of the time period most health plans allow for claims filing. Two May 1994 decisions by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia held certain portions of the MSP overpayment recovery procedures invalid. In particular, it held invalid provisions authorizing payment recoveries without regard to a health plan's timeliness requirements. The U.S. Supreme Court denied a HCFA petition to review the 1994 decisions.

House bill

The provision would specifically permit MSP recoveries from third party administrators of health plans, except in cases of insolvency or bankruptcy of the employer or plan. It would also permit recovery actions up to three years from the date the item or service was furnished to the beneficiary.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

3. PROHIBITION OF RETROACTIVE APPLICATION OF POLICY REGARDING ESRD BENEFICIARIES (SEC. 15713 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7055(D) OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare remains the primary payer if a group health plan was already secondary for an individual entitled on the basis of age or disability when the individual becomes entitled on the basis of ESRD. Following enactment of OBRA 93, HCFA stated that the private plan would become primary in such cases. On April 24, 1995, HCFA corrected its construction of the statute; it issued guidelines stating that Medicare remains the primary payer in these cases.

House bill

The provision would specify that the policy change specified in the April 24, 1995 HCFA guidelines would only apply with respect to items and services furnished on or after such date.

Senate bill

The provision would prohibit a retroactive application of the policy. In the event age-based or disability-based Medicare entitlement preceded ESRD-based eligibility, Medicare would be the secondary payer for the period August 10, 1993 to April 24, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include either provision.

C. FAILSAFE (SEC. 15721 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Although the Federal Government is required by law to pay Medicare claims on behalf of eligible participants, total Medicare spending is limited in two ways: (1) by availability of reserves in the Medicare trust funds; and (2) by provisions of OBRA of 1990, P.L. 101–508. These limitations are intended to set ongoing aggregate limits on spending, not to regulate the annual rate of growth in Medicare.

Limitation created by trust fund reserves. Part A claims for hospitalization are paid from the Hospital Insurance (HI) Trust Fund. Part B claims for physicians' services are paid from the Supplementary Medical Insurance (SMI) Trust Fund. These two trust funds are accounting devices by which the Government determines the extent to which spending on Medicare claims is authorized without new legislation or appropriations. Trust fund balances represent spending authority. An insolvency in either fund would force a stoppage in Government reimbursement for Medicare claims until the fund had accrued new credits.

The sources of trust fund credits are: (1) payroll tax revenue; (2) enrollee premiums; (3) Government general fund contributions; and (4) interest on Government debt held by the funds. The earmarked revenue for the HI fund comes from a payroll tax of 1.45 percent applicable to both employees and employers. The SMI fund is credited with monthly premium payments made by Part B enrollees (currently $46.10 a month) and transfers of general Government funds. The HI fund is projected to be depleted in FY 2002. The SMI fund will not be depleted, however, since general fund transfers are credited each year in amounts sufficient to maintain the fund's solvency.

Limitation created by OBRA of 1990. A provision in OBRA of 1990 requires that legislated increases in entitlement spending and decreases in revenue be offset by entitlement decreases and/or revenue increases on a pay-as-you-go (PAYGO) basis. A violation of PAYGO rules can trigger sequestration, a process by which all budget accounts subject to sequestration are reduced by the percentage necessary to make up any spending overrun or revenue shortfall. However, the law limits the sequestration percentage that can be applied to Medicare benefits to 4.0 percent or less. These budget rules apply through FY 1998.

Sequestration has not occurred because of a PAYGO violation, but OBRA of 1990 restricted increases in certain Medicare payment rates beginning in FY 1991 as part of the budget agreement set forth by that law. Sequestration did occur in FY 1988 under an earlier law, the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Reaffirmation Act of 1987 (P.L. 100–119). The sequestration percentage applied to Medicare spending was 2.0 percent, the maximum allowed for Medicare under that law. It was achieved by reducing payment rates for covered services.

House bill

1. RECOMMENDATION OF SPENDING CONTROLS

A new section 1895 would be added to Title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide a "failsafe budget mechanism" by which certain Medicare spending would be reduced automatically if it were anticipated that spending would exceed budget targets during the next fiscal year.

2. EFFECTIVE DATE

The failsafe budget mechanism would be effective for FY 1998 and all subsequent fiscal years.

3. EXPENDITURE MEASURE SUBJECT TO CONTROL

The failsafe budget mechanism would apply to both Parts A and B of Medicare, but only to fee-for-service expenditures. Distinct limits would be specified for the following fee-for-service sectors: inpatient hospital services; home health services; extended care services; hospice care; physicians' services; outpatient hospital services and ambulatory facility services; durable medical equipment and supplies; diagnostic tests; and other items and services. The Secretary of Health and Human Services would classify each item and service paid for separately by Medicare into one of these sectors by Oct. 1, 1996.

4. MAXIMUM SPENDING LEVELS

a. Overall spending level

The total Medicare budget allotment for a fiscal year would equal the Medicare benefit budget less the payments the Secretary estimates would be made under MedicarePlus (the new Part C). The Medicare benefit budget would be set forth in law as follows:

[In billions of dollars]

Fiscal year:	Benefit budget
1997	208.0
1998	217.1
1999	228.4
2000	246.4
2001	265.5
2002	288.0

The benefit budget for a subsequent fiscal year would equal the benefit budget for the preceding fiscal year increased by the product of: (1) 1.05; and (2) 1.0 plus the annual percentage increase in the average number of Medicare beneficiaries in a subsequent fiscal year compared to the preceding fiscal year.

b. Limit by Sector

The budget allotment for a sector for a fiscal year would be determined by multiplying the total fee-for-service allotment for that year by an allotment proportion for each sector. This proportion would equal the ratio of (1) the baseline projection of expenditures for the sector for the year to the sum of all such baseline expenditures for all sectors for that year. Baseline projections would be determined by applying annual growth rates for each sector, as specified in the new law, to the prior year's baseline expenditure for the sector. Baseline projections for FY 1996 would equal actual FY 1995 expenditures increased by the appropriate growth rate. In subsequent years, baseline projections would be determined by applying annual growth rates for each sector, as specified in the new law, to the prior year's baseline expenditure for each sector. These fiscal year growth rates (expressed in percents) are specified as follows:

Sector	1996	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002
Inpatient care	5.7	5.6	6.0	6.1	5.7	5.5	5.2
Home health care	17.2	15.1	11.7	9.1	8.4	8.1	7.9
Extended care	19.7	12.3	9.3	8.7	8.6	8.4	8.0
Hospice care	32.0	24.0	18.0	15.0	12.0	10.0	9.0
Physician services	12.4	9.7	8.7	9.0	9.3	9.6	10.1
Outpatient services	14.7	13.9	14.5	15.0	14.1	13.9	14.0
Durable equipment and supplies	16.1	15.5	13.7	12.4	13.2	13.9	14.5
Diagnostic tests	13.1	11.3	11.0	11.4	11.4	11.5	11.9
Other items and services	11.2	10.2	10.9	12.0	11.6	11.6	11.8

The growth rates shown above for FY 2002 would also apply to subsequent years.

In providing for adjustments to Medicare payments for a particular sector, the Secretary would be required to take into account the impact of the adjustment on the volume or type of services provided in that sector and any delays in payments from one year to the next that might be expected in that sector.

5. LOOKBACK SPENDING ADJUSTMENT

If the actual fee-for-service expenditures for a sector were to exceed the total allotments for the second preceding year, then the sector's allotment would be reduced for the next fiscal year by 133⅓ percent of the excess amount. Should spending in the second preceding year fall below a sector's allotment for that year, the excess allotment could be added to the allotment for the next fiscal year. These adjustments would be made after adjusting the prior-year allotments to reflect actual Part C expenditures for the second preceding year.

6. METHOD FOR SPENDING REDUCTIONS

If the Secretary determines that expenditures for a sector for a fiscal year would exceed the sector's budget allotment for that year, then Medicare payment rates applicable to that sector would be adjusted so that expenditures would be reduced by 133⅓ percent of the amount of the excess. The Secretary would be required to publish the size of any necessary adjustments and the methodology to be used by May 15 preceding the fiscal year in question. A final determination on adjustments would have to be published by September 1 prior to that year.

7. CONGRESSIONAL MODIFICATION

If the President submits a legislative proposal to revise the baseline annual growth rates specified for fee-for-service sectors, Congress would be required to consider the proposal under an expedited procedure. Passage of a joint resolution of approval would be required within 60 days of submittal for the changes to become law. Procedure for consideration of a joint resolution would be the same as that used under the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Act of 1990.

8. REQUIRED REPORTS

Beginning with the budget documents for FY 1999, the President's Budget would be required to include information on actual Medicare fee-for-service expenditures by sector for the second preceding year, with a comparison to the corresponding Medicare benefit budget and sector allotments. Data on actual annual growth rates for each fee-for-service sector would also be required.

Annual reports of the Trustees on Part A of Medicare would be required to include information on the annual rate of program expenditures that would maintain the solvency of the trust fund and the extent to which the failsafe budget mechanism restrained the expenditure growth rate.

Beginning in 1997, the Medicare Payment Review Commission would be required to submit by March 1 of each year a report analyzing the past operation of the failsafe mechanism and making recommendations with respect to its application to the following fiscal year.

a. Overall spending level

The conference agreement includes the House provision with a modification to set the levels as follows:

1999	229.2
2000	247.2
2001	266.4
2002	289.0

b. Limit by sector

The conference agreement includes the House provision with an amendment. The limit would be applied in the aggregate, with cuts applied proportionately to excess spending sectors. modification to apply the limit in the aggregate.

5. LOOKBACK SPENDING ADJUSTMENT

The conference agreement replaces the House provision with the new provision described below.

Beginning in FY 1998, if the fee-for-service expenditures for all sectors for the second preceding fiscal year are estimated to exceed the total adjusted allotments for that year, then the current year's allotment for each sector with excess spending would be reduced by the "sector reduction amount." This sector reduction amount is defined as the product of: (1) the amount of excess spending for a sector and year; and (2) the ratio of (a) the net excess spending for all fee-for-service sectors to (b) the gross sum of excess spending in only those sectors with excess spending.

These lookback adjustments would be made after adjusting the original allotments to reflect actual Part C expenditures in the second preceding fiscal year.

6. METHOD FOR SPENDING REDUCTIONS

The conference agreement includes the House provision with the following modification. Instead of reducing an excess spending sector's payment rates to reduce spending by 133⅓ percent of the estimated excess spending amount, the sector's payment rates would be modified to achieve a 133⅓ percent reduction of that sector's "reduction target." A sector's "reduction target" is defined as the product of: (1) the amount of excess spending for the sector in the fiscal year; and (2) the ratio of (a) net excess spending for all fee-for-service sectors, to (b) the gross sum of excess spending amounts for only those sectors with excess spending in the fiscal year.

7. REQUIRED REPORTS

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

D. ADMINISTRATIVE SIMPLIFICATION (SEC. 15731 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The provision would provide for the adoption of standards for Medicare information transactions and data elements. The Secretary would be required to adopt standards which were consistent with reducing administrative costs and which were developed or modified by a standard setting organization accredited by the American National Standards Institute. The Secretary could adopt or modify a standard relating to data elements that was different from such standard if, compared to the alternative, it would substantially reduce administrative costs to providers and health plans and it was promulgated in accordance with Federal rule making procedures.

The provision would require each person who maintains or transmits Medicare information or data elements to maintain reasonable and appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to: (i) ensure integrity and confidentiality of information; and (ii) protect against any reasonably anticipated threats or hazards to security or unauthorized uses or disclosures.

The Secretary would be required to establish security standards and modifications to those standards that take into account technical capability of record systems, costs of security measures, need for training personnel who have access to information, and the value of audit trails. The standards would assure that a Medicare information network service that was part of a larger organization had policies which isolated its activities. Security standards would be based on those developed by standard setting organizations or, if such standards do not exist, by the Medicare Information Advisory Committee. The Secretary would be required to establish specifications for implementing each of the standards and modifications. The Secretary would rely on the recommendations of the Medicare Information Advisory Committee and consult with appropriate Federal and State agencies and private organizations. The Secretary would publish the recommendations of the Advisory Committee in the Federal Register.

The Secretary would be required to adopt standards for transactions and data elements to make Medicare information uniformly available to be exchanged electronically. The standards would provide for unique health identifiers for each individual, plan, employer, and provider. Penalties would be imposed for improper disclosure of this number. In addition, the Secretary would: (i) provide for the establishment of code sets in consultation with the Medicare Information Advisory Committee and other experts; (ii) promulgate regulations specifying procedures for the electronic transmission and authentication of signatures; (iii) develop rules for transfer of information between health plans needed for coordination of benefits; and (iv) develop further transaction standards if, after 5 years, they were deemed necessary for coordination of benefits. The provision would provide for protection of trade secrets.

The provision would require the development of the standards within 18 months of enactment. Additional or modified standards could be adopted not more than once every 12 months. Additions or modifications would be completed in a manner that minimized disruption and cost of compliance. Health plans would be required to conduct standard transactions in a timely manner and comply with transaction and data element standards within 24 months of adoption. Compliance with any modified standards would be required within an appropriate period but not less than 180 days after adoption of the modified standard. Penalties would be established for failure to comply with requirements and standards.

The provision would supersede any contrary provision of state law unless the Secretary determined that the provision of State law should be continued for any reason including for reasons relating to prevention of fraud and abuse or regulation of controlled substances.

The provision would establish a Medicare Information Advisory Committee to advise the Secretary in development of standards and to advise the Secretary and the Congress on the status and future of the Medicare information network. The Committee would be composed of 9 members—three appointed by the President, three appointed by the Speaker of the House, and three by the President pro tempore of the Senate. The Committee would be required to submit an annual report to the Congress which would include information on the extent to which entities using the Medicare information network were meeting the standards, forming an integrated network, and meeting security standards.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision with an amendment. The provision is incorporated in the new title C, MedicarePlus. The requirements apply to Medicare Plus and Medicare information and the advisory committee is the Medicare Plus and Medicare Advisory Committee. The National Council for Prescription Drug Program is an approved Standard Setting Organization.

E. OTHER PROVISION RELATING TO PARTS A AND B

1. CLARIFICATION OF MEDICARE COVERAGE OF ITEMS AND SERVICES ASSOCIATED WITH CERTAIN MEDICAL DEVICES APPROVED FOR INVESTIGATIONAL USE (SEC. 15741 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Medicare law does not provide an all-inclusive list of specific items, services, treatments, procedures, or technologies covered by the program. The law, however, provides that no payment may be made for any expenses which are not reasonable and necessary for the diagnosis or treatment of illness. While HCFA has not explicitly defined "reasonable" and "necessary" for purposes of making decisions about the appropriateness of Medicare's coverage for specific services and items, it has applied a general policy that services be safe and effective and not experimental or investigational. In 1994, HCFA clarified its coverage policy to prohibit coverage and payment of services associated with the use of investigational devices.

House bill

The provision specifies that nothing in Medicare law could be construed as prohibiting coverage of items and services associated with the use of a medical device in the furnishing of inpatient hospital services (including outpatient diagnostic imaging services) on the grounds that the device is not an approved device if (1) the device is an investigational device; and (2) the device is used instead of an approved device or a covered procedure. The amount of payment for items and services associated with the use of investigational devices in inpatient hospital services could not exceed the amount that Medicare would have paid if the item or service were associated with an approved device. The provision would define approved device as a medical device which has been approved for marketing under pre-market approval or cleared for marketing under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. An investigational device would be defined as a medical device approved for investigational use under the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

2. ADDITIONAL EXCLUSION FROM COVERAGE (SEC. 15742 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7056 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Medicare excludes coverage for certain defined items and services.

House bill

The provision would exclude Medicare coverage for expenses associated with items or services or the purchase of health benefit coverage used for the purpose of causing, or assisting in causing, the death, suicide, euthanasia, or mercy killing of a person.

Senate bill

The provision would exclude Medicare coverage for expenses associated with items or services or the purchase of health benefit coverage used for the purpose of causing, or assisting in causing, the death, suicide, euthanasia, or mercy killing of a person. Medicare's requirements for providers to maintain policies and procedures for advance directives would be amended to specify that no health care provider or employee of a health care provider could be required to inform or counsel a patient regarding assisted suicide, euthanasia, mercy killing, or other service which purposefully causes the death of a person.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include either provision. It is the conferees' intent that, notwithstanding any other provision of Medicare, no payment may be made under Part A or Part B for any expenses incurred for items or services where such expenses are for items or services, or to assist in the purchase, in whole or in part, of health benefit coverage that includes items or services, for the purpose of causing, or assisting in causing, the death, suicide, euthanasia, or mercy killing of a person.

3. COMPETITIVE BIDDING (SEC. 15743 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary would be required to operate over a 2-year period a demonstration project in two geographic regions under which payments for a selected item or service (other than clinical diagnostic laboratory tests) would be made according to a competitive bidding process. The competitive bidding process used in the demonstration would be required to meet requirements imposed by the Secretary to ensure the cost-effective delivery of items and services of high quality. The Secretary would be required to select items and services for the demonstration that would be appropriate and cost-effective, and in determining which items and services to select, the Secretary would be required to consult an advisory taskforce which includes representatives of providers and suppliers of items and services in each geographic region in which the project would be effective.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

4. DISCLOSURE OF CRIMINAL CONVICTIONS RELATING TO PROVISION OF HOME HEALTH SERVICES (SEC. 15744 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

The Secretary and each State or local survey agency or other State agency responsible for monitoring compliance of home health agencies with requirements for participation would be required to make available, upon request of any person, information the Secretary or agency has on individuals who have been convicted of felonies relating to the provision of home health services.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

5. REQUIRING RENAL DIALYSIS FACILITIES TO MAKE SERVICES AVAILABLE ON A 24-HOUR BASIS (SEC. 15745 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

Medicare covers persons who suffer from end-stage renal disease. Facilities providing dialysis services must meet certain requirements.

House bill

Renal dialysis facilities would be required to make institutional dialysis services and supplies available on a 24-hour basis (either directly or through arrangements with providers of services or other renal dialysis facilities) and would be required to inform patients about arrangements with other providers.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

6. INDIAN HEALTH SERVICE FACILITIES (SEC. 7057(A) OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

Indian Health Service (IHS) facilities are eligible for Medicare payments for services provided to Medicare beneficiaries.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision clarifies that nothing in the bill can be interpreted as meaning any change in Medicare payment to eligible IHS facilities.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision.

7. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING COVERAGE FOR TREATMENT OF BREAST AND PROSTATE CANCER UNDER MEDICARE (SEC. 7058 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

The provision sets forth the sense of the Senate that Medicare should not discriminate among breast and prostate cancer victims by providing drug treatment coverage for some but not all such cancers, and that the budget reconciliation conferees should amend Medicare to provide coverage for these important cancer drug treatments.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with a modification. Under the modification, Medicare coverage is authorized for a self-administered oral drug prescribed for use as an anticancer nonsteroidal antiestrogen for treatment of breast cancer. Coverage is only authorized if the manufacturer of the drug has a rebate agreement with the Secretary under substantially similar terms and conditions as apply to Medicaid rebate agreements on the date of enactment.

SUBTITLE I—CLINICAL LABORATORY IMPROVEMENT AMENDMENTS

1. EXEMPTION OF PHYSICIANS' OFFICE LABORATORIES (SEC. 15801 OF HOUSE BILL)

Current law

The Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendments of 1988 (CLIA 88) significantly strengthened Federal regulation of laboratories and expanded Federal oversight to virtually all labs in the country, including physicians' office laboratories. All labs are required to register with DHHS. Labs performing only simple tests receive a certificate of waiver. Other labs (performing moderate complexity and/or high complexity testing) must meet performance standards issued by the Secretary.

A special category of tests, physician performed microscopy procedures, was established in 1993. This category was expanded and renamed provider-performed microscopy procedures earlier this year. These are specified procedures which are personally performed by physicians, dentists, and certain mid-level personnel; the procedures must be performed on specimens derived from their patients as part of a physical examination and evaluation. The tests are labelled moderate complexity; however, physicians (or other personnel) performing only these tests and waivered tests are not subject to routine inspections, though most other moderate complexity requirements continue to apply.

House bill

The provision would exempt a clinical laboratory in a physician's office from the CLIA requirements. Exempted labs would be those in the office of a physician (including an office of a group of physicians) which is directed by a physician. The examinations and procedures must be performed by a physician or by individuals supervised by a physician solely as an adjunct to other services provided by the physician's office.

A clinical office laboratory would not be exempt from CLIA when it performed Papanicolaou (PAP) Smears.

Senate bill

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House provision.

SUBTITLE J—LOCK BOX PROVISIONS FOR MEDICARE PART B SAVINGS FROM GROWTH REDUCTIONS

1. TREATMENT OF PART B SAVINGS (SEC. 15901 OF HOUSE BILL; SEC. 7172 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

a. Authorize New Trust Fund. A new Sec. 1841 would be added to Title XVIII, Part B of the Social Security Act. It would establish a Federal Medicare Growth Reduction Trust Fund under the Department of the Treasury. The new fund would be authorized to receive gifts, bequests, and appropriations.

b. Appropriations of Part B Savings. The Secretary of the Treasury would transfer from the general fund to the Federal Medicare Growth Reduction Trust Fund amounts equal to all Medicare savings estimated to result from the provisions of OBRA of 1995.

c. Authorization of Spending From Fund. Effective in FY 2003, funds could be spent from the new trust fund to pay obligations of the Medicare program, but these trust fund outlays would be limited to amounts authorized in advance by Congress through legislative action.

Senate bill

a. Authorize New Trust Fund. No provision.

b. Appropriations of Part B Savings. The Secretary of the Treasury would transfer from the general fund to the HI Trust Fund amounts equal to certain Medicare savings under OBRA of 1995. The savings eligible for this transfer would be those resulting from changes to: the Part B deductible, the part B premium, and the part B premium for high-income individuals.

c. Authorization of Spending From Fund. No provision.

Conference agreement

a. Authorize New Trust Fund.

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

b. Appropriations of Part B Savings.

The conference agreement includes the Senate provision with a modification. The amount of the difference between the premium set at 31.5% of program costs and an amount equal to 25% of program costs would be transferred to the HI Trust Fund. Monies derived from additional income-related premium amounts would also be transferred to the HI Trust Fund. In addition, the reference to the Part B deductible is struck.

c. Authorization of Spending From Fund.

The conference agreement does not include the House provision.

2. NONDISCHARGEABILITY OF CERTAIN MEDICARE DEBTS (SEC. 7171 OF SENATE BILL)

Current law

No provision.

House bill

No provision.

Senate bill

Section 523(a) of Title 11, U.S. Code, which concerns the discharging of individual debt during a bankruptcy proceeding, would be amended. The amendment would not allow a discharging of debt owed by a health care provider or supplier because of an overpayment to that provider or supplier from the HI Trust Fund or the SMI Trust Fund.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate provision.

TITLE IX—TRANSPORTATION AND RELATED PROVISIONS

MINIMUM ALLOCATION FOR HIGHWAY PROGRAMS

Current law

The minimum allocation program guarantees that a State will receive at least 90 percent of the percent of its contribution to the Federal aid highway program in the Highway Account of the Highway Trust Fund. Less minimum allocation program funds will be needed in fiscal year 1996 than were necessary in fiscal year 1995 because of changes enacted under the 1991 Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA). As provided by ISTEA, the Interstate Construction and Interstate Transfer program end in fiscal year 1995 and a new category, Reimbursement, begins in fiscal year 1996. This will reduce the amount of money required in the minimum allocation category. This change occurs because fewer states need money and some states need less money in the minimum allocation program to receive a 90 percent return from the program compared to the revenues they contribute to the Highway Trust Fund.

House bill

House bill had no provision on the minimum allocation program.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment reduces minimum allocation funds that are not needed in fiscal year 1996. Sufficient funds are provided to meet minimum allocation requirements under ISTEA. The balance that is not needed is applied to reconciliation savings. The minimum allocation reduction produces an estimated $512 million in savings over the period fiscal year 1996 through fiscal year 2002.

Savings in the minimum allocation program occur in fiscal year 1996 on a one-time basis only. The savings are not a result of any reduction in minimum allocation funds to which states are entitled.

The ISTEA and previous surface transportation acts have exempted the minimum allocation program from other controls on highway spending because the program is designed to bring some equity to the apportionment formulas. This section does not implement any limitation on the minimum allocation program in fiscal year 1996 or in any future year. Any State that is eligible to receive funding under the minimum allocation category is assured that sufficient funds are available to provide the full amount due each State.

Conference agreement

The Conference agreement includes the Senate amendment.

EXTENSION OF HIGHER VESSEL TONNAGE DUTIES

Current law

The United States imposes a tonnage duty on a vessel that enters the United States from any port or place. The duty is also imposed on a vessel that departs from and returns to a U.S. port or place on a "voyage to nowhere".

The tonnage duty is imposed on the cargo-carrying capacity of the vessel and is assessed regardless of whether the vessel is empty or is carrying cargo.

A vessel arriving from a foreign port in the northern Western Hemisphere—Canada, Mexico, Central America—and a vessel returning from a "voyage to nowhere" must pay a tonnage duty of 9 cents per ton. However, the maximum payment for any vessel in a single year is 45 cents per ton.

A vessel arriving from a foreign port anywhere else in the world must pay a tonnage duty of 27 cents per ton, not to exceed $1.35 per ton in a single year.

Under current law, after fiscal year 1998, the tonnage duties will revert to earlier, lesser amounts—2 cents per ton, not to exceed 10 cents per ton in a single year for vessels entering from the northern Western Hemisphere and from "voyages to nowhere"—6 cents per ton, not to exceed 30 cents per ton for other vessels subject to the duty.

House bill

The House bill maintains the current level of vessel tonnage duties through fiscal year 2002.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment did not contain a similar provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement includes the House language.

FEMA RADIOLOGICAL EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS FEES

Current law

Under Public Law 96–295, the Congress established emergency planning and preparedness as new legal basis for licensing of commercial nuclear power plants. The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) Radiological Emergency Preparedness (REP) Program was created to ensure that communities in close proximity to commercial nuclear power plants are prepared in the event of radiological emergencies at the facilities. The REP Program consists of research development and training exercises which are designed to prevent emergency occurrences and to improve community and facility response plans. In March of 1995, in response to a directive in the fiscal year 1993 VA-HUD Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, FEMA developed final regulations for the assessment and collection of fees to cover the costs associated with the development of community radiological emergency response plans and other related features of the REP Program. The collection of fees has been directed on a year-by-year basis.

House bill

The House bill places in statute authority for FEMA to collect fees from licensees of commercial nuclear power plants to recover costs associated with the REP Program. The authority is extended through fiscal year 2002.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contained a similar provision, except that the authorization to collect fees was extended through fiscal year 2005.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement accepted the House language. The fees established shall be fair and equitable and shall reflect the full amount of FEMA's costs of providing radiological emergency services.

TITLE X—VETERANS AND RELATED PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Extension of Temporary Authorities

AUTHORITY TO REQUIRE THAT CERTAIN VETERANS MAKE CO-PAYMENTS IN EXCHANGE FOR RECEIVING HEALTH-CARE BENEFITS

Current law

Section 1710 of title 38, United States Code, as amended by section 8013 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, Public Law 101–508 (OBRA 90), provides that, in addition to already existing copayment obligations (enacted in Public Law 99–272), certain veterans would be required to make per diem payments of $10 for hospital care provided by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) and $5 for nursing home care. That per diem copayment provision, which would have expired under OBRA 90 on September 30, 1997, was extended through September 30, 1998, by section 12002 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993, Public Law 103–66 (OBRA 93).

Section 1722A of title 38 (a) requires a veteran (other than a veteran who has a service-connected disability rated 50 percent or more or whose income is at or below the maximum annual rate of VA pension) to pay $2 for each 30-day supply of a medication furnished on an outpatient basis; (b) prohibits a reduction in the amount of the co-payment if the initial amount of medication is less than a 30-day supply; (c) states that VA may not require a veteran to pay a copayment which exceeds the cost to VA of the prescription medication in question; and (d) requires that amounts collected under this authority be credited to VA's Medical Care Cost Recovery Fund. This provision, which would have expired under OBRA 90 on September 30, 1997, was extended through September 30, 1998, by section 12002 of OBRA 93.

House bill

Section 11011 would extend for four years, through September 30, 2002, the OBRA 90 per diem copayment requirements, and VA's authority to collect medication copayments from certain veterans.

Senate amendment

Section 11011 would extend for four years, through September 30, 2002, the OBRA 90 authority for VA to collect medication copayments from certain veterans.

Compromise agreement

Section 10011 follows section 11011 the House bill.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10011 would result in savings of $120 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $255 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

MEDICAL CARE COST RECOVERY AUTHORITY

Current law

Section 1729(a) of title 38 authorizes VA to collect from a health care payment plan the reasonable cost of medical care furnished for a non-service-connected disability of a veteran who has a service-connected disability and who is entitled to non-VA care (or payment of the costs associated with receiving non-VA care) under the health care payment plan. This provision was initially enacted as section 8011 of OBRA 90 and would have expired, under OBRA 90, on October 1, 1993. Section 12003 of OBRA 93 extended the expiration date of this provision to October 1, 1998. That date is codified at section 1729(a)(2)(E) of title 38.

House bill

Section 11012 would extend for four years, through September 30, 2002, VA's authority to collect from a health care payment plan the reasonable cost of medical care furnished to a veteran who has a service-connected disability for treatment of a non-service-connected disability.

Senate amendment

Section 11012 contains a substantially identical provision.

Compromise agreement

Section 10012 contains this provision.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10012 would result in savings of $405 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $855 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

INCOME VERIFICATION AUTHORITY

Current law

Section 5317 of title 38, and section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code, 26 U.S.C. § 6103, authorize VA to verify the eligibility of recipients of, or applicants for VA need-based benefits and VA "means-tested" medical care by gaining access to income-relevant records of the Department of Health and Human Services/Social Security Administration (SSA) and Internal Revenue Service (IRS). These provisions were initially enacted as section 8051 of OBRA 90 and would have expired, under OBRA 90, on September 30, 1997. Section 12004 of OBRA 93 extended these provisions to September 30, 1998.

House bill

Section 11013 would extend for four years, through September 30, 2002, VA's authority under section 5317 of title 38 to verify income data furnished to VA by gaining access to income relevant records of the IRS and SSA.

Senate amendment

Section 11014 contains a substantially identical provision, except that it also extends section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code.

Compromise agreement

Section 10013 follows section 11013 of the House bill. The Committees note that the title of this Reconciliation compromise pertaining to the Internal Revenue Code contains a provision extending section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10013 would result in savings of $42 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $140 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

LIMITATION ON PENSION FOR CERTAIN RECIPIENTS OF MEDICAID-COVERED NURSING HOME CARE

Current law

Section 5503(f) of title 38 limits to $90 a month the maximum amount of VA needs-based pension that may be paid to Medicaid-eligible veterans and surviving spouses who have no dependents and who are in nursing homes that participate in Medicaid. This section treats such individuals as if the care were being furnished at VA expense. This provision was initially enacted as section 8003 of OBRA 90 and would have expired, under OBRA 90, on September 30, 1997. Section 12005 of OBRA 93 extended these provisions to September 30, 1998.

House bill

Section 11014 would extend for four years, through September 30, 2002, the $90 limitation on the maximum amount of VA pension which can be received by Medicaid-eligible veterans and surviving spouses who have no dependents and who are in nursing homes that participate in Medicaid.

Senate amendment

Section 11015 contains a substantially identical provision.

Compromise agreement

Section 10014 contains this provision.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10014 would result in savings of $437 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $827 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

HOME LOAN FEES

Current law

Section 3729 of title 38 specifies fees that will be paid by borrowers who obtain home purchase loans guaranteed, insured, or made by VA.

For borrowers obtaining the first such loan, fees generally range from 0.50% to 2.0% of the loan amount, depending on the amount of the down payment to be made by the borrower and the type of military or naval service (active duty vs. selected reserve) upon which eligibility for home loan benefits is based. Pursuant to subsection (a)(4) of section 3729, an additional fee of 0.75% is added to the fees set forth in section 3729, except as otherwise specified, for "first use" loans closed between September 30, 1993 and October 1, 1998. The "additional fee" provision was enacted as section 12007(a) of OBRA 93.

With respect to borrowers obtaining subsequent housing assistance loans, section 3729 specifies that the fee to be charged shall be 3.0% of the total loan amount. This provision applies to loans which close between September 30, 1993 and October 1, 1998. This provision was enacted as section 12007(b) of OBRA 93.

House bill

Section 11015 would extend for four years, through September 30, 2002, the loan fees currently specified in section 3729 of title 38.

Senate amendment

Section 11013 contains a substantially identical provision.

Compromise agreement

Section 10015 contains this provision.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10015 would result in savings of $289 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $581 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

PROCEDURES APPLICABLE TO LIQUIDATION SALES ON DEFAULTED HOME LOANS GUARANTEED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

Current law

Section 3732 of title 38 specifies that VA has two options when a property, the financing of which is guaranteed under the VA Home Loan Guaranty Program, goes into foreclosure. VA may simply pay off the guaranty, or the VA may elect to purchase the property securing the loan in default and resell it. The decision on the course of action to take will depend, generally, on VA calculations as to which action would be less costly and, therefore, more advantageous to the Government.

The provisions governing the above calculations, and the circumstances under which VA shall exercise the latter option are set forth in subsection (c) of section 3732. Subsection (c) applies only with respect to properties financed with VA-guaranteed home loans which close before October 1, 1998. That period of applicability was extended to that date by section 13004 of OBRA 93.

House bill

Section 11016 would extend for four years, through September 30, 2002, the provisions of subsection (c) of section 3732.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

Compromise agreement

Section 10016 follows section 11016 of the House bill.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10016 would result in savings of $8 million over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $16 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

ENHANCED LOAN ASSET SALE AUTHORITY

Current law

Section 3720(h) authorizes VA to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest to purchasers of real estate mortgage investment conduits (REMICs). REMICs are used to "bundle" and market a number vendee loan notes—that is, notes on direct loans made by VA to purchasers of VA-acquired real estate—so that they may be sold for cash under favorable terms. Under this authority, VA guarantees to REMIC purchasers that principal and interest will be paid timely. That assurance facilitates the marketing of such securities and enhances their value in the marketplace. It thus increases the return to the Treasury when such securities are sold.

VA's authority to guarantee REMICs expires on December 31, 1995.

House bill

Section 11024 would extend, through September 30, 1996, VA's authority to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest to purchasers of REMICs.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

Compromise agreement

Section 10017 follows section 11024 of the House bill, except that it extends VA's authority to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest to the purchasers of REMICs through September 30, 2002.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10017 would result in savings of $5 million in fiscal year 1996, in savings of $25 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $35 in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

SUBTITLE B—OTHER MATTERS

REVISION TO PRESCRIPTION DRUG COPAYMENT

Current law

Section 1722A of title 38: (a) requires that certain veterans pay $2 for each 30-day supply of a medication furnished on an outpatient basis; (b) prohibits a reduction in the amount of the co-payment if the initial amount of medication is less than a 30-day supply; (c) states that VA may not require a veteran to pay a copayment which exceeds the cost to VA of the prescription medication in question; and (d) requires that amounts collected under this authority be credited to VA's Medical Care Cost Recovery Fund. Section 1722A, however, exempts the following categories of veteran from the copayment requirement: veterans with a service-connected disability rated 50% or more; and veterans with an annual income at or below the maximum annual rate of VA pension. This provision is currently scheduled to expire on September 30, 1998.

Section 5302 of title 38 authorizes the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to waive, on equitable grounds, the recovery of any payment owed to VA.

House bill

Section 11021 would: (a) increase the copayment amount to $3; (b) repeal the requirement that the copayment not exceed the cost of the medication in question; and (c) specify that the VA's "waiver of indebtedness" authority under section 5302 not apply to veterans' obligations to make medication copayments under section 1722A.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

Compromise agreement

Section 10021 follows section 11021 of the House bill, except that it increases the copayment amount to $4, and adds former prisoners of war to the listing of veterans who are exempt from the medication copayment requirement.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10021 would result in savings of $74 million in fiscal year 1996, in savings of $480 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $718 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

ROUNDING DOWN OF COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENTS IN COMPENSATION AND DIC RATES

Current law

Under chapter 11 of title 38, VA pays a monthly cash benefit, compensation, to veterans who have service-connected disabilities. The amount of the payment varies with the degree of service-connected disability suffered by the veteran.

Under chapter 13 of title 38, VA pays monthly cash benefits, Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC), to survivors of service members or veterans who died, on or after January 1, 1957, from a disease or injury incurred or aggravated during active service. Until 1992, the basic monthly benefit received by the DIC recipient varied with the pay grade at which the deceased service member or veteran was compensated during service. In 1992, chapter 13 was amended to put into place a new system of DIC that pays a "flat rate"—that is, a rate which pays all beneficiaries of DIC the same basic monthly benefit irrespective of the deceased's former military or naval pay grade. "Old-law" DIC recipients, however, are "grandmothered"—that is, if the basic DIC benefit the beneficiary would receive under the "old-law" grade-based program exceeds the "new-law" flat rate amount, the beneficiary continues to receive the "old-law" benefit.

Compensation and DIC payments are not indexed. The Congress has, however, enacted legislation which, for a given year, has adjusted compensation and DIC benefits to reflect the percentage of change in the consumer price index (CPI) relative to the prior year. When such a cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) is legislated and new compensation and DIC rates are thereby computed, the prior year's benefit—which is paid in "round dollar" amounts—is multiplied by a fraction which expresses the change in the CPI, and the product is then converted to a whole-dollar amount using "normal" rounding techniques. That is, if the product of the whole dollar amount multiplied by the CPI is a fractional dollar amount of $0.50 or more, the compensation or DIC payment is rounded up; if it is a fractional amount of $0.49 or less, it is rounded down.

House bill

Section 11022 requires VA to "round down" any cost-of-living (COLA) adjustments that might be made during fiscal years 1996 through 2002.

Section 11022 also specifies a method for calculating COLAs for "old-law" DIC recipients during fiscal years 1996 through 2002. It states that (a) all DIC recipients shall receive the same dollar-amount COLA; and (b) that "flat rate" COLA shall be equal to the whole dollar amount that is yielded when the "new-law" DIC rate is calculated by reference to the percentage change in the CPI, rounded down.

Senate amendment

Section 11021 contains a "round down" provision that is substantially identical to the House bill. It contains no provision which is comparable to the House bill's "flat rate" COLA for "old-law" DIC beneficiaries.

Compromise agreement

Section 10022 follows the House bill.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10022 would result in savings of $17 million in outlays in fiscal year 1996, in savings of $333 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $634 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

REVISED STANDARD FOR LIABILITY FOR INJURIES RESULTING FROM DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS TREATMENT

Current law

Section 1151 of title 38 states that if a veteran/patient suffers an injury as a result of VA medical care (and not as a result of the veteran/patient's own willful misconduct), and that injury results in additional disability or death, then the veteran/patient and his or her survivors shall be entitled to compensation and DIC benefits as if the additional disability or death were service-connected. VA regulations also set forth standards for the awarding of compensation or DIC for injuries or death resulting from VA medical care. Until recently, those regulations had specified that compensation or DIC would be paid only if the requirements set forth in the text of section 1151 were met and the injury in question had been a result of either VA fault or an "accident," defined by VA regulations as an "unforeseen, untoward" event.

Recent litigation, culminating in the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Brown v. Gardner,——U.S. ——, 115 S.Ct. 552, 130

L.Ed.2d 462 (1994), challenged the imposition, by VA regulation, of a "fault-or-accident" requirement not set forth in the text of section 1151. The courts ruled, inter alia, that no such requirement was set forth in statute; that the statute did not authorize VA to impose such a requirement by regulation; and that, therefore, VA could not deny compensation for failure to satisfy the "fault-or-accident" requirement. The courts also indicated that their decisions were premised on the text of section 1151 as enacted by Congress, which text Congress—but not VA—may modify.

VA has amended its regulations to conform to the standards specified in the above-referenced court rulings.

House bill

Section 11023 would amend section 1151 to establish a new standard similar to VA's invalidated "fault-or-accident" requirement with respect to all medical injuries for which a claim for section 1151 benefits was received by VA on or after October 1, 1995. It would also provide for VA liability for medical injuries caused by an event which was not reasonably foreseeable.

Senate amendment

Section 11041 contains a substantially identical provision.

Compromise agreement

Section 10023 contains this provision.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10023 would result in savings of $89 million in fiscal year 1996, in savings of $1.601 billion in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $2.498 billion in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

WITHHOLDING OF PAYMENTS AND BENEFITS

Current law

Section 3726 of title 38 states that, except as noted, no Federal agency may offset any payment owed to a veteran (or a deceased veteran's surviving spouse) in order to collect on a debt owed to VA by the veteran (or surviving spouse) under VA's home loan guaranty program unless one of two requirements are met: the debtor consents to the offset; or a judgement against the debtor from a court of competent jurisdiction is secured. The only exception to the rule is that veterans' benefits may be so offset.

House bill

Section 11025 would amend section 3726 to authorize VA to refer a veteran's (or surviving spouse's) home loan guaranty debt to another Federal agency for offset under certain circumstances. Referrals would be allowed if (a) the debtor is given notice, in writing, of VA's authority to waive debts under section 5302 of title 38; (b) VA makes an affirmative determination that the debtor should not be released from liability under section 3713(b) of title 38; and (c) the debtor has been notified of procedures available to appeal a determination that a release of liability is not warranted. In effect, this provision allows VA to refer such debts to the Internal Revenue Service for offset against income tax refunds or, in the case of debtors who are Federal employees, to the debtor's employing agency for offset against salary or wages.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment contains no comparable provision.

Compromise agreement

Section 10024 follows section 11025 of the House bill.

According to CBO, the enactment of section 10024 would result in savings of $90 million in outlays in fiscal year 1996, in savings of $90 million in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2000, and in savings of $90 in outlays over fiscal years 1996–2002.

HEALTH CARE ELIGIBILITY REFORM (HOUSE BILL)/EDUCATIONAL BENEFITS AMENDMENTS (SENATE AMENDMENT)

Current law

Eligibility for VA Health Care Services: Section 1710(a)(1) of title 38 states that VA shall provide needed hospital care, and may provide needed nursing home care, to specified classes of veterans for treatment of specified conditions. Those classes include: veterans who have service-connected disabilities for treatment of those service-connected disabilities; veterans who were discharged from service due to disabilities for treatment of any disability; veterans who would receive disability compensation but for the operation of laws which preclude "dual compensation" for treatment of any disability; veterans who have a service-connected disability rated at 50% or more for treatment of any disability; veterans who have a service-connected disability rated less than 50% for treatment of any disability; veterans who are former prisoners of war for treatment of any disability; veterans of the Persian Gulf War who VA finds might have been exposed to toxic substances or environmental hazards for treatment of conditions other than those determined by VA not to have been caused by that exposure; veterans of the Mexican border period or World War I for treatment of any disabilities; and veterans with non-service-connected disabilities if the veteran is of limited means as determined in accordance with section 1722(a) of title 38. Other veterans are eligible for VA hospital care, but only to the extent that resources and space are available to provide such care, and only if the veteran makes copayments.

Section 1712 of title 38 establishes various rules governing VA provision of outpatient medical services. VA shall furnish needed outpatient medical services to veterans who have a service connected disability (including veterans who were discharged from service due to disabilities and veterans eligible for compensation under section 1151) for treatment of that disability, and to veterans who have a service-connected disability rated at 50% or more for treatment of any disability. Section 1712 also states that VA shall provide needed "pre-, post-, and obviate" outpatient treatment to veterans who have a service-connected disability rated at 30% or 40%, and to veterans whose income does not exceed the maximum amount of VA pension. VA may furnish all needed medical services to classes of veterans including former prisoners of war, World War

I veterans, and those receiving increased benefits based on need of aid and attendance or permanent housebound status. VA may furnish "pre-, post-, and obviate" services to other veterans who are eligible for care under the "means test" in section 1722(a).

Educational Benefits: Chapter 30 of title 38 states rules applicable to the All-Volunteer Force Educational Assistance Program, or the "Montgomery GI Bill" (MGIB). Recipients of MGIB benefits who are pursuing full time programs of study receive monthly benefits checks (which vary from $328.97 to $404.88 per month for 36 months depending on the period of the beneficiary's initial obligated period of active duty) if they had not "opted out" of participation while in service. The military or naval pay of service members who do not "opt out" of MGIB participation is reduced $100 per month during the first 12 months of service.

House bill

Eligibility for VA Health Care Services: Sections 11031 through 11037 affect a broad revision of the statutes governing eligibility for VA hospital care and outpatient treatment (including the provision of prosthetics). That revision substitutes a single uniform eligibility standard—"medical need"—for eligibility for hospital and outpatient care which would be applied to all veterans for whom VA, under current law, shall provide all needed hospital care (other than veterans whose only eligibility for hospital care is based on a service-connected disability rated at 0%). Thus, those veterans to whom VA, under current law, shall provide all needed hospital care would also be eligible for all needed outpatient medical treatment.

The measure would also require VA to establish an annual enrollment system for VA hospital and outpatient care and to manage that system in accordance with specified priorities. It would also grant to VA greater flexibility to contract for hospital care and medical services from "outside" sources, and to "share" VA resources with outside providers, while directing that VA maintain its "in-house" capacity to provide specialized treatment and rehabilitation services to disabled veterans, including those with spinal cord dysfunction, blindness, amputations and mental illness. Finally, the measure would extend expiring provisions of law (section 204 of Public Law 102–585) authorizing VA to enter into agreements to provide services to certain beneficiaries of the Department of Defense, and authorize VA to recover payments from health plans for care for which the patient (or the provider) would be eligible for payment under the plan furnished certain beneficiaries of the Department of Defense.

Educational Benefits: The House bill contains no provision pertaining to educational benefits.

Senate amendment

Eligibility for VA Health Care Services: The Senate bill contains no provision pertaining to eligibility for VA health care services.

Educational Benefits: Section 11031 limits, through September 30, 2002, the annual adjustment in MGIB benefits to one-half of the Consumer Price Index.

Section 11032 raises, for fiscal year 1996, the monthly pay reduction of service members who do not "opt out" of MGIB from $100 per month for twelve months to $134.96 per month for twelve months. It also "pegs" the monthly pay reduction, for fiscal years 1997 through 2002, to the same index to which MGIB benefits are tied.

Compromise agreement

Eligibility for VA Health Care Services: The bill follows the Senate bill provision. That is, it contains no provision pertaining to eligibility for VA health care services. The conferees note, however, that the Senate Committee on Veterans Affairs intends to hold legislative hearings during the 104th Congress to consider the issue of eligibility reform.

Educational Benefits: The bill follows the House bill provision. That is, it contains no provision pertaining to educational benefits.

TITLE XI. REVENUE PROVISIONS [1]

I. FAMILY TAX RELIEF

A. CHILD TAX CREDIT FOR CHILDREN UNDER AGE 18 (SEC. 6101 OF H.R. 1215 AND SEC. 12001 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Present law does not provide tax credits based solely on the taxpayer's number of dependent children. Taxpayers with dependent children, however, generally are able to claim a personal exemption for each of these dependents.

House bill

The House bill allows taxpayers a nonrefundable tax credit of $500 for each qualifying child under the age of 18. The credit amount is indexed for inflation after 1996.

The credit is phased out ratably for taxpayers with modified AGI over $200,000, and is fully phased out at modified AGI of $250,000. For purposes of the AGI phaseout, the taxpayer's AGI is increased by the amount otherwise excluded from gross income under Code sections 911, 931, or 933 (relating to the exclusion of income of U.S. citizens or residents living abroad; residents of Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, and American Samoa; and residents of Puerto Rico, respectively). After 1996, the beginning point of the phaseout range ($200,000) is indexed for inflation. The size of the phaseout range will change as needed so as to remain 100 times the maximum amount of the credit per child.

Married taxpayers filing separate returns generally may not claim the credit.

[1] Rule XXI5(c) of the Rules of the House of Representatives provides that "No bill or joint resolution, amendment, or conference report carrying a Federal income tax rate increase shall be considered as passed or agreed to unless so determined by a vote of not less than three-fifths of the Members voting." The House conferees have carefully reviewed the provisions of title XI of the conference agreement, and all other provisions of the conference agreement, to determine whether any of these provisions constitutes a Federal income tax rate increase within the meaning of the House Rules. It is the opinion of the House conferees that there is no provision of the conference agreement that constitutes a Federal income tax rate increase within the meaning of House Rule XXI5(c) or (d).

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment allows taxpayers a nonrefundable tax credit of $500 for each qualifying child under the age of 18. The credit amount is not indexed for inflation.

For taxpayers with AGI in excess of certain thresholds, the allowable child credit is reduced by $25 for each $1,000 of AGI (or fraction thereof) in excess of the threshold. For married taxpayers filing joint returns, the threshold is $110,000. For taxpayers filing single or head of household returns, the threshold is $75,000. For married taxpayers filing separate returns, the threshold is $55,000. These thresholds are not indexed for inflation.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the credit is effective October 1, 1995. The portion of the child credit that is effective for the period from October 1, 1995, through December 31, 1995, will be provided to taxpayers through a special procedure. The Internal Revenue Service has raised significant concerns about making the credit available through the normal return filing process for the 1995 income tax return. In light of these concerns, the conferees have directed the IRS to use a special procedure to help taxpayers obtain their 1995 child tax credit. Under this procedure, the IRS is directed to issue a form on which taxpayers can file for their 1995 child tax credit following the completion of the normal tax return filing season (i.e., after April 15, 1996). The IRS is directed to mail a notice to taxpayers on or before February 1, 1996.

The text of the notice will read as follows: "The Balanced Budget Act of 1995 was recently passed by the Congress. The Act's child tax credit allows taxpayers to reduce their taxes by $500 per child. The credit is effective October 1, 1995. You may wish to check with your employer about changing your tax withholding to take immediate advantage of the credit to which you are entitled for the current tax year. In addition, the Internal Revenue Service will be sending you a form in June of this year which you may use to claim the credit to which you are entitled for the period from October 1 through December 31, 1995 ($125 per child for 1995). In order to obtain your 1995 credit, you should file this form by August 15, 1996. Your refund will be sent to you sometime after October 1, 1996."

The IRS will mail to taxpayers on or before June 1, 1996, the form on which taxpayers may request their 1995 child tax credit. If taxpayers file their requests for their 1995 child tax credit on or before August 15, 1996, the IRS will mail their checks to them between October 1, 1996, and October 15, 1996.

In the case where a taxpayer's 1995 income tax liability had been reduced by a refundable credit, the amount of the 1995 child credit that is allowable would be calculated as if the taxpayer had been able to claim the 1995 child credit at the time that the taxpayer filed his or her 1995 income tax return. For example, suppose a taxpayer had a 1995 income tax liability of $110 prior to the application of a $1,000 refundable tax credit. The refundable credit would reduce the income tax liability to zero and a refund of $890 would be paid to the taxpayer. If the taxpayer has one qualifying child for the 1995 portion of the child tax credit, the taxpayer may receive an additional $110 refund, since he would have been able to use $110 of the $125 of 1995 child tax credit to offset his or her 1995 income tax liability, had the child tax credit been available on the 1995 income tax return.

The amount of the 1995 child credit generally will be treated as an overpayment of taxes for purposes of the appropriation of funds to pay the credit amounts.

B. MARRIAGE PENALTY RELIEF: TAX CREDIT; INCREASE IN STANDARD DEDUCTION FOR JOINT RETURNS (SEC. 6102 OF H.R. 1215 AND SEC. 12002 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

MARRIAGE PENALTY

A married couple generally is treated as one tax unit that must pay tax on the unit's total taxable income. Although married couples may elect to file separate returns, the rate schedules and provisions are structured so that filing separate returns usually results in a higher tax than filing joint returns. Other rate schedules apply to single persons and to single heads of household.

A "marriage penalty" exists when the sum of the tax liabilities of two unmarried individuals filing their own tax returns (either single or head of household returns) is less than their tax liability under a joint return (if the two individuals were to marry). A "marriage bonus" exists when the sum of the tax liabilities of the individuals is greater than their combined tax liability under a joint return.

While the size of any marriage penalty or bonus under present law depends upon the individuals' incomes, number of dependents, and itemized deductions, as a general rule married couples whose earnings are split more evenly than 70-30 suffer a marriage penalty. Married couples whose earnings are largely attributable to one spouse generally receive a marriage bonus.

Under present law, the size of the standard deduction and the tax bracket breakpoints follow certain customary ratios across filing statuses. The standard deduction and tax bracket breakpoints for single filers are roughly 60 percent of those for joint filers. With these ratios, unmarried individuals have standard deductions whose sum exceeds the standard deduction they would receive as a married couple filing a joint return. Thus, their taxable income as joint filers may exceed the sum of their taxable incomes as unmarried individuals.

Standard deduction

Taxpayers who do not itemize deductions may choose the standard deduction, which is subtracted (along with certain other items) from adjusted gross income (AGI) in arriving at taxable income. The size of the standard deduction varies according to filing status and is indexed for inflation. For 1996, the size of the standard deduction is projected to be as follows:

Filing status	Standard deduction
Married, joint return	$6,700
Head of household return	5,900
Single return	4,000
Married, separate return	3,350

For 1996, the standard deduction for joint returns is projected to be 1.675 times the standard deduction for single returns.

House bill

Under the House bill, married couples who file a joint return may be eligible for a nonrefundable credit of up to $145 against their income tax liability. The Secretary of the Treasury is directed to issue tables calculating the marriage penalty credit applicable for married taxpayers based on the qualified earned income of each of the spouses.

The amount of the credit is based on the hypothetical tax liabilities that would result if the individual income tax rates applicable to single filers were applied to each spouse's qualified earned income, allowing for one personal exemption and the standard deduction allowed for single filers. The sum of those hypothetical tax liabilities is compared to the hypothetical tax liability that would result if the individual income tax rates applicable to married couples filing joint returns were applied to the aggregate qualified earned income of the spouses, allowing for two personal exemptions and the standard deduction allowed for joint filers.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment increases the standard deduction for married taxpayers filing a joint return according to the following schedule:

For taxable years beginning in calendar year—	The standard deduction would be—
1996	$6,800
1997	7,150
1998	7,500
1999	7,950
2000	8,200
2001	8,600
2002	9,100
2003	9,500
2004	9,950
2005	10,800

For calendar years after 2005, the $10,800 amount is indexed for inflation.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the conference agreement modifies the schedule for increasing the standard deduction for joint returns. In addition, the amount of the standard deduction for joint returns is expressed relative to the standard deduction for single returns as follows:

For taxable years beginning in calendar year—	The ratio of the standard deduction for joint returns relative to single returns would be—
1996	1.68
1997	1.71
1998	1.72
1999	1.73
2000	1.75
2001	1.77
2002	1.78
2003	1.88
2004	1.91
2005 and after	2.00

The dollar values of the standard deduction for joint filers will be published each year in the instructions for the income tax returns; taxpayers will not be required to perform the multiplications described above.

C. TAX CREDIT FOR ADOPTION EXPENSES; EXCLUSION FOR CERTAIN ADOPTION EXPENSES (SEC. 6401 OF H.R. 1215 AND SEC. 12003 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Present law does not provide a tax credit for adoption expenses. Present law also does not provide an exclusion from gross income for employer-provided adoption assistance.

House bill

The House bill provides a nonrefundable tax credit of up to $5,000 per child for qualified adoption expenses paid or incurred by the taxpayer. The credit is denied for any expense to the extent that such expenses are also funded by any Federal, State or local grant program. An exception from this rule is provided solely in the case of certain special-needs adoptions.

The credit is phased out ratably between $60,000 and $100,000 of modified adjusted gross income (AGI). The House bill does not include an exclusion for employer-provided adoption assistance.

Effective date.—Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment differs from the House bill in five respects. Unlike the House bill, the Senate amendment:

(1) Allows the credit to be carried forward for up to five taxable years;

(2) Phases out the credit based on taxable income, not modified AGI;

(3) Does not allow a credit in the case of special-needs adoptions to the extent funded by Federal, State or local grant programs;

(4) Requires a finalized adoption for credit eligibility; and

(5) Provides an exclusion from income (up to $5,000 per child) for employer-provided adoption assistance.

Effective date.—Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with three modifications. First, the phaseout ranges for the credit and exclusion start at $75,000 of modified AGI and end at $115,000 of modified AGI. Second, the requirement of a finalized adoption is applied only in the case of international adoptions. Third, the exception relating to special-needs adoptions in the House bill is included in the conference agreement

Effective date.—Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

D. INTEREST ON STUDENT LOANS (SEC. 12004 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 repealed the deduction for personal interest. Student loan interest generally is treated as personal interest and thus is not allowable as an itemized deduction from income. There is no tax credit allowed for student loan interest paid by a taxpayer.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

In general

The Senate amendment allows individuals who have paid interest on qualified education loans a nonrefundable credit against income tax liability equal to 20 percent of such interest. The maximum credit allowed is $500 ($1,000 in the case of a taxpayer paying interest on loans for two or more students). Unused amounts of credit cannot be carried forward or backward to other taxable years.

A qualified education loan generally is any indebtedness incurred to pay for the qualified higher education expenses of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or dependents in attending (1) higher education institutions and certain area vocational education schools (i.e., eligible educational institutions defined in Code section 135(c)(3)) or (2) institutions conducting internship or residency programs leading to a degree or certificate from an institution of higher education, a hospital, or a health care facility conducting postgraduate training.

Qualified higher education expenses are the student's cost of attendance as defined in section 472 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (generally, tuition, fees, room and board, and related expenses). At the time the expenses are incurred, the student has to be the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or dependent.

Income phaseout range for credit

The credit is phased out ratably over the following modified adjusted gross income (modified AGI) ranges: joint filers ($60,000–$75,000) and unmarried individuals ($40,000–$55,000). The beginning of the phaseout ranges (but not the size of the phaseout range) is indexed for inflation for taxable years beginning after 1996. Modified AGI is defined as the taxpayer's AGI (1) increased by the amount otherwise excluded from gross income under Code sections 135, 911, 931, or 933 (relating to educational savings bonds and to the exclusion of income of U.S. citizens or residents living abroad; residents of Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, and American Samoa; and residents of Puerto Rico, respectively) and (2) calculated after the inclusion of Social Security benefits in income, the deduction for contributions to individual retirement arrangements, and the limitation on passive losses.

Credit claimed for interest on borrowing for expenses of taxpayer or spouse

In the case of qualified education loans used to pay the qualified higher education expenses of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse, the credit is allowed only with respect to interest paid on a qualified education loan during the first 60 months in which interest payments are required. For purposes of counting the 60 months, any qualified education loan and all refinancing (that is treated as a qualified education loan) of such loan is treated as a single loan.

Credit claimed for interest on borrowing for expenses of taxpayer's dependent

In the case of qualified education loans used to pay the qualified higher education expenses of an individual other than the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse, no credit is allowed unless the individual is claimed as a dependent of the taxpayer for that taxable year and the individual is at least a half-time student during that taxable year.

Limitations on claiming credit

No credit is allowed to an individual if that individual is claimed as a dependent on another taxpayer's return for the taxable year beginning in the calendar year in which such individual's taxable year begins. No credit is allowed for interest on any amount of education loan indebtedness for which a deduction is claimed under any other provision.

Couples who are married at the end of the taxable year have to file a joint return to claim the credit unless they lived apart for the last six months of the taxable year and the individual claiming the credit (1) maintained as his or her home a household for a dependent child for more than one-half of the taxable year and (2) furnished over one-half of the cost of maintaining that household in that taxable year. An individual legally separated from his spouse under a decree of divorce or separate maintenance is not considered married for purposes of this provision.

Information reporting on student loan interest

Any person in a trade or business or any governmental agency who receives $600 or more in qualified education loan interest from an individual during a calendar year is required to file an information report on such interest to the IRS and to the payor. In the case of interest received by any person on behalf of another person, generally only the first person receiving the interest is required to file the information reports.

Effective date

The provision is effective for payments of interest due after December 31, 1995, on any qualified education loan. Thus, in the case of already existing qualified education loans used to pay the qualified higher education expenses of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse, interest payments will qualify for the credit to the extent that the 60-month period has not expired.

Conference agreement

In general

The conference agreement provides that certain individuals who have paid interest on qualified education loans may claim an above-the-line deduction for such interest expenses, up to a maximum deduction of $2,500 per year. The definitions of qualified education loans and qualified education expenses follow the Senate amendment, except that in order for the interest to be deductible under this provision, the indebtedness must be incurred to pay for the qualified higher education expenses of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse.

Income phaseout range for deduction

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the deduction is phased out ratably over the following modified AGI ranges: joint filers ($65,000–$85,000) and unmarried individuals ($45,000–$65,000).

Deduction claimed for interest on borrowing for expenses of taxpayer or spouse

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the clarification that months during which the qualified education loan is in deferral or forbearance do not count against the 60-month period.

Limitations on claiming deduction

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Information reporting on student loan interest

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment. The conferees expect that the Secretary of the Treasury will clarify in regulations the information reporting requirements on qualified educational loans.

Effective date

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

E. CUSTODIAL CARE OF CERTAIN ELDERLY FAMILY MEMBERS IN TAXPAYER'S HOME (SEC. 6402 OF H.R. 1215)

Present law

Generally, present law does not provide for tax credits based on custodial care of parents and grandparents.

House bill

The House bill provides a nonrefundable income tax credit of $500 for each qualified family member. Generally, a qualified family member is a parent or grandparent who lives with the taxpayer and is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself or herself.

Effective Date.—Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement provides for an above-the-line deduction of up to $1,000 of certain expenses incurred in the care of each qualified family member. The conference agreement generally follows the definition of qualified persons contained in the House bill with the addition of a support test.

Effective Date.—Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

F. INCLUSION IN INCOME OF SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS (SEC. 6201 OF H.R. 1215)

Present law

In general

Under present law, taxpayers receiving Social Security and Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits are not required to include any such benefits in gross income if their "provisional income" does not exceed $25,000 in the case of unmarried taxpayers or $32,000 in the case of married taxpayers filing joint returns. For purposes of these computations, a taxpayer's provisional income is defined as adjusted gross income plus tax-exempt interest plus certain foreign source income plus one-half of the taxpayer's Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefit.

Certain taxpayers with provisional income in excess of those thresholds are required to include in gross income up to 50 percent of their Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefit. Under a provision added by the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1993 ("1993 Act"), taxpayers with provisional income in excess of a second-tier threshold ($34,000 in the case of unmarried taxpayers or $44,000 in the case of married taxpayers filing joint returns) are required to include in gross income up to 85 percent of their Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefit.

If the taxpayer's provisional income exceeds the lower threshold but does not exceed the second-tier threshold, then the amount of the inclusion is the lesser of (1) 50 percent of the taxpayer's Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefit, or (2) 50 percent of the excess of the taxpayer's provisional income over the lower threshold.

If the amount of provisional income exceeds the second-tier threshold, then the amount of the inclusion is the lesser of: (1) 85 percent of the taxpayer's Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefit or (2) the sum of: (a) 85 percent of the excess of the taxpayer's provisional income over the second-tier threshold, plus, (b) the smaller of (I) the amount of benefits that would have been included if the 50-percent inclusion rule (the rule in the previous paragraph) were applied, or (ii) one-half of the difference between the taxpayer's second-tier threshold and lower threshold.

Treatment of nonresident alien individuals

If a nonresident alien individual is engaged in a trade or business within the United States during the taxable year, the individual is subject to U.S. tax at the normal graduated rates on net taxable income that is effectively connected with the conduct of the U.S. trade or business. For purposes of taxing the income of nonresident alien individuals, the income thresholds for including Social Security and Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits do not apply. Instead, a fixed percentage of any such benefit is included in gross income. Until January 1, 1995, that percentage was 50 percent.

The implementing legislation for the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (P.L. 103–465) increased from 50 percent to 85 percent the amount of Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits included in the gross income of a nonresident alien individual, effective for benefits paid after December 31, 1994, in taxable years ending after such date.

Trust funds

Revenues from the income taxation of Social Security and Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits attributable to the 1993 Act increase in the portion of benefits included in gross income are credited quarterly to the Medicare Hospital Insurance (HI) Trust Fund. The remainder of the proceeds from the income taxation of Social Security and Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits are credited quarterly to the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, the Disability Insurance Trust Fund, or the Social Security Equivalent Benefit Account (of the Railroad Retirement system), as appropriate.

House bill

In general

The House bill phases in a repeal of the higher rate of income inclusion for taxpayers with provisional incomes in excess of the second-tier threshold.

For taxable years beginning in calendar years 1996 through 1999, if the amount of provisional income exceeds the second-tier threshold, then the amount of the inclusion is calculated as under present law, except that the following rates are substituted for "85 percent":

For taxable years beginning in calendar year—	The percentage is—
1996	75 percent
1997	65 percent
1998	60 percent
1999	55 percent.

For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1999, Social Security and Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits will be treated as under the law prior to 1994: if the amount of provisional income exceeds $25,000 in the case of unmarried taxpayers or $32,000 in the case of married taxpayers filing joint returns, then the amount of the inclusion is the lesser of (1) 50 percent of the taxpayer's Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefit, or (2) 50 percent of the excess of the taxpayer's provisional income over the threshold.

Treatment of nonresident alien individuals

The House bill phases in a reduction in the amount of Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits included in the gross income of a nonresident alien individual. The inclusion percentage for any taxable year beginning in calendar years 1996 through 1999 is as given in the table above. For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1999, the amount of Social Security or Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits included in the gross income of a nonresident alien individual will be 50 percent.

Trust funds

Revenues from the income taxation of Social Security and Railroad Retirement Tier 1 benefits attributable to the increased portion of benefits included in gross income under the 1993 Act (as phased out under the provision) will be credited to the Old-Age and Survivors and Disability Insurance Trust Funds.

Effective date

In general, the provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. The provision crediting revenues to the Old-Age and Survivors and Disability Insurance Trust Funds applies to tax liabilities for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

II. Savings and Investment Incentives

A. Provisions Relating to Individual Retirement Arrangements (Secs. 6103–6104 of H.R. 1215, Secs. 19002(d) and (e) of the House Bill and Secs. 12101–12103, 12111, and 12121 of the Senate Amendment)

Present law

Deductible IRA contributions

In general

An individual may make deductible contributions to an individual retirement arrangement ("IRA") up to the lesser of $2,000 or the amount of the individual's compensation if the individual is not an active participant in an employer-sponsored qualified retirement plan (and, if married, the individual's spouse also is not an active participant). An individual who makes excess contributions to an IRA, i.e., contributions in excess of $2,000, is subject to an excise tax on such excess contributions unless they are distributed from the IRA before the due date for filing the individual's tax return for the year (including extensions).

Income phase-out range

If the individual (or his or her spouse, if married) is an active participant, the $2,000 limit is phased out between $40,000 and $50,000 of adjusted gross income ("AGI") for married couples and between $25,000 and $35,000 of AGI for single individuals.

Inflation adjustment for IRA contribution limit

The $2,000 limit on IRA contributions is not indexed for inflation.

Spousal IRAs

In the case of a married individual whose spouse has no compensation (or elects to be treated as having no compensation) the $2,000 limit on IRA contributions is increased to the lesser of $2,250 or the individual's compensation.

Nondeductible tax-free IRAs

No provision. (However, present law does permit individuals to make nondeductible contributions to an IRA to the extent an individual is not permitted to (or does not) make deductible contributions. Earnings on such contributions are includible in gross income when withdrawn.)

Taxation of distributions

Amounts withdrawn from an IRA are includible in gross income (except to the extent of nondeductible contributions).

In addition, a 10-percent additional tax applies to distributions from IRAs made before age 59½, unless the distribution is on account of death or disability or is made in the form of annuity payments.

House bill

In general

The House bill permits a deductible IRA contribution of up to $2,000 to be made to an IRA for each spouse in a married couple. The House bill does not otherwise modify the rules relating to deductible IRAs.

The House bill replaces present-law nondeductible IRAs with new American Dream Savings Accounts (''ADSAs'') to which individuals can make nondeductible contributions. Contributions to an ADSA are in addition to any contributions that can be made to a deductible IRA under the present-law rules. In general, an ADSA is an IRA which is designated at the time of establishment as an ADSA. An ADSA is generally subject to the same rules applicable to IRAs, but certain special rules apply. Qualified distributions from an ADSA are not includible in income.

Deductible IRA contributions

No provision.

Spousal IRAs

The House bill permits annual contributions of up to $2,000 for each spouse in a married couple. The aggregate contributions for both spouses cannot exceed the combined compensation of both spouses.

Nondeductible tax-free IRAs

In general

The House bill replaces the present-law rules relating to nondeductible contributions with new provisions that permit individuals to make nondeductible contributions to an ADSA. Generally, ADSAs are subject to the same rules applicable to deductible IRAs. However, a number of special rules apply.

Contribution limit

The maximum annual contribution that can be made to an ADSA is the lesser of $2,000 or the individual's compensation. This amount is in addition to any contributions that may be made to present-law IRAs. The $2,000 limit is indexed annually for inflation beginning in 1996. Inflation adjustments are rounded to the nearest $50.

Contributions for nonworking spouse

The compensation of both spouses is taken into account in determining the contribution limit for each spouse.

Miscellaneous

The House bill permits contributions to be made to an ADSA after age 70½. In addition, ADSAs are not subject to the pre-death minimum distribution rules applicable to IRAs and tax-qualified plans and are not subject to the excess distribution tax applicable to distributions from IRAs and qualified plans.

Taxation of distributions

Distributions are not includible in income if the distribution (1) is made after the 5-taxable year period beginning with the first taxable year for which the individual first made a contribution to any ADSA and (2) is (a) made on or after the date on which the individual attains age 59½, (b) made to a beneficiary after the death of the individual, (c) attributable to the individual's being disabled, or (d) is for a special purpose (i.e., the purchase of a first home, higher education expenses, medical expenses, or long-term care insurance premiums). Other distributions are includible in income (to the extent of earnings on contributions) and subject to the 10-percent tax on early withdrawals unless an exception applies (see below).

Rollover contributions

Under the House bill, amounts withdrawn from IRAs can be rolled over into an ADSA after December 31, 1995, and before January 1, 1998. The amount rolled over is includible in gross income ratably over a 4-year period. The 10-percent early withdrawal tax does not apply to amounts rolled over from an IRA to an ADSA. Amounts rolled over from an IRA to an ADSA are then subject to the rules applicable to ADSAs.

Tax-free rollovers from one ADSA to another ADSA are permitted as under the present-law rules relating to IRAs.

Special purpose withdrawals

In general

Under the House bill, special purpose withdrawals from an ADSA are not subject to the 10-percent early withdrawal tax. In addition, as described above, special purpose withdrawals are not includible in income if the individual has had an ADSA account for at least 5 years. In general, special purpose withdrawals include first-time homebuyer expenses, higher education expenses, and medical expenses.

First-time homebuyer expenses

First-time homebuyer expenses of the individual are expenses used within 60 days to pay the costs of acquiring, contracting, or reconstructing the principal residence of the individual. An individual is considered a first-time homebuyer if the individual (and, if married, his or her spouse) did not own an interest in a principal residence during the prior 3 years.

Higher education expenses

Higher education expenses are tuition, fees, books, supplies, and equipment required for the enrollment or attendance of the individual, the individual's spouse, or a child or grandchild of the individual at an eligible educational institution. The amount of higher education expenses is reduced by any amount excludable from income under the rules relating to education savings bonds.

Medical expenses

Medical expenses are defined as under the itemized deduction for medical expenses (without regard to the 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income floor), and include the expenses of the individual and his or her spouse or dependents.

Distributions to unemployed persons

No provision.

Effective date

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

In general

The Senate amendment phases up the income limits on the deductibility of IRA contributions and modifies the definition of active participant so that an individual is not considered an active participant merely because his or her spouse is an active participant in an employer-sponsored retirement plan. The Senate amendment indexes the $2,000 IRA contribution limit for inflation.

In addition, the Senate amendment replaces present-law nondeductible IRAs with a new IRA Plus to which nondeductible contributions can be made. The limits on contributions to deductible IRAs and an IRA Plus are coordinated, so that no more than $2,000 per year can be contributed to an individual's IRAs. In general, an IRA Plus is an IRA that is designated at the time of establishment as an IRA Plus. An IRA Plus is generally subject to the same rules as IRAs, but certain special rules apply. If certain requirements are satisfied, distributions from an IRA Plus are excludable from income.

Deductible IRA contributions

In general

The Senate amendment provides that an individual is not considered an active participant for purpose of the IRA deduction rules merely because his or her spouse is an active participant in an employer-sponsored retirement plan.

Income phase-out range

Beginning in 1996, for single individuals, the Senate amendment phases up the income limits on deductible IRA contributions in $5,000 increments until the phaseout range is $85,000 to $95,000 of AGI (in 2007). Also beginning in 1996, for married couples, the deduction is phased out over a $20,000 income range (rather than $10,000) and the phase-out range is increased in $5,000 increments until the phase-out range is $100,000 to $120,000 of AGI (in 2007). After these new ranges are reached, the income limits are indexed for inflation in $5,000 increments.

Inflation adjustment for IRA contribution limit

The Senate amendment indexes the $2,000 limit on IRA contributions in $500 increments.

Spousal IRAs

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Nondeductible tax-free IRAs

In general

The Senate amendment replaces the present-law rules relating to nondeductible contributions with new provisions that permit individuals to make nondeductible contributions to an IRA Plus. In general, an IRA Plus is subject to the same rules applicable to deductible IRAs. However, a number of special rules would apply.

Contribution limit

An individual can make contributions to an IRA Plus to the extent he or she does not make deductible contributions to an IRA. For this purpose, the active participant rule is disregarded in determining the maximum deductible IRA contribution the individual is permitted to make. That is, the income limits applicable to deductible IRAs do not apply to an IRA Plus.

Contributions for nonworking spouse

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Miscellaneous

Under the Senate amendment, contributions cannot be made to an IRA Plus after age 70½, IRA Plus accounts are subject to the minimum distribution rules, and the excess distribution tax applies to distributions from an IRA Plus.

Taxation of distributions

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except that the 5-year holding period is calculated differently, and the definition of special purpose withdrawals differs. (See item 6, below.) Under the Senate amendment, the 5-year holding period is satisfied if the contribution to which the distribution relates has been in the IRA Plus for at least 5 years. All contributions for a year are treated as made on January 1 of the year.

Rollover contributions

The Senate amendment permits amounts withdrawn from IRAs to be rolled over into an IRA Plus. The amount rolled over is includible in gross income in the year the withdrawal was made, except that amounts rolled over to an IRA Plus before January 1, 1998, are includible in income ratably over a 4-year period. The 10-percent early withdrawal tax does not apply to amounts rolled over from an IRA to an IRA Plus.

Tax-free rollovers from one IRA Plus to another are permitted as under the rules relating to present-law IRAs.

Special purpose withdrawals

In general

Under the Senate amendment, special purpose withdrawals from a deductible IRA are not subject to the 10-percent early withdrawal tax. In addition, as described above, special purpose withdrawals from an IRA Plus are not includible in income (or subject to the 10-percent early withdrawal tax) if made after the 5-year holding requirement is satisfied. In general, special purpose withdrawals include withdrawals for first-time homebuyer expenses (up to $10,000), higher education expenses, medical expenses in excess of 7.5 percent of AGI, and distributions to unemployed individuals.

First-time homebuyer expenses

The definition of first-time homebuyer expenses is the same under the Senate amendment as under the House bill, with the following modifications. The maximum amount that can be treated as first-time homebuyer expenses is limited to $10,000. First-time homebuyer expenses include not only the expenses of the individual account holder, but also of the individual's spouse, or a child, grandchild, or ancestor of the individual or his or her spouse (as long as that person is a first-time homebuyer). A person is considered a first-time homebuyer if the individual (and, if married, his or her spouse) did not own an interest in a principal residence during the prior 2 years and the period for tax-free rollover of the gain on a personal residence has not been extended.

Higher education expenses

The definition of higher education expenses is the same under the Senate amendment as under the House bill, except that higher education expenses include expenses of the individual's ancestors and any child, grandchild, or ancestor of the individual's spouse.

Medical expenses

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except that only medical expenses in excess of 7.5 percent of AGI are treated as special purpose withdrawals. In addition, medical expenses include the expenses of a child, grandchild, or ancestor of the individual and his or her spouse, whether or not a dependent for tax purposes.

Distributions to unemployed individuals

Under the Senate amendment, distributions are treated as a special purpose distribution if the individual has received unemployment compensation for 12 weeks under Federal or State law and the distribution is made during any taxable year during which such unemployment compensation is paid or the next taxable year. A self-employed individual is treated as meeting the requirements for unemployment compensation if the individual would have received such compensation if he or she had not been self employed.

Effective date

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

In general

In general, the conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with respect to deductible IRA contributions (with modifications), and follows the House bill with respect to nondeductible tax-free IRAs (with modifications). Under the conference agreement, nondeductible tax-free IRAs are called American Dream IRAs (AD IRA's). The conference agreement adopts the Senate amendment definition of special purpose withdrawals.

Under the conference agreement, as under the Senate amendment, an individual is not considered an active participant in an employer-sponsored retirement plan merely because his or her spouse is an active participant. As under the House bill and the Senate amendment, under the conference agreement, annual contributions of up to $2,000 can be made to an IRA for each spouse in a married couple. The conference agreement phases up the income limits on deductible IRA contributions as under the Senate amendment, except that the phase-out range for married couples is increased to $20,000 in $2,500 increments.

Under the conference agreement, the $2,000 IRA contribution limit is indexed for inflation in $500 increments.

The conference agreement replaces present-law nondeductible IRAs with new provisions that permit individuals to make contributions to an AD IRA. Amounts withdrawn from an AD IRA are not includible in gross income if the withdrawal is made after the individual has had an AD IRA for at least 5 years and the withdrawal is for a special purpose or made after the individual is age 59½.

Penalty-free withdrawals can be made for special purposes from a deductible IRA or an AD IRA. Special purposes are first-time homebuyer expenses, higher education expenses, catastrophic medical expenses, and distributions to unemployed individuals.

Deductible IRA contributions

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment regarding deductible IRAs, with the following modifications. Beginning in 1996, the conference agreement increases the income phase-out range for married couples to $20,000 in $2,500 increments. In addition, under the conference agreement, indexing of the income thresholds (after they reach $85,000 for singles and $100,000 for couples) is in $1,000 increments.

Inflation adjustment for IRA contribution limit

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Spousal IRAs

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Nondeductible tax-free IRAs

In general

The conference agreement generally follows the House bill with respect to nondeductible IRAs.[2] However, as under the Senate amendment, the conference agreement coordinates the limits on deductible IRAs and nondeductible IRAs. In addition, under the conference agreement, special purpose withdrawals are defined as under the Senate amendment.

Contribution limit

An individual can make contributions to all IRAs to the extent he or she does not make deductible contributions to an IRA. Thus, the maximum annual total contributions that can be made by an individual to all IRAs (including deductible IRAs and ADS IRAs) is $2,000. The income limits applicable to deductible IRAs do not apply to ADS IRAs.

Miscellaneous

The conference agreement follows the House bill. Thus, contributions can be made to an ADS IRA after age 70½, and the predeath minimum distribution rules do not apply to an ADS IRA. Distributions from an ADS IRA are not subject to the excise tax on excess distributions (sec. 4980A).

The conference agreement clarifies the application of the excise tax on excess contributions to an IRA. Under the conference agreement, the excise tax applies separately to deductible IRAs and to total contributions to deductible IRAs and ADS IRAs. Thus, the excise tax applies to contributions in excess of the amount allowable as a deduction, unless the excess contributions are distributed before the due date for the individual's tax return for the year (including extensions). It is intended that the excise tax on excess contributions to a deductible IRA does not apply to the extent the individual transfers excess contributions to an ADS IRA by such date. In such a case, the contribution is treated as made to the ADS IRA for the taxable year for which the contribution was made to the deductible IRA. In addition, the excise tax applies to total contributions to deductible IRAs and the individual's contributions to an ADS IRA (including any amounts transferred as described above). Thus, the excise tax applies if such total contributions for a year exceed $2,000 (unless the excess contributions are distributed).

Taxation of distributions

The conference agreement generally follows the House bill. Thus, amounts withdrawn from an ADS IRA are excludable from income if the withdrawal is made after the 5-taxable year period beginning with the taxable year for which the individual first makes a contribution to an ADS IRA,[3] and either (a) the individual

---

[2] As under the House bill and the Senate amendment, an AD IRA is treated as an IRA, except as specifically provided. Thus, for example, the exception from the rules requiring capitalization of certain policy acquisition expenses applies to an AD IRA just as it applies to a deductible IRA.

[3] As is the case with IRAs in general, a contribution to an AD IRA for a taxable year can be made by the due date for filing the individual's tax return for the year (without regard to has attained age 59½ or (b) the withdrawal is a special purpose withdrawal. Special purpose withdrawals made within the 5-taxable year period are includible in income (to the extent attributable to earnings), but are not subject to the 10-percent tax on early withdrawals. Other withdrawals are includible in income to the extent attributable to earnings on contributions. Distributions from an AD IRA that are not includible in income are referred to as "qualified distributions."

The conference agreement includes an ordering rule for purposes of determining what portion of a distribution that is not a qualified distribution is includible in income. Under the conference agreement, distributions are treated as made from contributions first. Thus, no portion of a distribution is treated as attributable to earnings until the total of all distributions from the AD IRA exceeds the amount of contributions.

Rollover contributions

The conference agreement follows the House bill, but clarifies that the conversion of an IRA to an AD IRA can be made without taking a distribution. For example, an individual could make the conversion by notifying the IRA trustee. Or, the individual could make the conversion in connection with a change in IRA trustees through a rollover or a trustee-to-trustee transfer. An individual can convert all or any part of the amount in an IRA into an AD IRA. If only part of the IRA account balance is converted into an AD IRA, the AD IRA amounts must be held separately.

As under the House bill, a conversion of an IRA into an AD IRA can only be made after December 31, 1996, and before January 1, 1998. The amount that would have been includible in income if the individual had withdrawn the converted amounts from the IRA is includible in income ratably over a 4-year period beginning with the year of the conversion. The trustee is required to make reports regarding the conversion and the amount involved as specified by the Treasury.[4]

Special purpose withdrawals

Under the conference agreement, special purpose withdrawals from an AD IRA or a deductible IRA are not subject to the 10-percent early withdrawal tax. Special purpose withdrawals are defined as under the Senate amendment.

Effective date

The provisions are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

extensions). In such a case, the 5-year holding period begins to run with the taxable year to which the contribution relates, not the year in which the contribution is actually made.

[4] In the case of amounts attributable to a conversion of an IRA into an AD IRA, the 5-year holding period starts with the taxable year in which the conversion is made.

B. ESTABLISH SIMPLE RETIREMENT PLANS (SECS. 12131-12132 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Present law does not contain rules relating to SIMPLE retirement plans. However, present law does provide a number of ways in which individuals can save for retirement on a tax-favored basis. These include employer-sponsored retirement plans that meet the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code (a "qualified plan") and individual retirement arrangements ("IRAs"). Employees can earn significant retirement benefits under employer-sponsored retirement plans. However, in order to receive tax-favored treatment, such plans must comply with a variety of rules, including complex nondiscrimination and administrative rules (including top-heavy rules). Such plans are also subject to certain requirements under the labor law provisions of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 ("ERISA").

IRAs are not subject to the same rules as qualified plans, but the amount that can be contributed in any year is significantly less. The maximum deductible IRA contribution for a year is limited to $2,000. Distributions from IRAs and employer-sponsored retirement plans are generally taxable when made. In addition, distributions prior to age 59½ generally are subject to an additional 10-percent early withdrawal tax.

Contributions to an IRA can also be made by an employer on behalf of employees under a simplified employee pension ("SEP"). Under SEPs, which are not qualified plans, employees can elect to have contributions made to the SEP or to receive the contributions in cash. The amount the employee elects to have contributed to the SEP is not currently includible in income. The annual amount an employee can elect to contribute to a SEP is limited to $9,240 for 1995. This dollar limit is indexed for inflation in $500 increments. The election to have amounts contributed to a SEP or received in cash is available only if at least 50 percent of the eligible employees of the employer elect to have amounts contributed to the SEP. In addition, such election is available for a taxable year only if the employer maintaining the SEP had 25 or fewer eligible employees at all times during the prior taxable year. Elective deferrals under SEP's are subject to a special nondiscrimination test.

Under one type of qualified plan that can be maintained by an employer, employees can elect to reduce their taxable compensation and have nontaxable contributions made to the plan. Such contributions are called elective deferrals, and the plans which allow such contributions are called qualified cash or deferred arrangements (or "401(k) plans"). Like SEPs, the maximum annual amount of elective deferrals that can be made by an individual is $9,240 for 1995. A special nondiscrimination test applies to elective deferrals. An employer may make contributions based on an employee's elective contributions. Such contributions are called matching contributions, and are subject to a special nondiscrimination test similar to the special nondiscrimination test applicable to elective deferrals.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

In general

The Senate amendment creates a simplified retirement plan for small business called the savings incentive match plan for employees ("SIMPLE") retirement plan. SIMPLE plans can be adopted by employers who normally employ 100 or fewer employees on any day during the year and who do not maintain another employer-sponsored retirement plan. A SIMPLE plan can be either an IRA for each employee or part of a qualified cash or deferred arrangement ("401(k) plan"). If established in IRA form, a SIMPLE plan is not subject to the nondiscrimination rules generally applicable to qualified plans (including the top-heavy rules) and simplified reporting requirements apply. Within limits, contributions to a SIMPLE plan are not taxable until withdrawn. A SIMPLE plan is subject to certain provisions contained in Parts 1 and 4, Subtitle B, Title I of ERISA.

A SIMPLE plan can also be adopted as part of a 401(k) plan. In that case, the plan does not have to satisfy the special nondiscrimination tests applicable to 401(k) plans and is not subject to the top-heavy rules. The other qualified plan rules continue to apply. A simple plan adopted as part of a 401(k) plan is subject to the provisions contained in Subtitle B, Title I of ERISA applicable to qualified plans.

SIMPLE retirement plans in IRA form

In general

A SIMPLE retirement plan allows employees to make elective contributions to an IRA. Employee contributions have to be expressed as a percentage of the employee's compensation, and cannot exceed $6,000 per year. The $6,000 dollar limit is indexed for inflation in $500 increments.

The employer generally is required to match employee elective contributions on a dollar- for-dollar basis up to 3 percent of the employee's compensation. Under a special rule, the employer can elect a lower percentage matching contribution for all employees (but not less than 1 percent of each employee's compensation). In order for the employer to lower the matching percentage, the employer must notify employees of the applicable match within a reasonable time before the 60-day election period for the year (described below). In addition, a lower percentage cannot be elected for more than 2 out of any 5 years. No contributions other than employee elective contributions and employer matching contributions can be made to a SIMPLE account.

Only employers who normally employ 100 or fewer employees on any day during the year and who do not currently maintain a qualified plan can establish SIMPLE retirement accounts for their employees.

Each employee of the employer who received at least $5,000 in compensation from the employer during each of the 2 preceding years and who is reasonably expected to receive at least $5,000 in compensation during the year must be eligible to participate in the SIMPLE plan. Nonresident aliens and employees covered under a collective bargaining agreement do not have to be eligible to participate in the SIMPLE plan. Self-employed individuals can participate in a SIMPLE plan.

All contributions to an employee's SIMPLE account must be fully vested.

Distributions from a SIMPLE plan generally are taxed as under the rules relating to IRAs, except that an increased early withdrawal tax (25 percent) applies to distributions within the first 2 years the SIMPLE is established.

Tax treatment of SIMPLE accounts, contributions, and distributions

Contributions to a SIMPLE account generally are deductible by the employer. In the case of matching contributions, the employer is allowed a deduction for a year only if the contributions are made by the due date (including extensions) for the employer's tax return. Contributions to a SIMPLE account are excludable from the employee's income. SIMPLE accounts, like IRAs, are not subject to tax. Distributions from a SIMPLE retirement account generally are taxed under the rules applicable to IRAs. Thus, they are includible in income when withdrawn. Tax-free rollovers can be made from one SIMPLE account to another. To the extent an employee is no longer participating in a SIMPLE plan (e.g., the employee has terminated employment), the employee's SIMPLE account shall be treated as an IRA.

Early withdrawals from a SIMPLE account generally are subject to the 10-percent early withdrawal tax applicable to IRAs. However, withdrawals of contributions during the 2-year period beginning on the date the employee first participated in the SIMPLE plan are subject to a 25-percent early withdrawal tax (rather than 10 percent).

Administrative requirements

Each eligible employee can elect, within the 60-day period before the beginning of the year, to participate in the SIMPLE plan (i.e., to make elective deferrals), and to modify any previous elections regarding the amount of contributions. An employer is required to contribute employees' elective deferrals to the employee's SIMPLE account within 30 days after the end of the month to which the contributions relate. Employees must be allowed to terminate participation in the SIMPLE plan at any time during the year (i.e., to stop making contributions). The plan could provide that an employee who terminates participation could not resume participation until the following year. A plan can permit (but is not required to permit) an individual to make other changes to his or her salary reduction contribution election during the year (e.g., reduce contributions).

No fee can be imposed on the employee with respect to the employee's initial investment decision with respect to any contributions. This rule is not intended to preclude the imposition of a reasonable fee based on the rate of return on assets held in a SIMPLE account.

Reporting requirements

Trustee requirements.—The trustee of a SIMPLE account is required each year to prepare, and provide to the employer maintaining the SIMPLE plan, a summary description containing the following basic information about the plan: the name and address of the employer and the trustee; the requirements for eligibility; the benefits provided under the plan; the time and method of making salary reduction elections; and the procedures for and effects of, withdrawals from the SIMPLE account. At least once a year, the trustee also is required to furnish an account statement to each individual maintaining a SIMPLE account. In addition, the trustee is required to file an annual report with the Secretary. A trustee who fails to provide any of such reports or descriptions is subject to a penalty of $50 per day until such failure is corrected, unless the failure is due to reasonable cause.

Employer reports.—The employer maintaining a SIMPLE plan is required to notify each employee of the employee's opportunity to make salary reduction contributions under the plan immediately before the employee becomes eligible to make such election. This notice must include a copy of the summary description prepared by the trustee. An employer who fails to provide such notice is subject to a penalty of $50 per day on which such failure continues, unless the failure is due to reasonable cause.

Definitions

For purposes of the rules relating to SIMPLE plans, compensation is compensation required to be reported by the employer on Form W-2, plus any elective deferrals of the employee. In the case of a self-employed individual, compensation is net earnings from self-employment. "Employer" includes the employer and related employers. Related employers include trades or businesses under common control (whether incorporated or not), controlled groups of corporations, and affiliated service groups. In addition, the leased employee rules apply.

For purposes of the rule prohibiting an employer from establishing a SIMPLE plan, if the employer has another qualified plan, an employer is treated as maintaining a qualified plan if the employer (or a predecessor employer) maintained a qualified plan with respect to which contributions were made, or benefits were accrued, with respect to service for any year in the period beginning with the year the SIMPLE plan became effective and ending with the year for which the determination is being made. A qualified plan includes a qualified retirement plan, a qualified annuity plan, a governmental plan, a tax-sheltered annuity, and a simplified employee pension.

SIMPLE 401(k) plans

In general, under the Senate amendment, a cash or deferred arrangement (i.e., 401(k) plan), is deemed to satisfy the special nondiscrimination tests applicable to employee elective deferrals and employer matching contributions if the plan satisfies the contribution requirements applicable to SIMPLE plans. In addition, the plan is not subject to the top-heavy rules for any year for which this safe harbor is satisfied. The plan is subject to the other qualified plan rules.

The safe harbor is satisfied if, for the year, the employer does not maintain another qualified plan and (1) employee's elective deferrals are limited to no more than $6,000, (2) the employer matches employees' elective deferrals up to 3 percent of compensation, and (3) no other contributions are made to the arrangement. Contributions under the safe harbor must be 100 percent vested. The employer cannot reduce the matching percentage below 3 percent of compensation.

Effective date

The provisions relating to SIMPLE plans are effective for years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

SIMPLE retirement plans in IRA form

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with the following modifications. An employer is eligible to maintain a SIMPLE plan if the employer employs 100 or fewer employees on any day during the year. An employee must be eligible to participate in the SIMPLE plan in a year if the employee received at least $5,000 in compensation from the employer during any two prior years and the employee is reasonably expected to receive at least $5,000 in compensation in the current year. The prohibition on fees with respect to an employee's initial investment decision with respect to any contributions is eliminated. A SIMPLE account may be rolled over to an individual retirement arrangement ("IRA") on a tax-free basis after a two-year period has expired since the individual first participated in the SIMPLE plan. The conference agreement also clarifies that the summary description required to be prepared by the trustee of a SIMPLE account must provide information on rolling over amounts from a SIMPLE account.

The conference agreement also amends parts 1 and 4, Subtitle B, Title I of ERISA so that only simplified reporting requirements apply to SIMPLE plans and so that the employer will not be subject to fiduciary liability resulting from the employee (or beneficiary) exercising control over the assets in the SIMPLE account. For this purpose, an employee (or beneficiary) is treated as exercising control over the assets in his or her account upon the earlier of (1) an affirmative election with respect to the initial investment of any contributions, (2) a rollover contribution (including a trustee-to-trustee transfer) to another SIMPLE account or IRA, or (3) one year after the SIMPLE account is established.

It is intended that an employee's elective contributions, but not an employer's matching contributions, to a SIMPLE account are to be treated as wages for employment tax purposes.

SIMPLE 401(k) plans

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Repeal of SEPs

Under the conference agreement, the present-law rules governing SEPs will no longer apply after December 31, 1995, unless the SEP was established before January 1, 1996. Consequently, an employer will not be permitted to establish a SEP after December 31, 1995. SEPs established before January 1, 1996, may continue to receive contributions under present-law rules, and new employees of the employer hired after December 31, 1995, may participate in the SEP in accordance with such rules.

Effective date

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

C. CAPITAL GAINS PROVISIONS

1. INDIVIDUAL CAPITAL GAINS (SEC. 6301 OF H.R. 1215 AND SEC. 12141 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

In general, gain or loss reflected in the value of an asset is not recognized for income tax purposes until a taxpayer disposes of the asset. On the sale or exchange of capital assets, the net capital gain is taxed at the same rate as ordinary income, except that individuals are subject to a maximum marginal rate of 28 percent of the net capital gain. Net capital gain is the excess of the net long-term capital gain for the taxable year over the net short-term capital loss for the year. Gain or loss is treated as long-term if the asset is held for more than one year.

Prior to the enactment of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, individuals were allowed a deduction equal to 60 percent of net capital gain. The deduction resulted in a maximum effective tax rate of 20 percent on such gains.

Capital losses are generally deductible in full against capital gains. In addition, individuals may deduct capital losses against up to $3,000 of ordinary income in each year. Capital losses in excess of the amount deductible are carried forward indefinitely. Prior to the Tax Reform Act of 1986, individuals were required to use two dollars of long-term capital loss to offset each dollar of ordinary income.

An alternative minimum tax is imposed at rates up to 28 percent on alternative minimum taxable income (AMTI), which is taxable income plus tax adjustments and preferences. Capital gains are included in AMTI.

House bill

The House bill allows individuals a deduction equal to 50 percent of net capital gain for the taxable year. The House bill makes the present-law maximum 28-percent rate inapplicable. Thus, under the House bill, the effective rate under the regular tax on the net capital gain of an individual in the highest (i.e., 39.6 percent) marginal rate bracket is 19.8 percent.

Collectibles are excluded from net capital gain. A maximum rate of 28 percent applies to the net gain from the sale or exchange of collectibles held for more than one year (unless the individual indexes the basis of the collectible, as described below).

The House bill reinstates the rule in effect prior to the Tax Reform Act of 1986 that required two dollars of the long-term capital loss of an individual to offset one dollar of ordinary income. The $3,000 limitation on the deduction of capital losses against ordinary income would continue to apply.

Effective date.—The provision generally applies to sales and exchanges (and installment payments received) after December 31, 1994. The capital loss rule does not apply to losses arising in taxable years beginning before January 1, 1996.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except that one-half of the capital gains deduction is a preference for purposes of the alternative minimum tax. Also, the 28-percent rate for collectibles does not require an election to forgo indexing (as the Senate amendment contains no indexing provision).

Effective date.—The provision generally applies to sales and exchanges (and installment payments received) after October 13, 1995. The capital loss rule is effective the same as in the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

2. SMALL BUSINESS STOCK (SEC. 6301 OF H.R. 1215 AND SECS. 12142–12143 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

The Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1993 provided individuals a 50-percent exclusion for the sale of certain small business stock acquired at original issue and held for at least five years. One-half of the excluded gain is a minimum tax preference.

The amount of gain eligible for the 50-percent exclusion by an individual with respect to any corporation is the greater of (1) ten times the taxpayer's basis in the stock or (2) $10 million.

In order to qualify as a small business, when the stock is issued, the gross assets of the corporation may not exceed $50 million. The corporation also must meet an active trade or business requirement.

House bill

The House bill repeals the exclusion for small business stock.

Effective date.—A taxpayer holding small business stock on the date of enactment may elect, within one year from the date of enactment, to have the provisions of present law (rather than the provisions of the House bill) apply to any gain from the sale of the stock.

Senate amendment

The taxable portion of the gain from the sale of small business stock is eligible for the individual capital gains deduction added by the Senate amendment. Thus, only 25 percent of the gain from a qualified sale of small business stock is subject to tax. The effective rate under the regular tax on the gain of an individual in the highest (i.e., 39.6 percent) marginal rate bracket is 9.9 percent.

The Senate amendment increases the size of an eligible corporation from gross assets of $50 million to gross assets of $100 million. The Senate amendment also repeals the limitation on the amount of gain an individual can exclude with respect to the stock of any corporation.

The Senate amendment provides that certain working capital must be expended within five years (rather than two years) in order to be treated as used in the active conduct of a trade or business. No limit on the percent of the corporation's assets that are working capital is imposed.

The Senate amendment provides that if the corporation establishes a business purpose for a redemption of its stock, that redemption is disregarded in determining whether other newly issued stock can qualify as eligible stock.

The Senate amendment allows an individual to roll over gain from the sale or exchange of small business stock otherwise qualifying for the exclusion where the individual uses the proceeds to purchase other qualifying small business stock within 60 days of the sale of the original stock. If the individual sells the replacement stock, the gain attributable to the original stock is eligible for the small business stock exclusion and the capital gain deduction, and any remaining gain is eligible for the capital gain deduction if held more than one year and the small business exclusion if held for at least five years. In addition, any gain that otherwise would be recognized from the sale of the replacement stock can be rolled over to other small business stock purchased within 60 days.

Effective date.—The increase in the size of corporations whose stock is eligible for the exclusion applies to stock issued after the date of the enactment of the proposal. The remaining provisions apply to stock issued after August 10, 1993 (the original effective date of the small business stock provision).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment.

Under the conference agreement, the maximum rate of tax on qualifying gain from the sale of small business stock by a taxpayer other than a corporation is 14 percent. The conference agreement repeals the present-law 50-percent exclusion for gain from qualifying small business stock, since that gain will be eligible for the 50-percent capital gains deduction that is generally applicable to gain recognized by individual taxpayers as provided for by the conference agreement. In addition, the conference agreement repeals the minimum tax preference for gain from the sale of small business stock.

The conference agreement does not contain the rollover provision in the Senate amendment.

3. INDEXING OF CAPITAL GAINS (SEC. 6302 OF H.R. 1215)

Present law

Under present law, a taxpayer's gain or loss from the disposition of an asset is determined without regard to any adjustment for inflation.

House bill

The House bill allows a taxpayer other than a C corporation to index the basis of certain assets for purposes of determining gain (but not loss) upon the sale or other disposition of the assets.

Assets eligible for indexing generally include common stock of C corporations and tangible property that are capital assets or property used in a trade or business and which are held more than three years.

The inflation adjustment is computed by multiplying the taxpayer's adjusted basis in the indexed asset by an index based on changes in the GDP deflator.

Special rules are provided for RICS, REITS, partnerships, S corporations and common trust funds.

Effective date.—The provision applies to property the holding period of which begins after December 31, 1994, and to principal residences held on January 1, 1995 (for inflation after that date). A taxpayer holding an indexed asset (other than a principal residence) on January 1, 1995, may elect to treat the asset as having been sold (and reacquired) on that date for its fair market value, i.e., "marked to market." If the election is made, any gain is recognized (and any loss is disallowed).

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill except that the effective date is for assets acquired on or after, and principal residences held on, January 1, 2001 (rather than January 1, 1995), for inflation after that date. The date of the "mark to market" election under the House bill is also moved forward from January 1, 1995, to January 1, 2001. The election will apply to eligible assets held on January 1, 2001.

4. CORPORATE CAPITAL GAINS (SEC. 6311 OF H.R. 1215 AND SEC. 12151 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Under present law, the net capital gain of a corporation is taxed at the same rate as ordinary income, and subject to tax at graduated rates up to 35 percent. Prior to the Tax Reform Act of 1986, the net capital gain of a corporation was subject to an alternative tax rate of 28 percent.

House bill

The House bill provides an alternative tax of 25 percent on the net capital gain of a corporation if that rate is less than the corporation's regular tax rate.

Effective date.—The provision generally applies to sales and exchanges (and installment payments received) after December 31, 1994.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides an alternative rate of 28 percent on the net capital gain of a corporation if that rate is less than the corporation's regular tax rate.

The Senate amendment also provides an alternative rate of 21 percent on the gain from the sale or exchange of qualified small business stock (other than stock of a subsidiary corporation) held more than five years.

Effective date.—The provision generally applies to sales and exchanges (and installment payments received) after October 13, 1995. The small business stock provision applies to stock issued after date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the 28-percent rate is effective the same as in the House bill.

5. CAPITAL LOSS DEDUCTION ON THE SALE OR EXCHANGE OF A PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE (SEC. 6316 OF H.R. 1215)

Present law

Under present law, the sale or exchange of a principal residence is treated as a nondeductible personal loss.

House bill

The House bill provides that a loss from the sale or exchange of a principal residence is treated as a deductible capital loss.

Effective date.—The provision applies to sales and exchanges after December 31, 1994.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

D. ALTERNATIVE MINIMUM TAX (AMT) PROVISIONS (SEC. 19002(F) OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SECS. 12161 AND 12162 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Present law imposes an alternative minimum tax ("AMT") on an individual or a corporation to the extent the taxpayer's tentative minimum tax exceeds its regular tax liability. The individual minimum tax is imposed at graduated rates of 26 and 28 percent on alternative minimum taxable income in excess of a phased-out exemption amount; the corporate minimum tax is imposed at a rate of 20 percent on alternative minimum taxable income in excess of a phased-out $40,000 exemption amount. Alternative minimum taxable income (''AMTI'') is the taxpayer's taxable income increased by certain preference items and adjusted by determining the tax treatment of certain items in a manner that negates the deferral of income resulting from the regular tax treatment of those items.

Individuals and corporations must adjust their regular tax depreciation deductions in computing their AMTI. Under the AMT, depreciation on property placed in service after 1986 must be computed by using the class lives prescribed by the alternative depreciation system of section 168(g) and either (1) the straight-line method in the case of property subject to the straight-line method under the regular tax or (2) the 150-percent declining balance method in the case of other property. Under the regular tax, depreciation on such property generally is determined using shorter recovery periods and more accelerated recovery methods.

If a taxpayer is subject to the AMT in one year, such amount of tax is allowed as a credit (''AMT credit'') in a subsequent taxable year to the extent the taxpayer's regular tax liability exceeds its tentative minimum tax in such subsequent year. If the taxpayer is an individual, the AMT credit is allowed to the extent the taxpayer's AMT liability is a result of adjustments that are timing in nature (e.g., the adjustment for depreciation). The AMT credit has an unlimited carryforward but cannot be carried back.

House bill

The House bill eliminates the depreciation adjustment of the individual AMT and reduces the corporate AMT rate to zero.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994. The effects of the two modifications are suspended for taxable years beginning in 1995 and 1996. These suspended amounts are refunded ratably as credits for the first three taxable years beginning after 1996.

Senate amendment

For purposes of the individual and corporate AMTs, the Senate amendment conforms the AMT depreciation method to the regular tax method. Thus, property that is recovered using the 200-percent declining balance method for regular tax purposes (generally, shorter-lived tangible personal property) will use that method under the AMT. The Senate amendment does not change the class lives applicable to any property for AMT purposes.

In addition, the Senate amendment allows a corporation with certain AMT credits to offset a portion of its tentative minimum tax in excess of its regular tax. The portion so allowed would be the least of: (1) the amount of the taxpayer's long-term minimum tax credit (i.e., those credits that arose at least five years ago); (2) 50 percent of the taxpayer's tentative minimum tax; or (3) the amount by which the taxpayer's tentative minimum tax exceeds it regular tax for the year.

Effective date.—The depreciation provision is effective for property placed in service after December 31, 1995. The AMT credit provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement repeals the depreciation adjustment for purposes of both the individual and corporate AMT for property placed in service after December 31, 1995. Thus, the conference agreement conforms the AMT depreciation methods and lives to the depreciation methods and lives used for regular tax purposes for property placed in service after 1995.

In addition, the conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with respect to the AMT credit, except that under the agreement, the amount of the taxpayer's long-term minimum tax credit will be those credits that arose at least seven (rather than five) years ago.

E. COST RECOVERY PROVISIONS

1. TREATMENT OF LEASEHOLD IMPROVEMENTS (SEC. 6322 OF H.R. 1215)

Present law

Depreciation of leasehold improvements

Improvements made on leased property are depreciated under the modified Accelerated Cost Recovery System ("MACRS"), even if the MACRS recovery period assigned to the property is longer than the term of the lease (sec. 168(i)(8)). This rule applies regardless whether the lessor or lessee places the leasehold improvements in service. If a leasehold improvement constitutes an addition or improvement to nonresidential real property already placed in service, the improvement is depreciated using the straight-line method over a 39-year recovery period, beginning in the month the addition or improvement was placed in service (secs. 168(b)(3), (c)(1), (d)(2), and (i)(6)).

Treatment of dispositions of leasehold improvements

A taxpayer generally recovers the adjusted basis of property for purposes of determining gain or loss upon the disposition of the property. Upon the termination of a lease, the adjusted basis of leasehold improvements that were made, but are not retained, by a lessee are taken into account to compute gain or loss by the lessee. The proper treatment of the adjusted basis of improvements made by a lessor upon termination of a lease is less clear. Proposed Treasury regulation section 1.168-2(e)(1) provides that the unadjusted basis of a building's structural components must be recovered as whole. In addition, proposed Treasury regulation sections 1.168-2(l)(1) and 1.168-6(b) provide that "disposition" does not include the retirement of a structural component of real property if there is no disposition of the underlying building. Thus, it appears that it is the position of the Internal Revenue Service that leasehold improvements made by a lessor that constitute structural components of a building must be continued to be depreciated in the same manner as the underlying real property, even if such improvements are retired at the end of the lease term. Some lessors, on the other hand, may be taking the position that a leasehold improvement is a property separate and distinct from the underlying building and that an abandonment loss under section 165 is allowable at the end of the lease term for the adjusted basis of the property. In addition, lessors may argue that even if a leasehold improvement constitutes a structural component of a building, proposed Treasury regulation section 1.168-2(l)(1) (that seemingly denies the deduction at the end of the lease term) applies only to retirements, but not abandonments or demolitions, of such property. Thus, it appears that some lessors take the position that, at least in certain circumstances, the adjusted basis of leasehold improvements may be recovered at the end of the term of the lease to which the improvements relate even if there is no disposition of the underlying building.

House bill

Under the House bill, a lessor of leased property that disposes of a leasehold improvement which was made by the lessor for the lessee of the property may take the adjusted basis of the improvement into account for purposes of determining gain or loss if the improvement is irrevocably disposed of or abandoned by the lessee at the termination of the lease. The provision thus conforms the treatment of lessors and lessees with respect to leasehold improvements disposed of at the end of a term of lease.

For purposes of applying the provision, it is expected that a lessor must be able to separately account for the adjusted basis of the leasehold improvement that is irrevocably disposed of or abandoned.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for leasehold improvements disposed of after March 13, 1995. No inference is intended as to the proper treatment of such dispositions before March 14, 1995.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill provision.

2. INCREASE IN EXPENSING FOR SMALL BUSINESSES (SEC. 6352 OF H.R. 1215)

Present law

In lieu of depreciation, a taxpayer with a sufficiently small amount of annual investment may elect to deduct up to $17,500 of the cost of qualifying property placed in service for the taxable year (sec. 179).[5] In general, qualifying property is defined as depreciable tangible personal property that is purchased for use in the active conduct of a trade or business. The $17,500 amount is reduced (but not below zero) by the amount by which the cost of qualifying property placed in service during the taxable year exceeds $200,000. In addition, the amount eligible to be expensed for a taxable year may not exceed the taxable income of the taxpayer for the year that is derived from the active conduct of a trade or business (determined without regard to this provision). Any amount that is not allowed as a deduction because of the taxable income limitation may be carried forward to succeeding taxable years (subject to similar limitations).

[5] The amount permitted to be expensed under Code section 179 is increased by up to an additional $20,000 for certain property placed in service by a business located in an empowerment zone (sec. 1397A).

House bill

The House bill increases the $17,500 amount allowed to be expensed under Code section 179 to $35,000. The increase is phased in as follows:

Taxable year beginning in—	Maximum expensing
1996	$22,500
1997	27,500
1998	32,500
1999 and thereafter	35,000

Effective date.—The provision is effective for property placed in service in taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995, subject to the phase-in schedule set forth above.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that the maximum expensing limits and phase-in schedule are modified as follows:

Taxable year beginning in—	Maximum expensing
1996	$19,000
1997	20,000
1998	21,000
1999	22,000
2000	23,000
2001	24,000
2002 and thereafter	25,000

Effective date.—The provision is effective for property placed in service in taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995, subject to the phase-in schedule set forth above.

F. HOME OFFICE DEDUCTION: CLARIFICATION OF DEFINITION OF PRINCIPAL PLACE OF BUSINESS; TREATMENT OF STORAGE OF PRODUCT SAMPLES (SECS. 6353 AND 6354 OF H.R. 1215)

Present law

A taxpayer's business use of his or her home may give rise to a deduction for the business portion of expenses related to operating the home (e.g., a portion of rent or depreciation and repairs). Code section 280A(c)(1) provides, however, that business deductions generally are allowed only with respect to a portion of a home that is used exclusively and regularly in one of the following ways: (1) as the principal place of business for a trade or business; (2) as a place of business used to meet with patients, clients, or customers in the normal course of the taxpayer's trade or business; or (3) in connection with the taxpayer's trade or business, if the portion so used constitutes a separate structure not attached to the dwelling unit. In the case of an employee, the Code further requires that the business use of the home must be for the convenience of the employer (sec. 280A(c)(1)).[6] These rules apply to houses, apartments, condominiums, mobile homes, boats, and other similar property used as the taxpayer's home (sec. 280A(f)(1)). Under Internal Revenue Service (IRS) rulings, the deductibility of expenses incurred for local transportation between a taxpayer's home and a work location sometimes depends on whether the taxpayer's home office qualifies under section 280A(c)(1) as a principal place of business (see Rev. Rul. 94–47, 1994–29 I.R.B. 6).

Prior to 1976, expenses attributable to the business use of a residence were deductible whenever they were "appropriate and helpful" to the taxpayer's business. In 1976, Congress adopted section 280A, in order to provide a narrower scope for the home office deduction, but did not define the term "principal place of business." In Commissioner v. Soliman, 113 S.Ct. 701 (1993), the Supreme Court reversed lower court rulings and upheld an IRS interpretation of section 280A that disallowed a home office deduction for a self-employed anesthesiologist who practiced at several hospitals but was not provided office space at the hospitals. Although the anesthesiologist used a room in his home exclusively to perform administrative and management activities for his profession (i.e., he spent two or three hours a day in his home office on bookkeeping, correspondence, reading medical journals, and communicating with surgeons, patients, and insurance companies), the Supreme Court upheld the IRS position that the "principal place of business" for the taxpayer was not the home office, because the taxpayer performed the "essence of the professional service" at the hospitals.[7] Because the taxpayer did not meet with patients at his home office and the room was not a separate structure, a deduction was not available under the second or third exception under section 280A(c)(1) (described above).

Section 280A(c)(2) contains a special rule that allows a home office deduction for business expenses related to a space within a home that is used on a regular (even if not exclusive) basis as a storage unit for the inventory of the taxpayer's trade or business of selling products at retail or wholesale, but only if the home is the sole fixed location of such trade or business.

Home office deductions may not be claimed if they create (or increase) a net loss from a business activity, although such deductions may be carried over to subsequent taxable years (sec. 280A(c)(5)).

[6] If an employer provides access to suitable space on the employer's premises for the conduct by an employee of particular duties, then, if the employee opts to conduct such duties at home as a matter of personal preference, the employee's use of the home office is not "for the convenience of the employer." See, e.g., W. Michael Mathes, (1990) T.C. Memo 1990–483.

[7] In response to the Supreme Court's decision in Soliman, the IRS revised its Publication 587, Business Use of Your Home, to more closely follow the comparative analysis used in Soliman by focusing on the following two primary factors in determining whether a home office is a taxpayer's principal place of business: (1) the relative importance of the activities performed at each business location; and (2) the amount of time spent at each location.

House bill

Definition of principal place of business

The House bill amends present-law section 280A to specifically provide that a home office qualifies as the "principal place of business" if (1) the office is used by the taxpayer to conduct administrative or management activities of a trade or business and (2) there is no other fixed location of the trade or business where the taxpayer conducts substantial administrative or management activities of the trade or business. As under present law, deductions will be allowed for a home office meeting the above two-part test only if the office is exclusively used on a regular basis as a place of business by the taxpayer, and in the case of an employee, only if such exclusive use is for the convenience of the employer.

Thus, under the House bill, a home office deduction will be allowed (subject to the present-law "convenience of the employer" rule governing employees) if a portion of a taxpayer's home is exclusively and regularly used to conduct administrative or management activities for a trade or business of the taxpayer, who does not conduct substantial administrative or management activities at any other fixed location of the trade or business, regardless of whether administrative or management activities connected with his trade or business (e.g., billing activities) are performed by others at other locations. The fact that a taxpayer also carries out administrative or management activities at sites that are not fixed locations of the business, such as a car or hotel room, will not affect the taxpayer's ability to claim a home office deduction under the provision. Moreover, if a taxpayer conducts some administrative or management activities at a fixed location of the business outside the home, the taxpayer still will be eligible to claim a deduction so long as the administrative or management activities conducted at any fixed location of the business outside the home are not substantial (e.g., the taxpayer occasionally does minimal paperwork at another fixed location of the business). In addition, a taxpayer's eligibility to claim a home office deduction under the provision will not be affected by the fact that the taxpayer conducts substantial non-administrative or non-management business activities at a fixed location of the business outside the home (e.g., meeting with, or providing services to, customers, clients, or patients at a fixed location of the business away from home).

If a taxpayer in fact does not perform substantial administrative or management activities at any fixed location of the business away from home, then the second prong of the provision is satisfied, regardless of whether or not the taxpayer opted not to use an office away from home that was available for the conduct of such activities. However, in the case of an employee, the question whether an employee opted not to use suitable space made available by the employer for administrative activities is relevant to determining whether the present-law "convenience of the employer" test is satisfied. In cases where a taxpayer's use of a home office does not satisfy the provision's two-part test, the taxpayer nonetheless may be able to claim a home office deduction under the present-law "principal place of business" exception or any other provision of section 280A.

Treatment of storage of product samples

In addition, the House bill clarifies that the special rule contained in present-law section 280A(c)(2) permits deductions for expenses related to a storage unit in a taxpayer's home regularly used for inventory or product samples (or both) of the taxpayer's trade or business of selling products at retail or wholesale, provided that the home is the sole fixed location of such trade or business.

Effective date

The House bill provisions governing home office expense deductions apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

Definition of principal place of business

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision that amends the definition of "principal place of business."

Treatment of storage of product samples

The conference agreement includes the House bill provision that clarifies that present-law section 280A(c)(2) applies to storage of inventory or product samples (or both) in a taxpayer's home.

Effective date

The provision applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

III. HEALTH CARE-RELATED PROVISIONS

A. TREATMENT OF LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE (SECS. 6211–6214 AND 6231–6232 OF H.R. 1215 AND SECS. 12201–12204 AND 12211–12214 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

In general

Present law generally does not provide explicit rules relating to the tax treatment of long-term care insurance contracts or long-term care services. Thus, the treatment of long-term care contracts and services is unclear. Present law does provide rules relating to medical expenses and accident or health insurance.

Itemized deduction for medical expenses

In determining taxable income for Federal income tax purposes, a taxpayer is allowed an itemized deduction for unreimbursed expenses that are paid by the taxpayer during the taxable year for medical care of the taxpayer, the taxpayer's spouse, or a dependent of the taxpayer, to the extent that such expenses exceed 7.5 percent of the adjusted gross income of the taxpayer for such year (sec. 213). For this purpose, expenses paid for medical care generally are defined as amounts paid: (1) for the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease (including prescription medicines or drugs and insulin), or for the purpose of affecting any structure or function of the body (other than cosmetic surgery not related to disease, deformity, or accident); (2) for transportation primarily for, and essential to, medical care referred to in (1); or (3) for insurance (including Part B Medicare premiums) covering medical care referred to in (1) and (2).

Exclusion for amounts received under accident or health insurance

Amounts received by a taxpayer under accident or health insurance for personal injuries or sickness generally are excluded from gross income to the extent that the amounts received are not attributable to medical expenses that were allowed as a deduction for a prior taxable year (sec. 104).

Treatment of accident or health plans maintained by employers

Contributions of an employer to an accident or health plan that provides compensation (through insurance or otherwise) to an employee for personal injuries or sickness of the employee, the employee's spouse, or a dependent of the employee, are excluded from the gross income of the employee (sec. 106). In addition, amounts received by an employee under such a plan generally are excluded from gross income to the extent that the amounts received are paid, directly or indirectly, to reimburse the employee for expenses for the medical care of the employee, the employee's spouse, or a dependent of the employee (sec. 105). For this purpose, expenses incurred for medical care are defined in the same manner as under the rules regarding the deduction for medical expenses.

A cafeteria plan is an employer-sponsored arrangement under which employees can elect among cash and certain employer-provided qualified benefits. No amount is included in the gross income of a participant in a cafeteria plan merely because the participant has the opportunity to make such an election (sec. 125). Employer-provided accident or health coverage is one of the benefits that may be offered under a cafeteria plan.

A flexible spending arrangement (FSA) is an arrangement under which an employee is reimbursed for medical expenses or other nontaxable employer-provided benefits, such as dependent care, and under which the maximum amount of reimbursement that is reasonably available to a participant for a period of coverage is not substantially in excess of the total premium (including both employee-paid and employer-paid portions of the premium) for such participant's coverage. Under proposed Treasury regulations, a maximum amount of reimbursement is not substantially in excess of the total premium if such maximum amount is less than 500 percent of the premium. An FSA may be part of a cafeteria plan or provided by an employer outside a cafeteria plan. FSAs are commonly used to reimburse employees for medical expenses not covered by insurance. If certain requirements are satisfied,[8] amounts

[8] These requirements include a requirement that a health FSA can only provide reimbursement for medical expenses (as defined in sec. 213) and cannot provide reimbursement for prereimbursed for nontaxable benefits from an FSA are excludable from income.

Health care continuation rules

The health care continuation rules require that an employer must provide qualified beneficiaries the opportunity to continue to participate for a specified period in the employer's health plan after the occurrence of certain events (such as termination of employment) that would have terminated such participation (sec. 4980B). Individuals electing continuation coverage can be required to pay for such coverage.

Life insurance company reserve rules

In general, life insurance companies are allowed a deduction for a net increase in reserves and must take into income any net decreases in reserves (sec. 807(a) and (b)). Present law prescribes a tax reserve method based on the nature of the contract. For noncancellable accident and health insurance contracts, the prescribed method is a two-year full preliminary term method (sec. 807(d)(3)(A)(iii)). Long-term care insurance reserves are treated like noncancellable accident and health insurance for this purpose and, therefore, are determined under the two-year full preliminary term method. In no event is the tax reserve for any contract as of any time permitted to exceed the amount which would be taken into account in determining statutory reserves as set forth on the annual statement (sec 807(d)(1)).

The amount of any adjustment, whether an increase or a reduction in income, that is attributable to a change in the basis for determining reserves (or for determining any other item referred to in sec. 807(c)) is generally spread over a 10-year period (sec. 807(f)).

House bill

Tax treatment and definition of long-term care insurance contracts and qualified long-term care services

In general

Under the House bill, a long-term care insurance contract is accorded the following tax treatment. A long-term care insurance contract generally is treated as an accident and health insurance contract. Amounts (other than policyholder dividends or premium refunds) received under a long-term care insurance contract generally are excludable as amounts received for personal injuries and sickness (subject to a cap of $200 per day, or $73,000 annually). This cap is indexed by the medical care cost component of the consumer price index.

A plan of an employer providing coverage under a long-term care insurance contract generally is treated as an accident and health plan; however, coverage under a long-term care insurance contract is not excludable by an employee if provided through a caf-mium payments for other health coverage and that the maximum amount of reimbursement under a health FSA must be available at all times during the period of coverage.

eteria plan; similarly, expenses for long-term care services cannot be reimbursed under an FSA.[9]

The deduction for a percentage of health insurance expenses of self-employed individuals was permanently extended (at 30 percent) by P.L. 104–7 (April 11, 1995). Because the bill treats long-term care insurance as health insurance, the deduction for 30 percent of health insurance expenses of self-employed individuals applies to long-term care insurance premiums under the bill.

Within certain limits, premiums for long-term care insurance are treated as medical expenses for purposes of the itemized deduction for medical expenses.[10] In addition, expenses for qualified long-term care services are treated as medical expenses for purposes of the itemized deduction.

Definition of long-term care insurance contract

A long-term care insurance contract is defined as any insurance contract that provides only coverage of qualified long-term care services and that meets other requirements. The other requirements are that (1) the contract is guaranteed renewable, (2) the contract does not provide for a cash surrender value or other money that can be paid, assigned, pledged or borrowed, (3) refunds (other than refunds on the death of the insured or complete surrender or cancellation of the contract) and dividends under the contract may be used only to reduce future premiums or increase future benefits, and (4) the contract generally does not pay or reimburse expenses reimbursable under Medicare (except where Medicare is a secondary payor, or the contract makes per diem or other periodic payments without regard to expenses).

A contract does not fail to be treated as a long-term care insurance contract solely because it provides for payments on a per diem or other periodic basis without regard to expenses during the period.

Medicare duplication rules

The House bill provides that no provision of law shall be construed or applied so as to prohibit the offering of a long-term care insurance contract on the basis that the contract coordinates its benefits with those provided under Medicare. Thus, long-term care insurance contracts are not subject to the rules requiring duplication of Medicare benefits.

Definition of qualified long-term care services

Qualified long-term care services means necessary diagnostic, preventive, therapeutic, curing, treating, mitigating and rehabilitative services, and maintenance or personal care services that are required by a chronically ill individual and that are provided pur-

[9] The House bill does not otherwise modify the requirements relating to FSAs. An FSA is defined (as under proposed regulations) as a benefit program providing employees with coverage under which specified incurred expenses may be reimbursed (subject to maximums and other reasonable conditions), and the maximum amount of reimbursement that is reasonably available to a participant is less than 500 percent of the value of the coverage.

[10] Similarly, within certain limits, in the case of a rider to a life insurance contract, charges against the life insurance contract's cash surrender value that are includible in income are treated as medical expenses (provided the rider constitutes a long-term care insurance contract).

suant to a plan of care prescribed by a licensed health care practitioner.

A chronically ill individual is one who has been certified within the previous 12 months by a licensed health care practitioner as being unable to perform (without substantial assistance) at least 2 activities of daily living for at least 90 days [11] due to a loss of functional capacity or cognitive impairment, or having a similar level of disability as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services. Activities of daily living are eating, toileting, transferring, bathing, dressing and continence.[12]

A licensed health care practitioner is a physician (as defined in sec. 1861(r)(l) of the Social Security Act) and any registered professional nurse, licensed social worker, or other individual who meets such requirements as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Itemized deduction for medical expenses

Unreimbursed expenses for qualified long-term care services provided to the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or dependent are treated as medical expenses for purposes of the itemized deduction for medical expenses (subject to the present-law floor of 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income). For this purpose, amounts received under a long-term care insurance contract (regardless of whether the contract reimburses expenses or pays benefits on a per diem or other basis) are treated as reimbursement for expenses actually incurred for medical care.

For purposes of the deduction for medical expenses, qualified long-term care services do not include services provided to an individual by a relative (directly, or through a partnership, corporation, or other entity), unless the relative is a licensed professional with respect to such services, or by a related corporation (within the meaning of Code section 267(b) or 707(b)).[13]

Long-term care insurance premiums that do not exceed specified dollar limits are treated as medical expenses for purposes of the itemized deduction for medical expenses. The limits are as follows:

In the case of an individual with an attained age before the close of the taxable year of:	The limitation on premiums paid for such taxable years is:
Not more than 40	$200
More than 40 but not more than 50	375
More than 50 but not more than 60	750
More than 60 but not more than 70	2,000
More than 70	2,500

[11] The 90-day period is not a waiting period. Thus, an individual can be certified as chronically ill if the licensed health care practitioner certifies that the individual will be unable to perform at least 2 activities of daily living for at least 90 days.

[12] Nothing in the House bill requires the contract to take into account all of the activities of daily living. For example, a contract could require that an individual be unable to perform (without substantial assistance) 2 out of any 5 such activities, or for another example, 3 out of the 6 activities.

[13] The rule limiting such services provided by a relative or a related corporation does not apply for purposes of the exclusion for amounts received under a long-term care insurance contract, whether the contract is employer-provided or purchased by an individual. The limitation is unnecessary in such cases because it is anticipated that the insurer will monitor reimbursements to limit opportunities for fraud in connection with the performance of services by the taxpayer's relative or a related corporation.

For taxable years beginning after 1996, these dollar limits are indexed for increases in the medical care component of the consumer price index. The Secretary of the Treasury, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, is directed to develop a more appropriate index to be applied in lieu of the foregoing. Such an alternative might appropriately be based on increases in skilled nursing facility and home health care costs. It is intended that the Treasury Secretary annually publish the indexed amount of the limits as early in the year as they can be calculated.

Long-term care riders on life insurance contracts

In the case of long-term care insurance coverage provided by a rider on a life insurance contract, the requirements applicable to long-term care insurance contracts apply as if the portion of the contract providing such coverage were a separate contract. The term "portion" means only the terms and benefits that are in addition to the terms and benefits under the life insurance contract without regard to long-term care coverage. The guideline premium limitation applicable under section 7702(c)(2) is increased by the sum of charges (but not premium payments) against the life insurance contract's cash surrender value, less any such charges, the imposition of which reduces premiums paid for the contract (within the meaning of sec. 7702(f)(1)). In addition, it is anticipated that Treasury regulations will provide for appropriate reduction in premiums paid (within the meaning of sec. 7702(f)(1)) to reflect the payment of benefits under the rider that reduce the cash surrender value of the life insurance contract. A similar rule should apply in the case of a contract governed by section 101(f) and in the case of the payments under a rider that are excludable under section 101(g) of the Code (as added by the House bill).

Life insurance company reserves

In determining reserves for insurance company tax purposes, the House bill provides that the Federal income tax reserve method applicable for a long-term care insurance contract issued after December 31, 1995, is the method prescribed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (or, if no reserve method has been so prescribed, a method consistent with the tax reserve method for life insurance, annuity or noncancellable accident and health insurance contracts, whichever is most appropriate). The method currently prescribed by the NAIC for long-term care insurance contracts is the one-year full preliminary term method. As under present law, however, in no event may the tax reserve for a contract as of any time exceed the amount which would be taken into account with respect to the contract as of such time in determining statutory reserves.

Health care continuation rules

The health care continuation rules do not apply to coverage under a long-term care insurance contract.

Exchanges of life insurance and other contracts for long-term care insurance contracts

The exchange of a life insurance contract or an endowment or annuity contract for a qualified long-term care insurance contract is not taxable under the House bill.

Certain distributions from IRAs and retirement plans for long-term care insurance excludable from income

The House bill excludes from gross income distributions from individual retirement arrangements (IRAs) and distributions attributable to elective deferrals to qualified cash or deferred arrangements (sec. 401(k) plans), tax-sheltered annuities (sec. 403(b) plans), nonqualified deferred compensation plans of governmental or tax-exempt employers (sec. 457 plans), and section 501(c)(18) plans used to pay premiums for long-term care insurance for the individual or the individual's spouse. Such distributions are also not subject to the 10-percent tax on early withdrawals. A plan will not fail to meet the Internal Revenue Code requirements applicable to such plan merely because it permits such distributions.

Inclusion of excess long-term care benefits

In general, the House bill provides that the maximum annual amount of long-term care benefits excludable from income with respect to an insured who is chronically ill (not including amounts received by reason of the individual being terminally ill)[14] cannot exceed the equivalent of $200 per day for each day the individual is chronically ill. Thus, the maximum annual exclusion for long-term care benefits with respect to any chronically ill individual (not including amounts received by reason of the individual being terminally ill) is $73,000 (for 1996). Long-term care benefits for this purpose include payments and other benefits received under a long-term care insurance contract (to the extent otherwise excludable under section 7702B(b) as added by the House bill) and payments that are otherwise excludable under the provision of the bill related to accelerated death benefits and viatical settlements with respect to persons who are chronically ill (sec. 101(g) (as added by the House bill)). If the insured is not the same as the holder of the contract, the insured may assign some or all of this limit to the contract holder at the time and manner prescribed by the Secretary.

This $200 per day limit is indexed for inflation after 1996 for increases in the medical care component of the consumer price index. The Treasury Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, is directed to develop a more appropriate index, to be applied in lieu of the foregoing. Such an alternative might appropriately be based on increases in skilled nursing facility and home health care costs. It is intended that the Treasury Secretary annually publish the indexed amount of the limit as early in the year as it can be calculated.

A payor of long-term care benefits (as defined above) is required to report to the IRS the aggregate amount of such benefits

[14] Terminally ill is defined as under the provision of the bill relating to accelerated death benefits. In general, under that provision, an individual is considered to be terminally ill if he or she is certified as having an illness or physical condition that reasonably can be expected to result in death within 24 months of the date of the certification.

paid to any individual during any calendar year, and the name, address and taxpayer identification number of such individual. A copy of the report must be provided to the payee by January 31 following the year of payment, showing the name of the payor and the aggregate amount of benefits paid to the individual during the calendar year. Failure to file the report or provide the copy to the payee is subject to the generally applicable penalties for failure to file similar information reports.

Effective date

The provisions defining long-term care insurance contracts and qualified long-term care services apply to contracts issued after December 31, 1995. Any contract issued before January 1, 1996, that met the long-term care insurance requirements in the State in which the policy was issued at the time it was issued is treated as a long-term care insurance contract, and services provided under or reimbursed by the contract are treated as qualified long-term care services.

A contract providing for long-term care insurance may be exchanged for a long-term care insurance contract (or the former cancelled and the proceeds reinvested in the latter within 60 days) tax free between the date of enactment and January 1, 1996. Taxable gain would be recognized to the extent money or other property is received in the exchange.

The issuance or conformance of a rider to a life insurance contract providing long-term care insurance coverage is not treated as a modification or a material change for purposes of applying sections 101(f), 7702 and 7702A of the Code.

The provisions relating to (1) treatment as a medical expense of qualified long-term care insurance services and eligible long-term care premiums and (2) tax-free exchanges of life insurance, endowment and annuity contracts for long-term care insurance contracts, are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

The change in treatment of reserves for long-term care insurance contracts is effective for contracts issued after December 31, 1995. If, after that date, a company changes its tax reserve method for long-term care insurance contracts issued after that date, the amount of any adjustment arising from the change with respect to those contracts is spread over a 10-year period as provided in section 807(f).

The provision relating to certain distributions from IRAs and elective deferrals used to pay long-term care insurance premiums is effective for payments and distributions after December 31, 1995.

The provisions relating to the maximum exclusion for long-term care benefits and reporting are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. Thus, the initial year in which reports will be filed with the IRS and copies provided to the payee will be 1997, with respect to long-term care benefits paid in 1996.

Senate amendment

Tax treatment and definition of long-term care insurance contracts and qualified long-term care services

In general

The Senate amendment is generally the same as the House bill, except as follows. The cap on excludable amounts applies only to per diem type contracts. If the aggregate payments under all per diem contracts with respect to any one insured exceed $150 per day, then the excess is not excludable. The $150 limit is indexed by the lesser of (1) 5 percent, or (2) increases in the consumer price index. After 1998, a cost index based on cost increases in nursing homes and similar facilities is to be substituted for the consumer price index.

As under the House bill, the deduction for a percentage of health insurance expenses of self-employed individuals applies to long-term care insurance premiums, except that the Senate amendment increases the deduction for health insurance expenses of self-employed individuals to 55 percent.

Definition of long-term care insurance contract

The Senate amendment is generally the same as the House bill, except that the other requirements that a long-term care insurance contract must meet are as follows: (1) premiums are level annual payments over the life of the contract (or 20 years, if shorter); (2) refunds (other than refunds on death of the insured or complete surrender or cancellation of the contract) and dividends under the contract may be used only to reduce future premiums or increase future benefits; (3) the contract prohibits borrowing, assignment, or pledging; and (4) the contract generally does not pay or reimburse expenses reimbursable under Medicare (except where Medicare is a secondary payor). In addition, the Senate amendment imposes consumer protection requirements set forth in the January 1993 National Association of Insurance Commissioners Long-Term Care Insurance Model Act and Regulations, including a requirement that the contract cannot be cancelled on the grounds of age or deterioration of mental or physical health of the insured.

Medicare duplication rules

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Definition of qualified long-term care services

Qualified long-term care services mean necessary diagnostic, preventive, therapeutic, curing, treating, mitigating, rehabilitative and maintenance (including personal care) services, that are required by a functionally impaired individual. Such services are required to be provided pursuant to a plan of care prescribed by a licensed health care practitioner, and to have as their primary purpose the provision of needed assistance with one or more activities of daily living, or substantial supervision to protect from threats to health and safety due to substantial cognitive impairment.

A functionally impaired individual means one who has been certified within the previous 12 months by a licensed health care practitioner as (1) being unable to perform (without substantial assistance) at least two activities of daily living, or (2) requiring substantial supervision to protect such individual from threats to health and safety due to substantial cognitive impairment. Activities of daily living are eating, toileting, transferring, bathing, dressing and continence.

A licensed health care practitioner is defined as a physician (as defined in sec. 1861(r)(1) of the Social Security Act), registered professional nurse, qualified community care case manager, or other qualified individual who meets such requirements as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, provided such person is not a relative of the individual receiving care. A qualified community care case manager means an individual or entity with experience in assessing individuals to determine functional and cognitive impairment, and with experience in providing case management services and preparing individual care plans, and that meets requirements prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

Itemized deduction for medical expenses

Without regard to dollar limits and without a limitation on services provided by relatives or related corporations, the Senate amendment provides that unreimbursed expenses for qualified long-term care services provided to the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or dependent are treated as medical expenses for purposes of the itemized deduction for medical expenses (subject to the present-law floor of 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income). Amounts received under a long-term care insurance contract (regardless of whether the contract reimburses expenses or pays benefits on a per diem or other basis) are treated as reimbursement for expenses for this purpose. A deduction is also provided for premiums for insurance covering otherwise deductible expenses for medical care that is provided under a long-term care insurance contract.

Long-term care riders on life insurance contracts

The Senate amendment is generally the same as the House bill, except that the Senate amendment adds to the definition of the term "portion" a proviso that the payment of benefits does not result in the benefits failing to be treated as long-term care insurance by reason of a reduction in the contract's death benefit or cash surrender value resulting from any such payment.

Life insurance company reserves

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Health care continuation rules

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Consumer protection provisions

Under the Senate amendment, long-term care insurance contracts, and issuers of contracts, are required to satisfy certain provisions of the long-term care insurance model Act and model regulations promulgated by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (as adopted as of January 1993). The policy requirements relate to disclosure, nonforfeitability, guaranteed renewal or noncancelability, prohibitions on limitations and exclusions, extension of benefits, continuation or conversion of coverage, discontinuance and replacement of policies, unintentional lapse, post-claims underwriting, minimum standards, inflation protection, preexisting conditions, and prior hospitalization. The Senate amendment also provides disclosure and nonforfeiture requirements. The nonforfeiture provision gives consumers the option of selecting reduced paid-up insurance, extended term insurance, or a shortened benefit period in the event a policyholder who elects a nonforfeiture provision is unable to continue to pay premiums. The requirements for issuers of long-term care insurance contracts relate to application forms, reporting requirements, marketing, appropriateness of purchase, format, delivering a shopper's guide, right to return, outline of coverage, group plans, policy summary, monthly reports on accelerated death benefits, and incontestability period. A tax is imposed equal to $100 per policy per day for failure to satisfy these requirements.

Nothing in the proposal prevents a State from establishing, implementing or continuing standards related to the protection of policyholders of long-term care insurance policies, if such standards are not inconsistent with standards established under the proposal.

Effective date

The provisions relating to treatment of long-term care insurance or plans apply to contracts issued after December 31, 1995. The provisions relating to treatment of qualified long-term care services as medical care apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. The Senate amendment provides that no inference is intended as to the tax treatment of long-term care insurance and services prior to the effective date.

A contract providing for payment or reimbursement of services similar to qualified long-term care services, that is issued on or before December 31, 1995, may be exchanged for a long-term care insurance contract tax-free until June 30, 1997. Taxable gain is recognized to the extent money or other property is received in the exchange.

The issuance or conformance of a rider to a life insurance contract providing long-term care insurance coverage is not treated as a modification or a material change for purposes of applying present-law rules relating to flexible premium contracts and the definition of life insurance contracts and modified endowment contracts.

The change in treatment of reserves for long-term care insurance contracts is effective for contracts issued after December 31, 1995.

The provision relating to the reporting of long-term care benefits is effective for benefits paid after December 31, 1995. Thus, the initial year in which reports will be filed with the IRS and copies provided to the payee will be 1997, with respect to long-term care benefits paid in 1996.

The provision relating to consumer protections applies to contracts issued after December 31, 1995 with respect to policy requirements, and to actions taken after December 31, 1995 with respect to actions by insurers.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with modifications.

Under the conference agreement, the dollar cap on excludable amounts is $175 per day. In addition, the dollar cap on excludable amounts applies only to per diem type contracts. If the aggregate payments under all per diem contracts with respect to any one insured exceed $175 per day, then the excess is not excludable.

The conference agreement includes the consumer protection provisions of the Senate amendment. Thus, as under the Senate amendment, long-term care insurance contracts, and issuers of contracts, are required to satisfy certain provisions of the long-term care insurance model Act and model regulations promulgated by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (as adopted as of January 1993).

Under the conference agreement, the 10-percent tax on early withdrawals does not apply to distributions from individual retirement arrangements (IRAs) and distributions attributable to elective deferrals to qualified cash or deferred arrangements (sec. 401(k) plans), tax-sheltered annuities (sec. 403(b) plans), nonqualified deferred compensation plans of governmental or tax-exempt employers (sec. 457 plans), and section 501(c)(18) plans used to pay premiums for long-term care insurance for the individual or the individual's spouse. Unlike the House bill, however, the conference agreement provides that such distributions are includable in income (as under present law). A plan will not fail to meet the Internal Revenue Code requirements applicable to such plan merely because it permits such distributions.

Under the conference agreement, a contract providing for long-term care insurance may be exchanged for a long-term care insurance contract (or the former may be cancelled and the proceeds reinvested in the latter within 60 days) tax free between the date of enactment and January 1, 1997.

B. TREATMENT OF ACCELERATED DEATH BENEFITS UNDER LIFE INSURANCE CONTRACTS (SECS. 6221–6222 OF H.R. 1215 AND SECS. 12221–12222 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Treatment of amounts received under a life insurance contract

If a contract meets the definition of a life insurance contract, gross income does not include insurance proceeds that are paid pursuant to the contract by reason of the death of the insured (sec. 101(a)). In addition, the undistributed investment income ("inside buildup") earned on premiums credited under the contract is not subject to current taxation to the owner of the contract. The exclusion under section 101 applies regardless of whether the death benefits are paid as a lump sum or otherwise.

Amounts received under a life insurance contract (other than a modified endowment contract) prior to the death of the insured are includible in the gross income of the recipient to the extent that the amount received constitutes cash value in excess of the taxpayer's investment in the contract (generally, the investment in the contract is the aggregate amount of premiums paid less amounts previously received that were excluded from gross income).

If a contract fails to be treated as a life insurance contract under section 7702(a), inside buildup on the contract is generally subject to tax (sec. 7702(g)).

Requirements for a life insurance contract

To qualify as a life insurance contract for Federal income tax purposes, a contract must be a life insurance contract under the applicable State or foreign law and must satisfy either of two alternative tests: (1) a cash value accumulation test or (2) a test consisting of a guideline premium requirement and a cash value corridor requirement (sec. 7702(a)). A contract satisfies the cash value accumulation test if the cash surrender value of the contract may not at any time exceed the net single premium that would have to be paid at such time to fund future benefits under the contract. A contract satisfies the guideline premium and cash value corridor tests if the premiums paid under the contract do not at any time exceed the greater of the guideline single premium or the sum of the guideline level premiums, and if the death benefit under the contract is not less than a varying statutory percentage of the cash surrender value of the contract.

Proposed regulations on accelerated death benefits

The Treasury Department has issued proposed regulations [15] under which certain "qualified accelerated death benefits" paid by reason of the terminal illness of an insured would be treated as paid by reason of the death of the insured, and therefore would qualify for exclusion under section 101. For purposes of the proposed regulations, an insured would be treated as terminally ill if he or she has an illness that, despite appropriate medical care, the insurer reasonably expects to result in death within 12 months from the payment of the accelerated death benefit. The proposed regulations would not apply to viatical settlements.

House bill

The House bill provides an exclusion from gross income as an amount paid by reason of the death of an insured for (1) amounts received under a life insurance contract and (2) amounts received for the sale or assignment of a life insurance contract to a qualified viatical settlement provider, provided that the insured under the life insurance contract is either terminally ill or chronically ill.[16]

The provision does not apply in the case of an amount paid to any taxpayer other than the insured, if such taxpayer has an insurable interest by reason of the insured being a director, officer or employee of the taxpayer, or by reason of the insured being finan-

[15] Prop. Treas. Reg. Secs. 1.101–8, 1.7702–0, 1.7702–2, and 1.7702A–1 (December 15, 1992).

[16] The exclusion for amounts received under a life insurance contract on the life of an insured who is chronically ill applies if the amount is received under a rider or other provision of the contract that is treated as a long-term care insurance contract under section 7702B (as added by the House bill).

cially interested in any trade or business carried on by the taxpayer.

A terminally ill individual is defined as one who has been certified by a physician as having an illness or physical condition that reasonably can be expected to result in death within 24 months of the date of certification.

A chronically ill individual is defined as under the long-term care provisions of the House bill.[17] In the case of amounts received with respect to a chronically ill individual (but not amounts received by reason of the individual being terminally ill), the $200 per day ($73,000 annual) limitation on excludable benefits (also applicable to long-term care insurance benefits) applies. A reporting requirement applies to payments to a chronically ill individual.

A qualified viatical settlement provider is any person that regularly purchases or takes assignments of life insurance contracts on the lives of terminally ill or chronically ill individuals and either (1) is licensed for such purposes in the State in which the insured resides, or (2) if the person is not required to be licensed by that State, meets the requirements of sections 8 and 9 of the Viatical Settlements Model Act issued by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (relating to disclosure requirements and general rules for a viatical settlement contract).

For life insurance company tax purposes, the House bill provides that a life insurance contract is treated as including a reference to a qualified accelerated death benefit rider to a life insurance contract (except in the case of any rider that is treated as a long-term care insurance contract under section 7702B, as added by the bill). A qualified accelerated death benefit rider is any rider on a life insurance contract that provides only for payments of a type that are excludable under this provision.

Effective date.—The provision applies to amounts received after December 31, 1995. The provision treating a qualified accelerated death benefit rider as life insurance for life insurance company tax purposes takes effect on January 1, 1996. The issuance of a qualified accelerated death benefit rider to a life insurance contract, or the addition of any provision required to conform an accelerated death benefit rider to these provisions, is not treated as a modification or material change of the contract (and is not intended to affect the issue date of any contract under section 101(f)).

Senate amendment

In general

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except as follows.

A terminally ill individual is defined as one who has been certified by a physician as having an illness or physical condition that reasonably is expected to result in death within 12 months of the [17] Thus, a chronically ill individual is one who has been certified within the previous 12 months by a licensed health care practitioner as being unable to perform (without substantial assistance) at least 2 activities of daily living for at least 90 days due to a loss of functional capacity or cognitive impairment, or having a similar level of disability as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services. Activities of daily living are eating, toileting, transferring, bathing, dressing and continence. Nothing in the bill requires the contract to take into account all of the activities of daily living.

date of certification. The Senate amendment does not apply in the case of a chronically ill individual.

Amounts received under a life insurance contract

The exclusion for amounts received under a life insurance contract is available only if two requirements are met. First, under a present value test, the amount received must equal or exceed the present value of the reduction in the death benefit otherwise payable under the life insurance contract. Second, under a ratio test, the payment of the amount must not reduce the cash surrender value of the contract proportionately more than the death benefit payable under the contract. In other words, the percentage derived by dividing the cash surrender value of the contract immediately after the distribution by the cash surrender value of the contract immediately before the distribution must equal or exceed the percentage derived by dividing the death benefit payable immediately after the distribution by the death benefit payable immediately before the distribution. The amount received includes a series of payments.

For purposes of the present value test, the present value of the reduction in the death benefit is determined by reference to a maximum permissible discount rate, and by assuming that the death benefit would have been paid on the date that is 12 months from the date of the physician's certification. The maximum permissible discount rate is the highest of the following three interest rates: (1) the 90-day Treasury bill yield (as most recently published); (2) Moody's Corporate Bond Yield Average-Monthly Average Corporates (or any successor rate) for the month ending two months before the date the rate is determined; or (3) the rate used to determine cash surrender values under the contract during the applicable period plus 1 percent per annum. It is intended that the rate be determined as of the date (or dates) that the payment is made.

If the accelerated death benefit under the contract is paid in connection with a lien against the death benefit rather than an actual reduction in the death benefit on a discounted basis, then the amount of the lien, and interest charges with respect to any amount in connection with the lien, are taken into account so as to achieve parity between use of the lien method and use of a discounted payment.

Viatical settlements

The Senate amendment defines a viatical settlement provider the same as under the House bill, except that if the viatical settlement provider is not required to be licensed by the State in which the insured resides, then the requirements of the section of the Viatical Settlements Model Regulation issued by the NAIC relating to standards for evaluation of reasonable payments, including discount rates, must be met in determining amounts paid by the viatical settlement provider.

Effective date

The Senate amendment applies to amounts received after December 31, 1995. The discount rules applicable to payments under life insurance contracts do not apply to any amount received before July 1, 1996. The provision treating a qualified accelerated death benefit rider as life insurance for life insurance company tax purposes takes effect on January 1, 1996. The issuance of a qualified accelerated death benefit rider to a life insurance contract, or the addition of any provision required to conform an accelerated death benefit rider to these provisions, would not be treated as a modification or material change of the contract for purposes of the definition of a life insurance contract and a modified endowment contract (and would not affect the issue date of any contract under section 101(f)).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with modifications.

As under the House bill, in the case of amounts received with respect to a chronically ill individual (but not amounts received by reason of the individual being terminally ill), the dollar cap of $175 per day [18] on excludable benefits (applicable to long-term care insurance benefits) applies. The reporting requirement under the House bill also applies.

Under the conference agreement, the Treasury Department is required to provide a definition of a chronically ill individual for purposes of the accelerated death benefit provision. It is intended that this definition include individuals with Parkinson's disease, Alzheimer's disease or symptomatic AIDS as chronically ill individuals.

The conference agreement, like the Senate amendment, defines a viatical settlement provider the same as under the House bill, except that if the viatical settlement provider is not required to be licensed by the State in which the insured resides, then the requirements of the section of the Viatical Settlements Model Regulation issued by the NAIC relating to standards for evaluation of reasonable payments, including discount rates, must be met in determining amounts paid by the viatical settlement provider.

C. MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNTS (SEC. 13201 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SECS. 12231–12233 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

The tax treatment of health expenses depends on whether the individual is an employee or self employed, and whether the individual is covered under an employer-sponsored health plan. Employer contributions to a health plan for coverage for the employee and the employee's spouse and dependents is excludable from the employee's income and wages for social security tax purposes. Self-employed individuals are entitled to deduct 30 percent of the amount paid for health insurance for the self-employed individual and his or her spouse or dependents. The 30-percent deduction is [18] The conference agreement follows the House bill, with modifications, with respect to long-term care insurance and services. The conference agreement provides that the dollar cap on excludable benefits under a long-term care insurance contract is modified to $175 per day, and applies only to per diem policies, not to indemnity policies. The dollar cap of $175 per day also applies to amounts excludable under this provision that are paid with respect to a chronically ill individual.

available with respect to self insurance, as well as commercial insurance. Of course, the self-insured plan must in fact be insurance (e.g., there must be appropriate risk shifting) and not merely a reimbursement arrangement. Individuals who itemize their tax deductions may deduct unreimbursed medical expenses (including expenses for medical insurance) paid during the year to the extent that the total of such expenses exceeds 7.5 percent of the individual's adjusted gross income ("AGI"). Present law does not contain any special rules for medical savings accounts.

House bill

In general

Within limits, contributions to a medical savings account ("MSA") are deductible if made by an eligible individual and are excludable from income (and wages for social security purposes) if made by the employer of an eligible individual. Earnings on amounts in an MSA are currently taxable. Distributions from an MSA for medical expenses are not taxable.

Eligible individuals

An individual (including a self-employed individual) is eligible to make a deductible contribution to an MSA (or to have employer contributions made on his or her behalf) if the individual is covered under a catastrophic health plan and is not covered under another health plan (other than a plan that provides certain permitted coverage). An individual with other coverage in addition to a catastrophic plan is still eligible for an MSA if such other coverage is certain permitted insurance or is coverage (whether provided through insurance or otherwise) for accidents, dental care, vision care, or long-term care. Permitted insurance is (1) Medicare supplemental insurance; (2) insurance if substantially all of the coverage provided under such insurance relates to (a) liabilities incurred under worker's compensation law, (b) tort liabilities, (c) liabilities relating to ownership or use of property (e.g., auto insurance), (d) credit insurance, or (e) such other similar liabilities as the Secretary may prescribe by regulations, and (3) insurance for a specified disease or illness, and (4) insurance that provides a fixed payment for hospitalization. An individual is not eligible to make deductible contributions to an MSA for a year if any employer contributions are made to an MSA on behalf of the individual for the year.

Tax treatment of and limits on contributions

Individual contributions to an MSA are deductible (within limits) in determining AGI. Subject to the same limits, employer contributions to an MSA are excludable from gross income and wages for employment tax purposes, except that this exclusion does not apply to contributions made through a cafeteria plan. The maximum amount of contributions that can be deducted or excluded for a year is equal to the lesser of (1) the deductible under the catastrophic health plan or (2) $2,500 in the case of single coverage and $5,000 if the catastrophic plan covers the individual and a spouse or dependent. The annual limit is the sum of the limits determined separately for each month, based on the individual's status as of the first day of the month. The maximum contribution limit to an MSA is determined separately for each spouse in a married couple. In no event can the maximum contribution limit exceed $5,000 for a family. The dollar limits are indexed for medical inflation and rounded to the nearest multiple of $50.

Definition of catastrophic health plan

A catastrophic health plan is a health plan with a deductible of at least $1,500 in the case of single coverage and $3,000 in the case of coverage of more than one individual. These dollar limits are indexed for medical inflation, rounded to the nearest multiple of $50.

Tax treatment of MSAs

Earnings on amounts in an MSA are currently includible in income under the rules relating to grantor trusts. Any net capital losses cannot offset other income.

Taxation of distributions

Distributions from an MSA for the medical expenses of the individual and his or her spouse or dependents are excludable from income. For this purpose, medical expenses do not include expenses for insurance other than long-term care insurance. Distributions that are not for medical expenses are includible in income (to the extent attributable to tax-favored contributions) and are subject to an additional 10-percent tax unless made after age 59½, death or disability.

Upon death, if the beneficiary is the individual's spouse, the spouse may keep the MSA as his or her own. Otherwise, amounts in the MSA must be distributed within 5 years, and are includible in income (to the extent attributable to tax-favored contributions).

Definition of MSAs

In general, an MSA is a trust or custodial account created exclusively for the benefit of the account holder and is subject to rules similar to those applicable to individual retirement arrangements. An MSA trustee (or custodian) can be a bank, insurance company, or other person who demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the manner in which such person will administer the trust will be consistent with applicable requirements. The MSA trustee (or custodian) is required to make such reports as may be required by the Secretary.

Effective date

Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

In general

Generally the same as the House bill, except that earnings on amounts in an MSA are not currently taxable (i.e., "inside buildup" is tax free) and the amount of contributions that receive favorable tax treatment differs.

Eligible individuals

An individual is eligible to make deductible contributions to an MSA if the individual is covered under a high deductible health plan and is not eligible to participate in an employer-subsidized health plan maintained by the employer of the individual or his or her spouse or to receive any employer contribution to an MSA. An employer contribution to an MSA is excludable from gross income (and wages for employment tax purposes) if made on behalf of an individual in a high deductible health plan. An individual is eligible to receive employer contributions to an MSA if the individual is covered under a high deductible health plan.

Tax treatment of and limits on contributions

The tax treatment of MSA contributions follows the present-law tax treatment of health insurance expenses (as modified by the Senate amendment). Thus, a self-employed individual may deduct 55 percent of MSA contributions. Other individuals may deduct MSA contributions to the extent the contributions and other medical expenses exceed 7.5 percent of AGI. Employer contributions to an MSA are excludable from income and wages for employment tax purposes, except that this exclusion does not apply to employer contributions made through a cafeteria plan. Only one MSA per family is permitted. The maximum amount of contributions that can be made to an MSA is the lesser of (1) the deductible under the high deductible plan or (2) $2,000 in the case of single coverage and $4,000 if the high deductible plan covers the individual and a spouse or dependent. The annual limit is the sum of the limits determined separately for each month, based on the individual's status as of the first day of the month. The dollar limits are indexed for medical inflation and rounded to the next lowest multiple of $50.

Definition of high deductible health plan

Same as the House bill definition of catastrophic health plan, except that indexed amounts are rounded to the next lowest multiple of $50.

Tax treatment of MSAs

MSAs are exempt from tax. An MSA ceases to be an MSA if, within 2 years after the MSA is established the individual is no longer covered under a high deductible health plan other than by reason of separation from employment.

Taxation of distributions

Same as the House bill, except that medical expenses also include premiums for health care continuation coverage and premiums for health care coverage while an individual is receiving unemployment compensation under Federal or State law. Distributions that are not for medical expenses are includible in income (to the extent not attributable to nondeductible contributions) and are subject to an additional 10-percent tax unless made after age 59½, death, or disability. Upon death, if the beneficiary is the individual's surviving spouse, the spouse may continue the MSA as his or her own. Otherwise, the beneficiary must include the MSA balance (to the extent not attributable to nondeductible contributions) in income in the year of death. If there is no beneficiary, the MSA balance (to the extent not attributable to nondeductible contributions) is includible on the final return of the decedent. In any case, no estate tax applies.

Definition of MSAs

Same as the House bill, except that the Senate amendment provides that the acquisition expenses of an insurance company relating to the establishment of an MSA are not subject to the rules relating to the capitalization of policy acquisition costs.

Effective date

Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

In general

The conference agreement generally follows the House bill, except that the conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with respect to the limits on maximum contributions ($2,000 per year for an individual and $4,000 per year if the high deductible plan also covers a spouse or dependent of the individual), tax treatment of earnings, definition of medical expenses that can be paid tax-free with MSA funds, post-death distributions, and clarification relating to capitalization of policy acquisition costs. In addition, the conference agreement adopts the term "high deductible plan" rather than "catastrophic plan."

Thus, under the conference agreement, within limits, contributions to an MSA are deductible if made by an eligible individual (including a self-employed individual) and are excludable from income (and wages for employment tax purposes) if made by the employer of an eligible individual. Earnings on amounts in an MSA are not currently taxable. Distributions from an MSA for medical expenses (as defined under the Senate amendment) are not taxable. Distributions from an MSA that are not for medical expenses are includible in income and subject to a 10-percent excise tax unless the distribution is made after age 59½, death, or disability.

Eligible individuals

The conference agreement follows the House bill. As under the House bill, an individual must be covered by a high deductible plan and no other health plan in order to be eligible for an MSA. However, an individual may have certain types of permitted coverage and insurance in addition to the high deductible plan (e.g., dental coverage) and still qualify for an MSA. The conference agreement modifies the House bill definition of permitted coverage to provide that disability coverage (whether provided through insurance or otherwise) is permitted coverage and that credit insurance is not permitted coverage.

Tax treatment of and limits on contributions

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that the maximum contribution is determined as under the Senate amendment. Under the conference agreement, individual contributions to an MSA are deductible (within limits) in determining AGI. Subject to the same limits, employer contributions to an MSA are excludable from gross income, except that this exclusion does not apply to contributions made through a cafeteria plan. It is expected that the present-law exclusion for social security purposes for accident and sickness benefits applies to employer contributions to an MSA that are excludable from income. If the high deductible plan covers only the individual, the maximum amount of contributions that can be deducted or excluded for a year is equal to the lesser of (1) the deductible under the high deductible plan or (2) $2,000. If the high deductible plan covers the individual and a spouse or a dependent, the maximum that can be excluded or deducted for a year is the lesser of (1) the annual limit under the plan on the aggregate amount of deductibles required to be paid with respect to all individuals, and (2) $4,000. The annual limit is the sum of the limits determined separately for each month, based on the individual's status as of the first day of the month. The maximum contribution limit to an MSA is determined separately for each spouse in a married couple. In no event can the maximum contribution limit exceed $4,000 for a family. The dollar limits are indexed for medical inflation and rounded to the nearest multiple of $50.

Definition of high deductible plan

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendments. The conference agreement also clarifies that permitted coverage or insurance does not qualify as a high deductible plan. The conferees intend that a plan will not fail to be considered a high deductible plan merely because, under State law, the plan is required to provide that there is no deductible for preventive care.

Tax treatment of MSAs

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with respect to taxation of MSA earnings. Thus, under the conference agreement, MSAs are tax exempt. The conference agreement does not contain the provision in the Senate amendment providing that an MSA ceases to be an MSA if, within 2 years after the MSA is established, the individual is no longer covered under a high deductible plan.

Taxation of distributions

Under the conference agreement, distributions from an MSA for the unreimbursed medical expenses of the individual (including a self-employed individual) and his or her spouse or dependents are excludable from income. The exclusion applies regardless of whether the payment is made directly from the MSA to the service provider, the MSA distribution reimburses the individual for expenses already incurred, or the individual uses the MSA distribution to pay the service provider. In addition, trustee-to-trustee transfers from one MSA to another are permitted.

Medical expenses are defined as under the Senate amendment. Thus, medical expenses are defined as under the rules relating to the itemized deduction for medical expenses, except that medical expenses do not include insurance premiums other than (1) premiums for long-term care insurance as defined under the conference agreement; (2) premiums for health care continuation coverage under any Federal law; and (3) premiums while the individual is receiving unemployment compensation.

Distributions that are not for medical expenses are includible in income and are subject to an additional 10-percent tax unless made after age 59½, death, or disability.

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with respect to distributions after the death of the individual.

Definition of MSAs

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Effective date

The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

D. DEDUCTION FOR HEALTH INSURANCE EXPENSES OF SELF-EMPLOYED INDIVIDUALS (SEC. 12241 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Under present law, self-employed individuals are entitled to deduct 30 percent of the amount paid for health insurance for a self-employed individual and the individual's spouse and dependents. The deduction is not available for any month if the taxpayer was eligible to participate in a subsidized health plan maintained by the employer of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse. The 30-percent deduction is available in the case of self insurance as well as commercial insurance. Of course, the self-insured plan must in fact be insurance (e.g., there must be appropriate risk shifting) and not merely a reimbursement arrangement.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Under the Senate amendment, the deduction for health insurance expenses of self-employed individuals and their spouses and dependents is increased to 55 percent.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with modifications. Under the conference agreement, the deduction for health insurance for self-employed individuals is phased up to 50 percent as follows: for taxable years beginning in 1998 and 1999, the amount of the deduction is 35 percent of health insurance expenses; for taxable years beginning in 2000 and 2001, 40 percent; and for taxable years beginning in 2002 and thereafter, 50 percent.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1997.

E. INCREASE DOLLAR LIMITS FOR BURIAL INSURANCE (SEC. 12242 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

To qualify as a life insurance contract for Federal income tax purposes, a contract must be a life insurance contract under the applicable State or foreign law and must satisfy either of two alternative tests: (1) a cash value accumulation test or (2) a test consisting of a guideline premium requirement and a cash value corridor requirement (sec. 7702). A contract satisfies the cash value accumulation test if the cash surrender value of the contract may not at any time exceed the net single premium that would have to be paid at such time to fund future benefits under the contract. A contract satisfies the guideline premium and cash value corridor tests if the premiums paid under the contract do not at any time exceed the greater of the guideline single premium or the sum of the guideline level premiums, and if the death benefit under the contract is not less than a varying statutory percentage of the cash surrender value of the contract. Under these rules, the death benefit is generally deemed not to increase (sec. 7702(e)(1)(A)).

Special rules apply with respect to a contract that is purchased to cover payment of burial expenses or in connection with prearranged funeral expenses. For such a contract, death benefit increases may be taken into account in applying the cash value accumulation test if the contract (1) has an initial death benefit of $5,000 or less and a maximum death benefit of $25,000 or less, and (2) provides for a fixed predetermined annual increase not to exceed 10 percent of the initial death benefit or 8 percent of the death benefit at the end of the preceding year (sec. 7702(e)(2)(C)).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment increases the dollar limits applicable in the case of an insurance contract to cover payment of burial expenses or in connection with prearranged funeral expenses. For such a contract, death benefit increases may be taken into account in applying the cash value accumulation test if the contract has an initial death benefit of $7,000 or less and a maximum death benefit of $30,000 or less (and other requirements of present law are met). In addition, these dollar limits are to be adjusted annually, after 1995, for inflation in accordance with the consumer price index.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for contracts entered into after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

F. HEALTH INSURANCE ORGANIZATIONS ELIGIBLE FOR BENEFITS OF SECTION 833 (SEC. 12243 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

An organization described in section 501(c)(3) or (4) of the Code is exempt from tax only if no substantial part of its activities consists of providing commercial-type insurance (sec. 501(m)). Special rules apply to certain eligible health insurance organizations. Eligible health insurance organizations are (1) Blue Cross or Blue Shield organizations existing on August 16, 1986, which have not experienced a material change in structure or operations since that date, and (2) other organizations that meet certain community-service-related requirements and substantially all of whose activities involve the providing of health insurance (sec. 833). Section 833 provides that eligible organizations are generally treated as stock property and casualty insurance companies.

Section 833 provides a special deduction for eligible organizations, equal to 25 percent of the claims and expenses incurred during the year, less the adjusted surplus at the beginning of the year. This deduction is calculated by computing surplus, taxable income, claims incurred, expenses incurred, tax-exempt income, net operating loss carryovers, and other items attributable to health business. The deduction may not exceed taxable income attributable to health business for the year (calculated without regard to this deduction).

In addition, section 833 eliminates, for eligible organizations, the 20-percent reduction in unearned premium reserves that applies generally to all property and casualty insurance companies.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment applies the special rules under section 833 to the same extent they are provided to certain existing Blue Cross or Blue Shield organizations, in the case of any organization that (1) is not a Blue Cross or Blue Shield organization existing on August 16, 1986, and (2) otherwise meets the requirements of section 833(c)(2) (including the requirement of no material change in operations or structure since August 16, 1986). Under the Senate amendment, an organization qualifies for this treatment only if (1) it is not a health maintenance organization, and (2) it is organized under and governed by State laws which are specifically and exclusively applicable to not-for-profit health insurance or health service type organizations.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years ending after October 13, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

IV. ESTATE AND GIFT TAX PROVISIONS

A. INCREASE IN UNIFIED ESTATE AND GIFT TAX CREDIT; INDEXING OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS

1. INCREASE IN UNIFIED CREDIT (SEC. 6351(A) OF H.R. 1215 AND SEC. 12302 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A unified credit of $192,800 is allowed in computing a taxpayer's estate and gift tax, which effectively exempts a total of $600,000 in cumulative taxable transfers from the estate and gift tax (sec. 2010).

House bill

The House bill increases the unified credit over a three-year period beginning in 1996, from an effective exemption of $600,000 to an effective exemption of $750,000. For decedents dying and gifts made in 1996, an effective exemption of $700,000 is provided; for decedents dying and gifts made in 1997, the effective exemption is $725,000; and for decedents dying and gifts made in 1998, the effective exemption is $750,000. After 1998, the effective exemption amount of $750,000 is indexed annually for inflation occurring after 1997. The indexed exemption amount is rounded to the nearest $10,000.

To reflect the increase in the unified credit, the House bill also makes conforming amendments to (1) the 5-percent surtax in order to permit the proper phase out of the increased unified credit, (2) the general filing requirements for estate and gift tax returns under Code section 6018(a), and (3) the amount of the unified credit allowed under Code section 2102(c)(3) with respect to nonresident aliens with U.S. situs property who are residents of certain treaty countries.

Effective date.—Effective for decedents dying and gifts made after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment increases the present-law unified credit over a six-year period beginning in 1996, from an effective exemption of $600,000 to an effective exemption of $750,000. The increase is phased in as follows:

Decedents dying and gifts made in	Effective exemption
1996	$625,000
1997	650,000
1998	675,000
1999	700,000
2000	725,000
2001 and thereafter	750,000

The Senate amendment makes the same conforming amendments as are made in the House bill.

Effective date.—Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the modification that after 2001, the effective exemption amount of $750,000 is increased by inflation occurring after 2000. The indexed exemption amount is rounded to the nearest $10,000.

2. INDEXING OF OTHER PROVISIONS (SEC. 6351(B)–(E) OF H.R. 1215)

Present law

Annual exclusion for gifts.—A taxpayer may exclude $10,000 of gifts of present interests in property made to each donee during a calendar year (sec. 2503).

Special use valuation.—An executor may elect for estate tax purposes to value certain qualified real property used in farming or a closely-held trade or business at its current use value, rather than its highest and best use value (sec. 2032A). The maximum reduction in value under such an election is $750,000.

Generation-skipping transfer tax.—An individual is allowed an exemption from the GST tax of up to $1,000,000 for generation-skipping transfers made during life or at death (sec. 2631).

Installment payment of estate tax.—An executor may elect to pay the Federal estate tax attributable to an interest in a closely held business in installments over, at most, a 14-year period (sec. 6166). The first $1,000,000 in value of a closely-held business is eligible for a special 4-percent interest rate (sec. 6601(j)).

House bill

The House bill provides that, after 1998, the $10,000 annual exclusion for gifts, the $750,000 ceiling on special use valuation, the $1,000,000 generation-skipping transfer tax exemption, and the $1,000,000 ceiling on the value of a closely-held business eligible for the special 4-percent interest rate, are all indexed annually for inflation occurring after 1987. Indexing of the annual exclusion is rounded to the nearest $1,000 and indexing of the other amounts is rounded to the nearest $10,000.

Effective date.—Effective for decedents dying, and gifts made, after December 31, 1998.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that indexing does not begin until after December 31, 2000 (for inflation occurring after 1999).

Effective date.—Effective for decedents dying and gifts made after December 31, 2000.

B. REDUCTION IN ESTATE TAX FOR QUALIFIED FAMILY-OWNED BUSINESSES (SEC. 12301 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

There are no special estate tax rules for qualified family-owned businesses. However, under section 2032A, an executor may elect for estate tax purposes to value certain qualified real property used in farming or another qualifying closely-held trade or business at its current use value, rather than its highest and best use value (up to a maximum reduction of $750,000). In addition, an executor may elect to pay the Federal estate tax attributable to a qualified closely-held business in installments over, at most, a 14-year period (sec. 6166). The first $1,000,000 in value of a closely-held business is eligible for a special 4-percent interest rate (sec. 6601(j)).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides special estate tax treatment for qualified "family-owned business interests" if such interests comprise more than 50 percent of a decedent's estate. Subject to certain requirements, the bill excludes the first $1.5 million of value in qualified family-owned business interests from the decedent's estate, and also excludes from the estate 50 percent of the value of qualified family-owned business interests between $1.5 million and $5 million. Thus, the total amount of exclusion available per decedent for qualified family-owned business interests is equal to $3.25 million (i.e., $1.5 million plus 50 percent of $3.5 million).

A qualified family-owned business interest is defined as any interest in a trade or business (regardless of the form in which it is held) with a principal place of business in the United States if ownership of the trade or business is held at least 50 percent by one family, 70 percent by two families, or 90 percent by three families, as long as the decedent's family owns at least 30 percent of the trade or business.

An interest in a trade or business does not qualify if the business' (or a related entity's) stock or securities were publicly-traded at any time within three years of the decedent's death. An interest in a trade or business also does not qualify if more than 35 percent of the adjusted ordinary gross income of the business for the year of the decedent's death was personal holding company income (as defined in section 543). In the case of a trade or business that owns an interest in another trade or business (i.e., "tiered entities"), special look-through rules apply.

The value of a trade or business qualifying as a family-owned business interest is reduced to the extent the business holds passive assets or excess cash or marketable securities.

To qualify for the beneficial treatment provided under the bill, the decedent (or a member of the decedent's family) must have owned and materially participated in the trade or business for at least five of the eight years preceding the decedent's date of death. In addition, each qualified heir (or a member of the qualified heir's family) is required to materially participate in the trade or business for at least five years of each 8-year period ending within ten years following the decedent's death.

The benefit of the exclusions for qualified family-owned business interests are subject to recapture if, within 10 years of the decedent's death and before the qualified heir's death, one of the following "recapture events" occurs: (1) the qualified heir ceases to meet the material participation requirements; (2) the qualified heir disposes of any portion of his or her interest in the family-owned business, other than by a disposition to a member of the qualified heir's family or through a qualified conservation contribution; (3) the principal place of business of the trade or business ceases to be located in the United States; or (4) the qualified heir loses U.S. citizenship.

The portion of the reduction in estate taxes that is recaptured is dependent upon the number of years that the qualified heir (or members of the qualified heir's family) materially participated in the trade or business after the decedent's death. If the qualified heir (or his or her family members) materially participated in the trade or business after the decedent's death for less than six years, 100 percent of the reduction in estate taxes attributable to that heir's interest is recaptured; if the participation was for at least six years but less than seven years, 80 percent of the reduction in estate taxes is recaptured; if the participation was for at least seven years but less than eight years, 60 percent is recaptured; if the participation was for at least eight years but less than nine years, 40 percent is recaptured; and if the participation was for at least nine years but less than ten years, 20 percent of the reduction in estates taxes is recaptured. In general, there is no requirement that the qualified heir (or members of his or her family) continue to hold or participate in the trade or business more than 10 years after the decedent's death. As under present-law section 2032A, however, the 10-year recapture period may be extended for a period of up to two years if the qualified heir does not begin to use the property for a period of up to two years after the decedent's death.

Effective date.—Effective with respect to the estates of decedents dying after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the following modifications. The conference agreement excludes the first $1.0 million of value in qualified family-owned business interests from the decedent's estate, and also excludes from the estate 50 percent of the value of qualified family-owned business interests between $1.0 million and $2.5 million. Thus, the total amount of exclusion available per decedent for qualified family-owned business interests is equal to $1.75 million (i.e., $1.0 million plus 50 percent of $1.5 million).

In addition, the conference agreement coordinates the benefit for qualified family-owned business interests with the present-law benefits relating to special-use valuation (sec. 2032A) and the special 4-percent interest rate available for closely-held businesses (sec. 6601(j)). The conference agreement provides that any amount excluded from a decedent's estate under the qualified family-owned business provision reduces the ceilings with respect to both section 2032A and section 6601(j). Thus, for example, if a decedent had $350,000 of qualified family-owned business interests, the entire value of his qualified family-owned business property would be excluded from the estate; if the decedent's estate also qualifies for treatment under 2032A or 6601(j), the executor could take a maximum reduction under section 2032A of $400,000 (i.e., $750,000 less $350,000), and/or could use the special 4-percent rate provided in section 6601(j) with respect to the first $650,000 in value of a qualifying business (i.e., $1,000,000 less $350,000).

C. REDUCTION IN ESTATE TAX FOR CERTAIN LAND SUBJECT TO PERMANENT CONSERVATION EASEMENT (SEC. 12303 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A deduction is allowed for estate and gift tax purposes for a contribution of a qualified real property interest to a charity (or other qualified organization) exclusively for conservation purposes (secs. 2055(f), 2522(d)). For this purpose, a qualified real property interest means the entire interest of the transferor in real property (other than certain mineral interests), a remainder interest in real property, or a perpetual restriction on the use of real property (sec. 170(h)). A "conservation purpose" is (1) preservation of land for outdoor recreation by, or the education of, the general public, (2) preservation of natural habitat, (3) preservation of open space for scenic enjoyment of the general public or pursuant to a governmental conservation policy, and (4) preservation of historically important land or certified historic structures. A contribution is treated as "exclusively for conservation purposes" only if the conservation purpose is protected in perpetuity.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that an executor may elect to exclude from the taxable estate 50 percent of the value of any land subject to a qualified conservation easement that meets the following requirements: (1) the land must be located within 25 miles of a metropolitan area or a national park or wilderness area; (2) the land must have been owned by the decedent or a member of the decedent's family at all times during the three-year period ending on the date of the decedent's death; and (3) a qualified conservation contribution of a qualified real property interest had been granted by the transferor or a member of his or her family. For this purpose, preservation of a historically important land area or a certified historic structure does not qualify as a conservation purpose. To the extent that the value of such land is excluded from the taxable estate, the basis of such land acquired at death is a carryover basis (i.e., the basis is not stepped-up to its fair market value at death). Debt-financed property is not eligible for the exclusion.

The exclusion amount is calculated based on the value of the property after the conservation easement has been placed on the property. The exclusion from the taxable estate does not extend to the value of any development rights retained by the decedent or donor, although payment for estate taxes on retained development rights may be deferred for up to two years, or until the disposition of the property, whichever is earlier.

The 50-percent exclusion from the taxable estate for land subject to a qualified conservation easement may only be taken to the extent that the value of such land, plus the value of qualified family-owned business interests that qualify for the reduction in estate taxes, does not exceed $5 million.

If the value of the conservation easement is less than 30 percent of (1) the value of the land without the easement, reduced by (2) the value of any retained development rights, then the exclusion percentage is reduced. The reduction in the exclusion percentage is equal to two percentage points for each point that the above ratio falls below 30 percent.

The Senate amendment also provides that the granting of a qualified conservation easement (as defined above) is not treated as a disposition triggering the recapture provisions of section 2032A.

Effective date.—Effective for decedents dying after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the following modifications.

The conference agreement provides an exclusion from the taxable estate of 40 percent of the value of any land subject to a qualified conservation easement. As in the Senate amendment, if the value of the conservation easement is less than 30 percent of (1) the value of the land without the easement, reduced by (2) the value of any retained development rights, then the exclusion percentage is reduced. The reduction in the exclusion percentage is equal to two percentage points for each point that the above ratio falls below 30 percent. In making this calculation, the value of the land without the easement is to be determined by taking into account any local, State, or Federal law that restricts the development of the land, and the extent to which any prior easements restrict the use of the land.

The conference agreement expands the category of land eligible for the exclusion to include land located within 10 miles of an Urban National Forest (as designated by the Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture) as well as land located within 25 miles of a metropolitan area or a national park or wilderness area.

D. MODIFICATION OF GENERATION-SKIPPING TRANSFER TAX FOR TRANSFERS TO INDIVIDUALS WITH DECEASED PARENTS (SEC. 14634 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12304 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A generation-skipping transfer tax ("GST" tax) generally is imposed on transfers to an individual who is in more than one generation below that of the transferor. Transfers subject to the GST tax include direct skips, taxable terminations and taxable distributions. For this purpose, a direct skip is any transfer subject to estate or gift tax of an interest in property to a skip person (sec. 2612(c)(1)). A taxable termination is a termination (by death, lapse of time, release of power, or otherwise) of an interest in property held in trust unless, immediately after such termination, a non-skip person has an interest in the property, or unless at no time after the termination may a distribution (including a distribution upon termination) be made from the trust to a skip person (sec. 2612(a)). A taxable distribution is a distribution from a trust to a skip person (other than a taxable termination or a direct skip)(sec. 2612(b)).

Under the "predeceased parent exception," a direct skip transfer to a transferor's grandchild is not subject to the generation skipping transfer ("GST") tax if the child of the transferor who was the grandchild's parent is deceased at the time of the transfer (sec. 2612(c)(2)). This "predeceased parent exception" to the GST tax is not applicable to (1) transfers to collateral heirs, e.g., grandnieces or grandnephews, or (2) taxable terminations or taxable distributions.

House bill

The House bill extends the predeceased parent exception to transfers to collateral heirs, provided that the decedent has no living lineal descendants at the time of the transfer.

In addition, the House bill extends the predeceased parent exception to taxable terminations and taxable distributions, provided that the parent of the relevant beneficiary was dead at the earliest time that the transfer (from which the beneficiary's interest in the property was established) was subject to estate or gift tax.

Effective date.—Effective for generation-skipping transfers occurring after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except for the effective date.

Effective date.—Effective for generation-skipping transfers occurring after December 31, 1994.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

E. ESTATE TAX RECAPTURE FROM CASH LEASES OF SPECIALLY-VALUED PROPERTY (SEC. 12305 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

An executor may elect to value certain "qualified real property" used in farming or other qualifying trade or business at its current use value rather than its highest and best use. If, after the special-use valuation election is made, the heir who acquired the real property ceases to use it in its qualified use within 10 years (15 years for individuals dying before 1982) of the decedent's death, an additional estate tax is imposed in order to "recapture" the benefit of the special-use valuation (sec. 2032A(c)).

Some courts have held that the cash rental of specially-valued property after the death of the decedent is not a qualified use and, therefore, results in the imposition of the recapture tax. A decedent's surviving spouse, however, is not treated as failing to use the property in a qualified use solely because the spouse rents the property to a member of the spouse's family on a net cash basis (sec. 2032A(b)(5)).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that the cash lease of specially-valued real property by a lineal descendant of the decedent to a member of the lineal descendant's family, who continues to operate the farm or closely held business, does not cause the qualified use of such property to cease for purposes of imposing the additional estate tax under section 2032A(c). No inference is intended as to whether the cash lease of specially-valued real property is a qualified use of such property under present law.

Effective date.—Effective for cash rentals after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

V. EXPIRING TAX PROVISIONS

A. TEMPORARY EXTENSION OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS

1. WORK OPPORTUNITY TAX CREDIT (SEC. 13101 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

General rules.—Prior to January 1, 1995, the targeted jobs tax credit was available on an elective basis for employers hiring individuals from one or more of nine targeted groups. The credit generally was equal to 40 percent of qualified first-year wages.

Certification of members of targeted groups.—In general, an individual was not treated as a member of a targeted group unless certification that the individual was a member of such a group was received or requested in writing by the employer from the designated local agency on or before the day on which the individual began work for the employer.

Targeted groups eligible for the credit.—The nine groups eligible for the credit were either recipients of payments under means-tested transfer programs, economically disadvantaged (as measured by family income), or disabled individuals:

(1) Vocational rehabilitation referrals;
(2) Economically disadvantaged youths;
(3) Economically disadvantaged former convicts;
(4) Economically disadvantaged summer youth employees;
(5) AFDC recipients;
(6) Economically disadvantaged Vietnam-era veterans;
(7) Economically disadvantaged cooperative education students;
(8) SSI recipients; and
(9) General assistance recipients.

Other rules.—No credit was available for wages paid to replacement employees during strikes or lockouts.

Minimum employment period.—No credit was allowed for wages paid unless the eligible individual was either (1) employed by the employer for at least 90 days (14 days in the case of economically disadvantaged summer youth employees) or (2) had completed at least 120 hours (20 hours for summer youth) of services performed for the employer.

Length of extension.—Expired January 1, 1995.

House bill

General rules.—The House bill replaces the targeted jobs tax credit with the "work opportunity tax credit." The work opportunity tax credit is available on an elective basis for employers hiring individuals from one or more of five targeted groups. The credit generally is equal to 35 percent of qualified wages.

Certification of members of targeted groups.—In general, an individual is not treated as a member of a targeted group unless: (1) on or before the day the individual begins work for the employer, the employer received in writing a certification from the designated local agency that the individual is a member of a specific targeted group, or (2) on or before the day the individual is offered work with the employer, a pre-screening notice is completed with respect to that individual and within 14 days after the individual begins work for the employer, the employer submits such notice to the designated local agency as part of a written request for certification. The pre-screening notice will contain the information provided to the employer by the individual that forms the basis of the employer's belief that the individual is a member of a targeted group.

Targeted groups eligible for the credit.—There are five groups eligible for the credit:

(1) Vocational rehabilitation referral;
(2) High-risk youth;
(3) Qualified ex-felon;
(4) Qualified summer youth employee; and
(5) Aid to Families with Dependent Children ("AFDC") or successor program (with special rules for qualified veterans)

Other rules.—The House bill does not include the prior-law rule denying the credit in the case of strikes or lockouts.

Minimum employment period.—No credit is allowed for wages paid unless the eligible individual is employed by the employer for at least 180 days (20 days in the case of a qualified summer youth employee) or 500 hours (120 hours in the case of a qualified summer youth employee).

Length of extension.—January 1, 1996 through December 31, 1997 (two years).

Senate amendment [19]

General rules.—Same as the House bill, with the addition of a sixth targeted group: "qualified veterans." Unlike the House bill, the Senate amendment expands eligibility to certain veterans certified as receiving assistance under a food stamp program.

Certification of members of targeted groups.—Same as the House bill.

Targeted groups eligible for the credit.—Same as the House bill, with the addition of a sixth targeted group "qualified veterans." Unlike the House bill, the Senate amendment extends eligibility to certain veterans certified as receiving assistance under a food stamp program.

[19] The Senate amendment was inadvertently stricken in the enrolling of the Senate amendment. This explanation is of the Senate amendment as intended to be included.

Other rules.—Retains the prior-law rule denying the credit in the case of strikes or lockouts.

Minimum employment period.—Same as the House bill, except 500 hours reduced to 400 hours.

Length of extension.—January 1, 1996, through February 28, 1997 (14 months).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement provides for the following:

General rules.—The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Certification of members of targeted groups.—The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

Targeted groups eligible for the credit.—The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Other rules.—The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Minimum employment period.—The conference agreement follows the House bill.

Length of extension.—The conference agreement provides for a one-year extension, January 1, 1996 through December 31, 1996.

Effective date.—The credit is effective for wages paid or incurred to a qualified individual who begins work for an employer on or after January 1, 1996, and before January 1, 1997.

2. EMPLOYER-PROVIDED EDUCATIONAL ASSISTANCE (SEC. 13102 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12402 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

For taxable years beginning before January 1, 1995, an employees's gross income and wages did not include amounts paid or incurred by the employer for educational assistance provided to the employee if such amounts were paid or incurred pursuant to an educational assistance program that met certain requirements. This exclusion, which expired for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994, was limited to $5,250 of educational assistance with respect to an individual during a calendar year. The exclusion applied whether or not the education was job related. In the absence of the exclusion, educational assistance is excludable from income only if it is related to the employee's current job.

House bill

The House bill extends the exclusion for employer-provided educational assistance to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994, and before January 1, 1998. In years beginning after December 31, 1995, the exclusion does not apply with respect to graduate-level courses.

Effective date.—The provision is effective with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994, and before January 1, 1998, and the restriction of the exclusion to undergraduate education is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment extends the exclusion for educational assistance for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994, and before March 1, 1997. In the case of a taxable year beginning in 1997, the maximum amount that can be excluded is one-sixth of $5,250, or $875, and only amounts pad by the employer before March 1, 1997, are taken into account.

Effective date.—The provision is effective with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994, and before March 1, 1997.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that the exclusion for educational assistance is extended for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994, and before January 1, 1997. As under the House bill, the exclusion does not apply to graduate-level education after December 31, 1995.

Effective date.—The provision is effective with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994, and before January 1, 1997, and the restriction of the exclusion to undergraduate education is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

3. RESEARCH AND EXPERIMENTATION TAX CREDIT (SEC. 13103 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12402 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present and prior law

General rule

Prior to July 1, 1995, section 41 of the Internal Revenue Code provided for a research tax credit equal to 20 percent of the amount by which a taxpayer's qualified research expenditures for a taxable year exceeded its base amount for that year. The research tax credit expired and does not apply to amounts paid or incurred after June 30, 1995.

A 20-percent research tax credit also applied to the excess of (1) 100 percent of corporate cash expenditures (including grants or contributions) paid for basic research conducted by universities (and certain nonprofit scientific research organizations) over (2) the sum of (a) the greater of two minimum basic research floors plus (b) an amount reflecting any decrease in nonresearch giving to universities by the corporation as compared to such giving during a fixed-base period, as adjusted for inflation. This separate credit computation is commonly referred to as the "university basic research credit" (see sec. 41(e)).

Computation of allowable credit

Except for certain university basic research payments made by corporations, the research tax credit applies only to the extent that the taxpayer's qualified research expenditures for the current taxable year exceed its base amount. The base amount for the current year generally is computed by multiplying the taxpayer's "fixed-base percentage" by the average amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts for the four preceding years. If a taxpayer both incurred qualified research expenditures and had gross receipts during each of at least three years from 1984 through 1988, then its "fixed-base percentage" is the ratio that its total qualified research expenditures for the 1984-1988 period bears to its total gross receipts for that period (subject to a maximum ratio of .16). All other taxpayers (so-called "start-up firms") are assigned a fixed-base percentage of 3 percent.[20]

In computing the credit, a taxpayer's base amount may not be less than 50 percent of its current-year qualified research expenditures.

To prevent artificial increases in research expenditures by shifting expenditures among commonly controlled or otherwise related entities, research expenditures and gross receipts of the taxpayer are aggregated with research expenditures and gross receipts of certain related persons for purposes of computing any allowable credit (sec. 41(f)(1)). Special rules apply for computing the credit when a major portion of a business changes hands, under which qualified research expenditures and gross receipts for periods prior to the change or ownership of a trade or business are treated as transferred with the trade or business that gave rise to those expenditures and receipts for purposes of recomputing a taxpayer's fixed-base percentage (sec. 41(f)(3)).

Eligible expenditures

Qualified research expenditures eligible for the research tax credit consist of: (1) "in-house" expenses of the taxpayer for wages and supplies attributable to qualified research; (2) certain time-sharing costs for computer use in qualified research; and (3) 65 percent of amounts paid by the taxpayer for qualified research conducted on the taxpayer's behalf (so-called "contract research expenses").

To be eligible for the credit, the research must not only satisfy the requirements of present-law section 174 but must be undertaken for the purpose of discovering information that is technological in nature, the application of which is intended to be useful in the development of a new or improved business component of the taxpayer, and must pertain to functional aspects, performance, reliability, or quality of a business component. Research does not qualify for the credit if substantially all of the activities relate to style, taste, cosmetic, or seasonal design factors (sec. 41(d)(3)). In addition, research does not qualify for the credit if conducted after the beginning of commercial production of the business component, if related to the adaptation of an existing business component to a particular customer's requirements, if related to the duplication of an existing business component from a physical examination of the component itself or certain other information, or if related to certain efficiency surveys, market research or development, or routine quality control (sec. 41(d)(4)).

[20] The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 included a special rule designed to gradually recompute a start-up firm's fixed-base percentage based on its actual research experience. Under this special rule, a start-up firm (i.e., any taxpayer that did not have gross receipts in at least three years during the 1984-1988 period) will be assigned a fixed-base percentage of 3 percent for each of its first five taxable years after 1993 in which it incurs qualified research expenditures. In the event that the research credit is extended beyond the scheduled June 30, 1995 expiration date, a start-up firm's fixed-base percentage for its sixth through tenth taxable years after 1993 in which it incurs qualified research expenditures will be a phased-in ratio based on its actual research experience. For all subsequent taxable years, the taxpayer's fixed-base percentage will be its actual ratio of qualified research expenditures to gross receipts for any five years selected by the taxpayer from its fifth through tenth taxable years after 1993 (sec. 41(c)(3)(B)).

Expenditures attributable to research that is conducted outside the United States do not enter into the credit computation. In addition, the credit is not available for research in the social sciences, arts, or humanities, nor is it available for research to the extent funded by any grant, contract, or otherwise by another person (or governmental entity).

House bill

The House bill extends the research tax credit (including the university basic research credit) for the period July 1, 1995, through December 31, 1997.

The House bill also expands the definition of "start-up firms" under section 41(c)(3)(B)(I) to include any firm if the first taxable year in which such firm had both gross receipts and qualified research expenses began after 1983.[21]

In addition, the House bill allows taxpayers to elect an alternative incremental research credit regime. If a taxpayer elects to be subject to this alternative regime, the taxpayer is assigned a three-tiered fixed-base percentage (that is lower than the fixed-base percentage otherwise applicable under present law) and the credit rate likewise is reduced. Under the alternative credit regime, a credit rate of 1.65 percent applies to the extent that a taxpayer's current-year research expenses exceed a base amount computed by using a fixed-base percentage of 1 percent (i.e., the base amount equals 1 percent of the taxpayer's average gross receipts for the four preceding years) but do not exceed a base amount computed by using a fixed-base percentage of 1.5 percent. A credit rate of 2.2 percent applies to the extent that a taxpayer's current-year research expenses exceed a base amount computed by using a fixed-base percentage of 1.5 percent but do not exceed a base amount computed by using a fixed-base percentage of 2 percent. A credit rate of 2.75 percent applies to the extent that a taxpayer's current-year research expenses exceed a base amount computed by using a fixed-base percentage of 2 percent. An election to be subject to this alternative incremental credit regime may be made only for a taxpayer's first taxable year beginning after June 30, 1995, and such an election applies to that taxable year and all subsequent years unless revoked with the consent of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The House bill also provides for a special rule for payments made to a qualified research consortium. Under this special rule, 75 percent of amounts paid to a qualified research consortium for qualified research are treated as qualified research expenses eligible for the research credit (rather than 65 percent under the present-law section 41(b)(3) rule governing contract research expenses). For this purpose, a qualified research consortium is defined as a nonprofit scientific research organization that is described in section 501(c)(3) (but not a college or university) if (1) at least 15 unrelated persons paid amounts to the organization for qualified research during the calendar year in which the taxable year of the taxpayer begins, (2) no three persons paid more than 50 percent of such amounts, and (3) no one person paid more than 20 percent of such amounts.

[21] In applying the start-up firm rules, the test is whether a taxpayer, in fact, both incurred research expenses (which under the present-law rules would be qualified research expenses) and had gross receipts in a particular year, not whether the taxpayer claimed a research tax credit for that year.

Effective date.—Extension of the research tax credit is effective for expenditures paid or incurred during the period July 1, 1995, through December 31, 1997. The modification to the definition of "start-up firms" is effective for taxable years ending after June 30, 1995. Taxpayers may elect the alternative research credit regime (with lower fixed-base percentages and lower credit rates) for taxable years beginning after June 30, 1995. The special rule that treats 75 percent of qualified research consortium payments as qualified research expenses is effective for taxable years beginning after June 30, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment extends the research tax credit (including the university basic research credit) for the period July 1, 1995, through February 28, 1997.

In addition, the Senate amendment includes the same provision contained in the House bill expanding the definition of "start-up firms" under section 41(c)(3)(B)(I) to include any firm if the first taxable year in which such firm had both gross receipts and qualified research expenses began after 1983.

Effective date.—Extension of the research tax credit is effective for expenditures paid or incurred during the period July 1, 1995, through February 28, 1997. The modification to the definition of "start-up firms" is effective for taxable years ending after June 30, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement extends the research tax credit (including the university basic research credit) for the period July 1, 1995, through December 31, 1996.

In addition, the conference agreement includes (1) the expanded definition of "start-up firms" from both the House bill and Senate amendment, (2) the provision from the House bill that allows taxpayers to elect an alternative incremental credit regime, and (3) the provision from the House bill that treats 75 percent of qualified research consortium payments as qualified research expenses.

Effective date.—Extension of the research tax credit is effective for expenditures paid or incurred during the period July 1, 1995, through December 31, 1996. The modification to the definition of "start-up firms" is effective for taxable years ending after June 30, 1995. Taxpayers may elect the alternative research credit regime (with lower fixed-base percentages and lower credit rates) for taxable years beginning after June 30, 1995. The special rule that treats 75 percent of qualified research consortium payments as qualified research expenses is effective for taxable years beginning after June 30, 1995.

4. EXCLUSION FOR EMPLOYER-PROVIDED GROUP LEGAL SERVICES; TAX EXEMPTION FOR QUALIFIED GROUP LEGAL SERVICES ORGANIZATIONS (SEC. 12404 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Under present law, there is no exclusion for employer-provided group legal services, or tax exemption for qualified group legal services organizations. Under prior law, employees were not subject to income or employment tax on amounts contributed by an employer to a qualified group legal services plan (or benefits provided under such a plan). The exclusion did not apply to the extent that the value of insurance against legal costs incurred by the individual (or spouse or dependents) provided under the plan for a year exceeded $70. The exclusion for group legal services benefits expired after June 30, 1992.

In addition, prior law provided tax-exempt status for an organization the exclusive function of which was to provide legal services or indemnification against the cost of legal services provided through a qualified group services plan. The tax exemption for such an organization expired for taxable years beginning after June 30, 1992.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment reinstates the exclusion from income for contributions to (and benefits under) employer-provided group legal services plans and the exemption from tax for certain group legal services organizations from January 1, 1996, through February 28, 1997. The exclusion is available with respect to contributions to employer-provided group legal services plans through February 28, 1997, but the limit on the value of insurance provided under the plan for taxable years beginning in 1997 is one-sixth of $70 or $12.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995, and before February 28, 1997.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment.

5. ORPHAN DRUG TAX CREDIT (SEC. 13105 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12404 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present and prior law

Prior to January 1, 1995, a 50-percent nonrefundable tax credit was allowed for qualified clinical testing expenses incurred in testing of certain drugs for rare diseases or conditions, generally referred to as "orphan drugs." Qualified testing expenses are costs incurred to test an orphan drug after the drug has been approved for human testing by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) but before the drug has been approved for sale by the FDA. A rare disease or condition is defined as one that (1) affects less than 200,000 persons in the United States or (2) affects more than 200,000 persons, but for which there is no reasonable expectation that businesses could recoup the costs of developing a drug for it from U.S. sales of the drug. These rare diseases and conditions include Huntington's disease, myoclonus, ALS (Lou Gehrig's disease), Tourette's syndrome, and Duchenne's dystrophy (a form of muscular dystrophy).

Under prior law, the orphan drug tax credit could be claimed by a taxpayer only to the extent that its regular tax liability for the year the credit was earned exceeded its tentative minimum tax for that year, after regular tax was reduced by nonrefundable personal credits and the foreign tax credit.[22] Unused credits could not be carried back or carried forward to reduce taxes in other years.

The orphan drug tax credit expired after December 31, 1994.

House bill

The House bill extends the orphan drug tax credit for the period January 1, 1995, through December 31, 1997.

Effective date.—Qualified clinical testing expenses paid or incurred during the period January 1, 1995, through December 31, 1997.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment extends the orphan drug tax credit for the period January 1, 1995, through February 28, 1997.

In addition, the Senate amendment allows taxpayers to carry back unused credits to three years preceding the year the credit is earned and to carry forward unused credits to 15 years following the year the credit is earned.

Effective date.—Qualified clinical testing expenses incurred during the period January 1, 1995, through February 28, 1997. The provision allowing for the carry back and carry forward of unused credits is effective for taxable years ending after December 31, 1994, except that credits may not be carried back to a taxable year beginning before January 1, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement extends the orphan drug tax credit for the period January 1, 1995, through December 31, 1996.

The conference agreement includes the provision from the Senate amendment that allows taxpayers to carry back unused credits to three years preceding the year the credit is earned and to carry forward unused credits to 15 years following the year the credit is earned.

Effective date.—Qualified clinical testing expenses incurred during the period January 1, 1995, through December 31, 1996. The provision allowing for the carry back and carry forward of unused credits is effective for taxable years ending after December 31, 1994, except that credits may not be carried back to a taxable year beginning before January 1, 1995.

[22] To the extent that the orphan drug tax credit could not be used by reason of the minimum tax limitation, the taxpayer's minimum tax credit was increased (sec. 53(d)(1)(B)(iii)).

6. CONTRIBUTIONS OF APPRECIATED STOCK TO PRIVATE FOUNDATIONS (SEC. 13104 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12405 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present and prior law

In computing taxable income, a taxpayer who itemizes deductions generally is allowed to deduct the fair market value of property contributed to a charitable organization.[23] However, in the case of a charitable contribution of short-term gain, inventory, or other ordinary income property, the amount of the deduction generally is limited to the taxpayer's basis in the property. In the case of a charitable contribution of tangible personal property, the deduction is limited to the taxpayer's basis in such property if the use by the recipient charitable organization is unrelated to the organization's tax-exempt purpose.[24]

In cases involving contributions to a private foundation (other than certain private operating foundations), the amount of the deduction is limited to the taxpayer's basis in the property. However, under a special rule contained in section 170(e)(5), taxpayers were allowed a deduction equal to the fair market value of "qualified appreciated stock" contributed to a private foundation prior to January 1, 1995. Qualified appreciated stock was defined as publicly traded stock which is capital gain property. The fair-market-value deduction for qualified appreciated stock donations applied only to the extent that total donations made by the donor to private foundations of stock in a particular corporation did not exceed 10 percent of the outstanding stock of that corporation. For this purpose, an individual was treated as making all contributions that were made by any member of the individual's family. This special rule contained in section 170(e)(5) expired after December 31, 1994.

House bill

The House bill extends for the period January 1, 1995, through December 31, 1997, the special rule contained in section 170(e)(5) for contributions of qualified appreciated stock made to private foundations.[25]

Effective date.—The provision is effective for contributions of qualified appreciated stock to private foundations made during the period January 1, 1995, through December 31, 1997.

[23] The amount of the deduction allowable for a taxable year with respect to a charitable contribution may be reduced depending on the type of property contributed, the type of charitable organization to which the property is contributed, and the income of the taxpayer (secs. 170(b) and 170(e)).

[24] As part of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993, Congress eliminated the treatment of contributions of appreciated property (real, personal, and intangible) as a tax preference for alternative minimum tax (AMT) purposes. Thus, if a taxpayer makes a gift to charity of property (other than short-term gain, inventory, or other ordinary income property, or gifts to private foundations) that is real property, intangible property, or tangible personal property the use of which is related to the donee's tax-exempt purpose, the taxpayer is allowed to claim the same fair-market-value deduction for both regular tax and AMT purposes (subject to present-law percentage limitations).

[25] If, during this period, a taxpayer contributes qualified appreciated stock as defined in section 170(e)(5) and the amount of such contribution exceeds the percentage limitation under section 170(b)(1)(D), the excess may be carried over to succeeding taxable years. See, e.g., LTR 9444029, LTR 9424020.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment extends for the period January 1, 1995, through February 28, 1997, the special rule contained in section 170(e)(5) for contributions of qualified appreciated stock made to private foundations.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for contributions of qualified appreciated stock to private foundations made during the period January 1, 1995, through February 28, 1997.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement extends for the period January 1, 1995, through December 31, 1996, the special rule contained in section 170(e)(5) for contributions of qualified appreciated stock made to private foundations.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for contributions of qualified appreciated stock to private foundations made during the period January 1, 1995, through December 31, 1996.

7. TRANSPORTATION FUELS TAX EXEMPTION FOR FUEL USED IN COMMERCIAL AVIATION (SEC. 13111 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12407 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A 4.3-cents-per-gallon excise tax is imposed on fuel used in most transportation modes. This tax was enacted by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993. Fuel used in commercial aviation was exempt before October 1, 1995.

House bill

The House bill extends the commercial aviation fuel tax exemption for two years, through September 30, 1997, and provides for refunds of excise taxes paid between October 1, 1995 and the date of the bill's enactment.

The Treasury Department is required to study and report on relative excise tax burdens, and Federal benefits financed with those taxes, for different transportation sectors.

Effective date.—October 1, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except the commercial aviation fuels tax exemption is extended through February 28, 1997, and the Treasury Department study is only requested in legislative history.

Effective date.—Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with regard to the period when the exemption is extended (i.e., through September 30, 1997), and the Senate amendment with regard to the Treasury Department study. Extension of this exemption is contingent upon extension through September 30, 1996, of the present-law Airport and Airway Trust Fund excise taxes as part of the conference agreement.

8. AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND EXCISE TAXES (SEC. 13116 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

A tax credit is allowed for electricity produced from wind and closed-loop biomass facilities. The credit applies to production from property placed in service before July 1, 1999.

House bill

The House bill limits the credit to production from property placed in service (1) before September 14, 1995, or (2) before September 14, 1996, pursuant to a binding contract in existence on September 13, 1995.

The tax credit is subject to annual per-State limitations of $1.25 per resident. Credits that remain unallocated by States after prescribed periods are reallocated to other States through a "national pool."

The House bill sunsets the credit generally for housing placed in service after December 31, 1997. The House bill also repeals the "national pool" after December 31, 1995.

Effective date.—Date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

(3) an excise tax on imported substances made with the chemicals subject to the tax in (2), above; and

(4) an income tax on corporations calculated using the alternative minimum tax rules.

These taxes are scheduled to expire after December 31, 1995. Revenues from these taxes are deposited in the Hazardous Substance Superfund Trust Fund.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment extends the three Superfund excise taxes through September 30, 2002, and the corporate environmental income tax through taxable years beginning before January 1, 1998. Revenues from these taxes would continue to be deposited in the Hazardous Substance Superfund Trust Fund throughout the extension period.

Effective date.—Date of enactment.

The three superfund excise taxes (taxes on petroleum and refined products, on certain hazardous chemicals, and on certain imported substances) are extended through September 30, 1996. Revenues from these taxes will continue to be deposited in the Hazardous Substance Superfund Trust Fund during the period January 1, 1996 through July 31, 1996; revenues attributable to taxes imposed during the period August 1, 1996 through September 30, 1996, will be retained in the General Fund.

The corporate environmental income tax is extended for one year, through taxable years beginning before January 1, 1997. Revenues attributable to this tax will continue to be deposited in the Hazardous Substance Superfund Trust Fund throughout the extension period.

2. REINSTATE OIL SPILL LIABILITY TRUST FUND EXCISE TAX (SEC. 12412 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Effective date.—Date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

2. EXTEND TAX CREDIT FOR PRODUCING FUEL FROM A NONCONVENTIONAL SOURCE (SEC. 12422 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

3. EXEMPT STATES EXEMPT FROM CLEAN AIR ACT DIESEL DYEING REQUIREMENT FROM SIMILAR EXCISE TAX DYEING REQUIREMENT (SEC. 14733 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

An excise tax totaling 24.4 cents per gallon is imposed on diesel fuel. The diesel fuel tax is imposed on removal of the fuel from a terminal facility. Present law provides that tax is imposed on all diesel fuel removed from terminal facilities unless the fuel is destined for a nontaxable use and is indelibly dyed pursuant to Treasury Department regulations.

A similar dyeing regime exists for diesel fuel under the Clean Air Act. Urban areas in the State of Alaska were exempted from the Clean Air Act, but not the excise tax, dyeing regime for three years (until October 1, 1996); the exemption for more remote areas is permanent.

House bill

The House bill exempts diesel fuel sold in the State of Alaska from the excise tax diesel dyeing requirement during the period when that State is exempt from the Clean Air Act dyeing requirement.

Effective date.—First calendar quarter beginning after enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except the exemption is expanded to include diesel fuel removed from terminal facilities in any other State that is exempt from the Clean Air Act dyeing regime (as that Act is in effect on the date the conference agreement is enacted).

4. SUSPEND IMPOSITION OF DIESEL FUEL TAX ON RECREATIONAL MOTORBOATS (SEC. 12431 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Diesel fuel used in recreational motorboats is taxed at 24.4 cents per gallon. Diesel fuel used in commercial vessels is not taxed.

All diesel fuel is either taxed or dyed when it is removed from pipeline terminals. Dyed diesel fuel may not be used in a taxable use (i.e., recreational boats). Nontaxable users of undyed diesel fuel may claim refunds of tax paid on the fuel they use.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment suspends imposition of tax on diesel fuel used in recreational boats for the period January 1, 1996, through February 28, 1997.

The Senate amendment further requests (in the accompanying legislative history) the Treasury Department to study alternative tax regimes that would achieve comparable tax compliance to present law for the marine sector.

Effective date.—January 1, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except the expiration date of the provision is June 30, 1997.

E. EXTENSIONS OF OTHER PROVISIONS

1. PERMANENT EXTENSION OF FUTA EXEMPTION FOR ALIEN AGRICULTURAL WORKERS (SEC. 13106 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Generally, the Federal Unemployment Tax ("FUTA") is imposed on farm operators who (1) employ 10 or more agricultural workers for some portion of each of 20 different days, each day being in a different calendar week or (2) have a quarterly payroll for agricultural services of at least $20,000. An exclusion from FUTA was provided, however, for labor performed by an alien admitted to the United States to perform agricultural labor under section 214(c) and 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act. This exclusion was effective for labor performed before January 1, 1995.

House bill

The House bill permanently extends the exemption.

Effective date.—Effective for labor performed on or after January 1, 1995.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

Effective date.—Effective for labor performed on or after January 1, 1995.

2. TAX INFORMATION SHARING: EXTEND ACCESS TO TAX INFORMATION FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS (SEC. 13501 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The Internal Revenue Code prohibits disclosure of tax returns and return information, except to the extent specifically authorized by the Internal Revenue Code (sec. 6103). Unauthorized disclosure is a felony punishable by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment of not more than five years, or both (sec. 7213). An action for civil damages also may be brought for unauthorized disclosure (sec.

7431). No tax information may be furnished by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to another agency unless the other agency establishes procedures satisfactory to the IRS for safeguarding the tax information it receives (sec. 6103(p)).

Among the disclosures permitted under the Code is disclosure to the Department of Veterans Affairs (DVA) of self-employment tax information and certain tax information supplied to the Internal Revenue Service and Social Security Administration by third parties. Disclosure is permitted to assist DVA in determining eligibility for, and establishing correct benefit amounts under, certain of its needs-based pension, health care, and other programs (sec. 6103(l)(7)(D)(viii)). The income tax returns filed by the veterans themselves are not disclosed to DVA.

The DVA is required to comply with the safeguards currently contained in the Code and in section 1137(c) of the Social Security Act (governing the use of disclosed tax information). These safeguards include independent verification of tax data, notification to the individual concerned, and the opportunity to contest agency findings based on such information.

The DVA disclosure provision is scheduled to expire after September 30, 1998.

House bill

The House bill permanently extends the authority to disclose tax information to the DVA.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that the provision is extended through September 30, 2002.

VI. TAXPAYER BILL OF RIGHTS 2 PROVISIONS

1. TAXPAYER ADVOCATE

A. ESTABLISHMENT OF POSITION OF TAXPAYER ADVOCATE WITHIN INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE (SEC. 13301 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The Office of the Taxpayer Ombudsman was created by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in 1979. The Taxpayer Ombudsman's duties are to serve as the primary advocate, within the IRS, for taxpayers. As the taxpayers' advocate, the Taxpayer Ombudsman participates in an ongoing review of IRS policies and procedures to determine their impact on taxpayers, receives ideas from the public concerning tax administration, identifies areas of the tax law that confuse or create an inequity for taxpayers, and supervises cases handled under the Problem Resolution Program. Under current procedures, the Taxpayer Ombudsman is selected by the Commissioner of the IRS and serves at the Commissioner's discretion.

House bill

The House bill establishes a new position, Taxpayer Advocate, within the IRS. This replaces the position of Taxpayer Ombudsman. The Taxpayer Advocate is appointed by and reports directly to the Commissioner. Compensation of the Taxpayer Advocate is at a level equal to that of the highest level official reporting directly to the Deputy Commissioner of the IRS.

The House bill also establishes the Office of Taxpayer Advocate within the IRS. The functions of the office are (1) to assist taxpayers in resolving problems with the IRS, (2) to identify areas in which taxpayers have problems in dealings with the IRS, (3) to propose changes (to the extent possible) in the administrative practices of the IRS that will mitigate those problems, and (4) to identify potential legislative changes that may mitigate those problems.

The Taxpayer Advocate is required to make two annual reports to the tax-writing Committees.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment. The first annual reports of the Taxpayer Advocate are due in June and December, 1996.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

B. EXPANSION OF AUTHORITY TO ISSUE TAXPAYER ASSISTANCE ORDERS (SEC. 13302 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Section 7811(a) authorizes the Taxpayer Ombudsman to issue a Taxpayer Assistance Order (TAO). TAOs may order the release of taxpayer property levied upon by the IRS and may require the IRS to cease any action, or refrain from taking any action if, in the determination of the Taxpayer Ombudsman, the taxpayer is suffering or about to suffer a significant hardship as a result of the manner in which the internal revenue laws are being administered.

House bill

The House bill provides the Taxpayer Advocate with broader authority to affirmatively take any action as permitted by law with respect to taxpayers who would otherwise suffer a significant hardship as a result of the manner in which the IRS is administering the tax laws. In addition, the House bill provides that a TAO may specify a time period within which the TAO must be followed. Further, the House bill provides that only the Taxpayer Advocate, the Commissioner of the IRS, the Deputy Commissioner, or a regional problem resolution officer, may modify or rescind a TAO. Any official who modifies or rescinds a TAO must provide the Taxpayer Advocate a written explanation of the reasons for the modification or rescission.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

2. MODIFICATIONS TO INSTALLMENT AGREEMENT PROVISIONS

A. NOTIFICATION OF REASONS FOR TERMINATION OF INSTALLMENT AGREEMENTS (SEC. 13306 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Section 6159 authorizes the IRS to enter into written installment agreements with taxpayers to facilitate the collection of tax liabilities. In general, the IRS has the right to terminate (or in some instances, alter or modify) such agreements if the taxpayer provided inaccurate or incomplete information before the agreement was entered into, if the taxpayer fails to make a timely payment of an installment or another tax liability, if the taxpayer fails to provide the IRS with a requested update of financial condition, if the IRS determines that the financial condition of the taxpayer has changed significantly, or if the IRS believes collection of the tax liability is in jeopardy. If the IRS determines that the financial condition of a taxpayer that has entered into an installment agreement has changed significantly, the IRS must provide the taxpayer with a written notice that explains the IRS determination at least 30 days before altering, modifying, or terminating the installment agreement. No notice is statutorily required if the installment agreement is altered, modified, or terminated for other reasons.

House bill

The House bill requires the IRS to notify taxpayers 30 days before altering, modifying, or terminating any installment agreement for any reason other than that the collection of tax is determined to be in jeopardy. The IRS must include in the notification an explanation of why the IRS intends to take this action.

Effective date.—The provision is effective six months after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

B. ADMINISTRATIVE REVIEW OF TERMINATION OF INSTALLMENT AGREEMENTS (SEC. 13307 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The IRS is currently testing an appeal process for various collection actions, including installment agreements, that will permit taxpayers to appeal these collection actions to Appeals Division personnel.

House bill

The House bill requires the IRS to establish additional procedures for an independent administrative review of terminations of installment agreements for taxpayers who request a review.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on January 1, 1996.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

3. ABATEMENT OF INTEREST AND PENALTIES

A. EXPANSION OF AUTHORITY TO ABATE INTEREST (SEC. 13311 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12501 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Any assessment of interest on any deficiency attributable in whole or in part to any error or delay by an officer or employee of the IRS (acting in his official capacity) in performing a ministerial act may be abated.

House bill

The House bill permits the IRS to abate interest with respect to any unreasonable error or delay resulting from managerial acts as well as ministerial acts. This would include extensive delays resulting from managerial acts such as: the loss of records by the IRS, IRS personnel transfers, extended illnesses, extended personnel training, or extended leave. On the other hand, interest would not be abated for delays resulting from general administrative decisions. For example, the taxpayer could not claim that the IRS's decision on how to organize the processing of tax returns or its delay in implementing an improved computer system resulted in an unreasonable delay in the Service's action on the taxpayer's tax return, and so the interest on any subsequent deficiency should be waived.

Effective date.—The provision applies to interest accruing with respect to deficiencies or payments for taxable years beginning after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

B. REVIEW OF IRS FAILURE TO ABATE INTEREST (SEC. 13312 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12502 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Federal courts generally do not have the jurisdiction to review the IRS's failure to abate interest.

House bill

The House bill grants the Tax Court jurisdiction to determine whether the IRS's failure to abate interest for an eligible taxpayer was an abuse of discretion. The action must be brought within six months after the date of the Secretary's final determination not to abate interest. An eligible taxpayer must meet the net worth and size requirements imposed with respect to awards of attorney's fees. No inference is intended as to whether under present law any court has jurisdiction to review IRS's failure to abate interest.

Effective date.—The provision applies to requests for abatement after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision and the Senate amendment.

C. EXTENSION OF INTEREST-FREE PERIOD FOR PAYMENT OF TAX AFTER NOTICE AND DEMAND (SEC. 13313 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

In general, a taxpayer must pay interest on late payments of tax. An interest-free period of 10 calendar days is provided to taxpayers who pay the tax due within 10 calendar days of notice and demand.

House bill

The House bill extends the interest-free period provided to taxpayers for the payment of the tax liability reflected in the notice from 10 calendar days to 10 business days (21 calendar days, provided that the total tax liability shown on the notice of deficiency is less than $100,000).

Effective date.—The provision applies in the case of any notice and demand given after June 30, 1996.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

4. JOINT RETURNS

A. STUDIES OF JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY FOR MARRIED PERSONS FILING JOINT TAX RETURNS AND OTHER JOINT RETURN-RELATED ISSUES (SEC. 13316 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Spouses who file a joint tax return are each fully responsible for the accuracy of the return and for the full tax liability. This is true even though only one spouse may have earned the wages or income which is shown on the return. This is "joint and several" liability. Spouses who wish to avoid joint liability may file as a "married person filing separately."

Spouses often file a joint tax return but then later are separated or divorced. If the IRS later disputes the accuracy of the joint tax returns, one spouse may be held liable for the entire tax deficiency stemming from erroneous deductions or omitted income attributable to the other spouse. Therefore, the "innocent" spouse may be held liable for the full deficiency in a subsequent audit occurring after the separation or divorce. This has resulted in a serious hardship being imposed on an "innocent spouse" in a number of cases.

In some cases, a couple addresses the responsibility for tax liability as part of their divorce decree. However, these agreements are not binding on the IRS because the IRS was not a party to the divorce proceeding. Thus, if a former spouse violates the tax responsibilities assigned to him or her in a divorce decree, the other spouse may not rely on the decree in dealing with the IRS.

House bill

The House bill directs the Treasury Department and the General Accounting Office (GAO) to conduct separate studies analyzing several joint return-related issues.

Effective date.—The studies are due six months after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

B. JOINT RETURN MAY BE MADE AFTER SEPARATE RETURNS WITHOUT FULL PAYMENT OF TAX (SEC. 13317 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12503 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Taxpayers who file separate returns and subsequently determine that their tax liability would have been less if they had filed a joint return are precluded by statute from reducing their tax liability by filing jointly if they are unable to pay the entire amount of the joint return liability before the expiration of the three-year period for making the election to file jointly.

House bill

The House bill repeals the requirement of full payment of tax liability as a precondition to switching from married filing separately status to married filing jointly status.

Effective date.—The provision applies to taxable years beginning after the date of the enactment.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

C. DISCLOSURE OF COLLECTION ACTIVITIES WITH RESPECT TO JOINT RETURNS (SEC. 13318 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The IRS does not routinely disclose collection information to a former spouse that relates to tax liabilities attributable to a joint return that was filed when married.

House bill

If a tax deficiency with respect to a joint return is assessed, and the individuals filing the return are no longer married or no longer reside in the same household, the House bill requires the IRS to disclose in writing (in response to a written request by one of the individuals) to that individual whether the IRS has attempted to collect the deficiency from the other individual, the general nature of the collection activities, and the amount (if any) collected.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

5. COLLECTION ACTIVITIES

A. MODIFICATIONS TO LIEN AND LEVY PROVISIONS

I. WITHDRAWAL OF PUBLIC NOTICE OF LIEN (SEC. 13321(A) OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The IRS must file a notice of lien in the public record, in order to protect the priority of a tax lien. A notice of tax lien provides public notice that a taxpayer owes the Government money. The IRS has discretion in filing such a notice, but may withdraw a filed notice only if the notice (and the underlying lien) was erroneously filed or if the underlying lien has been paid, bonded, or become unenforceable.

House bill

The House bill allows the IRS to withdraw a public notice of tax lien prior to payment in full by the indebted taxpayer without prejudice, if the Secretary determines that (1) the filing of the notice was premature or otherwise not in accordance with the administrative procedures of the IRS, (2) the taxpayer has entered into an installment agreement to satisfy the tax liability with respect to which the lien was filed, (3) the withdrawal of the lien will facilitate collection of the tax liability, or (4) the withdrawal of the lien would be in the best interests of the taxpayer (as determined by the Taxpayer Advocate) and of the Government. The IRS must also provide a copy of the notice of withdrawal to the taxpayer. The House bill also requires that, at the written request of the taxpayer, the IRS make reasonable efforts to give notice of the withdrawal of a lien to creditors, credit reporting agencies, and financial institutions specified by the taxpayer.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

II. RETURN OF LEVIED PROPERTY (SEC. 13321(B) OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The IRS is authorized to levy on the property of a taxpayer as a means of collecting unpaid taxes. The IRS is able to return levied property to a taxpayer only when the taxpayer has overpaid its liability with respect to tax, interest, and penalty for which the property was levied.

House bill

The House bill allows the IRS to return property (including money deposited in the Treasury) that has been levied upon if the Secretary determines that (1) the levy was premature or otherwise not in accordance with the administrative procedures of the IRS, (2) the taxpayer has entered into an installment agreement to satisfy the tax liability, (3) the return of the property will facilitate collection of the tax liability, or (4) the return of the property would be in the best interests of the taxpayer (as determined by the Taxpayer Advocate) and the Government.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

III. MODIFICATIONS IN CERTAIN LEVY EXEMPTION AMOUNTS (SEC. 13321(C) OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12504 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Property exempt from levy includes personal property with a value of up to $1,650 and books and tools of a trade with a value of up to $1,100.

House bill

The House bill increases the exemption amount to $2,500 for personal property. This amount is indexed for inflation commencing January 1, 1996.

Effective date.—The provision is effective with respect to levies issued after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill, except that the Senate amendment also increases the exemption amount to $1,250 for books and tools of a trade.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

B. OFFERS-IN-COMPROMISE (SEC. 13322 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12505 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

The IRS has the authority to settle a tax debt pursuant to an offer-in-compromise. IRS regulations provide that such offers can be accepted if: the taxpayer is unable to pay the full amount of the tax liability and it is doubtful that the tax, interest, and penalties can be collected or there is doubt as to the validity of the actual tax liability. Amounts over $500 can only be accepted if the reasons for the acceptance are documented in detail and supported by an opinion of the IRS Chief Counsel.

House bill

The House bill increases from $500 to $100,000 the amount requiring a written opinion from the Office of Chief Counsel. Compromises below the $100,000 threshold must be subject to continuing quality review by the IRS.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill, except the threshold is $50,000.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

6. INFORMATION RETURNS

A. CIVIL DAMAGES FOR FRAUDULENT FILING OF INFORMATION RETURNS (SEC. 13326 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Federal law provides no private cause of action to a taxpayer who is injured because a fraudulent information return has been filed with the IRS asserting that payments have been made to the taxpayer.

House bill

The House bill provides that, if any person willfully files a fraudulent information return with respect to payments purported to have been made to another person, the other person may bring a civil action for damages against the person filing that return. A copy of the complaint initiating the action must be provided to the IRS. Recoverable damages are the greater of (1) $5,000 or (2) the amount of actual damages (including the costs of the action) and, in the court's discretion, reasonable attorney's fees. The court must specify in any decision awarding damages the correct amount (if any) that should have been reported on the information return. An action seeking damages under this provision must be brought within six years after the filing of the fraudulent information return, or one year after the fraudulent information return would have been discovered through the exercise of reasonable care, whichever is later.

Effective date.—The provision applies to fraudulent information returns filed after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

B. REQUIREMENT TO CONDUCT REASONABLE INVESTIGATIONS OF INFORMATION RETURNS (SEC. 13327 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Deficiencies determined by the IRS are generally afforded a presumption of correctness.

House bill

The House bill provides that, in any court proceeding, if a taxpayer asserts a reasonable dispute with respect to any item of income reported on an information return (Form 1099 or Form W–2) filed by a third party and the taxpayer has fully cooperated with the IRS, the Government has the burden of producing reasonable and probative information concerning the deficiency (in addition to the information return itself). Fully cooperating with the IRS includes (but is not limited to) the following: bringing the reasonable dispute over the item of income to the attention of the IRS within a reasonable period of time, and providing (within a reasonable period of time) access to and inspection of all witnesses, information, and documents within the control of the taxpayer (as reasonably requested by the Secretary).

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

7. AWARDING OF COSTS AND CERTAIN FEES

A. UNITED STATES MUST ESTABLISH THAT ITS POSITION IN A PROCEEDING WAS SUBSTANTIALLY JUSTIFIED (SEC. 13331 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Under section 7430, a taxpayer who successfully challenges a determination of deficiency by the IRS may recover attorney's fees and other administrative and litigation costs if the taxpayer qualifies as a "prevailing party." A taxpayer qualifies as a prevailing party if it: (1) establishes that the position of the United States was not substantially justified; (2) substantially prevails with respect to the amount in controversy or with respect to the most significant issue or set of issues presented; and (3) meets certain net worth and (if the taxpayer is a business) size requirements. A taxpayer must exhaust administrative remedies to be eligible to receive an award of attorney's fees.

House bill

The House bill provides that, once a taxpayer substantially prevails over the IRS in a tax dispute, the IRS has the burden of proof to establish that it was substantially justified in maintaining its position against the taxpayer. This will switch the current procedure which places the burden of proof on the taxpayer to establish that the IRS was not substantially justified in maintaining its position. Therefore, the successful taxpayer will receive an award of attorney's fees unless the IRS satisfies its burden of proof. The House bill also establishes a rebuttable presumption that the position of the United States was not substantially justified if the IRS did not follow in the administrative proceeding (1) its published regulations, revenue rulings, revenue procedures, information releases, notices, or announcements, or (2) a private letter ruling, determination letter, or technical advice memorandum issued to the taxpayer. This provision only applies to the version of IRS guidance that is most current on the date the IRS's position was taken.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for proceedings commenced after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

B. INCREASED LIMIT ON ATTORNEY'S FEES (SEC. 13332 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Attorney's fees recoverable by prevailing parties as litigation or administrative costs was originally set at $75 per hour.

House bill

The House bill raises the statutory rate to $110 per hour, indexed for inflation beginning after 1996.

Effective date.—The provision applies to proceedings commenced after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

C. FAILURE TO AGREE TO EXTENSION NOT TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT (SEC. 13333 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

To qualify for an award of attorney's fees, the taxpayer must have exhausted the administrative remedies available within the IRS.

House bill

The House bill provides that any failure to agree to an extension of the statute of limitations cannot be taken into account for purposes of determining whether a taxpayer has exhausted the administrative remedies for purposes of determining eligibility for an award of attorney's fees.

Effective date.—The provision applies to proceedings commenced after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

D. AWARD OF LITIGATION COSTS PERMITTED IN DECLARATORY JUDGMENT PROCEEDINGS (SEC. 13334 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12506 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Section 7430(b)(3) denies any reimbursement for attorney's fees in all declaratory judgment actions, except those actions related to the revocation of an organization's qualification under section 501(c)(3) (relating to tax-exempt status).

House bill

The House bill eliminates the present-law restrictions on awarding attorney's fees in all declaratory judgment proceedings.

Effective date.—The provision applies to proceedings commenced after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

8. MODIFICATION TO RECOVERY OF CIVIL DAMAGES FOR UNAUTHORIZED COLLECTION ACTIONS

A. INCREASE IN LIMIT ON RECOVERY OF CIVIL DAMAGES FOR UNAUTHORIZED COLLECTION ACTIONS (SEC. 13336 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

A taxpayer may sue the United States for up to $100,000 of damages caused by an officer or employee of the IRS who recklessly or intentionally disregards provisions of the Internal Revenue Code or the Treasury regulations promulgated thereunder in connection with the collection of Federal tax with respect to the taxpayer.

House bill

The House bill increases the cap from $100,000 to $1 million.

Effective date.—The provision applies to unauthorized collection actions by IRS employees that occur after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

B. COURT DISCRETION TO REDUCE AWARD FOR LITIGATION COSTS FOR FAILURE TO EXHAUST ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES (SEC. 13337 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12507 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A taxpayer suing the United States for civil damages for unauthorized collection activities must exhaust administrative remedies to be eligible for an award.

House bill

The House bill permits (but does not require) a court to reduce an award if the taxpayer has not exhausted administrative remedies.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for proceedings commenced after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision and the Senate amendment.

9. MODIFICATION TO PENALTY FOR FAILURE TO COLLECT AND PAY OVER TAX

A. PRELIMINARY NOTICE REQUIREMENT (SEC. 13341 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Under section 6672, a "responsible person" is subject to a penalty equal to the amount of trust fund taxes that are not collected or paid to the government on a timely basis. An individual the IRS has identified as a responsible person is permitted an administrative appeal on the question of responsibility.

House bill

The House bill requires the IRS to issue a notice to an individual the IRS had determined to be a responsible person with respect to unpaid trust fund taxes at least 60 days prior to issuing a notice and demand for the penalty. The statute of limitations shall not expire before the date 90 days after the date on which the notice was mailed. The provision does not apply if the Secretary finds that the collection of the penalty is in jeopardy.

Effective date.—The provision applies to assessments made after June 30, 1996.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

B. DISCLOSURE OF CERTAIN INFORMATION WHERE MORE THAN ONE PERSON SUBJECT TO PENALTY (SEC. 13342 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The IRS may not disclose to a responsible person the IRS's efforts to collect unpaid trust fund taxes from other responsible persons, who may also be liable for the same tax liability.

House bill

The House bill requires the IRS, if requested in writing by a person considered by the IRS to be a responsible person, to disclose in writing to that person the name of any other person the IRS has determined to be a responsible person with respect to the tax liability. The IRS is required to disclose in writing whether it has attempted to collect this penalty from other responsible persons, the general nature of those collection activities, and the amount (if any) collected. Failure by the IRS to follow this provision does not absolve any individual for any liability for this penalty.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

C. RIGHT OF CONTRIBUTION FROM MULTIPLE RESPONSIBLE PARTIES (SEC. 13343 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

A responsible person may seek to recover part of the amount which he has paid to the IRS from other individuals who also may have the obligations of a responsible person but who have not yet contributed their proportionate share of their liability under section 6672. Taxpayers must pursue such claims for contribution under state law (to the extent state law permits such claims). The variations in state law sometimes make it difficult or impossible to press successful suits in state courts to force a contribution from other responsible persons.

House bill

If more than one person is liable for this penalty, each person who paid the penalty is entitled to recover from other persons who are liable for the penalty an amount equal to the excess of the amount paid by such person over such person's proportionate share of the penalty. This proceeding is a Federal cause of action and must be entirely separate from any proceeding involving IRS's collection of the penalty from any responsible party (including a proceeding in which the United States files a counterclaim or third-party complaint for collection of the penalty).

Effective date.—The provision applies to penalties assessed after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

D. BOARD MEMBERS OF TAX-EXEMPT ORGANIZATIONS (SEC. 13344 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Under section 6672, "responsible persons" of tax-exempt organizations are subject to a penalty equal to the amount of trust fund taxes that are not collected and paid to the Government on a timely basis.

House bill

The House bill clarifies that the section 6672 responsible person penalty is not to be imposed on volunteer, unpaid members of any board of trustees or directors of a tax-exempt organization to the extent such members are solely serving in an honorary capacity, do not participate in the day-to-day or financial activities of the organization, and do not have actual knowledge of the failure. The provision cannot operate in such a way as to eliminate all responsible persons from responsibility.

The House bill requires the IRS to develop materials to better inform board members of tax-exempt organizations (including voluntary or honorary members) that they may be treated as responsible persons. The IRS is required to make such materials routinely available to tax-exempt organizations. The House bill also requires the IRS to clarify its instructions to IRS employees on application of the responsible person penalty with regard to honorary or volunteer members of boards of trustees or directors of tax-exempt organizations.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

10. MODIFICATIONS OF RULES RELATING TO SUMMONSES

A. ENROLLED AGENTS INCLUDED AS THIRD-PARTY RECORDKEEPERS (SEC. 13346 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12508 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Section 7609 contains special procedures that the IRS must follow before it issues a third-party summons. A third-party summons is a summons issued to a third-party recordkeeper compelling him to provide information with respect to the taxpayer. An example of this would be a summons served on a stock brokerage house to provide data on the securities trading of the taxpayer-client.

If a third-party summons is served on a third-party recordkeeper listed in section 7609(a)(3), then the taxpayer must receive notice of the summons and have an opportunity to challenge the summons in court. Otherwise the taxpayer has no statutory right to receive notice of the summons and accordingly he will not have the opportunity to challenge it in court.

Section 7609(a)(3) lists attorneys and accountants as third-party recordkeepers, but it does not list "enrolled agents", who are authorized to practice before the IRS.

House bill

The House bill includes enrolled agents as third-party recordkeepers.

Effective date.—The provision applies to summonses issued after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

B. SAFEGUARDS RELATING TO DESIGNATED SUMMONSES; ANNUAL REPORT TO CONGRESS ON DESIGNATED SUMMONSES (SECS. 13347–13348 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12509 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

The period for assessment of additional tax with respect to most tax returns, corporate or otherwise, is three years. The IRS and the taxpayer can together agree to extend the period, either for a specified period of time or indefinitely. The taxpayer may terminate an indefinite agreement to extend the period by providing notice to the IRS.

During an audit, the IRS may informally request that the taxpayer provide additional information necessary to arrive at a fair and accurate audit adjustment, if any adjustment is warranted. Not all taxpayers cooperate by providing the requested information on a timely basis. In some cases the IRS seeks information by issuing an administrative summons. Such a summons will not be judicially enforced unless the Government (as a practical matter, the Department of Justice) seeks and obtains an order for enforcement in Federal court. In addition, a taxpayer may petition the court to quash an administrative summons where this is permitted by statute.[26]

In certain cases, the running of the assessment period is suspended during the period when the parties are in court to obtain or avoid judicial enforcement of an administrative summons. Such a suspension is provided in the case of litigation over a third-party summons (sec. 7609(e)) or litigation over a summons regarding the examination of a related party transaction. Such a suspension can also occur with respect to a corporate tax return if a summons is issued at least 60 days before the day on which the assessment period (as extended) is scheduled to expire. In this case, suspension is only permitted if the summons clearly states that it is a "designated summons" for this purpose. Only one summons may be treated as a designated summons for purposes of any one tax return. The limitations period is suspended during the judicial enforcement period of the designated summons and of any other summons relating to the same tax return that is issued within 30 days after the designated summons is issued.

Under current internal procedures of the IRS, no designated summons is issued unless first reviewed by the Office of Chief Counsel to the IRS, including review by an IRS Deputy Regional Counsel for the Region in which the examination of the corporation's return is being conducted.

House bill

The House bill requires that issuance of any designated summons with respect to a corporation's tax return must be preceded by review of such issuance by the Regional Counsel, Office of Chief Counsel to the IRS, for the Region in which the examination of the corporation's return is being conducted.

[26] Petitions to quash are permitted, for example, in connection with the examination of certain related party transactions under section 6038A(e)(4), and in the case of certain third-party summonses under section 7609(b)(2).

The House bill also limits the use of a designated summons to corporations (or to any other person to whom the corporation has transferred records) that are being examined as part of the Coordinated Examination Program (CEP) or its successor. CEP audits cover about 1,600 of the largest corporate taxpayers. If a corporation moves between CEP and non-CEP audit categories, only the tax years covered by the CEP may be the subject of a designated summons. The House bill does not affect Code section 6038A(e)(1), which relates to a U.S. reporting corporation that acts merely as the agent of the foreign related party by receiving summonses on behalf of the foreign party.

The House bill also requires that the Treasury report annually to the Congress on the number of designated summonses issued in the preceding 12 months.

Effective date.—The provision applies to summonses issued after date of enactment.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill with respect to limiting the use of a designated summons to certain corporations. The Senate amendment does not contain the provisions requiring the review of the Regional Counsel or the report.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision and the Senate amendment.

11. RELIEF FROM RETROACTIVE APPLICATION OF TREASURY DEPARTMENT REGULATIONS (SEC. 13351 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Under section 7805(b), Treasury may prescribe the extent (if any) to which regulations shall be applied without retroactive effect.

House bill

The House bill provides that temporary and proposed regulations must have an effective date no earlier than the date of publication in the Federal Register or the date on which any notice substantially describing the expected contents of such regulation is issued to the public. Any regulations filed or issued within 12 months of the enactment of the statutory provision to which the regulation relates may be issued with retroactive effect. This general prohibition on retroactive regulations may be superseded by a legislative grant authorizing the Treasury to prescribe the effective date with respect to a statutory provision. The Treasury may issue retroactive temporary or proposed regulations to prevent abuse. The Treasury also may issue retroactive temporary, proposed, or final regulations to correct a procedural defect in the issuance of a regulation. Taxpayers may elect to apply a temporary or proposed regulation retroactively from the date of publication of the regulation. Final regulations may take effect from the date of publication of the temporary or proposed regulation to which they relate. The provision does not apply to any regulation relating to internal Treasury Department policies, practices, or procedures. Present law with respect to rulings is unchanged.

Effective date.—The provision applies with respect to regulations that relate to statutory provisions enacted on or after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

12. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

A. REPORT ON PILOT PROGRAM FOR APPEAL OF ENFORCEMENT ACTIONS (SEC. 13356 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

A taxpayer who disagrees with an IRS collection action generally can only appeal to successively higher levels of management in the Collection Division. However, certain cases involving the 6672 penalty, offers-in-compromise, and employment tax issues may be appealed to the Appeals Division.

House bill

The House bill requires the Secretary to report to the tax-writing committees on the effectiveness of the pilot program, together with any recommendations he may deem advisable.

Effective date.—The report is due by March 1, 1996.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

B. PHONE NUMBERS OF PERSON PROVIDING PAYEE STATEMENT REQUIRED TO BE SHOWN ON SUCH STATEMENT (SEC. 13357 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Information returns must contain the name and address of the payor.

House bill

The House bill requires that information returns contain the name, address, and phone number of the information contact of the person required to make the information return. A payor may, for example, provide the phone number of the department with the relevant information. It is intended that the telephone number provide direct access to individuals with immediate resources to resolve a taxpayer's questions in an expeditious manner.

Effective date.—The provision applies to statements required to be furnished after December 31, 1996 (determined without regard to any extension).

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

C. REQUIRED NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS OF CERTAIN PAYMENTS (SEC. 13358 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

If the IRS receives a payment without sufficient information to properly credit it to a taxpayer's account, the IRS may attempt to contact the taxpayer. If contact cannot be made, the IRS places the payment in an unidentified remittance file.

House bill

The House bill requires the IRS to make reasonable efforts to notify, within 60 days, those taxpayers who have made payments which the IRS cannot associate with the taxpayer.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

D. UNAUTHORIZED ENTICEMENT OF INFORMATION DISCLOSURE (SEC. 13359 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

No statutory disincentive applies to IRS employees who entice a tax professional to disclose information about clients in exchange for the favorable treatment of the taxes of the professional.

House bill

If any officer or employee of the United States intentionally compromises the determination or collection of any tax due from an attorney, certified public accountant, or enrolled agent representing a taxpayer in exchange for information conveyed by the taxpayer to the attorney, certified public accountant, or enrolled agent for purposes of obtaining advice concerning the taxpayer's tax liability, the taxpayer may bring a civil action for damages against the United States in a district court of the United States. Upon a finding of liability, damages shall equal the lesser of $500,000 or the sum of (1) actual economic damages sustained by the taxpayer as a proximate result of the information disclosure and (2) the costs of the action. These remedies shall not apply to information conveyed to an attorney, certified public accountant, or enrolled agent for the purpose of perpetrating a fraud or crime.

Effective date.—The provision applies to actions taken after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

E. ANNUAL REMINDERS TO TAXPAYERS WITH OUTSTANDING DELINQUENT ACCOUNTS (SEC. 13360 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12510 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

There is no statutory requirement in the Code that the IRS send annual reminders to persons who have outstanding tax liabilities.

House bill

The House bill requires the IRS to send taxpayers an annual reminder of their outstanding tax liabilities. The fact that a taxpayer did not receive a timely, annual reminder notice does not affect the tax liability.

Effective date.—The provision requires the IRS to send annual reminder notices beginning in 1996.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

F. FIVE-YEAR EXTENSION OF AUTHORITY FOR UNDERCOVER OPERATIONS (SEC. 13361 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 exempted IRS undercover operations from the otherwise applicable statutory restrictions controlling the use of Government funds (which generally provide that all receipts be deposited in the general fund of the Treasury and all expenses be paid out of appropriated funds). In general, the exemption permits the IRS to "churn" the income earned by an undercover operation to pay additional expenses incurred in the undercover operation. The IRS is required to conduct a detailed financial audit of large undercover operations in which the IRS is churning funds and to provide an annual audit report to the Congress on all such large undercover operations. The exemption originally expired on December 31, 1989, and was extended by the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1990 to December 31, 1991. The IRS has not had the authority to churn funds from its undercover operations since 1991.

House bill

The House bill reinstates the IRS's offset authority under section 7608(c) from the date of enactment until January 1, 2001. The House bill amends the IRS annual reporting requirement under section 7608(c)(4)(B) to require the provision of the following data: (1) the date the operation was initiated; (2) the date offsetting was approved; (3) the total current expenditures and the amount and use of proceeds of the operation; (4) a detailed description of the undercover operation projected to generate proceeds, including the potential violation being investigated, and whether the operation is being conducted under grand jury auspices; and (5) the results of the operation to date, including the results of criminal proceedings.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

G. DISCLOSURE OF RETURNS ON CASH TRANSACTIONS (SEC. 13362 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The Internal Revenue Code prohibits disclosure of tax returns and return information, except to the extent specifically authorized by the Internal Revenue Code (sec. 6103). Unauthorized disclosure is a felony punishable by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment of not more than five years, or both (sec. 7213). An action for civil damages also may be brought for unauthorized disclosure (sec. 7431). No tax information may be furnished by the IRS to another agency unless the other agency establishes procedures satisfactory to the IRS for safeguarding the tax information it receives (sec. 6103(p)).

Under section 6050I, any person who receives more than $10,000 in cash in one transaction (or two or more related transactions) in the course of a trade or business generally must file an information return (Form 8300) with the IRS specifying the name, address, and taxpayer identification number of the person from whom the cash was received and the amount of cash received.

The Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988 provided a special rule permitting the IRS to disclose these information returns to other Federal agencies for the purpose of administering Federal criminal statutes. The special rule originally was to expire after November 18, 1990, and was extended by the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1990 to November 18, 1992.

House bill

The House bill permanently extends the special rule for disclosing Form 8300 information. Moreover, the House bill permits disclosures not only to Federal agencies but also to State, local and foreign agencies and for civil, criminal and regulatory purposes (i.e., generally in the same manner as Currency Transaction Reports filed by financial institutions under the Bank Secrecy Act.) Disclosure, however, is not permitted to any such agency for purposes of tax administration. The House bill also (1) extends the dissemination policies and guidelines under section 6103 to people having access to Form 8300 information, and (2) applies section 6103 sanctions to persons having access to Form 8300 information that disclose this information without proper authorization.

H. DISCLOSURE OF RETURNS AND RETURN INFORMATION TO DESIGNEE OF TAXPAYER (SEC. 13363 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Under present law, the IRS is authorized to disclose the return of any taxpayer, or return information pertaining to a taxpayer, to such person(s) as the taxpayer has designated in a written request.

House bill

The House bill deletes the word "written" from the requirement that "written consent" from the taxpayer is necessary for the disclosure of taxpayer information to a designated third party. Allowing the IRS to adopt alternatives to the written request requirement will expedite such changes and facilitate the development and implementation of Tax System Modernization projects. It is anticipated that the IRS will continue to utilize its regulatory authority to impose reasonable restrictions on the form in which a request is made, and that the IRS will in no event accept an unconfirmed verbal request.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

I. REPORT ON NETTING OF INTEREST ON OVERPAYMENTS AND LIABILITIES (SEC. 13364 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

If any portion of a tax is satisfied through the crediting of an overpayment of tax, no interest is imposed on that portion of the tax for any period during which, if the credit had not been made, interest would have been allowable.

House bill

The House bill requires the Secretary of the Treasury to conduct a study of the manner in which the IRS has implemented the netting of interest on overpayments and underpayments and the policy and administrative implications of global netting. The Treasury is required to hold a public hearing to receive comments from any interested party prior to submitting the report of its study to the tax writing committees.

Effective date.—The report is due six months after the date of enactment.

J. TAX CREDIT FOR CERTAIN EXPENSES INCURRED IN CONNECTION WITH TCMP AUDITS (SEC. 13365 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The IRS recently announced that it will not conduct taxpayer compliance measurement program (TCMP) audits of returns filed for taxable year 1994. (The IRS had previously announced it would soon begin these audits.) The IRS planned to audit a stratified random sample consisting of approximately 150,000 returns. The data collected in TCMP audits would have been used by the IRS for several purposes: measuring the level of compliance with federal tax laws; estimating the tax gap; developing criteria for objectively selecting returns for audit; allocating the IRS's audit resources; analyzing specific compliance issues; and developing legislative proposals designed to improve taxpayer compliance.

Under present law, any expenses a taxpayer incurs in connection with the determination, collection or refund of any tax are deductible under either section 162 or sections 212(3). However, there is no tax credit for expenses incurred in connection with TCMP audits.

House bill

The House bill provides a refundable tax credit to individuals (not including estates, trusts, partnerships, or S corporations) for up to $3,000 of expenses otherwise deductible under either section 162 or section 212(3) incurred in connection with a TCMP audit of the taxpayer for taxable year 1994. In some circumstances, such as where a taxpayer has a net operating loss carryback, adjustments may also be made to an earlier tax return of the taxpayer as a consequence of the TCMP audit of the taxpayer for taxable year 1994. Expenses incurred with respect to this type of adjustment on an earlier return would also be eligible for the credit, because they are incurred in connection with the TCMP audit of the taxpayer for taxable year 1994. The $3,000 credit is the total available with respect to an audit, regardless of whether the expenses are incurred in two (or more) years. The credit is in lieu of a deduction with respect to these expenses.

Effective date.—The provision is effective with respect to amounts paid or incurred after December 31, 1994, in taxable years ending after that date. The credit is allowable with respect to the taxable year in which the expenses are incurred.

K. EXPENSES OF DETECTION OF UNDERPAYMENTS AND FRAUD (SEC. 13366 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

The Secretary may, pursuant to regulations, pay rewards for information leading to the detection and punishment of violations of the Internal Revenue laws.

House bill

The House bill clarifies that rewards may be paid for information relating to civil violations, as well as criminal violations. The House bill also provides that the rewards are to be paid out of the proceeds of amounts (other than interest) collected by reason of the information provided. The House bill also requires an annual report on the rewards program.

VII. CASUALTY, NONRECOGNITION, AND INVOLUNTARY CONVERSION PROVISIONS

A. MODIFY BASIS ADJUSTMENT RULES UNDER SECTION 1033 (SEC. 13626 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12601 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Under section 1033, gain realized by a taxpayer from certain involuntary conversions of property is deferred to the extent the taxpayer purchases property similar or related in service or use to the converted property within a specified replacement period of time. The replacement property may be acquired directly or by acquiring control of a corporation (generally, 80 percent of the stock of the corporation) that owns replacement property. The taxpayer's basis in the replacement property generally is the same as the taxpayer's basis in the converted property, decreased by the amount of any money or loss recognized on the conversion, and increased by the amount of any gain recognized on the conversion. In cases in which a taxpayer purchases stock as replacement property, the taxpayer generally reduces the basis of the stock, but does not reduce the basis of the underlying assets. Thus, the reduction in the basis of the stock generally does not result in reduced depreciation deductions where the corporation holds depreciable property, and may result in the taxpayer having more aggregate depreciable basis after the acquisition of replacement property than before the involuntary conversion.

House bill

The House bill provides that where the taxpayer satisfies the replacement property requirement of section 1033 by acquiring stock in a corporation, the corporation generally will reduce its adjusted bases in its assets by the amount by which the taxpayer reduces its basis in the stock. The corporation's adjusted bases in its assets will not be reduced, in the aggregate, below the taxpayer's basis in its stock (determined after the appropriate basis adjustment for the stock). In addition, the basis of any individual asset will not be reduced below zero. The basis reduction first is applied to: (1) property that is similar or related in service or use to the converted property, then (2) to other depreciable property, then (3) to other property.

Effective date.—The provision applies to involuntary conversions occurring after September 13, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

B. MODIFY THE EXCEPTION TO THE RELATED PARTY RULE OF SECTION 1033 FOR INDIVIDUALS TO ONLY PROVIDE AN EXCEPTION FOR DE MINIMIS AMOUNTS (SEC. 13627 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12602 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Under section 1033, gain realized by a taxpayer from certain involuntary conversions of property is deferred to the extent the taxpayer purchases property similar or related in service or use to the converted property within a specified replacement period of time. Pursuant to a provision of H.R. 831, as passed by the Congress and signed by the President on April 11, 1995 (P.L. 104–7), subchapter C corporations (and certain partnerships with corporate partners) are not entitled to defer gain under section 1033 if the replacement property or stock is purchased from a related person.

House bill

The House bill expands the present-law denial of the application of section 1033 to any other taxpayer (including an individual) that acquires replacement property from a related party (as defined by secs. 267(b) and 707(b)(1)) unless the taxpayer has aggregate realized gain of $100,000 or less for the taxable year with respect to converted property with aggregate realized gains. In the case of a partnership (or S corporation), the annual $100,000 limitation applies to both the partnership (or S corporation) and each partner (or shareholder).

Effective date.—The provision applies to involuntary conversions occurring after September 13, 1995.

C. TREATMENT OF CERTAIN CROP INSURANCE PROCEEDS AND DISASTER ASSISTANCE PAYMENTS (SEC. 14555 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12603 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A taxpayer engaged in a farming business generally may use the cash receipts and disbursements method of accounting ("cash method") to report taxable income. A cash method taxpayer generally recognizes income in the taxable year in which cash is received, regardless of when the economic events that give rise to such income occur. Under a special rule (sec. 451(d)), in the case of insurance proceeds received as a result of destruction or damage to crops, a cash method taxpayer may elect to defer the income recognition of the proceeds until the taxable year following the year of the destruction or damage, if the taxpayer establishes that under his practice, income from such crops would have been reported in a following taxable year.

House bill

The House bill amends the special rule of section 451(d) to allow a cash method taxpayer to elect to accelerate (or defer) the recognition of certain disaster-related payments if the taxpayer establishes that, under the taxpayer's practice, income from the crops lost in the disaster would have been reported in a prior (or the subsequent) taxable year. These elections are available with respect to payments of: (1) insurance proceeds received on account of destruction or damage to crops, or (2) disaster assistance received under any Federal law as a result of destruction or damage to crops caused by drought, flood, or other natural disaster, or the inability to plant crops because of such a disaster. A taxpayer is not allowed to accelerate the recognition of a disaster-related payment if the taxable year to which the taxpayer could properly accelerate such income under the bill is closed by the statute of limitations.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for payments received after December 31, 1995, as a result of destruction or damage occurring after such date.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, but with a different effective date.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for payments received after December 31, 1992, as a result of destruction or damage occurring after such date.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

D. APPLICATION OF INVOLUNTARY CONVERSION RULES TO PROPERTY DAMAGED AS A RESULT OF PRESIDENTIALLY DECLARED DISASTERS (SEC. 12604 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A taxpayer may elect not to recognize gain with respect to property that is involuntarily converted if the taxpayer acquires within an applicable period property similar or related in service or use. If the taxpayer does not replace the converted property with property similar or related in service or use, then gain generally is recognized.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that any tangible property acquired and held for productive use in a business is treated as similar or related in service or use to property that (1) was held for investment or for productive use in a business and (2) was involuntarily converted as a result of a Presidentially declared disaster.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for disasters for which a Presidential declaration is made after December 31, 1994, in taxable years ending after that date.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

E. DISALLOW ROLLOVER UNDER SECTION 1034 TO EXTENT OF PREVIOUSLY CLAIMED DEPRECIATION FOR HOME OFFICE OR OTHER DEPRECIABLE USE OF RESIDENCE (SEC. 13628 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12821 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Rollover

Generally, no gain is recognized on the sale or exchange of a principal residence to the extent that the amount of the sales price of the old residence is reinvested in a new residence within a specified period. The specified period generally is a period beginning two years before the sale of the old residence and ending two years after the sale of the old residence.

One-time exclusion

In general, a taxpayer may exclude from gross income up to $125,000 of gain from the sale or exchange of a principal residence if the taxpayer (1) has attained age 55 before the sale, and (2) has used the residence as a principal residence for three or more years of the five years preceding the sale. This election is allowed only once in a lifetime unless all previous elections are revoked. For these purposes, sales on or before July 26, 1978, are not counted against the once-in-a-lifetime limit.

In the case of a mixed use of a residence, the exclusion is limited to that portion of the residence that is owned and used by the individual as his principal residence for at least three of the previous five years before the date of sale. Gain on the portion not qualifying as a principal residence is not eligible for this exclusion.

House bill

Rollover

The House bill provides that gain is recognized on the sale of a principal residence to the extent of any depreciation allowable with respect to such principal residence for periods after December 31, 1995.

One-time exclusion

The House bill imposes an additional restriction on the availability of the one-time exclusion. Specifically, the bill provides that the amount of the otherwise allowable one-time exclusion is reduced to the extent of depreciation allowable with respect to such principal residence for periods after December 31, 1995. To illustrate the bill, assume the following facts: a 60-year old never-married taxpayer purchased a building on January 1, 1995, for $100,000 which will be used as the taxpayer's principal residence until its sale on January 1, 2002. Further, assume that the taxpayer will use one-tenth of the building as a qualified home office for three years between January 1, 1996, and December 31, 1998, with allowable annual depreciation of $256. Finally, assume that the taxpayer sells the building for $150,000 on January 1, 2002, and does not acquire a replacement residence. The taxpayer's realized gain is $50,768 ($150,000–($100,000–$768)). Under the bill $50,000 ($50,768–$768) is eligible for the one-time exclusion. The taxpayer is subject to tax on $768.

Effective date.—Taxable years ending after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

F. PROVIDE THAT ROLLOVER OF GAIN ON SALE OF A PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE CANNOT BE ELECTED BY A RESIDENT ALIEN UNLESS THE REPLACEMENT PROPERTY PURCHASED IS LOCATED WITHIN THE UNITED STATES (SEC. 13629 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12822 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Generally, no gain is recognized on the sale or exchange of a principal residence to the extent that the amount of the sales price of the old residence is reinvested in a new residence within a specified period. The specified period generally is a period beginning two years before the sale of the old residence and ending two years after the sale of the old residence. There is no requirement that either the old residence or new residence be located within the United States or its possessions.

House bill

Generally, the House bill requires recognition of gain on the sale or exchange of a principal residence by a resident alien unless the resident alien (1) retains resident alien status for at least two years after the date of sale, (2) becomes a U.S. citizen within two years of the date of sale, or (3) acquires a replacement residence located in the U.S. or its possessions within the specified time period.

The House bill does not apply where (1) the old residence is held jointly by the resident alien and the resident alien's spouse, (2) they file a joint tax return, and (3) the spouse is a U.S. citizen on the date of sale of the old residence.

Effective date.—Applies to the sale of old residences after December 31, 1995, unless a replacement residence was purchased before September 13, 1995, or purchased on or after such date pursuant to a binding contract in effect on such date (and at all times thereafter before such purchase).

VIII. EXEMPT ORGANIZATIONS AND CHARITABLE PROVISIONS

A. INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS FOR CERTAIN TAX-EXEMPT ORGANIZATIONS (SECS. 13646–13651 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Private inurement

Charities.—Section 501(c)(3) specifically conditions tax-exempt status for all organizations described in that section on the requirement that no part of the net earnings of the organization inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual (the so-called "private inurement test").

Social welfare organizations.—A tax-exempt social welfare organization described in section 501(c)(4) must be organized on a non-profit basis and must be operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare. In contrast to section 501(c)(3), however, there is no specific statutory rule in section 501(c)(4) prohibiting the net earnings of a social welfare organization described in section 501(c)(4) from inuring to the benefit of a private shareholder or individual.[27]

Other organizations.—Other tax-exempt organizations, such as labor and agricultural organizations described in section 501(c)(5) and business leagues described in section 501(c)(6) are subject to the private inurement test, as a result of explicit statutory language or Treasury Department regulations.

Sanctions for private inurement and other violations of exemption standards

Organizations described in section 501(c)(3) are classified as either public charities or private foundations. Penalty excise taxes may be imposed under the Code when a public charity makes political expenditures (sec. 4955) or excessive lobbying expenditures (secs. 4911 and 4912). However, the Code generally does not provide for the imposition of penalty excise taxes in cases where a 501(c)(3) public charity or a section 501(c)(4) social welfare organization engages in a transaction that results in private inurement. In such cases, the only sanction that specifically is authorized under the Code is revocation of the organization's tax-exempt status. A transaction engaged in by a private foundation (but not a public charity) is subject to special penalty excise taxes under the Code if the transaction is a prohibited "self-dealing" transaction (sec. 4941) or does not accomplish a charitable purpose (sec. 4945).

Filing and public disclosure rules

Tax-exempt organizations (other than churches and certain small organizations) are required to file an annual information return (Form 990) with the IRS, setting forth the organization's items of gross income and expenses attributable to such income, disbursements for tax-exempt purposes, plus certain other information for the taxable year. Private foundations are required to allow public inspection at the foundation's principal office of their current annual information return. Other tax-exempt organizations, including public charities, are required to allow public inspection at the organization's principal office (and certain regional or district offices) of their annual information returns for the three most recent taxable years (sec. 6104(e)). The Code also requires that tax-exempt organizations allow public inspection of the organization's application to the IRS for recognition of tax-exempt status, the IRS determination letter, and certain related documents. In addition, upon written request to the IRS, members of the general public are permitted to inspect annual information returns of tax-exempt organizations and applications for recognition of tax-exempt status (and related documents) at the National Office of the IRS in Washington, D.C. A person making such a written request is notified by the IRS when the material is available for inspection at the National Office, where notes may be taken of the material open for inspection, photographs taken with the person's own equipment, or copies of such material obtained from the IRS for a fee (Treas. Reg. secs. 301.6104(a)–6 and 301.6104(b)–1).

[27] Even where no prohibited private inurement exists, however, more than incidental private benefits conferred on individuals may result in the organization not being operated "exclusively" for an exempt purpose. See, e.g., American Campaign Academy v. Commissioner, 92 T.C. 1053 (1989).

Section 6652(c)(1)(A) provides that a tax-exempt organization that fails to file a complete and accurate Form 990 is subject to a penalty of $10 for each day during which such failure continues (with a maximum penalty with respect to any one return of the lesser of $5,000 or five percent of the organization's gross receipts for the year). Section 6652(c)(1)(C) provides that tax-exempt organizations that fail to make certain annual returns and applications for exemption available for public inspection are subject to a penalty of $10 for each day the failure continues (with a maximum penalty with respect to any one return not to exceed $5,000, and without limitation with respect to applications). In addition, section 6685 provides a penalty for willfully failing to make an annual return or application available for public inspection of $1,000 per return or application.

Organizations that have tax-exempt status but that are not eligible to receive tax-deductible charitable contributions are required expressly to state in certain fundraising solicitations that contributions or gifts to the organization are not deductible as charitable contributions for Federal income tax purposes (sec. 6113). Penalties may be imposed on such organizations for failure to comply with this requirement (sec. 6710).

House bill

Extend private inurement prohibition to social welfare organizations

The House bill amends section 501(c)(4) explicitly to provide that a social welfare organization or other organization described in that section would be eligible for tax-exempt status only if no part of its net earnings inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual.

Effective date.—This provision generally would be effective on September 14, 1995. However, under a special transition rule, the provision does not apply to inurement occurring prior to January 1, 1997, if such inurement results from a written contract that was binding on September 13, 1995, and at all times thereafter before such inurement occurred, and the terms of which have not materially changed.

Intermediate sanctions for excess benefit transactions

The House bill imposes penalty excise taxes as an intermediate sanction in cases where organizations exempt from tax under section 501(c)(3) or 501(c)(4) (other than private foundations, which are subject to a separate penalty regime under current law) engage in an "excess benefit transaction." In such cases, intermediate sanctions can be imposed on certain disqualified persons (i.e., insiders) who improperly benefit from an excess benefit transaction and on organization managers who participate in such a transaction knowing that it is improper.

An "excess benefit transaction" is defined as: (1) any transaction in which an economic benefit is provided to, or for the use of, any disqualified person if the value of the economic benefit provided directly by the organization (or indirectly through a controlled entity[28]) to such person exceeds the value of consideration (including performance of services) received by the organization for providing such benefit; and (2) to the extent provided in Treasury Department regulations, any transaction in which the amount of any economic benefit provided to, or for the use of, any disqualified person is determined in whole or in part by the revenues of the organization, provided that the transaction constitutes prohibited inurement under present-law section 501(c)(3) or under section 501(c)(4), as amended. Thus, "excess benefit transactions" subject to excise taxes include transactions in which a disqualified person engages in a non-fair-market-value transaction with an organization or receives unreasonable compensation, as well as financial arrangements (to the extent provided in Treasury regulations) under which a disqualified person receives payment based on the organization's income in a transaction that violates the present-law private inurement prohibition. The Committee intends that the Treasury Department will issue prompt guidance providing examples of revenue-sharing arrangements that violate the private inurement prohibition.

Existing tax-law standards apply in determining reasonableness of compensation and fair market value. Consistent with such standards, the parties to a transaction would be entitled to rely on a rebuttable presumption of reasonableness with respect to a compensation arrangement with a disqualified person if such arrangement was approved by an independent board (or an independent committee authorized by the board) that: (1) was composed entirely of individuals unrelated to and not subject to the control of the disqualified person(s) involved in the arrangement; (2) obtained and relied upon appropriate data as to comparability (e.g., compensation levels paid by similarly situated organizations, both taxable and tax-exempt, for functionally comparable positions; the location of the organization, including the availability of similar specialties in the geographic area; independent compensation surveys by nationally recognized independent firms; or actual written offers from similar institutions competing for the services of the disqualified person); and (3) adequately documented the basis for its determination (e.g., the record includes an evaluation of the individual whose compensation was being established and the basis for determining that the individual's compensation was reasonable in light of that evaluation and data).[29] If these three criteria are satisfied, penalty

[28] A tax-exempt organization cannot avoid the private inurement proscription by causing a controlled entity to engage in an excess benefit transaction. Thus, for example, if a tax-exempt organization causes its taxable subsidiary to pay excessive compensation to an individual who is a disqualified person with respect to the parent organization, such transaction would be an excess benefit transaction.

[29] The fact that a State or local legislative or agency body may have authorized or approved of a particular compensation package paid to a disqualified person is not determinative of the reasonableness of compensation paid for purposes of the excise tax penalties provided for by the proposal. Similarly, such authorization or approval is not determinative of whether a revenue sharing arrangement violates the private inurement proscription.

excise taxes could be imposed under the bill only if the IRS develops sufficient contrary evidence to rebut the probative value of the evidence put forth by the parties to the transaction (e.g., the IRS could establish that the compensation data relied upon by the parties was not for functionally comparable positions or that the disqualified person, in fact, did not substantially perform the responsibilities of such position). A similar rebuttable presumption would arise with respect to the reasonableness of the valuation of property sold or otherwise transferred (or purchased) by an organization to (or from) a disqualified person if the sale or transfer (or purchase) is approved by an independent board that uses appropriate comparability data and adequately documents its determination.

The House bill specifically provides that the payment of personal expenses and benefits to or for the benefit of disqualified persons, and non-fair-market-value transactions benefiting such persons, would be treated as compensation only if it is clear that the organization intended and made the payments as compensation for services. In determining whether such payments or transactions are, in fact, compensation, the relevant factors would include whether the appropriate decision-making body approved the transfer as compensation in accordance with established procedures and whether the organization and the recipient reported the transfer (except in the case of non-taxable fringe benefits) as compensation on the relevant forms (i.e., the organization's Form 990, the Form W–2 provided by the organization to the recipient, the recipient's Form 1040, and other required returns).[30]

"Disqualified person" means any person who is (1) an "organization manager" (meaning any officer, director, or trustee of an organization or any individual having powers or responsibilities similar to those of officers, directors, or trustees) or (2) any individual (other than an organization manager) who is in a position to exercise substantial influence over the affairs of the organization.[31] In addition, "disqualified persons" include certain family members and 35-percent owned entities[32] of any person described in (1) or (2) above, as well as any person who was a disqualified person at any time during the five-year period prior to the transaction at issue.

A disqualified person who benefits from an excess benefit transaction would be subject to a first-tier penalty tax equal to 25 percent of the amount of the excess benefit (i.e., the amount by which a transaction differs from fair market value, the amount of compensation exceeding reasonable compensation, or the amount of

[30] With the exception of nontaxable fringe benefits described in present-law section 132 and other types of nontaxable transfers such as employer-provided health benefits and contributions to qualified pension plans, an organization cannot demonstrate at the time of an IRS audit that it clearly indicated its intent to treat economic benefits provided to a disqualified person as compensation for services merely by claiming that such benefits may be viewed as part of the disqualified person's total compensation package. Rather, the organization must provide substantiation that is contemporaneous with the transfer of economic benefits at issue.

[31] The Committee intends that a person could be in a position to exercise substantial influence over a tax-exempt organization despite the fact that such person is not an employee of (and receives no compensation directly from) a tax-exempt organization but is formally an employee of (and is directly compensated by) a subsidiary—even a taxable subsidiary—controlled by the parent tax-exempt organization.

[32] Family members are determined under present-law section 4946(d), except that such members also would include siblings (whether by whole or half blood) of the individual, and spouses of such siblings. "35-percent owned entities" mean corporations, partnerships, and trusts or estates in which a disqualified person owns more than 35 percent of the combined voting power, profits interest, or beneficial interest.

a prohibited transaction based on the organization's gross or net income). Organization managers who participate in an excess benefit transaction knowing that it is an improper transaction would be subject to a first-tier penalty tax of ten percent of the amount of the excess benefit (subject to a maximum penalty of $10,000).

Additional, second-tier taxes could be imposed on a disqualified person if there is no correction of the excess benefit transaction within a specified time period.[33] In such cases, the disqualified person would be subject to a penalty tax equal to 200 percent of the amount of excess benefit. For this purpose, the term "correction" means undoing the excess benefit to the extent possible and, where fully undoing the excess benefit is not possible, taking such additional corrective action as is prescribed by Treasury regulations.

The intermediate sanctions for "excess benefit transactions" could be imposed by the IRS in lieu of (or in addition to) revocation of an organization's tax-exempt status. If more than one disqualified person or manager is liable for a penalty excise tax, then all such persons would be jointly and severally liable for such tax. As under current law, a three-year statute of limitations applies, except in the case of fraud (sec. 6501). Under the House bill, the IRS has authority to abate the excise tax penalty (under present-law section 4962) if it is established that the violation was due to reasonable cause and not due to willful neglect and the transaction at issue was corrected within the specified period.

To prevent an organization from avoiding the penalty excise taxes through termination of its tax-exempt status, the House bill also imposes a tax on tax-exempt organizations that terminate their tax-exempt status. The amount of the tax equals the lesser of (1) the aggregate tax benefits that an organization can substantiate that it has received from its exemption from tax under Code section 501(a), or (2) the value of the net assets of such organization.[34] The Secretary of the Treasury is permitted to abate all or a portion of the tax if a tax-exempt organization distributes all of its net assets to one or more charitable organizations described in Code section 501(c)(3) that have been in existence for a continuous five-year period. Tax-exempt organizations that are described in Code section 501(c)(4) are permitted to distribute their net assets to one or more organizations described in Code section 501(c)(3) or 501(c)(4) that have been in existence for a continuous five-year period. An organization is permitted to terminate its exempt status only if it has paid the tax (or any portion thereof that is not abated) and the organization has notified the Secretary of its intent to terminate its exempt status (or the Secretary has made a final determination that such status has terminated).

Effective date.—The provision generally applies to excess benefit transactions occurring on or after September 14, 1995. The provision does not apply, however, to any transaction pursuant to a written contract for the performance of personal services which was binding on September 13, 1995, and at all times thereafter before [33] Correction must be made on or prior to the earlier of (1) the date of mailing of a notice of deficiency under section 6212 with respect to the first-tier penalty excise tax imposed on the disqualified person, or (2) the date on which such tax is assessed.

[34] In calculating these amounts, rules similar to the rules applicable to private foundations set forth in Code section 507(d),(e), and (f) apply.

such transaction occurred, and the terms of which have not materially changed.

Additional filing and public disclosure rules

Reporting of identity of certain disqualified persons, excise tax penalties and excess benefit transactions.—Tax-exempt organizations are required to disclose on their Form 990 the names of each disqualified person who received an economic benefit during the taxable year and such other information as may be required by the Secretary of the Treasury. In addition, exempt organizations are required to disclose on their Form 990 such information as the Secretary of the Treasury may require with respect to "excess benefit transactions" (described above) and any other excise tax penalties paid during the year under present-law sections 4911 (excess lobbying expenditures), 4912 (disqualifying lobbying expenditures), or 4955 (political expenditures), including the amount of the excise tax penalties paid with respect to such transactions, the nature of the activity, and the parties involved.[35]

Furnishing copies of documents.—The House bill also provides that a tax-exempt organization that is subject to the public inspection rules of present-law section 6104(e)(1) (i.e., any tax-exempt organization, other than a private foundation, that files a Form 990) is required to comply with requests from individuals who seek a copy of the organization's Form 990 or the organization's application for recognition of tax-exempt status and certain related documents. Upon such a request, the organization is required to supply copies without charge other than a reasonable fee for reproduction and mailing costs. If so requested, copies must be supplied of the Forms 990 for any of the organization's three most recent taxable years. If the request for copies is made in person, then the organization must immediately provide such copies. If the request for copies is made other than in person (e.g., by mail or telephone), then copies must be provided within 30 days. However, an organization could be relieved, for a limited period of time, of its obligation to provide copies if the Secretary of the Treasury determined, upon application by the organization, that the organization was subject to a harassment campaign such that waiver of the obligation to provide copies would be in the public interest.

Advertisements and solicitations.—The House bill further requires that written advertisements or solicitations made by (or on behalf of) a tax-exempt organization that is subject to the public inspection rules of present-law section 6104(e)(1) must contain an express statement, in a conspicuous and easily recognizable format, that the organization's Forms 990 are available to individuals upon request.[36] Failure to make the required disclosure in an advertisement or solicitation would subject the organization to a penalty of $100 for each day on which the failure occurred. However, no pen-

[35] The penalties applicable to failure to file a timely, complete, and accurate return apply for failure to comply with these requirements. In addition, it is intended that the IRS implement its plan to require additional Form 990 reporting regarding (1) changes to the governing board or the certified accounting firm, (2) such information as the Secretary may require relating to professional fundraising fees paid by the organization, and (3) aggregate payments (by related entities) in excess of $100,000 to the highest-paid employees.

[36] It is intended that the Department of Treasury will provide prompt guidance on this requirement.

alty may be imposed with respect to a failure if it is shown that such failure was due to reasonable cause. The House bill generally limits the maximum penalty to $10,000 for all such failures by an organization during any calendar year.[37]

In addition, the House bill requires entities that do not have Federal tax-exempt status but that describe themselves in advertisements or solicitations as "nonprofit" to disclose in an express statement that contributions to the entity are not deductible as charitable contributions for Federal income tax purposes. Failure to make the disclosure would subject the entity to penalties under section 6716.

Electronic dissemination of information.—The House bill requires the Treasury Department to provide copies of annual returns and applications for recognition of tax-exempt status filed by exempt organizations to any organization that agrees to accept broad categories of such returns and applications and to provide electronic access to all such documents on an electronic network to the general public. Such returns and applications must be provided free of charge to organizations that do not charge a fee for public access; if an organization charges a fee for public electronic access, the Treasury Department is allowed to charge a reasonable fee for reproduction and mailing costs.

Penalties for failure to file timely or complete return.—The section 6652(c)(1)(A) penalty imposed on a tax-exempt organization that either fails to file a Form 990 in a timely manner or fails to include all required information on a Form 990 is increased from the present-law level of $10 for each day the failure continues (with a maximum penalty with respect to any one return of the lesser of $5,000 or five percent of the organization's gross receipts) to $20 for each day the failure continues (with a maximum penalty with respect to any one return of the lesser of $10,000 or five percent of the organization's gross receipts). Under the House bill, organizations with annual gross receipts exceeding $1 million are subject to a penalty under section 6652(c)(1)(A) of $100 for each day the failure continues (with a maximum penalty with respect to any one return of $50,000). As under present law, no penalty may be imposed under section 6652(c)(1)(A) if it were shown that the failure to file a complete return was due to reasonable cause (sec. 6652(c)(3)).

Penalties for failure to allow public inspection.—The section 6652(c)(1)(C) penalty imposed on tax-exempt organizations that fail to allow public inspection of certain annual returns or applications for exemption is increased from the present-law level of $10 per day (with a maximum of $5,000) to $20 per day (with a maximum of $10,000). In addition, the section 6685 penalty for willful failure to allow public inspections is increased from the present-law level of $1,000 to $5,000.

Treasury Department studies.—The House bill directs the Treasury Department to: (1) study and make recommendations re-

[37] However, if a failure to comply with the disclosure requirement for solicitations is due to intentional disregard, then the $10,000 limitation does not apply, and the penalty for each day on which such an intentional failure occurred is the greater of (1) $1,000 or (2) 50 percent of the aggregate cost of the solicitations which occurred on such day and with respect to which there was intentional disregard of the disclosure requirement.

garding application of an explicit statutory private inurement prohibition, and intermediate sanctions, to other tax-exempt organizations; (2) study and make recommendations to the Congress on whether certain State officers, such as the attorney general and other officials charged with overseeing public charities, should be provided with additional access to Federal tax information beyond that authorized under section 6103; and (3) review the Form 990 reporting requirements to ensure the Form's utility to IRS and the public and to reduce unnecessary reporting burdens.

Effective dates.—The filing and disclosure provisions governing tax-exempt organizations generally take effect on January 1, 1996 (or, if later, 90 days after enactment). However, the provisions regarding the reporting on annual returns of excise tax penalties and excess benefit transactions is effective for returns with respect to taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1995. The requirement that the Treasury Department provide copies of annual returns and applications for recognition of tax-exempt status for electronic dissemination applies to returns and applications filed on or after January 1, 1996; it applies to returns and applications filed prior to January 1, 1996, only to the extent provided by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Treasury Department studies are required to be transmitted to Congress by January 1, 1997.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, modified as set forth below.

Extend private inurement prohibition to social welfare organizations

The conference agreement codifies the provision in the committee report to the House bill providing that the private inurement rule will not be violated solely because of an allocation or return of net margins or capital to the members of a nonprofit association or organization that operates on a cooperative basis in accordance with its incorporating statute and bylaws (substantially as in existence on the date of enactment) and was determined to be exempt from Federal income tax under section 501(c)(4) prior to the date of enactment. The conferees intend that such cooperative organizations will be subject to the general private inurement proscription with respect to any other type of transaction.

Intermediate sanctions for excess benefit transactions

As under the House bill, an "excess benefit transaction" includes, to the extent provided in Treasury Department regulations, any transaction in which the amount of any economic benefit provided to, or for the use of, any disqualified person is determined in whole or in part by the revenues of the organization, provided that the transaction constitutes prohibited inurement under present-law section 501(c)(3) or under section 501(c)(4), as amended. The conferees are aware that, under present law, certain revenue sharing arrangements have been determined not to constitute private inurement[38] and the conferees expect that it would continue to be the case that not all revenue sharing arrangements would be improper private inurement. However, the conferees intend no inference that Treasury or the Internal Revenue Service are bound by any particular prior rulings in this area. The conferees intend that the Treasury Department will issue prompt guidance providing examples of revenue-sharing arrangements that violate the private inurement prohibition and that such guidance will be applicable on a prospective basis.

The conference agreement clarifies that in applying existing tax-law standards (see sec. 162) in determining reasonableness of compensation and fair market value, the conferees intend that the parties to a transaction are entitled to rely on a rebuttable presumption of reasonableness that is described in the committee report accompanying the House bill. Because the intermediate sanctions generally will be effective for transactions entered into after September 13, 1995 (other than transactions pursuant to written contracts binding on that date), the conferees intend that parties to transactions entered into after September 13, 1995, and before January 1, 1997, will be entitled to rely on the rebuttable presumption of reasonableness if, within a reasonable period (e.g., 90 days) after entering into the compensation package, the parties satisfy the three criteria that give rise to the presumption. After December 31, 1996, the rebuttable presumption should arise only if the three criteria are satisfied prior to payment of the compensation (or, to the extent provided by the Secretary, within a reasonable period thereafter).

The conferees further clarify the treatment of reimbursements of excise tax liability and purchase of insurance covering such liabilities. Consistent with the rule that payment of personal expenses and benefits to or for the benefit of disqualified persons and nonfair-market value transactions benefiting such persons are treated as compensation only if it is clear that the organization intended and made the payments as compensation for services, any reimbursements by the organization of excise tax liability are treated as an excess benefit unless they are included in the disqualified person's compensation during the year the reimbursement is made. The total compensation package, including the amount of any reimbursement would be subject to the reasonableness requirement. Similarly, the payment by an applicable tax-exempt organization of premiums for an insurance policy providing liability insurance to a disqualified person for excess benefit taxes is an excess benefit transaction unless such premiums are treated as part of the compensation paid to such disqualified person.[39]

The conference agreement amends the definition of "disqualified person" to mean any individual who is in a position to exercise substantial authority over the affairs of the organization, whether [38] See e.g., GCM 38283; GCM 38905; and GCM 39674.

[39] In addition, because individuals may be both members of and disqualified persons with respect to a non-exclusive applicable tax-exempt organization (e.g., a museum or neighborhood civic organization) and receive certain benefits (e.g., free admission, discounted gift shop purchases) in their capacity as members (rather than in their capacity as disqualified persons), the conferees intend that the Treasury Department provide guidance clarifying that such membership benefits may be excluded from consideration under the private inurement proscription and intermediate sanction rules.

by virtue of being an organization manager or otherwise, as well as certain family members and 35-percent owned entities of any such individual at any time during the 5- year period prior to the transaction at issue. A person having the title of "officer, director, or trustee" does not automatically have the status of a disqualified person.[40] In addition, the conferees grant the Secretary of Treasury authority to promulgate rules exempting broad categories of individuals from the category of "disqualified persons" (e.g., full-time bona fide employees who receive economic benefits of less than a threshold amount or persons who have taken a vow of poverty).

The conferees generally expect that the intermediate sanctions will be the sole sanction imposed in those cases in which the excess benefit does not rise to a level where it calls into question whether, on the whole, the organization functions as a charitable or other tax-exempt organization. In practice, revocation of tax-exempt status, with or without the imposition of excise taxes, will occur only when the organization no longer operates as a charitable organization.

The conference agreement eliminates the provision of the House bill that imposes a tax on tax-exempt organizations that terminate their tax-exempt status. To prevent avoidance of the penalty excise taxes in cases of private inurement of assets of a previously tax-exempt organization, the conference agreement provides that an organization will be treated as an applicable tax-exempt organization subject to the excise taxes on excess benefit transactions if, at any time during the two-year period preceding the transaction, it was a tax-exempt organization described in section 501(c)(3) or 501(c)(4) or a successor to such an organization.

Effective date.—As under the House bill, the provision generally applies to excess benefit transactions occurring on or after September 14, 1995. However, under the conference agreement, the provision does not apply to any benefits arising out of a transaction pursuant to a written contract which was binding on September 13, 1995, and at all times thereafter before such benefits arose, and the terms of which have not materially changed.

Additional filing and public disclosure rules

Reporting of identity of certain disqualified persons, excise tax penalties and excess benefit transactions.—The conference agreement modifies the reporting requirements with respect to identifying certain disqualified persons. Under the conference agreement, tax-exempt organizations are required to disclose on their form 990 the name of each individual who was in a position to exercise substantial influence over the affairs of the organization (but not their family members and 35-percent owned entities) and such other information as the Secretary of Treasury may prescribe.

Furnishing copies of documents.—The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

Advertisement and solicitations.—The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

[40] The conferees are aware that the IRS has issued guidance indicating that all physicians are considered "insiders" for purposes of applying the private inurement proscription. The conferees intend that physicians will be disqualified persons only if they are in a position to exercise substantial authority over the affairs of an organization.

Electronic dissemination of information.— The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

Penalties for failure to allow public inspection.—The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

Treasury Department studies.—The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

B. COMMON INVESTMENT FUND FOR PRIVATE FOUNDATIONS (SEC. 12701 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Code section 501(c)(3) requires that an organization be organized and operated exclusively for a charitable or other exempt purpose in order to qualify for tax-exempt status under that section.

Section 501(f) provides that an organization is treated as organized and operated exclusively for charitable purposes if it is comprised solely of members that are educational institutions and is organized and operated solely to hold, commingle, and collectively invest (including arranging for investment services by independent contractors) funds contributed by the members in stocks and securities, and to collect income from such investments and turn over such income, less expenses, to the members.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Under the Senate amendment, a cooperative service organization comprised solely of members that are tax-exempt private foundations and community foundations[41] is treated as organized and operated exclusively for charitable purposes if: (1) it has at least 20 members; (2) no one member holds (after the organization's second taxable year) more than 10 percent (by value) of the interests in the organization; (3) it is organized and controlled by its members, but no one member by itself controls the organization or any other member; (4) the members are permitted to dismiss any of the organization's investment advisors, if (following reasonable notice) members holding a majority of interest in the account managed by such advisor vote to remove such advisor; and (5) the organization is organized and operated solely to hold, commingle, and collectively invest and reinvest (including arranging for investment services by independent contractors) funds contributed by the members in stocks and securities, and to collect income from such investments and turn over such income, less expenses, to the members. To qualify for tax-exempt status under present-law section 501(c)(3), a cooperative service organization described in the provision also must satisfy the other applicable requirements of that section (e.g., prohibition of private inurement, political activities, and substantial lobbying).

[41] For purposes of the provision, "community foundations" are a form of charitable trust or fund (which generally are established to attract large contributions of a capital or endowment nature for the benefit of a particular community or area) as to which section 170(b)(1)(A)(vi). See Treas. Reg. sec. 1.170A–9(e)(10).

A cooperative service organization meeting the criteria of the proposal will be subject to the present-law excise tax provisions applicable to private foundations (e.g., sec. 4941 rules governing self-dealing arrangements), other than sections 4940 and 4942. In addition, each member's allocable share (whether or not distributed) of the capital gain net income and gross investment income of the organization for any taxable year of the organization will be treated, for purposes of the excise tax imposed under present-law section 4940, as capital gain net income and gross investment income of the member for the taxable year of such member in which the taxable year of the organization ends.

Effective date.—Taxable years ending after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

C. EXCLUSION FROM UBIT FOR CERTAIN CORPORATE SPONSORSHIP PAYMENTS (SEC. 12702 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Although generally exempt from Federal income tax, tax-exempt organizations are subject to the unrelated business income tax ("UBIT") on income derived from a trade or business regularly carried on that is not substantially related to the performance of the organization's tax-exempt functions (secs. 511–514). Contributions or gifts received by tax-exempt organizations generally are not subject to the UBIT. However, present-law section 513(c) provides that an activity (such as advertising) does not lose its identity as a separate trade or business merely because it is carried on within a larger complex of other endeavors.[42] If a tax-exempt organization receives sponsorship payments in connection with an event or other activity, the solicitation and receipt of such sponsorship payments may be treated as a separate activity. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has taken the position that, under some circumstances, such sponsorship payments are subject to the UBIT.[43]

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that qualified sponsorship payments received by a tax-exempt organization (or State college or university described in section 511(a)(2)(B)) are exempt from the UBIT.

The Senate amendment defines "qualified sponsorship payments" as any payment made by a person engaged in a trade or

[42] See United States v. American College of Physicians, 475 U.S. 834 (1986) (holding that activity of selling advertising in medical journal was not substantially related to the organization's exempt purposes and, as a separate business under section 513(c), was subject to tax).

[43] See Prop. Treas. Reg. sec. 1.513–4 (issued January 19, 1993, EE–74–92, IRB 1993–7, 71). These proposed regulations generally exclude from the UBIT financial arrangements under which the tax-exempt organization provides so-called "institutional" or "good will" advertising to a sponsor (i.e., arrangements under which a sponsor's name, logo, or product line is acknowledged by the tax-exempt organization). However, specific product advertising (e.g., "comparative or qualitative descriptions of the sponsor's products") provided by a tax-exempt organization on behalf of a sponsor is not shielded from the UBIT under the proposed regulations.

business with respect to which the person will receive no substantial return benefit other than the use or acknowledgment of the name or logo (or product lines) of the person's trade or business in connection with the organization's activities.[44] Such a use or acknowledgment does not include advertising of such person's products or services—meaning qualitative or comparative language, price information or other indications of savings or value, or an endorsement or other inducement to purchase, sell, or use such products or services. Thus, for example, if, in return for receiving a sponsorship payment, an organization promises to use the sponsor's name or logo in acknowledging the sponsor's support for an educational or fundraising event conducted by the organization, such payment would not be subject to the UBIT. In contrast, if the organization provides advertising of a sponsor's products, the payment made to the organization by the sponsor in order to receive such advertising would be subject to the UBIT (provided that the other, present-law requirements for UBIT liability are satisfied).

The Senate amendment specifically provides that a qualified sponsorship payment does not include any payment where the amount of such payment is contingent, by contract or otherwise, upon the level of attendance at an event, broadcast ratings, or other factors indicating the degree of public exposure to an activity. However, the fact that a sponsorship payment is contingent upon an event actually taking place or being broadcast, in and of itself, does not cause the payment to fail to be a qualified sponsorship payment. Moreover, mere distribution or display of a sponsor's products by the sponsor or the tax-exempt organization to the general public at a sponsored event, whether for free or for remuneration, is considered to be "use or acknowledgment" of the sponsor's product lines (as opposed to advertising), and thus will not affect the determination of whether a payment made by the sponsor is a qualified sponsorship payment.

The Senate amendment does not apply to the sale of advertising or acknowledgments in tax-exempt organization periodicals. For this purpose, the term "periodical" means regularly scheduled and printed material that is not related to and primarily distributed in connection with a specific sponsored event. For example, the provision does not apply to payments that lead to acknowledgments in a monthly journal, but does apply if a sponsor receives an acknowledgment in a program or brochure distributed at a sponsored event.

The Senate amendment specifically provides that, to the extent that a portion of a payment would (if made as a separate payment) be a qualified sponsorship payment, such portion of the payment will be treated as a separate payment. Thus, if a sponsorship payment made to a tax-exempt organization entitles the sponsor to both product advertising and use or acknowledgment of the sponsor's name or logo by the organization, then the UBIT would not apply to the amount of such payment that exceeds the fair market value of the product advertising provided to the sponsor. Moreover, the provision of facilities, services or other privileges by an exempt organization to a sponsor or the sponsor's designees (e.g., complimentary tickets, pro-am playing spots in golf tournaments, or receptions for major donors) in connection with a sponsorship payment will not affect the determination of whether the payment is a qualified sponsorship payment. Rather, the provision of such goods or services will be evaluated as a separate transaction in determining whether the organization has unrelated business taxable income from the event. In general, if such services or facilities do not constitute a substantial return benefit or if the provision of such services or facilities is a related business activity, then the payments attributable to such services or facilities will not be subject to the UBIT.

The exemption provided by the Senate amendment is in addition to other present-law exceptions from the UBIT (e.g., the exceptions for activities substantially all the work for which is performed by volunteers and for activities not regularly carried on). No inference is intended as to whether any sponsorship payment received prior to 1996 was subject to the UBIT.

Effective date.—The provision applies to qualified sponsorship payments solicited or received after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the conference agreement clarifies that (1) the UBIT exception provided by the provision does not apply to any payment which entitles the payor to an acknowledgment or advertising in regularly scheduled and printed material, but only if such printed material is published by (or on behalf of) the payee organization and is not related to and primarily distributed in connection with a specific event conducted by the payee organization, and (2) just as the provision of facilities, services or other privileges by a tax-exempt organization to a sponsor or the sponsor's designees (complimentary tickets, pro-am playing spots in golf tournaments, or receptions for major donors) will be treated as a separate transaction that does not affect the determination of whether a sponsorship payment is a qualified sponsorship payment, a sponsor's receipt of a license to use an intangible asset (e.g., trademark, logo, or designation) of the tax-exempt organization likewise will be treated as separate from the qualified sponsorship transaction in determining whether the organization has unrelated business taxable income.[45]

[45] The conferees expect that, under present-law UBIT rules (see Rev. Rul. 81–178, 1981–2 C.B. 135), royalty income derived from licensing trademarks, emblems, and designations of a qualified amateur sports organization described in section 501(j)(2) (e.g., the U.S. Olympic Committee), as well as income received by such organizations from broadcasting, filming, and videotaping sports competitions and related events, will be treated as exempt from the UBIT. This exemption from the UBIT should not be affected by the fact that an amateur sports organization undertakes legal or other actions to protect the exclusivity of a licensing arrangement, or to prevent third parties from improperly using the organization's trademarks or representing or implying that such parties are an official sponsor of (or otherwise affiliated with) the organization or its competitive events.

D. TREATMENT OF DUES PAID TO AGRICULTURAL OR HORTICULTURAL ORGANIZATIONS (SEC. 14584 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12703 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Tax-exempt organizations generally are subject to the unrelated business income tax ("UBIT") on income derived from a trade or business regularly carried on that is not substantially related to the performance of the organization's tax-exempt functions (secs. 511–514). Dues payments made to a membership organization generally are not subject to the UBIT. However, several courts have held that, with respect to postal labor organizations, dues payments were subject to the UBIT when received from individuals who were not postal workers but who became "associate" members for the purpose of obtaining health insurance available to members of the organization. See National League of Postmasters of the United States v. Commissioner, No. 8032–93, T.C. Memo (May 11, 1995); American Postal Workers Union, AFL–CIO v. United States, 925 F.2d 480 (D.C. Cir. 1991); National Association of Postal Supervisors v. United States, 944 F.2d 859 (Fed. Cir. 1991).

In Rev. Proc. 95-21 (issued March 23, 1995), the IRS set forth its position regarding when associate member dues payments received by an organization described in section 501(c)(5) will be treated as subject to the UBIT. The IRS stated that dues payments from associate members will not be treated as subject to UBIT unless, for the relevant period, "the associate member category has been formed or availed of for the principal purpose of producing unrelated business income." Thus, under Rev. Proc. 95–21, the focus of the inquiry is upon the organization's purposes in forming the associate member category (and whether the purposes of that category of membership are substantially related to the organization's exempt purposes other than through the production of income), rather than upon the motive of the individuals who join as associate members.

House bill

Under the House bill, if an agricultural or horticultural organization described in section 501(c)(5) requires annual dues not exceeding $100 to be paid in order to be a member of such organization, then in no event will any portion of such dues be subject to the UBIT by reason of any benefits or privileges to which members of such organization are entitled. For taxable years beginning after 1995, the $100 amount will be indexed for inflation. The term "dues" is defined as "any payment required to be made in order to be recognized by the organization as a member of the organization." Thus, if a person is recognized as a member of an organization by virtue of having paid annual dues for his or her membership, then any subsequent payments made by that person during the year to purchase another membership in the same organization would not be within the scope of the provision.

Effective date.—The provision applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.[46]

E. REPEAL TAX CREDIT FOR CONTRIBUTIONS TO SPECIAL COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT CORPORATIONS (SEC. 13637 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12704 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Taxpayers are entitled to claim a tax credit for qualified contributions made to one of 20 non-profit community development corporations (CDCs) selected by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to provide assistance in economically distressed areas. A qualified contribution means a transfer of cash to a selected CDC (made in the form of an equity investment or loan) which is made available for use by the CDC for at least 10 years to provide employment and business opportunities to low-income residents who live in an area where (1) the unemployment rate is not less than the national unemployment rate and (2) the median family income does not exceed 80 percent of the median gross income of residents of the jurisdiction of the local government which includes such area.[47]

If a taxpayer makes a qualified contribution, the credit may be claimed by the taxpayer for each taxable year during the 10-year period beginning with the taxable year during which the contribution was made. The credit that may be claimed for each year is equal to 5 percent of the amount of the contribution to the CDC. Thus, during the 10-year credit period, the taxpayer may claim aggregate credit amounts totaling 50 percent of his or her contribution. The aggregate amount of contributions that may be designated by any one CDC as eligible for the credit may not exceed $2 million. (Consequently, a total amount of $40 million in contributions will be eligible for the credit with respect to all 20 selected CDCs—and the maximum credit amounts will total $20 million over the 10-year credit period.)

On June 30, 1994, the Secretary of HUD announced the 20 CDCs selected to receive contributions that qualify for the credit. The eligible CDCs are located in the following areas: (1) Atlanta, (2) Baltimore, (3) Boston, (4) Chicago, (5) Cleveland, (6) Dallas, (7) Washington D.C., (8) Los Angeles, (9) Memphis, (10) Miami, (11) Brooklyn, (12) Newark, (13) Watsonville, Ca., (14) London, Ky., (15) Wiscasset, Maine, (16) Greenville, Miss., (17) Mayville, N.Y., (18)

[46] The conferees intend that, with respect to dues payments received prior to the effective date of the provision, general UBIT rules under prior law would be applied in a manner consistent with the provision.

[47] The contribution to the CDC must be available for use by the CDC for at least ten years, but need not meet the requirements of a "contribution or gift" for purposes of section 170. In other words, a contribution eligible for the credit may be made in the form of a 10-year loan (or other long-term investment), the principal of which is to be returned to the taxpayer after the 10-year period. However, in the case of a donation of cash made by a taxpayer to an eligible CDC, the taxpayer is allowed to claim a charitable contribution deduction (subject to present-law rules under section 170), in addition to the special credit for qualified contributions to a selected CDC.

F. TAX GAMBLING INCOME OF INDIAN TRIBES; REPEAL TARGETED EXEMPTION FROM UBIT FOR GAMBLING IN CERTAIN STATES (SECS. 13631–13632 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Tax treatment of Indian tribes

There is no specific statutory provision governing the Federal income tax liability of Indian tribes.[48] However, the IRS has long taken the position that Indian tribes, as well as wholly owned tribal corporations chartered under Federal law, are not taxable entities and, thus, are immune from Federal income taxes. (See Rev. Rul. 67–284, 1967–2 C.B. 55; Rev. Rul. 81–295, 1981–2 C.B. 15.) More recently, the IRS has ruled that any income earned by an unincorporated Indian tribe or Federally chartered tribal corporation is not subject to Federal income tax, regardless of whether the activities that produced the income are conducted on or off the tribe's reservation. (See Rev. Rul. 94–16, 1994–12 I.R.B. 1; Rev. Rul. 94–65, 1994–42 I.R.B. 10.[49]) In ordinary matters not governed by specific treaties or remedial legislation, individual members of Indian tribes are subject to the payment of Federal income tax (even if the income is distributed to individual tribal members out of income otherwise immune from tax when first received by the tribe).[50]

---

[48] Section 7871 provides that Indian tribes are treated as States for certain limited tax purposes, such as for purposes of the issuance of certain tax-exempt bonds, certain excise tax exemptions, and for eligibility to receive deductible charitable contributions.

[49] These rulings further hold, however, that a corporation organized by an Indian tribe under State law is subject to Federal income tax on the income earned from commercial activities conducted on or off the tribe's reservation.

Legal commentators generally have concluded that "[u]nder this so-called Indian Commerce Clause [article I, section 8 of the Constitution] and Supreme Court cases, there is little constitutional limitation on the ability of the Federal government to tax Indian tribes or tribal members." Aprill, Ellen P., "Tribal Bonds: Indian Sovereignty and the Tax Legislative Process," 46 Admin. L. Rev. 333, 334 (1994).

[50] See Squire v. Capoeman, 351 U.S. 1, 6 (1956). One exception to this general rule is the exclusion from income provided for income received by Indians from the exercise of certain fishing rights guaranteed by treaties, Federal Statute or Executive order (sec. 7873). See also 25 U.S.C. sections 1401–1407 (funds appropriated in satisfaction of a judgment of the United States Court of Federal Claims in favor of an Indian tribe which are then distributed per capita to tribal members pursuant to a plan approved by the Secretary of Interior are exempt from Federal income taxes); 25 U.S.C. section 117b(a) (per capita distributions made to tribal members from Indian trust fund revenues are exempt from tax if the Secretary of the Interior approves of such distributions).

Tribal governments and corporations, as well as individual Indians and their property, generally are exempt from State taxation within their reservations, unless Congress clearly manifests its consent to such taxation.[51] In contrast, property and income earned by Indians outside the reservation generally have been held to be subject to State taxation.[52] In addition, the Supreme Court has upheld a State's right to impose taxes on commercial activities conducted on reservation lands, provided that the legal incidence of the tax falls on non-Indians and the balance of Federal, State, and tribal interests favors the State.[53]

In 1993, Congress enacted two Federal tax incentives for commercial activities conducted (by Indians or non-Indians) on any Indian reservation. These tax incentives are: (1) enhanced accelerated depreciation (generally, 60 percent of the normal recovery period) for certain property used in the conduct of a trade or business on a reservation (and certain connecting infrastructure property); and (2) a 20-percent incremental wage credit for certain wages and health insurance costs (up to $20,000 per employee) paid to tribal members and spouses who work on, and live on or near, a reservation. Neither of these tax incentives is available with respect to gambling activities (secs. 45A and 168(j)).

Taxation of gambling activities of nonprofit organizations

Although generally exempt from Federal income tax, tax-exempt organizations are subject to the unrelated business income tax (UBIT) on income derived from a trade or business regularly carried on that is not substantially related to the performance of the organization's tax- exempt functions (secs. 511-514).[54] Certain income, however, is exempted from the UBIT (such as interest, dividends, royalties, and certain rents), unless derived from debt-financed property (sec. 512(b)). Other exemptions from the UBIT are provided for activities in which substantially all the work is performed by volunteers and for income from the sale of donated goods (sec. 513(a)). In addition, a specific exemption from the UBIT is provided for bingo games conducted by tax-exempt organizations, provided that the conducting of the bingo games is not an activity ordinarily carried out on a commercial basis and the conducting of which does not violate any State or local law (sec. 513(f)). A specific exemption from the UBIT also is provided for qualified public entertainment activities (meaning entertainment or recreation activities of a kind traditionally conducted at fairs or expositions promoting agricultural and educational purposes) conducted by an organi-

[54] The UBIT applies not only to private, tax-exempt entities but also to colleges and universities that are agencies or instrumentalities of (or are owned or operated by) a State or local government or Indian tribal government (secs. 511(a)(2)(B) and 7871(a)(5)).

zation described in section 501(c)(3), (c)(4), or (c)(5) which regularly conducts an agricultural and educational fair or exposition as one of its substantial exempt purposes (sec. 513(d)).[55]

In South End Italian Independent Club, Inc. v. Commissioner, 87 T.C. 168 (1986), acq. 1987–2 C.B. 1, the court held that gambling profits of a social club described in section 501(c)(7) that were required by State law to be used for charitable purposes were fully deductible under section 162 in computing the UBIT liability of the social club. The effect of this decision was to exempt gambling income of that social club from UBIT. The IRS has indicated that, until further guidance is available with respect to this issue, the issue of the deductibility of amounts required under State law to be used for charitable or other so-called "lawful" purposes should be resolved consistent with the South End case, regardless of whether the gaming proceeds are donated to other charitable organizations or spent internally on the organization's own charitable activities.[56]

House bill

Tax treatment of Indian tribal gaming income

The House bill subjects to Federal income tax as unrelated business income ("UBI") income earned by an Indian tribe, or any corporate entity that is a tax-immune or tax-exempt entity by reason of being owned or controlled by an Indian tribe, from the conduct of class II or class III gaming activities (as defined under the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, 25 U.S.C. secs. 2701–2721). Thus, Indian tribes will be subject to Federal income tax on income derived from class II gaming operations (e.g., bingo, pull-tabs, lotto) or class III gaming operations (e.g., a casino operated pursuant to a compact between the State government and Indian tribe). As under present-law UBIT rules, a gaming activity will be subject to tax under the provision only if the activity is regularly carried on.

Under the House bill, if an Indian tribe is required (by Federal, State, or local law) to use any portion of the net proceeds of gaming activities for charitable or other specified purposes, any portion so used may be deductible only as a charitable contribution, and (under present-law sec. 512(b)(10)) such deduction may not exceed 10 percent of the taxable income from the gaming activities. This 10-percent limitation, however, does not apply to any proceeds from gaming activities that are required to be paid as general revenues to the United States or any State or subdivision of a State (which generally will be fully deductible in computing the tribe's taxable income from gaming).

Repeal of UBIT exemption for gambling in certain States

In addition, the House bill repeals the special, off-Code provision that exempts from the UBIT gaming income earned by nonprofit organizations in North Dakota. With respect to other gaming activities conducted by tax-exempt organizations, the Treasury Department is directed to conduct a study on the nature and extent of gaming activities conducted by organizations exempt from tax under section 501(a), including an examination of: (1) the types of gaming activities (e.g., bingo, pull tabs, casino nights) engaged in by charities and other nonprofit organizations and the frequency of such activities; (2) the dollar volume of such gaming activities; (3) the nature and extent of the involvement of for-profit entities and private parties in the management or operation of gaming activities of nonprofits; (4) competition between taxable gaming activities and gaming activities that are exempt from Federal income tax; and (5) an analysis of the present-law tax treatment of gaming activities of tax-exempt organizations and any recommendations for change, including examination of the South End decision and special UBIT exception for bingo games. The Treasury Department is required to report the results of this study to Congress no later than July 1, 1996.

Effective date

The provision is effective on and after January 1, 1996.

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

IX. Corporate and Other Reforms and Miscellaneous Provisions

1. REFORM THE TAX TREATMENT OF CERTAIN CORPORATE STOCK REDEMPTIONS AND OTHER EXTRAORDINARY DIVIDENDS (SEC. 13601 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12801 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A corporate shareholder generally can deduct at least 70 percent of a dividend received from another corporation. This dividends received deduction is 80 percent if the corporate shareholder owns at least 20 percent of the distributing corporation and generally 100 percent if the shareholder owns at least 80 percent of the distributing corporation.

Section 1059 of the Code requires a corporate shareholder that receives an "extraordinary dividend" to reduce the basis of the stock with respect to which the dividend was received by the nontaxed portion of the dividend. Whether a dividend is "extraordinary" is determined, among other things, by reference to the size of the dividend in relation to the adjusted basis of the shareholder's stock. Also, a dividend resulting from a non pro rata redemption or a partial liquidation is an extraordinary dividend. If the reduction in basis of stock exceeds the basis in the stock with respect to which an extraordinary dividend is received, the excess is taxed as gain on the sale or disposition of such stock, but not until that time (sec. 1059(a)(2)). The Treasury Department has general regulatory authority to carry out the purposes of the section.

Except as provided in regulations, the extraordinary dividend provisions do not apply to result in a double reduction in basis in the case of distributions between members of an affiliated group filing consolidated returns, where the dividend is eliminated or excluded under the consolidated return regulations. Double inclusion of earnings and profits (i.e., from both the dividend and from gain on the disposition of stock with a reduced basis) also should generally be prevented.[57] Treasury regulations provide for application of the provision when a corporation is a partner in a partnership that receives a distribution.[58]

In general, a distribution in redemption of stock is treated as a dividend, rather than as a sale of the stock, if it is essentially equivalent to a dividend (sec. 302). A redemption of the stock of a shareholder generally is essentially equivalent to a dividend if it does not result in a meaningful reduction in the shareholder's proportionate interest in the distributing corporation. Section 302(b) also contains several specific tests (e.g., a substantial reduction computation and a termination test) to identify redemptions that are not essentially equivalent to dividends. The determination whether a redemption is essentially equivalent to a dividend includes reference to the constructive ownership rules of section 318, including the option attribution rules of section 318(a)(4). The rules relating to treatment of cash or other property received in a reorganization contain a similar reference (sec. 356(a)(2)).

House bill

The House bill provides that, except as provided in regulations, a corporate shareholder will recognize gain immediately with respect to any redemption treated as a dividend (in whole or in part) when the nontaxed portion of the dividend exceeds the basis of the shares surrendered, if the redemption is treated as a dividend due to options being counted as stock ownership.[59]

In addition, the House bill requires immediate gain recognition whenever the basis of stock with respect to which any extraordinary dividend was received is reduced below zero.

Reorganizations or other exchanges involving amounts that are treated as dividends under section 356(a)(2) of the Code are treated as redemptions for purposes of applying the rules relating to redemptions under section 1059(e). For example, if a recapitalization or other transaction that involves a dividend under section 356 has the effect of a non pro rata redemption or is treated as a dividend due to options being counted as stock, the rules of section 1059 apply. Redemptions of shares, (or other extraordinary dividends on shares) held by a partnership will be subject to section 1059 to the extent there are corporate partners (e.g., appropriate adjustments to the basis of the shares held by the partnership and to the basis of the corporate partner's partnership interest will be required).

[57] See, H.R. Rep. 99–841, II–166, 99th Cong. 2d Sess. (Sept. 18, 1986).

[58] See, Treas. Reg. sec. 1.701–2(f), Example (2).

[59] Thus, for example, where a portion of such a distribution would not have been treated as a dividend due to insufficient earnings and profits, the rule applies to the portion treated as a dividend.

Under continuing section 1059(g) of present law, the Treasury Department is authorized to issue regulations where necessary to carry out the purposes and prevent the avoidance of the bill.

Effective date.—The provision is generally effective for distributions after May 3, 1995, unless made pursuant to the terms of a written binding contract in effect on that date, or a tender offer outstanding on that date. However, in applying the new gain recognition rules to any distribution that is not a partial liquidation, a non pro rata redemption, or a redemption that is treated as a dividend by reason of options, September 13, 1995 is substituted for May 3, 1995 in applying the transition rules.

No inference is intended regarding the tax treatment under present law of any transaction within the scope of the provision, including transactions utilizing options.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except for the effective date.

Effective date.—The effective date is generally the same as the House bill, except that there is no transition for distributions pursuant to tender offers outstanding on the relevant date.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

In addition, the conferees wish to clarify that no inference is intended regarding the rules under present law (or in any case where the treatment is not specified in the provision) for determining the shares of stock with respect to which a dividend is received or that experience a basis reduction.

2. REQUIRE CORPORATE TAX SHELTER REPORTING (SEC. 13602 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12802 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

An organizer of a tax shelter is required to register the shelter with the IRS (sec. 6111). If the principal organizer does not do so, the duty may fall upon any other participant in the organization of the shelter or any person participating in its sale or management. The shelter's identification number must be furnished to each investor who purchases or acquires an interest in the shelter. Failure to furnish this number to the tax shelter investors will subject the organizer to a $100 penalty for each such failure (sec. 6707(b)).

A penalty may be imposed against an organizer who fails without reasonable cause to timely register the shelter or who provides false or incomplete information with respect to it. The penalty is the greater of one percent of the aggregate amount invested in the shelter or $500. Any person claiming any tax benefit with respect to a shelter must report its registration number on her return. Failure to do so without reasonable cause will subject that person to a $250 penalty (sec. 6707(b)(2)).

A person who organizes or sells an interest in a tax shelter subject to the registration rule or in any other potentially abusive plan or arrangement must maintain a list of the investors (sec.

6112). A $50 penalty may be assessed for each name omitted from the list. The maximum penalty per year is $100,000 (sec. 6708).

For this purpose, a tax shelter is defined as any investment that meets two requirements. First, the investment must be (1) required to be registered under a Federal or state law regulating securities, (2) sold pursuant to an exemption from registration requiring the filing of a notice with a Federal or state agency regulating the offering or sale of securities, or (3) a substantial investment. Second, it must be reasonable to infer that the ratio of deductions and 350 percent of credits to investment for any investor (i.e., the tax shelter ratio) may be greater than two to one as of the close of any of the first five years ending after the date on which the investment is offered for sale. An investment that meets these requirements will be considered a tax shelter regardless of whether it is marketed or customarily designated as a tax shelter (sec. 6111(c)(1)).

House bill

The House bill requires an organizer of a corporate tax shelter to register the shelter with the Secretary. Registration is required not later than the next business day after the day when the tax shelter is first offered to potential users. If an organizer is not a U.S. person, or if a required registration is not otherwise made, then any U.S. participant is required to register the shelter.

A corporate tax shelter is any investment, plan, arrangement or transaction: first, that has a significant purpose of tax avoidance or evasion by a corporate participant; second, that is offered to any potential participant under conditions of confidentiality; and third, for which the tax shelter organizers may receive total fees in excess of $100,000.

A transaction is offered under conditions of confidentiality if: (1) an offeree (or any person acting on its behalf) has an understanding or agreement with or for the benefit of any promoter to restrict or limit its disclosure of the transaction or any significant tax features of the transaction; or (2) the promoter claims, knows or has reason to know (or the promoter causes another person to claim or otherwise knows or has reason to know that a party other than the potential offeree claims) that the transaction (or one or more aspects of its structure) is proprietary to the promoter or any party other than the offeree, or is otherwise protected from disclosure or use. The promoter includes specified related parties.

Registration will require the submission of information identifying and describing the tax shelter and the tax benefits of the tax shelter, as well as such other information as the Treasury Department may require.

Tax shelter promoters are required to maintain lists of those who have signed confidentiality agreements, or otherwise have been subjected to nondisclosure requirements, with respect to particular tax shelters. In addition, promoters must retain lists of those paying fees with respect to plans or arrangements that have previously been registered (even though the particular party may not have been subject to confidentiality restrictions).

All registrations will be treated as taxpayer information under the provisions of section 6103 and will therefore not be subject to any public disclosure.

The penalty for failing to timely register a corporate tax shelter is the greater of $10,000 or 50 percent of the fees payable to any promoter with respect to offerings prior to the date of late registration (i.e., this part of the penalty does not apply to fee payments with respect to offerings after late registration). A similar penalty is applicable to actual participants in any corporate tax shelter who were required to register the tax shelter but did not. With respect to participants, however, the 50-percent penalty is based only on fees paid by that participant. Intentional disregard of the requirement to register by either a promoter or a participant increases the 50-percent penalty to 75 percent of the applicable fees.

Effective date.—The provision applies to any tax shelter offered to potential participants after the date of enactment. No filings are due, however, until the Treasury Department issues guidance with respect to the filing requirements.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except that the Senate amendment provides that registration is not required if the U.S. participant notifies the promoter in writing not later than the seventh day after discussions began that the U.S. participant will not (and in fact does not) participate in the shelter. The Senate amendment also clarifies that a significant purpose of the structure of the transaction must be tax avoidance or evasion. The Senate amendment also adds a definition of related parties.

Effective date.—Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the seven-day period is modified to be a 90-day period.

A transaction is subject to this provision only if "a significant purpose" of the structure of the transaction is the avoidance or evasion of tax for a corporation (including a corporation that participates indirectly, for example, through a partnership, trust, or other non-corporate entity). It is not intended that registration will apply merely because tax consequences have been considered in structuring a transaction. The provision would not apply to a transaction where tax considerations are merely incidental and unimportant to the structure of the transaction. A "significant" purpose, however, need not be the only, or a "principal," purpose of the structure of a transaction in order for the provision to apply.

The existence of conditions of confidentiality, including proprietary claims or an agreement or understanding that limits disclosure by the participant or other person (such as the participant's advisors), shall be determined in light of all the facts and circumstances. Such a claim, understanding, or agreement need not be in writing, nor must it be legally enforceable under applicable state or federal law. Moreover, a claim, understanding, or agreement need not be explicit if, for example, a past pattern of dealings suggests that the participant or its advisors will be limited from, or be penalized by the promoter for, disclosure. The term "promoter" includes agents and professional advisors whether or not a formal principal-agent relationship exists.

Conditions of confidentiality include arrangements that limit the participant, or its agents, advisors, or other persons acting on its behalf, from disclosing the transaction or any significant tax features of the transaction. If a taxpayer contemplating a transaction consults a tax attorney for advice on structuring the anticipated transaction, the fact that such advice may be protected from disclosure by the attorney under the attorney-client privilege generally would not by itself bring the transaction within the ambit of this provision, because the privilege does not restrict the client's disclosure of the details of the structure of a transaction.

By contrast, this provision would apply where a tax avoidance transaction is promoted by an attorney to potential participants under conditions that limit potential participants from disclosing the structure of the transaction or any significant tax features of the transaction. Similarly, registration could be required, for example, in cases where a tax shelter is promoted through attorneys in an effort to avoid disclosure by the participant or its agents or advisors. A transaction will not be treated as proprietary merely because a financial advisor hopes to be rewarded for the time spent structuring the transaction.

The conferees encourage Treasury to consider exercising its existing authority under section 6111(e)(3) to consider the effects of the securities laws and to exempt specific kinds of transactions from the application of the new registration requirement in appropriate cases, provided that there is not potential for abuse. In addition, Treasury should consider issuing guidance that would allow the Internal Revenue Service to exercise discretion in (1) excluding from the penalty calculation fees received by the promoter which are not, directly or indirectly, attributable to the tax shelter, and (2) abating penalties in appropriate cases for reasonable cause. Treasury may issue such guidance in a form other than regulations (such as by rulings or revenue procedures).

Effective date.—The provision applies to any tax shelter offered to potential participants after the date the Treasury prescribes guidance with respect to the filing requirements. After the issuance of such guidance, the conferees anticipate that the Treasury will issue proposed regulations on this provision, which will give interested parties an opportunity to comment formally on Treasury's guidance.

3. DISALLOW INTEREST DEDUCTION FOR CORPORATE-OWNED LIFE INSURANCE POLICY LOANS (SEC. 13603 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12803 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

No Federal income tax generally is imposed on a policyholder with respect to the earnings under a life insurance contract ("inside buildup").[60] Further, an exclusion from Federal income tax is pro-

[60] This favorable tax treatment is available only if a life insurance contract meets certain requirements designed to limit the investment character of the contract (sec. 7702). Distributions from a life insurance contract (other than a modified endowment contract) that are made prior vided for amounts received under a life insurance contract paid by reason of the death of the insured (sec. 101(a)). The policyholder may borrow with respect to the life insurance contract without affecting these exclusions, subject to certain limitations.

The limitations on borrowing with respect to a life insurance contract under present law provide that no deduction is allowed for any interest paid or accrued on any indebtedness with respect to one or more life insurance policies owned by the taxpayer covering the life of any individual who (1) is an officer or employee of, or (2) is financially interested in, any trade or business carried on by the taxpayer to the extent that the aggregate amount of such debt with respect to policies covering the individual exceeds $50,000 (sec. 264(a)(4)).

Further, no deduction is allowed for any amount paid or accrued on debt incurred or continued to purchase or carry a life insurance, endowment or annuity contract pursuant to a plan of purchase that contemplates the systematic direct or indirect borrowing of part or all of the increases in the cash value of the contract.[61] An exception to the latter rule is provided, permitting deductibility of interest on bona fide debt that is part of such a plan, if no part of 4 of the annual premiums due during the first 7 years is paid by means of debt (the "4-out-of-7 rule") (sec. 264(c)(1)). Provided the transaction gives rise to debt for Federal income tax purposes, and provided the 4-out-of-7 rule is met,[62] a company may under present law borrow up to $50,000 per employee, officer, or financially interested person to purchase or carry a life insurance contract covering such a person, and is not precluded under section 264 from deducting the interest on the debt, even though the earnings inside the life insurance contract (inside buildup) are tax-free, and in fact the taxpayer has full use of the borrowed funds.

House bill

Under the House bill, no deduction is allowed for interest paid or accrued on any indebtedness with respect to one or more life insurance policies or annuity or endowment contracts owned by the taxpayer covering any individual who is (1) an officer or employee of, or (2) financially interested in any trade or business carried on to the death of the insured generally are includable in income, to the extent that the amounts distributed exceed the taxpayer's basis in the contract; such distributions generally are treated first as a tax-free recovery of basis, and then as income (sec. 72(e)). In the case of a modified endowment contract, however, in general, distributions are treated as income first, loans are treated as distributions (i.e., income rather than basis recovery first), and an additional ten percent tax is imposed on the income portion of distributions made before age 59½ and in certain other circumstances (secs. 72(e) and (v)). A modified endowment contract is a life insurance contract that does not meet a statutory "7-pay" test, i.e., generally is funded more rapidly than seven annual level premiums (sec. 7702A).

[61] The statute provides that the $50,000 limitation applies only with respect to contracts purchased after June 20, 1986. However, additional limitations are imposed on the deductibility of interest with respect to single premium contracts (sec. 264(a)(2)), and on the deductibility of premiums paid on a life insurance contract covering the life of any officer or employee or person financially interested in a trade or business of the taxpayer when the taxpayer is directly or indirectly a beneficiary under the contract (sec. 264(a)(1)).

[62] Interest deductions are disallowed if any of the disallowance rules of section 264(a)(2)–(4) apply. The disallowance rule of section 264(a)(3) is not applicable if one of the exceptions of section 264(c), such as the 4-out-of-7 rule (sec. 264(c)(1)) is satisfied. In addition to the specific disallowance rules of section 264, generally applicable principles of tax law apply.

by the taxpayer, regardless of the aggregate amount of debt with respect to policies or contracts covering the individual.[63]

Effective date.—The provision is effective with respect to interest paid or accrued after December 31, 1995 (subject to the phase-in).

The provision is phased in over a 4-year period. Under the phase-in, a percentage of the interest deduction that would otherwise be disallowed is nevertheless allowed. The interest deduction allowed under the phase-in is for interest on debt incurred before September 18, 1995, with respect to a life insurance policy that was in effect on that date and that covers only the individual who was insured under that policy on that date. Only interest that would have been allowed as a deduction but for the amendment made by the bill is allowed under the phase-in.

During the 4-year phase-in period, the percentage of the deduction for interest that is disallowed for periods in 1996 is 20 percent; in 1997, 40 percent; in 1998, 60 percent; and in 1999, 80 percent. No deduction for interest is allowed under the phase-in after 1999. For taxpayers whose taxable year is not the calendar year, interest accrued in the portion of the taxable year that falls during any calendar year in the 4-calendar-year phase-in period is allowed in accordance with the percentage for that calendar year.

The House bill provides a special 4-year income-spreading rule for certain amounts received under a contract, interest on debt under which was allowed as a deduction prior to December 31, 1995, but is disallowed under the provision. The 4-year income-spreading rule applies for any amount that is received under such a contract on the complete surrender, redemption or maturity of the contract in 1996, or in full discharge of the obligation under the contract that is in the nature of a refund of the consideration paid for the contract in 1996, to the extent the amount received is included in the taxpayer's income for the taxable year in which such event occurs. Under the special 4-year income-spreading rule, the amount included in income upon any such event in 1996 is includable ratably over the first four taxable years beginning with the taxable year the amount would otherwise have been includable. Utilization of this 4-year income-spreading rule does not cause interest paid or accrued prior to January 1, 1996, to be nondeductible solely by reason of failure to meet the 4-out-of-7 rule.

The provision does not apply to interest on debt with respect to contracts purchased on or before June 20, 1986 (thus continuing the effective date provision of the $50,000 limitation enacted in the 1986 Act).[64]

No inference is intended as to the treatment of interest paid or accrued under present law.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill, except that the Senate amendment provides (1) an exception for key per-[63] The provisions disallows the deduction for interest even if the deduction would not be disallowed under any other rule. Thus, for example, if a deduction would not be disallowed under section 264(a)(3) because the 4-out-of-7 rule is met, this provision neverthesless disallows the deduction.

---

[64] This rule has the same meaning under the House bill as its meaning under the 1986 Act.

son insurance, (2) different effective date rules, and (3) a different phase-in rule.

An exception is provided retaining present law for interest on indebtedness with respect to life insurance policies covering up to 25 key persons. A key person is an individual who is either an officer or a 20-percent owner of the taxpayer. The number of individuals that can be treated as key persons may not exceed the greater of (1) five individuals, or (2) the lesser of 5 percent of the total number of officers and employees of the taxpayer, or 25 individuals. Interest paid or accrued on debt with respect to a life insurance contract covering a key person is deductible only to the extent the rate of interest does not exceed Moody's Corporate Bond Yield Average—Monthly Average Corporates for each month interest is paid or accrued.

Effective date.—With respect to debt incurred after December 31, 1995, no deduction is allowed for interest paid or accrued after December 31, 1995, except with respect to policies that satisfy the key person exception.

A phase-in rule is provided under the Senate amendment. With respect to debt incurred on or before December 31, 1995, any otherwise deductible interest paid or accrued after October 13, 1995, and before January 1, 2001, is allowed to the extent the rate of interest does not exceed the lesser of (1) the borrowing rate specified in the contract as of October 13, 1995, or (2) a percentage of Moody's Corporate Bond Yield Average—Monthly Average Corporates for each month the interest is paid or accrued. For interest paid or accrued after October 13, 1995, and before January 1, 1997, the percentage of the Moody's rate is 100 percent; for interest paid or accrued in 1997, the percentage is 95 percent; for 1998, the percentage is 90 percent; for 1999, the percentage is 85 percent; for 2000, the percentage is 80 percent; and for 2001 and thereafter, the percentage is 0 percent. Only interest that would have been allowed as a deduction but for the amendment made by the bill is allowed under the phase-in.

Any amount included in income during 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000 or 2001, that is received under a contract described in the proposal on the complete surrender, redemption or maturity of the contract or in full discharge of the obligation under the contract that is in the nature of a refund of the consideration paid for the contract, is includable ratably over the first four taxable years beginning with the taxable year the amount would otherwise have been includable. Utilization of this 4-year income-spreading rule does not cause interest paid or accrued prior to January 1, 2001, to be nondeductible solely by reason of failure to meet the 4-out-of-7 rule. Similarly, utilization of this 4-year income-spreading rule does not cause interest paid or accrued prior to January 1, 2001, to be nondeductible solely by reason of causing the contract to be treated as a single premium contract within the meaning of section 264(b)(1) (i.e., a contract in which substantially all of the premiums are paid within 4 years after the date of purchase). In addition, the lapse of a contract after October 13, 1995, due to nonpayment of premiums, does not cause interest paid or accrued prior to January 1, 2001, to be nondeductible solely by reason of causing the contract to be treated as a single premium contract within the meaning of section 264(b)(1) or by reason of failure to meet the 4-out-of-7 rule.

In the case of an insurance company, the unamortized balance of policy expenses attributable to a contract with respect to which the 4-year income-spreading treatment is allowed to the policyholder is deductible in the year in which the transaction giving rise to income-spreading occurs.

The provision generally does not apply to interest on debt with respect to contracts purchased on or before June 20, 1986 (thus continuing the effective date provision of the $50,000 limitation enacted in the 1986 Act), except that interest on such contracts paid or accrued after October 13, 1995, is allowable only to the extent the rate of interest does not exceed Moody's Corporate Bond Yield Average—Monthly Average Corporates for the month the interest is paid or accrued.

Under the Senate amendment, there is no inference as to the tax treatment of interest paid or accrued under present law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with modifications.

The conference agreement provides that, under the key person exception, the number of individuals that can be treated as key persons may not exceed the greater of (1) five individuals, or (2) the lesser of 5 percent of the total number of officers and employees of the taxpayer, or 10 individuals.

The phase-in rule is modified under the conference agreement. The conference agreement provides that with respect to debt incurred on or before December 31, 1995,[65] any otherwise deductible interest paid or accrued after October 13, 1995, and before January 1, 1999, is allowed to the extent the rate of interest does not exceed the lesser of (1) the borrowing rate specified in the contract as of October 13, 1995, or (2) a percentage of Moody's Corporate Bond Yield Average—Monthly Average Corporates for each month the interest is paid or accrued. Under the conference agreement, for interest paid or accrued after October 13, 1995, and before January 1, 1996, the percentage of the Moody's rate is 100 percent; for interest paid or accrued in 1996, the percentage is 90 percent; for interest paid or accrued in 1997, the percentage is 80 percent; for 1998, the percentage is 70 percent; for 1999 and thereafter, the percentage is 0 percent. As under the Senate amendment, only interest that would have been allowed as a deduction but for the provision is allowed under the phase-in.

The conference agreement further provides that during the phase-in period, interest that is deductible does not include interest on borrowings by the taxpayer with respect to contracts on the lives of more than 20,000 insured individuals, effective for interest paid or accrued after December 31, 1995. For this purpose, all persons treated as a single employer are treated as one taxpayer.

The conference agreement provides an exception under the effective date with respect to any life insurance contract entered into during 1994 or 1995. In the case of such contracts, with respect to debt incurred before January 1, 1997, no deduction is allowed for interest paid or accrued after December 31, 1996, except with respect to policies that satisfy the key person exception, and except as provided under the phase-in rule. Thus, with respect to interest on amounts borrowed during 1996 with respect to such a contract, the phase-in rule applies, capping the rate for determining the amount of deductible interest at the lesser of (1) the borrowing rate specified in the contract as of October 13, 1995, or (2) the applicable percentage of Moody's Corporate Bond Yield Average—Monthly Average Corporates for each month the interest is paid or accrued. For example, for interest paid or accrued in 1996 on amounts borrowed in 1996 with respect to such a contract, the applicable percentage is 90 percent.

Under the conference agreement, the provision generally does not apply to interest on debt with respect to contracts purchased on or before June 20, 1986 (thus continuing the effective date provision of the $50,000 limitation enacted in the 1986 Act). If such a contract provides for a fixed rate of interest, then interest on such a contract paid or accrued after October 13, 1995, is allowable only to the extent the fixed rate of interest does not exceed Moody's Corporate Bond Yield Average—Monthly Average Corporates for the month in which the contract was purchased. If such a contract does not provide for a fixed rate of interest, then interest on such a contract paid or accrued after October 13, 1995, is allowable only to the extent the rate of interest for each fixed period selected by the taxpayer does not exceed Moody's Corporate Bond Yield Average—Monthly Average Corporates, for the month immediately preceding the beginning of the fixed period.[66] The fixed period must be 12 months or less.

4. PHASE-OUT PREFERENTIAL TAX DEFERRAL FOR CERTAIN LARGE FARM CORPORATIONS REQUIRED TO USE ACCRUAL ACCOUNTING (SEC. 13604 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12804 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A corporation (or a partnership with a corporate partner) engaged in the trade or business of farming must use an accrual method of accounting for such activities unless such corporation (or partnership), for each prior taxable year beginning after December 31, 1975, did not have gross receipts exceeding $1 million. If a farm corporation is required to change its method of accounting, the section 481 adjustment resulting from such change is included in gross income ratably over a 10-year period, beginning with the year of change. This rule does not apply to a family farm corporation.

A family corporation (or a partnership with a family corporation as a partner) is required to use an accrual method of accounting for its farming business unless, for each prior taxable year beginning after December 31, 1985, such corporation (and any predecessor corporation) did not have gross receipts exceeding $25 mil-

[66] It is intended that conforming a contract to satisfy this interest rate limitation not be treated as a material modification for purposes of this grandfather rule or sections 101(f), 7702 or 7702A. No inference is intended as to whether such a change is a material modification.

lion. A family corporation is one where 50 percent or more of the stock of the corporation is held by one (or in some limited cases, two or three) families.

A family farm corporation that must change to an accrual method of accounting as a result of the 1987 Act provision is to establish a suspense account in lieu of including the entire amount of the section 481 adjustment in gross income. The amount of the suspense account is required to be included in gross income if the corporation ceases to be a family corporation or to the extent the gross receipts of the corporation declines.

House bill

The House bill repeals the ability of a family farm corporation to establish a suspense account when it is required to change to an accrual method of accounting. Thus, under the House bill, any family farm corporation required to change to an accrual method of accounting would include in gross income the section 481 adjustment applicable to the change ratably over a 10-year period beginning with the year of change. In addition, any taxpayer with an existing suspense account is required to include the account in gross income ratably over a 20-year period beginning in the first taxable year beginning after September 13, 1995, subject to the present-law requirements to include all or a portion of the account in income more rapidly in certain circumstances.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years ending after September 13, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference Agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

5. PHASED-IN REPEAL OF SECTION 936 CREDIT (SEC. 13605 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12805 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Certain domestic corporations with business operations in the U.S. possessions (including, for this purpose, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands) may elect the section 936 credit which generally eliminates the U.S. tax on certain income related to their operations in the possessions. In contrast to the foreign tax credit, the possessions tax credit is a "tax sparing" credit. That is, the credit is granted whether or not the electing corporation pays income tax to the possession. Income exempt from U.S. tax under this provision falls into two broad categories: (1) possession business income, which is derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within a U.S. possession or from the sale or exchange of substantially all of the assets that were used in such a trade or business; and (2) qualified possession source investment income ("QPSII"), which is attributable to the investment in the possession or in certain Caribbean Basin countries of funds derived from the active conduct of a possession business.

In order to qualify for the section 936 credit for a taxable year, a domestic corporation must satisfy two conditions. First, the corporation must derive at least 80 percent of its gross income for the three-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year from sources within a possession. Second, the corporation must derive at least 75 percent of its gross income for that same period from the active conduct of a possession business.

A domestic corporation that has elected the section 936 credit and that satisfies these two conditions for a taxable year generally is entitled to a credit equal to the U.S. tax attributable to the sum of the taxpayer's possession business income and its QPSII. However, the amount of the credit attributable to possession business income is subject to the limitations enacted by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 ("1993 Act"). Under the economic activity limit, the amount of the credit with respect to such income cannot exceed the sum of a portion of the taxpayer's wage and fringe benefit expenses and depreciation allowances (plus, in certain cases, possession income taxes). In the alternative, the taxpayer may elect to apply a limit equal to the applicable percentage of the credit that would otherwise be allowable with respect to possession business income; the applicable percentage is phased down, beginning at 60 percent for 1994 and reaching 40 percent for 1998 and thereafter. The amount of the section 936 credit attributable to QPSII is not subject to these limitations.

House bill

The House bill generally repeals the section 936 credit for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. However, a corporation that is an existing credit claimant is eligible to claim section 936 credits for an additional 10 years under a grandfather rule.

A corporation is an existing credit claimant if it claimed the section 936 credit for any of its base period years (as defined below). A corporation that adds a substantial new line of business after September 13, 1995, ceases to be an existing credit claimant as of the beginning of the taxable year in which it adds such new line of business. A corporation that is an existing credit claimant is eligible to claim credits during the grandfather period with respect to operations in any possession.

The corporation's possession income eligible for the section 936 credit for each year in the grandfather period is subject to a cap computed based on the corporation's possession income for the base period years ("average adjusted base period possession income"). A corporation's possession income equals the sum of its possession business income and QPSII. Average adjusted base period possession income is the average of the adjusted possession income for each of the corporation's base period years. For purposes of this computation, the possession income for each of the base period years is adjusted by an inflation factor reflecting inflation from such year to the year to which the cap is being applied. In addition, as a proxy for real growth in income throughout the base period, the inflation factor is increased by 5 percentage points compounded for each year from such year to the corporation's first taxable year beginning on or after September 13, 1995.

The corporation's base period years generally are 3 of the corporation's 5 most recent taxable years ending before September 13, 1995, determined by disregarding the years in which such adjusted possession incomes were highest and lowest. For this purpose, only years in which the corporation had significant possession income are taken into account. A corporation is considered to have significant possession income for a taxable year if such income exceeds 2% of the corporation's possession income for each of the 6 taxable years ending with the first taxable year ending on or after September 13, 1995. If the corporation has significant possession income for only 4 of the 5 most recent taxable years ending before September 13, 1995, then the base period years are determined by disregarding the year in which the corporation's possession income was lowest. If the corporation has significant possession income for only 3 years or fewer of such 5 years, then the base period years are all such years. If there is no year of such 5 years in which the corporation has significant possession income, then the corporation may use as its base period its first taxable year ending on or after September 13, 1995; for this purpose, the amount of possession income taken into account is the annualized amount of such income for the portion of the year ended August 31, 1995, adjusted for inflation. As an alternative, a corporation may elect to use as its base period its taxable year ending in 1992.

If a corporation's possession income for a year during the grandfather period exceeds its income cap, then the corporation's possession income for purposes of computing its section 936 credit is an amount equal to the cap. The reduction in the corporation's income to the amount of the cap is allocated between its possession business income and its QPSII for the year to which the cap is being applied based on the relative amounts of the corporation's possession business income and QPSII for such year. In determining the corporation's section 936 credit, the economic activity limit or applicable percentage limit is applied to the corporation's possession business income as reduced to reflect the application of the cap.

Effective date.—The provision in the House bill is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment also generally repeals the section 936 credit for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. However, a corporation that is an existing credit claimant with respect to a possession is eligible to claim section 936 credits for a transition period under a grandfather rule.

A corporation is an existing credit claimant with respect to a particular possession if it is engaged in the active conduct of business in such possession on October 13, 1995, and it has elected the benefits of section 936 for its taxable year that includes such date. A corporation is treated as engaged in the active conduct of a business on such date if it is engaged in such active conduct before January 1, 1996, and it has a binding contract with respect to such business on October 13, 1995. A corporation that adds a substantial new line of business after October 13, 1995, ceases to be an existing credit claimant with respect to such possession as of the beginning of the taxable year in which it adds such new line of business. A corporation that is an existing credit claimant with respect to a possession (or possessions) is eligible to claim credits during the grandfather period only with respect to operations in such possession (or possessions).

The length of the grandfather period depends upon the type of income with respect to which the section 936 credit is being claimed. The grandfather period for the section 936 credit attributable to business income is six years, with the section 936 credit attributable to business income eliminated for taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001. The computation of the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income during the grandfather period depends upon whether the corporation has in effect an election to use the applicable percentage limit. For corporations using the economic activity limit, present law continues to apply in computing the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income throughout the grandfather period. For corporations using the applicable percentage limit, present law continues to apply in computing the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income through the taxable year beginning in 1998. For taxable years beginning in 1999 through 2001, the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income (determined under the applicable percentage limit) is limited to the following percentage of the amount otherwise determined: for 1999, 75 percent; for 2000, 50 percent; and for 2001, 25 percent. A corporation that elected to use the applicable percentage limit is permitted to revoke such election, provided that the revocation is made not later than with respect to the corporation's first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1996.

The grandfather period for the section 936 credit attributable to QPSII is five years, with the section 936 credit attributable to QPSII eliminated for taxable years beginning after December 31, 2000. For taxable years during the grandfather period, the section 936 credit attributable to QPSII is available only for income derived from a qualifying asset (provided that such income would otherwise qualify as QPSII under present law). A qualifying asset is an asset held by the corporation on October 13, 1995, or an asset that was purchased through the rollover of the proceeds of such an asset or its successor assets. For taxable years beginning in 1996 through 2000, income that would otherwise qualify as QPSII and that is derived from a qualifying asset is eligible for the section 936 credit attributable to QPSII only through the date that the asset, if distributed, would be eligible for the maximum reduction in local taxes (as determined under local law in effect on October 13, 1995).

Under the Senate amendment, a special grandfather rule applies to corporations that are existing credit claimants with respect to Guam, American Samoa or the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands. A corporation that is an existing credit claimant with respect to such a possession continues to determine its section 936 credit with respect to operations in such possession under present law for its taxable years beginning before January 1, 2006.

Effective date.—The provision in the Senate amendment is effective on date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment with modifications and clarifications. The conference agreement generally repeals the section 936 credit for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. However, the conference agreement provides grandfather rules under which a corporation that is an existing credit claimant is eligible to claim section 936 credits for a transition period. As under the Senate amendment, a special transition rule applies to the section 936 credit attributable to operations in Guam, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995, the section 936 credit applies only to a corporation that qualifies as an existing credit claimant (as defined below). A corporation that is an existing credit claimant is subject to the limitations described below in determining the section 936 credit for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

The section 936 credit attributable to QPSII is eliminated for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995. For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995, the section 936 credit is available only with respect to possession business income. The computation of the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income during the grandfather period depends upon whether the corporation is using the economic activity limit or the applicable percentage limit.

For corporations that are existing credit claimants and that use the economic activity limit, the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income (determined under the economic activity limit) continues to be determined as under present law for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995 and before January 1, 2002. For taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001 and before January 1, 2006, the corporation's possession business income that is eligible for the section 936 credit is subject to a cap computed as described below. For taxable years beginning in 2006 and thereafter, the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income (determined under the economic activity limit) is eliminated.

For corporations that are existing credit claimants and that elected to use the applicable percentage limit and not to use the economic activity limit, the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income continues to be determined as under present law for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995 and before January 1, 1998. For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1997 and before January 1, 2006, the corporation's possession business income that is eligible for the section 936 credit is subject to a cap computed as described below. For taxable years beginning in 2006 and thereafter, the section 936 credit attributable to possession business income (determined under the applicable percentage limit) is eliminated.

A corporation that had elected to use the applicable percentage limit is permitted to revoke that election under present law. Under the conference agreement, as under the Senate amendment, such a revocation must be made not later than with respect to the first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1996; such revocation, if made, applies to such taxable year and to all subsequent taxable years. Accordingly, a corporation that had an election in effect to use the applicable percentage limit could revoke such election effective for its taxable year beginning in 1997 and thereafter; such corporation would continue to use the applicable percentage limit for its taxable year beginning in 1996 and would use the economic activity limit for its taxable year beginning in 1997 and thereafter.

The cap on a corporation's possession business income that is eligible for the section 936 credit is computed based on the corporation's possession business income for the base period years ("average adjusted base period possession business income"). Average adjusted base period possession business income is the average of the adjusted possession business income for each of the corporation's base period years. For the purpose of this computation, the corporation's possession business income for a base period year is adjusted by an inflation factor that reflects inflation from such year to 1995. In addition, as a proxy for real growth in income throughout the base period, the inflation factor is increased by 5 percentage points compounded for each year from such year to the corporation's first taxable year beginning on or after October 14, 1995.

The corporation's base period years generally are three of the corporation's five most recent years ending before October 14, 1995, determined by disregarding the taxable years in which the adjusted possession business incomes were highest and lowest. For purposes of this computation, only years in which the corporation had significant possession business income are taken into account. A corporation is considered to have significant possession business income for a taxable year if such income exceeds 2 percent of the corporation's possession business income for the each of the six taxable years ending with the first taxable year ending on or after October 14, 1995. If the corporation has significant possession business income for only four of the five most recent taxable years ending before October 14, 1995, the base period years are determined by disregarding the year in which the corporation's possession business income was lowest. If the corporation has significant possession business income for three years or fewer of such five years, then the base period years are all such years. If there is no year of such five taxable years in which the corporation has significant possession business income, then the corporation may use as its base period its first taxable year ending on or after October 14, 1995; for this purpose, the amount of possession business income taken into account would be the annualized amount of such income for the portion of the year ended September 30, 1995.

As one alternative, the corporation may elect to use its taxable year ending in 1992 as its base period (with the adjusted possession business income for such year constituting its cap). As another alternative, the corporation may elect to use as its cap the annualized amount of its possession business income for the first ten months of calendar year 1995, calculated by excluding any extraordinary items (as determined under generally accepted accounting principles) for such period. For this purpose, the conferees intend that transactions with a related party that are not in the ordinary course of business will be considered to be extraordinary items.

If a corporation's possession business income in a year for which the cap is applicable exceeds the cap, then the corporation's possession business income for purposes of computing its section 936 credit for the year is an amount equal to the cap. The corporation's section 936 credit continues to be subject to either the economic activity limit or the applicable percentage limit, with such limit applied to the corporation's possession business income as reduced to reflect the application of the cap.

A corporation is an existing credit claimant if (1) the corporation is engaged in the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession on October 13, 1995, and (2) the corporation has elected the benefits of section 936 pursuant to an election which is in effect for its taxable year that includes October 13, 1995. A corporation that adds a substantial new line of business after October 13, 1995, ceases to be an existing credit claimant as of the beginning of the taxable year during which such new line of business is added.

For purposes of these rules, a corporation is treated as engaged in the active conduct of a trade or business within a possession on October 13, 1995, if such corporation is engaged in the active conduct of such trade or business before January 1, 1996, and such corporation has in effect on October 13, 1995, a binding contract for the acquisition of assets to be used in, or the sale of property to be produced in, such trade or business. For example, if a corporation has in effect on October 13, 1995, binding contracts for the lease of a facility and the purchase of machinery to be used in a manufacturing business in a possession and if the corporation begins actively conducting that manufacturing business in the possession before January 1, 1996, that corporation is an existing credit claimant. A change in the ownership of a corporation will not affect its status as an existing credit claimant.

In determining whether a corporation has added a substantial new line of business, the conferees intend that principles similar to those reflected in Treas. Reg. section 1.7704–2(d) (relating to the transition rules for existing publicly traded partnerships) will apply. For example, a corporation that modifies its current production methods, expands existing facilities, or adds new facilities to support the production of its current product lines and products within the same four-digit Industry Number Standard Industrial Classification Code (Industry SIC Code) will not be considered to have added a substantial new line of business. In this regard, the conferees intend that the fact that a business which is added is assigned a different four-digit Industry SIC Code than is assigned to an existing business of the corporation will not automatically cause the corporation to be considered to have added a new line of business. For example, a pharmaceutical corporation that begins manufacturing a new drug will not be considered to have added a new line of business. Moreover, a pharmaceutical corporation that begins to manufacture a complete product from the bulk active chemical through the finished dosage form, a process that may be assigned two separate four-digit Industry SIC Codes, will not be considered to have added a new line of business even though it was previously engaged in activities that involved only a portion of the entire manufacturing process from bulk chemicals to finished dosages.

A special transition rule applies to the section 936 credit with respect to operations in Guam, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands. Income attributable to operations in these possessions is not taken into account in computing the income cap described above. A corporation is considered to be an existing credit claimant with respect to one of these possessions if the corporation is an existing credit claimant and is engaged in the active conduct of a trade or business within such possession on October 13, 1995 (or is treated as so engaged under the binding contract rule described above). For any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1995, a corporation that is not an existing credit claimant with respect to one of these possessions for such year is not entitled to the section 936 credit with respect to operations in such possession. For any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1995, and before January 1, 2006, a corporation that is an existing credit claimant with respect to one of these possessions for such year continues to determine its section 936 credit with respect to operations in such possession as under present law. For taxable years beginning in 2006 and thereafter, the section 936 credit with respect to operations in Guam, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands is eliminated.

6. CORPORATE ACCOUNTING—REFORM OF INCOME FORECAST METHOD (SEC. 13604 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12806 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A taxpayer generally must capitalize the cost of property used in a trade or business and recover such cost over time through allowances for depreciation or amortization. The cost of a film, video tape, or similar property that is produced by the taxpayer or is acquired on a "stand-alone" basis by the taxpayer may not be recovered pursuant to either the general depreciation provisions of section 168 or the intangible amortization provisions of section 197. The cost of such property may be depreciated under the "income forecast" method. The income forecast method also has been held to be applicable for computing depreciation deductions for television shows, books, patents, master sound recordings and video games.

Under the income forecast method, the depreciation deduction for a taxable year for a property is determined by multiplying the cost of the property (less estimated salvage value) by a fraction, the numerator of which is the income generated by the property during the year and the denominator of which is the total forecasted or estimated income to be derived from the property during its useful life. The total forecasted or estimated income to be derived from a property is to be based on the conditions known to exist at the end of the period for which depreciation is claimed. This estimate can be revised upward or downward at the end of a subsequent taxable period based on additional information that becomes available after the last prior estimate. These revisions, however, do not affect the amount of depreciation claimed in a prior taxable year.

In the case of a film, income to be taken into account under the income forecast method means income from the film less the expense of distributing the film, including estimated income from foreign distribution or other exploitation of the film. In the case of a motion picture released for theatrical exhibition, income does not include estimated income from future television exhibition of the film (unless an arrangement for domestic television exhibition has been entered into before the film has been depreciated to its reasonable salvage value). In the case of a series or a motion picture produced for television exhibition, income does not include estimated income from domestic syndication of the series or the film (unless an arrangement for syndication has been entered into before the series or film has been depreciated to its reasonable salvage value). The Internal Revenue Service also has ruled that income does not include net merchandising revenue received from the exploitation of film characters.

House bill

The House bill makes several amendments to the income forecast method of determining depreciation deductions.

First, the House bill provides that income to be taken into account under the income forecast method includes all estimated income derived from use of the property. In the case of a film, television show, or similar property, such income includes, but would not necessarily be limited to, income from foreign and domestic theatrical, television, and other releases and syndications; video tape releases, sales, rentals, and syndications; and the exploitation of film or program characters, prints, scripts, and scores. Pursuant to a special rule, if a taxpayer produces a television series and initially does not anticipate syndicating the episodes from the series, the forecasted income for the episodes of the first three years of the series need not take into account any future syndication fees (unless the taxpayer reasonably anticipates syndicating such episodes during such period).

In addition, the cost of property subject to depreciation only includes amounts that satisfy the economic performance standard of section 461(h). Any costs that are taken into account after the property is placed in service are treated as a separate piece of property to the extent (1) such amounts are significant and are expected to give rise to a significant increase in the income from the property that was not included in the estimated income from the property, or (2) such costs are incurred more than 10 years after the property was placed in service. Except as provided in regulations, any costs that are not recovered by the end of the tenth taxable year after the property was placed in service may be taken into account as depreciation in such year.

Further, taxpayers that claim depreciation deductions under the income forecast method are required to pay (or would receive) interest based on the recalculation of depreciation under a "look-back" method. The "look-back" method is applied in any "recomputation year" by: (1) comparing depreciation deductions that had been claimed in prior periods to depreciation deductions that would have been claimed had the taxpayer used actual, rather than estimated, total income from the property; (2) determining the hypothetical overpayment or underpayment of tax based on this recalculated depreciation; and (3) applying the overpayment rate of section 6621. Except as provided in regulations, a "recomputation year" would be the third and tenth taxable year after the taxable year the property was placed in service unless the actual income from the property for each taxable year ending with or before the close of such years was within 10 percent of the estimated income from the property for such years. The Secretary of the Treasury has the authority to allow a taxpayer to delay the initial application of the look-back method where the taxpayer may be expected to have significant income from the property after the third taxable year after the taxable year the property was placed in service (e.g., the Treasury Secretary may exercise such authority where the depreciable life of the property is expected to be longer than three years). In applying the look-back method, any cost that is taken into account after the property was placed in service may be taken into account by discounting (using the Federal mid-term rate determined under sec. 1274(d) as of the time the costs were taken into account) such cost to its value as of the date the property was placed in service. Property with an adjusted basis of $100,000 or less when the property was placed in service is not subject to the look-back method.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for property placed in service after September 13, 1995, unless placed in service pursuant to a binding written contract in effect before such date and all times thereafter.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment follows the House bill, with certain modifications.

First, the Senate amendment provides that estimated income to be taken into account under the income forecast method includes all income earned in connection with the property before the close of the tenth taxable year following the taxable year in which the property was placed in service. This 11-year rule also will apply for purposes of the look-back method.

Second, income from the exploitation of characters is expected to be limited to income from licensing and similar agreements with third parties and sales of tangible property incorporating such characters.

Third, the special rule that applies to the syndication of a television series will apply such that the forecasted income for the episodes of the first three years of the series need not take into account any future syndication fees (unless the taxpayer has an arrangement to syndicate such episodes during such period).

Fourth, the Senate amendment clarifies the application of the economic performance standard of section 461(h).

Effective date.—Same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with the following modifications.

The conference agreement provides that estimated income to be taken into account under the income forecast method includes all income earned before the close of the tenth taxable year following the taxable year in which the property was placed in service in connection with the ultimate use of the property by, or the ultimate sale of merchandise to, unrelated parties (as defined in sec. 267(b)). This rule also will apply for purposes of the look-back method. The conferees wish to clarify that the Secretary of the Treasury has the authority to issue regulations that provide anti-abuse rules to address the improper timing of earnings.

The conferees also wish to clarify that income earned by a taxpayer in connection with a property subject to the income forecast method does not include income earned from a related party. However, certain income earned by the related party from unrelated persons in connection with the property must be taken into account by the taxpayer. For example, if a taxpayer licenses the use of property subject to the income forecast method to a member of the taxpayer's affiliated group and such member sublicenses similar rights to an unrelated third party, the licensing agreement between the affiliated members would be ignored, and the sublicensing agreement with the unrelated third party would be taken into account, for purposes of applying the income forecast method to the taxpayer's property. In addition, the conferees wish to clarify that, for purposes of the income forecast method, the Secretary of the Treasury has the authority to allocate properly income under section 482 or any other applicable present-law provision with respect to agreements, arrangements, or transactions between the taxpayer and any other related parties.

Further, the conferees wish to clarify that in applying the economic performance rules of section 461(h) in determining the cost of property subject to the income forecast method, the recurring item exception of section 461(h)(3) shall apply in a manner similar to the way such exception applies under present law. Thus, expenditures that relate to an item of property that are incurred in the taxable year following the taxable year in which the property is placed in service may be taken into account in the year the property is placed in service to the extent such expenditures meet the recurring item exception for such year.

7. REPEAL 50-PERCENT INTEREST INCOME EXCLUSION FOR FINANCIAL INSTITUTION LOANS TO ESOPS (SEC. 12807 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

A bank, insurance company, regulated investment company, or a corporation actively engaged in the business of lending money may generally exclude from gross income 50 percent of interest received on an ESOP loan (sec. 133). The 50-percent interest exclusion only applies if: (1) immediately after the acquisition of securities with the loan proceeds, the ESOP owns more than 50 percent of the outstanding stock or more than 50 percent of the total value of all outstanding stock of the corporation; (2) the ESOP loan term will not exceed 15 years; and (3) the ESOP provides for full pass-through voting to participants on all allocated shares acquired or transferred in connection with the loan.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment repeals the 50-percent interest exclusion with respect to ESOP loans.

Effective date.—The provision generally is effective with respect to loans made after October 13, 1995. The repeal of the 50-percent interest exclusion does not apply to the refinancing of an ESOP loan originally made on or before October 13, 1995, provided: (1) such refinancing loan otherwise meets the requirements of section 133 in effect on or before October 13, 1995; (2) the outstanding principal amount of the loan is not increased; and (3) the term of the refinancing loan does not extend beyond the term of the original ESOP loan.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

8. CORPORATE PENSION TRANSFERS (SEC. 13607 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

In general

Under present law, defined benefit pension plan assets generally may not revert to an employer prior to the termination of the plan and the satisfaction of all plan liabilities. Any assets that revert to the employer upon such termination are includible in the gross income of the employer and subject to an excise tax. The rate of the excise tax generally is 20 percent and is increased to 50 percent unless the employer maintains a replacement plan or makes certain benefit increases in connection with the plan termination.

Transfers from ongoing plans

Under section 420 of the Code and under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended ("ERISA") , employers may transfer excess assets in an overfunded defined benefit pension plan (other than a multiemployer plan) to pay certain retiree health liabilities. The assets transferred are not includible in the gross income of the employer and are not subject to the excise tax on reversions. The employer is not entitled to deduct retiree health benefits paid with transferred assets. Any transferred amounts not used for retiree health benefits for the year of transfer are required to be returned to the pension plan (with earnings). Returned amounts are not includible in income and are subject to the 20-percent excise tax.

Transfer requirements

A section 420 transfer is subject to a vesting requirement, an asset cushion requirement, and a notice requirement.

Vesting requirement

Under the vesting requirement, the accrued retirement benefits of plan participants (including participants who separated from service during the 1-year period ending on the date of transfer) must be nonforfeitable as if the plan terminated immediately before the transfer.

Asset cushion requirement

Under the asset cushion requirement, excess assets are defined to be the excess of the value of plan assets over the greater of (1) the plan's full funding limit, or (2) 125 percent of current liability. Excess assets are determined as of the most recent plan valuation date preceding the transfer. Thus, a transfer can only be made from a plan that is at least at the full funding limit and to which deductible employer contributions can no longer be made.

Notice requirement

An employer is required to notify plan participants 60 days before a transfer occurs.

Expiration of provision

Section 420 was originally adopted for a 5-year period, through 1995. It was extended in the implementing legislation for the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade ("GATT") for an additional 5 years, through 2000.

House bill

Transfers from ongoing plans

Under the House bill, section 420 is expanded to permit a qualified transfer of excess assets from a defined benefit pension plan (other than a multiemployer plan) to the employer, without limitation on the use of the excess assets. Amounts transferred are includible in the gross income of the employer and generally subject to a 6.5 percent excise tax. No excise tax applies in the case of transfers occurring before July 1, 1996.

Transfer requirements

Vesting requirement

Same as present law.

Asset cushion requirement

Same as present law, except that excess assets are determined as of whichever of the following dates results in a lower value of excess assets: (1) January 1, 1995, or the last plan valuation date preceding January 1, 1995, or (2) the most recent plan valuation date preceding the transfer.

Notice requirement

Same as present law.

Expiration of provision

Same as present law.

Effective date

January 1, 1995.

Senate amendment

No provision. (However, the Senate Finance Committee adopted a proposal similar to, but more limited than, the House bill. Under that proposal, transfers of excess pension assets could have been made to pay for qualified retirement benefits, accident and health benefits, disability benefits, educational assistance, and dependent care assistance (i.e., broad-based ERISA-covered plans). The amount transferred would have been includible in the gross income of the employer. No excise tax would have applied. The present-law asset cushion would have applied. The proposal would have been effective with respect to amounts transferred on or after the date of enactment in taxable years beginning before January 1, 2002. The proposal was deleted by a Senate floor amendment.)

Conference agreement

In general

The conference agreement follows the House bill, with several modifications. Under the conference agreement, section 420 is expanded to permit a transfer of excess assets from a defined benefit pension plan (other than a multiemployer plan) to pay for certain employee benefits that are provided to a broad group of employees and regulated under ERISA and the Internal Revenue Code. The amount transferred is includible in the gross income of the employer, but is not subject to the excise tax on reversions. The conference agreement modifies the definition of excess assets, both for purposes of transfers under present-law section 420, as well as for purposes of the transfers allowed under the provision. The conference agreement also provides that an employer cannot make a transfer under the provision or present law if the employer has filed or has had filed against it (as of the date of transfer) a petition seeking liquidation in bankruptcy under title 11 of the U.S. Code, or under similar State or Federal law. The modifications to section 420 are not intended to affect the ability under present law to transfer assets within a defined benefit pension plan under section 414(k).

Transfer requirements

Vesting requirement

Same as the House bill.

Asset cushion requirement

The conference agreement modifies the asset cushion requirement both with respect to transfers under present-law section 420, as well as with respect to the expanded transfers under the provision. Under the provision, excess assets are defined as the excess of the value of plan assets over the greater of (1) 125 percent of termination liability, or (2) the plan's accrued liability. Accrued liability is determined as under the full-funding limitation (without regard to the 150 percent of current liability cap). Termination liability is generally defined as under section 414(l) of the Code. However, for this purpose, the actuarial assumptions used are those used by the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation ("PBGC") for single-employer plan termination purposes under title IV of ERISA. It is expected that the PBGC will continue to calculate its termination liability assumptions under its current methodology. Excess assets are determined as of the date of transfer.

Notice requirement

Same as present law.

Use of excess assets

The total amount of excess pension assets which can be transferred during any year cannot exceed the amount the employer would be able to deduct for the year of transfer (determined on a controlled group basis) for qualified employee benefits. Qualified employee benefits are defined as qualified retirement plan benefits, accident and health benefits, disability benefits, educational assistance, and dependent care assistance. For example, under the conference agreement, excess pension assets can be transferred from an overfunded pension plan maintained by an employer to an underfunded pension plan maintained by the same employer.

Transferred amounts (and income thereon) that are not used to pay for qualified employee benefits for the year of transfer must be returned to the pension plan. Income on returned amounts is calculated using the short-term applicable Federal rate. Amounts returned are not includible in the gross income of the employer, but are subject to the 20-percent excise tax on reversions. No deduction is allowed with respect to returned amounts (and income thereon).

Expiration of provision

Transfers for qualified employee benefits cannot be made in taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

Effective date

The provision is effective with respect to transfers on and after the date of enactment, except that the changes with respect to transfers under present-law section 420 are effective with respect to transfers occurring after December 31, 1995.

9. MODIFY EXCLUSION OF DAMAGES RECEIVED ON ACCOUNT OF PERSONAL INJURY OR SICKNESS (SEC. 13611 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12811 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Under present law, gross income does not include any damages received (whether by suit or agreement and whether as lump sums or as periodic payments) on account of personal injury or sickness (sec. 104(a)(2)).

The exclusion from gross income of damages received on account of personal injury or sickness specifically does not apply to punitive damages received in connection with a case not involving physical injury or sickness. Courts presently differ as to whether the exclusion applies to punitive damages received in connection with a case involving a physical injury or physical sickness. Certain States provide that, in the case of claims under a wrongful death statute, only punitive damages may be awarded.

Courts have interpreted the exclusion from gross income of damages received on account of personal injury or sickness broadly in some cases to cover awards for personal injury that do not relate to a physical injury or sickness. For example, some courts have held that the exclusion applies to damages in cases involving certain forms of employment discrimination and injury to reputation where there is no physical injury or sickness. The damages received in these cases generally consist of back pay and other awards intended to compensate the claimant for lost wages or lost profits. The Supreme Court recently held that damages received based on a claim under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act could not be excluded from income.[67] In light of the Supreme Court decision, the Internal Revenue Service has suspended existing guidance on the tax treatment of damages received on account of other forms of employment discrimination.

House bill

Include in income all punitive damages

The House bill provides that the exclusion from gross income does not apply to any punitive damages received on account of personal injury or sickness whether or not related to a physical injury or physical sickness. The House bill intends no inference as to the application of the exclusion to punitive damages received prior to the effective date of the bill in connection with a case involving a physical injury or physical sickness.

Include in income damage recoveries for nonphysical injuries

The House bill provides that the exclusion from gross income only applies to damages received on account of a personal physical injury or physical sickness. If an action has its origin in a physical injury or physical sickness, then all damages (other than punitive damages) that flow therefrom are treated as payments received on account of physical injury or physical sickness whether or not the recipient of the damages is the injured party. For example, damages (other than punitive damages) received by an individual on account of a claim for loss of consortium due to the physical injury or physical sickness of such individual's spouse are excludable from gross income. In addition, damages (other than punitive damages) received on account of a claim of wrongful death continue to be excludable from taxable income as under present law.

The House bill also specifically provides that emotional distress is not considered a physical injury or physical sickness. Thus, the exclusion from gross income does not apply to any damages received (other than for medical expenses as discussed below) based on a claim of employment discrimination or injury to reputation accompanied by a claim of emotional distress. Because all damages received on account of physical injury or physical sickness are excludable from gross income, the exclusion from gross income does apply to any damages received based on a claim of emotional distress that is attributable to a physical injury or physical sickness. In addition, the exclusion from gross income specifically does apply to the amount of damages received that is not in excess of the amount paid for medical care attributable to emotional distress.

Effective date.—The provisions generally are effective with respect to amounts received after December 31, 1995. The provisions do not apply to amounts received under a written binding agreement, court decree, or mediation award in effect on (or issued on or before) September 13, 1995.

Senate amendment

Same as the House bill, except that the exclusion from gross income applies to punitive damages received in a wrongful death action, provided that the applicable State law (as in effect on September 13, 1995 without regard to subsequent modification) provides, or has been construed to provide by a court decision issued on or before such date, that only punitive damages may be awarded in a wrongful death action.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except the conference agreement clarifies that the special rule contained in the Senate amendment pertaining to punitive damages received in a wrongful death action only applies if the punitive damages received would have been excludable from gross income under the law in effect before February 1, 1996.

10. REPORTING OF CERTAIN PAYMENTS MADE TO ATTORNEYS (SEC. 13612 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12812 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Information reporting is required by persons engaged in a trade or business and making payments in the course of that trade or business of "rent, salaries, wages, . . . or other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income" (Code sec. 6041(a)). Treas. Reg. sec. 1.6041–1(d)(2) provides that attorney's fees are required to be reported if they are paid by a person in a trade or business in the course of a trade or business. Reporting is required to be done on Form 1099-Misc. If, on the other hand, the payment is a gross amount and it is not known what portion is the attorney's fee, no reporting is required on any portion of the payment.

House bill

The House bill requires gross proceeds reporting on all payments to attorneys made by a trade or business in the course of that trade or business. It is anticipated that gross proceeds reporting would be required on Form 1099–B (currently used by brokers to report gross proceeds). The only exception to this new reporting requirement is for any payments reported on either Form 1099-Misc under section 6041 (reports of payment of income) or on Form W–2 under section 6051 (payments of wages).

In addition, the present exception in the regulations exempting from reporting any payments made to corporations will not apply to payments made to attorneys. Treas. Reg. sec. 1.6041–3(c) exempts payments to corporations generally (although payments to most corporations providing medical services must be reported). Reporting is required under both Code sections 6041 and 6045 (as proposed) for payments to corporations that provide legal services. The exception of Treas. Reg. sec. 1.6041–3(g) exempting from reporting payments of salaries or profits paid or distributed by a partnership to the individual partners will continue to apply to both sections (since these amounts are required to reported on Form K–1).

Effective date.—The provision is effective for payments made after December 31, 1995. Consequently, the first information reports will be filed with the IRS (and copies will be provided to recipients of the payments) in 1997, with respect to payments made in 1996.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment, with several clarifications. First, the conferees clarify that the provision applies to payments made to attorneys regardless of whether the attorney is the exclusive payee. Second, the conferees clarify that payments to law firms are payments to attorneys, and therefore are subject to this reporting provision. Third, the conferees clarify that attorneys must promptly supply their TINs to persons required to file these information reports, pursuant to section 6109. Failure to do so could result in the attorney being subject to penalty under section 6723 and the payments being subject to backup withholding under section 3406. Fourth, the conferees clarify their intent that the IRS administer this provision so that there is no overlap between reporting under section 6041 and reporting under section 6045. For example, if two payments are simultaneously made to an attorney, one of which represents the attorney's fee and the second of which represents the settlement with the attorney's client, the first payment will be reported under section 6041 and the second payment will not be reported under either section 6041 or section 6045, since it is known that the entire payment represents the settlement with the client (and therefore no portion of it represents income to the attorney).

Effective date.—The provision is effective for payments made after December 31, 1996. Consequently, the first information reports will be filed with the IRS (and copies will be provided to recipients of the payments) in 1998, with respect to payments made in 1997.

11. EXPATRIATION TAX PROVISIONS (SECS. 13616–13618 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SECS. 12441–12442 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Individuals who relinquish U.S. citizenship with a principal purpose of avoiding U.S. taxes are subject to special tax provisions for 10 years after expatriation. The determination of who is a U.S. citizen for tax purposes, and when such citizenship is lost, is governed by the provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. section 1401, et. seq.

An individual who relinquishes his U.S. citizenship with a principal purpose of avoiding U.S. taxes is subject to tax on his or her U.S. source income at the rates applicable to U.S. citizens, rather than the rates applicable to other non-resident aliens, for 10 years after expatriation. In addition, the scope of items treated as U.S. source income for this purpose is broader than those items generally considered to be U.S. source income. For example, gains on the sale of personal property located in the United States and gains on the sale or exchange of stock or securities issued by U.S. persons are treated as U.S. source income. This alternative method of income taxation applies only if it results in a higher U.S. tax liability.

Rules applicable in the estate and gift tax contexts expand the categories of items that are subject to the gift and estate taxes in the case of a U.S. citizen who relinquished citizenship with a principal purpose of avoiding U.S. taxes within the 10-year period ending on the date of the transfer. For example, U.S. property held through a foreign corporation controlled by such individual and related persons is included in his or her estate and gifts of U.S.-situs intangible property by such individual are subject to the gift tax.

House bill

Overview

The House bill expands and substantially strengthens in several ways the present-law provisions that subject U.S. citizens who lose their citizenship for tax avoidance purposes to special tax rules for 10 years after such loss of citizenship (secs. 877, 2107, and 2501(a)(3)). First, the House bill extends the expatriation tax provisions to apply not only to U.S. citizens who lose their citizenship but also to certain long-term residents of the United States whose U.S. residency is terminated. Second, the House bill subjects certain individuals to the expatriation tax provisions without inquiry as to their motive for losing their U.S. citizenship or residency, but allows certain categories of citizens to show an absence of tax-avoidance motives if they request a ruling from the Secretary of the Treasury as to whether the loss of citizenship had a principal purpose of tax avoidance. Third, the House bill expands the categories of income and gains that are treated as U.S. source (and therefore subject to U.S. income tax under section 877) if earned by an individual who is subject to the expatriation tax provisions and includes provisions designed to eliminate the ability to engage in certain transactions that under current law partially or completely circumvent the 10-year reach of section 877. Further, the House bill provides relief from double taxation in circumstances where another country imposes tax on items that would be subject to U.S. tax under the expatriation tax provisions.

The House bill also contains provisions to enhance compliance with the expatriation tax provisions. The House bill imposes information reporting obligations on U.S. citizens who lose their citizenship and long-term residents whose U.S. residency is terminated at the time of expatriation. In addition, the House bill directs the Treasury Department to undertake a study regarding compliance by individuals living abroad with their U.S. tax reporting obligations and to make recommendations with respect to improving such compliance.

Individuals covered

The present-law expatriation tax provisions apply only to certain U.S. citizens who lose their citizenship. The House bill extends these expatriation tax provisions to apply also to long-term residents of the United States whose U.S. residency is terminated. For this purpose, a long-term resident is any individual who was a lawful permanent resident of the United States for at least 8 out of the 15 taxable years ending with the year in which such termination occurs. In applying this 8-year test, an individual is not considered to be a lawful permanent resident for any year in which the individual is taxed as a resident of another country under a treaty tie-breaker rule. An individual's U.S. residency is considered to be terminated when either the individual ceases to be a lawful permanent resident pursuant to section 7701(b)(6) (i.e., the individual loses his or her green-card status) or the individual is treated as a resident of another country under a tie-breaker provision of a tax treaty (and the individual does not elect to waive the benefits of such treaty). Furthermore, a long-term resident may elect to use the fair market value basis of property on the date the individual became a U.S. resident (rather than the property's historical basis) to determine the amount of gain subject to the expatriation tax provisions if the asset is sold within the 10-year period.

Under present law, the expatriation tax provisions are applicable to a U.S. citizen who loses his or her citizenship unless such loss did not have as a principal purpose the avoidance of taxes. Under the House bill, U.S. citizens who lose their citizenship and long-term residents whose U.S. residency is terminated are generally treated as having lost such citizenship or terminated such residency with a principal purpose of the avoidance of taxes if either: (1) the individual's average annual U.S. Federal income tax liability for the 5 taxable years ending before the date of such loss or termination is greater than $100,000 (the "tax liability test"), or (2) the individual's net worth as of the date of such loss or termination is $500,000 or more (the "net worth test"). The dollar amount thresholds contained in the tax liability test and the net worth test are indexed for inflation in the case of a loss of citizenship or termination of residency occurring in any calendar year after 1996. An individual who falls below the thresholds specified in both the tax liability test and the net worth test is subject to the expatriation tax provisions unless the individual's loss of citizenship or termination of residency did not have as a principal purpose the avoidance of tax (as under present law in the case of U.S. citizens).

A U.S. citizen, who loses his or her citizenship and who satisfies either the tax liability test or the net worth test, is not subject to the expatriation tax provisions if such individual can demonstrate that he or she did not have a principal purpose of tax avoidance and the individual is within one of the following categories: (1) the individual was born with dual citizenship and retains only the non-U.S. citizenship; (2) the individual becomes a citizen of the country in which the individual, the individual's spouse, or one of the individual's parents, was born; (3) the individual was present in the United States for no more than 30 days during any year in the 10-year period immediately preceding the date of his or her loss of citizenship; (4) the individual relinquishes his or her citizenship before reaching age 18½; or (5) any other category of individuals prescribed by Treasury regulations. In all of these situations, the individual would have been subject to tax on his or her worldwide income (as are all U.S. citizens) until the time of expatriation. In order to qualify for one of these exceptions, the former U.S. citizen must, within one year from the date of loss of citizenship, submit a ruling request for a determination by the Secretary of the Treasury as to whether such loss had as one of its principal purposes the avoidance of taxes. A former U.S. citizen who submits such a ruling request is entitled to challenge an adverse determination by the Secretary of the Treasury. However, a former U.S. citizen who fails to submit a timely ruling request is not eligible for these exceptions. It is expected that in making a determination as to the presence of a principal purpose of tax avoidance, the Secretary of the Treasury will take into account factors such as the substantiality of the former citizen's ties to the United States (including ownership of U.S. assets) prior to expatriation, the retention of U.S. citizenship by the former citizen's spouse, and the extent to which the former citizen resides in a country that imposes little or no tax.

The foregoing exceptions are not available to long-term residents whose U.S. residency is terminated. However, the House bill authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to prescribe regulations to exempt certain categories of long-term residents from the House bill's provisions.

Items subject to section 877

Under section 877, an individual covered by the expatriation tax provisions is subject to tax on U.S. source income and gains for a 10-year period after expatriation at the graduated rates applicable to U.S. citizens.[68] The tax under section 877 applies to U.S. source income and gains of the individual for the 10-year period, without regard to whether the property giving rise to such income or gains was acquired before or after the date the individual became subject to the expatriation tax provisions. For example, a U.S. citizen who inherits an appreciated asset immediately before losing citizenship and disposes of the asset immediately after such loss would not recognize any taxable gain on such disposition (because of the date of death fair market value basis accorded to inherited assets), but the individual would continue to be subject to [68] Under present law, all nonresident aliens (including expatriates) are subject to U.S. income tax at graduated rates on certain types of income. Such income includes income effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business and gains from the disposition of interests in U.S. real property. For example, compensation (including deferred compensation) paid with respect to services performed in the United States is subject to such tax. Thus, under current law, a U.S. citizen who earns a stock option while employed in the United States and delays the exercise of such option until after such individual loses his or her citizenship is subject to U.S. tax on the compensation income recognized upon exercise of the stock option (even if the stock received upon the exercise is stock in foreign corporation).

tax under section 877 on the income or gain derived from any U.S. property acquired with the proceeds from such disposition.

In addition, section 877 currently recharacterizes as U.S. source income certain gains of individuals who are subject to the expatriation tax provisions, thereby subjecting such individuals to U.S. income tax on such gains. Under this rule, gain on the sale or exchange of stock of a U.S. corporation or debt of a U.S. person is treated as U.S. source income. In this regard, under current law, the substitution of a foreign obligor for a U.S. obligor is generally treated as a taxable exchange of the debt instrument, and therefore any gain on such exchange is subject to tax under section 877. The House bill extends this recharacterization to income and gains derived from property obtained in certain transactions on which gain or loss is not recognized under present law. An individual covered by section 877 who exchanges property that would produce U.S. source income for property that would produce foreign source income is required to recognize immediately as U.S. source income any gain on such exchange (determined as if the property had been sold for its fair market value on such date). To the extent gain is recognized under this provision, the property would be accorded the step-up in basis provided under current law. This rule requiring immediate gain recognition does not apply if the individual enters into an agreement with the Secretary of the Treasury specifying that any income or gains derived from the property received in the exchange during the 10-year period after the loss of citizenship (or termination of U.S. residency, as applicable) would be treated as U.S. source income. Such a gain recognition agreement terminates if the property transferred in the exchange is disposed of by the acquiror, and any gain that had not been recognized by reason of such agreement is recognized as U.S. source as of such date. It is expected that a gain recognition agreement would be entered into not later than the due date for the tax return for the year of the exchange. In this regard, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to issue regulations providing similar treatment for nonrecognition transactions that occur within 5 years immediately prior to the date of loss of citizenship (or termination of U.S. residency, as applicable).

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to issue regulations to treat removal of tangible personal property from the United States, and other circumstances that result in a conversion of U.S. source income to foreign source income without recognition of any unrealized gain, as exchanges for purposes of computing gain subject to section 877. The taxpayer may defer the recognition of the gain if he or she enters into a gain recognition agreement as described above. For example, a former citizen who removes appreciated artwork that he or she owns from the United States could be subject to immediate tax on the appreciation under this provision unless the individual enters into a gain recognition agreement.

The foregoing rules regarding the treatment under section 877 of nonrecognition transactions are illustrated by the following examples: Ms. A loses her U.S. citizenship on January 1, 1996, and is subject to section 877. On June 30, 1997, Ms. A transfers the stock she owns in a U.S. corporation, USCo, to a wholly-owned foreign corporation, FCo, in a transaction that qualifies for tax-free treatment under section 351. At the time of such transfer, A's basis in the stock of USCo is $100,000 and the fair market value of the stock is $150,000. Under present law, Ms. A. would not be subject to U.S. tax on the $50,000 of gain realized on the exchange. Moreover, Ms. A would not be subject to U.S. tax on any distribution of the proceeds from a subsequent disposition of the USCo stock by FCo. Under the House bill, if Ms. A does not enter into a gain recognition agreement with the Secretary of the Treasury, Ms. A would be deemed to have sold the USCo stock for $150,000 on the date of the transfer, and would be subject to U.S. tax in 1997 on the $50,000 of gain realized. Alternatively, if Ms. A enters into a gain recognition agreement, she would not be required to recognize for U.S. tax purposes in 1997 the $50,000 of gain realized upon the transfer of the USCo stock to FCo. However, under the gain recognition agreement, for the 10-year period ending on December 31, 2005, any income (e.g., dividends) or gain with respect to the FCo stock would be treated as U.S. source, and therefore Ms. A would be subject to tax on such income or gain under section 877. If FCo disposes of the USCo stock on January 1, 2002, Ms. A's gain recognition agreement would terminate on such date, and Ms. A would be required to recognize as U.S. source income at that time the $50,000 of gain that she previously deferred under the gain recognition agreement. (The amount of gain required to be recognized by Ms. A in this situation would not be affected by any changes in the value of the USCo stock since her June 30, 1997 transfer of such stock to FCo.)

The House bill also extends the recharacterization rules of section 877 to treat as U.S. source any income and gains derived from stock in a foreign corporation if the individual losing citizenship or terminating residency owns, directly or indirectly, more than 50 percent of the vote or value of the stock of the corporation on the date of such loss or termination or at any time during the 2 years preceding such date. Such income and gains are recharacterized as U.S. source only to the extent of the amount of earnings and profits attributable to such stock earned or accumulated prior to the date of loss of citizenship (or termination of residency, as applicable) and while such ownership requirement is satisfied.

The following example illustrates this rule: Mr. B loses his U.S. citizenship on July 1, 1996 and is subject to section 877. Mr. B has owned all of the stock of a foreign corporation, FCo, since its incorporation in 1991. As of FCo's December 31, 1995 year-end, FCo has accumulated earnings and profits of $500,000. FCo has earnings and profits of $100,000 for 1996 and does not have any subpart F income (as defined in sec. 952). FCo makes a $100,000 distribution to Mr. B in each of 1997 and 1998. On January 1, 1999, Mr. B disposes of all his stock of FCo and realizes $400,000 of gain. Under present law, neither the distributions from FCo nor the gain on the disposition of the FCo stock would be subject to U.S. tax. Under the House bill, the distributions from FCo and the gain on the sale of the stock of FCo would be treated as U.S. source income and would be taxed to Mr. B under section 877, subject to the earnings and profits limitation. For this purpose, the amount of FCo's earnings and profits for 1996 is prorated based on the number of days during 1996 that Mr. B is a U.S. citizen. Thus, the amount of FCo's earnings and profits earned or accumulated before Mr. B's loss of citizenship is $550,000. Accordingly, the $100,000 distributions from FCo in 1997 and 1998 would be treated as U.S. source income taxable to Mr. B under section 877 in such years. In addition, $350,000 of the gain realized from the sale of the stock of FCo in 1999 would be treated as U.S. source income taxable to Mr. B under section 877 in that year.

Special rule for shift in risks of ownership

Section 877 applies to income and gains for the 10-year period following the loss of citizenship (or termination of residency, as applicable). For purposes of applying section 877, the House bill suspends this 10-year period for gains derived from a particular property during any period in which the individual's risk of loss with respect to such property is substantially diminished. For example, Ms. C loses her citizenship on January 1, 1996 and is subject to section 877. On that date Ms. C owns 10,000 shares of stock of a U.S. corporation, USCo, with a value of $1 million. On the same date Ms. C enters into an equity swap with respect to such USCo stock with a 5-year term. Under the transaction, Ms. C will transfer to the counter-party an amount equal to the dividends on the USCo stock and any increase in the value of the USCo stock for the 5-year period. The counter-party will transfer to Ms. C an amount equal to a market rate of interest on $1 million and any decrease in the value of the USCo stock for the same period. Ms. C's risk of loss with respect to the USCo stock is substantially diminished during the 5-year period in which the equity swap is in effect, and therefore, under the House bill, the 10-year period under section 877 is suspended during such period. Accordingly, under the House bill, if Ms. C sells her USCo stock for a gain on January 1, 2010, such gain would be treated as U.S. source income taxable to Ms. C under section 877. Such gain would not be subject to U.S. tax under present law.

Double tax relief

In order to avoid the double taxation of individuals subject to the expatriation tax provisions, the House bill provides a credit against the U.S. tax imposed under such provisions for any foreign income, gift, estate or similar taxes paid with respect to the items subject to such taxation. This credit is available only against the tax imposed solely as a result of the expatriation tax provisions, and is not available to be used to offset any other U.S. tax liability. For example, Mr. D loses his citizenship on January 1, 1996 and is subject to section 877. Mr. D becomes a resident of Country X. During 1996, Mr. D recognizes a $100,000 gain upon the sale of stock a U.S. corporation, USCo. Country X imposes $20,000 tax on this capital gain. But for the double tax relief provision, Mr. D would be subject to tax of $28,000 on this gain under section 877. However, Mr. D's U.S. tax under section 877 would be reduced by the $20,000 of foreign tax paid, and Mr. D's resulting U.S. tax on this gain would be $8,000.

Effect on tax treaties

While it is believed that the expatriation tax provisions, as amended by the House bill, are generally consistent with the underlying principles of income tax treaties to the extent the House bill provides a foreign tax credit for items taxed by another country, it is intended that the purpose of the expatriation tax provisions, as amended, not be defeated by any treaty provision. The Treasury Department is expected to review all outstanding treaties to determine whether the expatriation tax provisions, as revised, potentially conflict with treaty provisions and to eliminate any such potential conflicts through renegotiation of the affected treaties as necessary. Beginning on the tenth anniversary of the enactment of the House bill, any conflicting treaty provisions that remain in force would take precedence over the expatriation tax provisions as revised.

Required information reporting and sharing

Under the House bill, a U.S. citizen who loses his or her citizenship is required to provide a statement to the State Department (or other designated government entity) which includes the individual's social security number, forwarding foreign address, new country of residence and citizenship and, in the case of individuals with a net worth of at least $500,000, a balance sheet. The entity to which such statement is to be provided is required to provide to the Secretary of the Treasury copies of all statements received and the names of individuals who refuse to provide such statements. A long-term resident whose U.S. residency is terminated is required to attach a similar statement to his or her U.S. income tax return for the year of such termination. An individual's failure to provide the required statement results in the imposition of a penalty for each year the failure continues equal to the greater of (1) 5 percent of the individual's expatriation tax liability for such year, or (2) $1,000.

The House bill requires the State Department to provide the Secretary of the Treasury with a copy of each certificate of loss of nationality (CLN) approved by the State Department. Similarly, the House bill requires the agency administering the immigration laws to provide the Secretary of the Treasury with the name of each individual whose status as a lawful permanent resident has been revoked or has been determined to have been abandoned.

Further, the House bill requires the Secretary of the Treasury to publish in the Federal Register the names of all former U.S. citizens from whom it receives the required statements or whose names it receives under the foregoing information-sharing provisions.

Treasury report on tax compliance by U.S. citizens and residents living abroad

The Treasury Department is directed to undertake a study on the tax compliance of U.S. citizens and green-card holders residing outside the United States and to make recommendations regarding the improvement of such compliance. The findings of such study and such recommendations are required to be reported to the House Committee on Ways and Means and the Senate Committee on Finance within 90 days of the date of enactment.

During the course of the Joint Committee on Taxation staff study on expatriation, a specific issue was identified regarding the difficulty in determining when a U.S. citizen has committed an expatriating act with the requisite intent, and thus no longer has the obligation to continue to pay U.S. taxes on his or her worldwide income due to the fact that the individual is no longer a U.S. citizen. Neither the Immigration and Nationality Act nor any other Federal law requires an individual to request a CLN within a specified amount of time after an expatriating act has been committed, even though the expatriating act terminates the status of the individual as a U.S. citizen for all purposes, including the status of being subject to U.S. tax on worldwide income. Accordingly, it is anticipated that the Treasury report, in evaluating whether improved coordination between executive branch agencies could improve compliance with the requirements of the Internal Revenue Code, will review the process through which the State Department determines when citizenship has been lost, and make recommendations regarding changes to such process to recognize the importance of such date for tax purposes. In particular, it is anticipated that the Treasury Department will explore ways of working with the State Department to insure that the State Department will not issue a CLN confirming the commission of an expatriating act with the requisite intent necessary to terminate citizenship in the absence of adequate evidence of both the occurrence of the expatriating act (e.g., the joining of a foreign army) and the existence of the requisite intent.

Effective date

The expatriation tax provisions as modified by the House bill generally apply to any individual who loses U.S. citizenship on or after February 6, 1995, and any long-term residents whose U.S. residency is terminated on or after June 13, 1995. For citizens, the determination of the date of loss of citizenship remains the same as under present law (i.e., the date of loss of citizenship is the date of the expatriating act). However, a special transition rule applies to individuals who committed an expatriating act within one year prior to February 6, 1995, but had not applied for a CLN as of such date. Such an individual is subject to the expatriation tax provisions as amended by the House bill as of the date of application for the CLN, but is not retroactively liable for U.S. income taxes on his or her worldwide income. In order to qualify for the exceptions provided for individuals who fall within one of the specified categories, such individual is required to submit a ruling request within 1 year after the date of enactment of the House bill.

The special transition rule is illustrated by the following example. Mr. E joined a foreign army on October 1, 1994 with the intent to relinquish his U.S. citizenship, but Mr. E does not apply for a CLN until October 1, 1995. Mr. E would be subject to the expatriation tax provisions (as amended) for the 10-year period beginning on October 1, 1995. Moreover, if Mr. E falls within one of the specified categories (i.e., Mr. E is age 18 when he joins the foreign army), in order to qualify for the exception provided for such individuals, Mr. E would be required to submit his ruling request within 1 year after the date of enactment of the House bill. Mr. E would not, however, be liable for U.S. income taxes on his worldwide income for any period after October 1, 1994.

Senate amendment

In general

The Senate amendment replaces the present-law expatriation income tax rules with rules that generally subject certain U.S. citizens who relinquish their U.S. citizenship and certain long-term U.S. residents who relinquish their U.S. residency to tax on the net unrealized gain in their property as if such property were sold for fair market value on the expatriation date. The Senate amendment also imposes information reporting obligations on U.S. citizens who relinquish their citizenship and long-term residents whose U.S. residency is terminated.

Individuals covered

The Senate amendment applies the expatriation tax to certain U.S. citizens and long-term residents who terminate their U.S. citizenship or residency. For this purpose, a long-term resident is any individual who was a lawful permanent resident of the United States for at least 8 out of the 15 taxable years ending with the year in which the termination of residency occurs. In applying this 8-year test, an individual is not considered to be a lawful permanent resident of the United States for any year in which the individual is taxed as a resident of another country under a treaty tie-breaker rule. An individual's U.S. residency is considered to be terminated when either the individual ceases to be a lawful permanent resident pursuant to section 7701(b)(6) (i.e., the individual loses his or her green-card status) or the individual is treated as a resident of another country under a tie-breaker provision of a tax treaty (and the individual does not elect to waive the benefits of such treaty).

The expatriation tax under the Senate amendment applies only to individuals whose average income tax liability or net worth exceeds specified levels. U.S. citizens who lose their citizenship and long-term residents who terminate U.S. residency are subject to the expatriation tax if they meet either of the following tests: (1) the individual's average annual U.S. Federal income tax liability for the 5 taxable years ending before the date of such loss or termination is greater than $100,000, or (2) the individual's net worth as of the date of such loss or termination is $500,000 or more. The dollar amount thresholds contained in these tests are indexed for inflation in the case of a loss of citizenship or termination of residency occurring in any calendar year after 1996.

Exceptions from the expatriation tax under the Senate amendment are provided for individuals in two situations. The first exception applies to an individual who was born with citizenship both in the United States and in another country, provided that (1) as of the date of relinquishment of U.S. citizenship the individual continues to be a citizen of, and is taxed as a resident of, such other country, and (2) the individual was a resident of the United States for no more than 8 out of the 15 taxable years ending with the year in which the relinquishment of U.S. citizenship occurred. The second exception applies to a U.S. citizen who relinquishes citizenship before reaching age 18½, provided that the individual was a resident of the United States for no more than 5 taxable years before such relinquishment.

Deemed sale of property upon expatriation

Under the Senate amendment, individuals who are subject to the expatriation tax generally are treated as having sold all of their property at fair market value immediately prior to the relinquishment of citizenship or termination of residency. Gain or loss from the deemed sale of property is recognized at that time, generally without regard to provisions of the Code that would otherwise provide nonrecognition treatment. The net gain, if any, on the deemed sale of all such property is subject to U.S. tax at such time to the extent it exceeds $600,000 ($1.2 million in the case of married individuals filing a joint return, both of whom expatriate).

The deemed sale rule of the Senate amendment generally applies to all property interests held by the individual on the date of relinquishment of citizenship or termination of residency, provided that the gain on such property interest would be includible in the individual's gross income if such property interest were sold for its fair market value on such date. Special rules apply in the case of trust interests (see "Interests in trusts," below). U.S. real property interests, which remain subject to U.S. taxing jurisdiction in the hands of nonresident aliens, generally are excepted from the Senate amendment. An exception also applies to interests in qualified retirement plans and, subject to a limit of $500,000, interests in certain foreign pension plans as prescribed by regulations. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to issue regulations exempting other property interests as appropriate. For example, an exclusion may be provided for an interest in a nonqualified compensation plan of a U.S. employer, where payments from such plan to the individual following expatriation would continue to be subject to U.S. withholding tax.

Under the Senate amendment, an individual who is subject to the expatriation tax is required to pay a tentative tax equal to the amount of tax that would be due for a hypothetical short tax year ending on the date the individual relinquished citizenship or terminated residency. Thus, the tentative tax is based on all the income, gain, deductions, loss and credits of the individual for the year through such date, including amounts realized from the deemed sale of property. The tentative tax is due on the 90th day after the date of relinquishment of citizenship or termination of residency.

Deferral of payment of tax

Under the Senate amendment, an individual is permitted to elect to defer payment of the expatriation tax with respect to the deemed sale of any property. Under this election, the expatriation tax with respect to a particular property, plus interest thereon, is due when the property is subsequently disposed of. For this purpose, except as provided in regulations, the disposition of property in a nonrecognition transaction constitutes a disposition. In addition, if an individual holds property until his or her death, the individual is treated as having disposed of the property immediately before death. In order to elect deferral of the expatriation tax, the individual is required to provide adequate security to ensure that the deferred expatriation tax and interest ultimately will be paid. A bond in the amount of the deferred tax and interest constitutes adequate security. Other security mechanisms are also permitted provided that the individual establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury that the security is adequate. In the event that the security provided with respect to a particular property subsequently becomes inadequate and the individual fails to correct such situation, the deferred expatriation tax and interest with respect to such property will become due. As a further condition to making this election, the individual is required to consent to the waiver of any treaty rights that would preclude the collection of the expatriation tax.

Interests in trusts

In general

Under the Senate amendment, special rules apply to trust interests held by the individual at the time of relinquishment of citizenship or termination of residency. The treatment of trust interests depends upon whether the trust is a qualified trust. For this purpose, a "qualified trust" is a trust that is organized under and governed by U.S. law and that is required by its instruments to have at least one U.S. trustee.

Constructive ownership rules apply to a trust beneficiary that is a corporation, partnership, trust or estate. In such cases, the shareholders, partners or beneficiaries of the entity are deemed to be the direct beneficiaries of the trust for purposes of applying these provisions. In addition, an individual who holds (or who is treated as holding) a trust interest at the time of relinquishment of citizenship or termination of residency is required to disclose on his or her tax return the methodology used to determine his or her interest in the trust, and whether such individual knows (or has reason to know) that any other beneficiary of the trust uses a different method.

Nonqualified trusts

If an individual holds an interest in a trust that is not a qualified trust, a special rule applies for purposes of determining the amount of the expatriation tax due with respect to such trust interest. The individual's interest in the trust is treated as a separate trust consisting of the trust assets allocable to such interest. Such separate trust is treated as having sold its assets as of the date of relinquishment of citizenship or termination of residency and having distributed all proceeds to the individual, and the individual is treated as having recontributed such proceeds to the trust. The individual is subject to the expatriation tax with respect to any net income or gain arising from the deemed distribution from the trust. The election to defer payment is available for the expatriation tax attributable to a nonqualified trust interest.

A beneficiary's interest in a nonqualified trust is determined on the basis of all facts and circumstances. These include the terms of the trust instrument itself, any letter of wishes or similar document, historical patterns of trust distributions, and the role of any trust protector or similar advisor.

Qualified trusts

If the individual has an interest in a qualified trust, a different set of rules applies. Under these rules, the amount of unrealized gain allocable to the individual's trust interest is calculated at the time of expatriation. In determining this amount, all contingencies and discretionary interests are assumed to be resolved in the individual's favor (i.e., the individual is allocated the maximum amount that he or she potentially could receive under the terms of the trust instrument). The expatriation tax imposed on such gains generally is collected when the individual receives distributions from the trust, or, if earlier, upon the individual's death. Interest is charged for the period between the date of expatriation and the date on which the tax is paid.

If an individual has an interest in a qualified trust, the individual is subject to expatriation tax upon the receipt of any distribution from the trust. Such distributions may also be subject to U.S. income tax. For any distribution from a qualified trust made to an individual after he or she has expatriated, expatriation tax is imposed in an amount equal to the amount of the distribution multiplied by the highest tax rate generally applicable to trusts and estates, but in no event will the tax imposed exceed the deferred tax amount with respect to such trust interest. The "deferred tax amount" would be equal to (1) the tax calculated with respect to the unrealized gain allocable to the trust interest at the time of expatriation, (2) increased by interest thereon, and (3) reduced by the tax imposed under this provision with respect to prior trust distributions to the individual.

If an individual's interest in a trust is vested as of the expatriation date (e.g., if the individual's interest in the trust is non-contingent and non-discretionary), the gain allocable to the individual's trust interest is determined based on the trust assets allocable to his or her trust interest. If the individual's interest in the trust is not vested as of the expatriation date (e.g., if the individual's trust interest is a contingent or discretionary interest), the gain allocable to his or her trust interest is determined based on all of the trust assets that could be allocable to his or her trust interest, determined by resolving all contingencies and discretionary powers in the individual's favor. In the case where more than one trust beneficiary is subject to the expatriation tax with respect to trust interests that are not vested, the rules are intended to apply so that the same unrealized gain with respect to assets in the trust is not taxed to both individuals.

If the individual disposes of his or her trust interest, the trust ceases to be a qualified trust, or the individual dies, expatriation tax is imposed as of such date. The amount of such tax equal to the lesser of (1) the tax calculated under the rules for nonqualified trust interests applied as of such date or (2) the deferred tax amount with respect to the trust interest as of such date.

If the individual agrees to waive any treaty rights that would preclude collection of the tax, the tax is imposed under this provision with respect to distributions from a qualified trust to the individual deducted and withheld from distributions. If the individual does not agree to such a waiver of treaty rights, the tax with respect to distributions to the individual is imposed on the trust, the trustee is personally liable therefor, and any other beneficiary of the trust has a right of contribution against such individual with respect to such tax. Similarly, in the case of the tax imposed in connection with an individual's disposition of a trust interest, the individual's death while holding a trust interest or the individual's holding of an interest in a trust that ceases to be qualified, the tax is imposed on the trust, the trustee is personally liable therefor, and any other beneficiary of the trust has a right of contribution against such individual with respect to such tax.

Election to be treated as a U.S. citizen

Under the Senate amendment, an individual is permitted to make an irrevocable election to continue to be taxed as a U.S. citizen with respect to all property that otherwise is covered by the expatriation tax. This election is an "all-or-nothing" election; an individual is not permitted to elect this treatment for some property but not other property. The election, if made, applies to all property that would be subject to the expatriation tax and to any property the basis of which is determined by reference to such property. Under this election, the individual continues to pay U.S. income taxes at the rates applicable to U.S. citizens following expatriation on any income generated by the property and on any gain realized on the disposition of the property, as well as any excise tax imposed with respect to the property (see, e.g., sec. 1491). In addition, the property continues to be subject to U.S. gift, estate, and generation-skipping transfer taxes. However, the amount of any transfer tax so imposed is limited to the amount of income tax that would have been due if the property had been sold for its fair market value immediately before the transfer or death. The $600,000 exclusion provided with respect to the expatriation tax under the Senate amendment is available to reduce the tax imposed by reason of this election. In order to make this election, the taxpayer is required to waive any treaty rights that would preclude the collection of the tax. The individual is also required to provide security to ensure payment of the tax under this election in such form, manner, and amount as the Secretary of the Treasury requires.

Date of relinquishment of citizenship

Under the Senate amendment, an individual is treated as having relinquished U.S. citizenship on the date that the individual first makes known to a U.S. government or consular officer his or her intention to relinquish U.S. citizenship. Thus, a U.S. citizen who relinquishes citizenship by formally renouncing his or her U.S. nationality before a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States is treated as having relinquished citizenship on that date, provided that the renunciation is later confirmed by the issuance of a CLN. A U.S. citizen who furnishes to the State Department a signed statement of voluntary relinquishment of U.S. nationality confirming the performance of an expatriating act with the requisite interest to relinquish his or her citizenship is treated as having relinquished his or her citizenship on the date the statement is so furnished (regardless of when the expatriating act was performed), provided that the voluntary relinquishment is later confirmed by the issuance of a CLN. If neither of these circumstances exist, the individual is treated as having relinquished citizenship on the date a CLN is issued or a certificate of naturalization is cancelled. The date of relinquishment of citizenship determined under the Senate amendment applies for all tax purposes.

Effect on present-law expatriation provisions

Under the Senate amendment, the present-law income tax provisions with respect to U.S. citizens who expatriate with a principal purpose of avoiding tax (sec. 877) and certain aliens who have a break in residency status (sec. 7701(b)(10)) do apply to U.S. citizens who are treated as relinquishing their citizenship on or after February 6, 1995 or to long-term U.S. residents who terminate their residency on or after such date. The special estate and gift tax provisions with respect to individuals who expatriate with a principal purpose of avoiding tax (secs. 2107 and 2501(a)(3)), however, continue to apply; a credit against the tax imposed solely by reason of such special provisions is allowed for the expatriation tax imposed with respect to the same property.

Treatment of gifts and inheritances from an expatriate

Under the Senate amendment, the exclusion from income provided in section 102 does not apply to the value of any property received by gift or inheritance from an individual who was subject to the expatriation tax (i.e., an individual who relinquished citizenship or terminated residency and to whom the expatriation tax was applicable). Accordingly, a U.S. taxpayer who receives a gift or inheritance from such an individual is required to include the value of such gift or inheritance in gross income and is subject to U.S. income tax on such amount.

Required information reporting and sharing

Under the Senate amendment, an individual who relinquishes citizenship or terminates residency is required to provide a statement which includes the individual's social security number, forwarding foreign address, new country of residence and citizenship and, in the case of individuals with a net worth of at least $500,000, a balance sheet. In the case of a former citizen, such statement is due not later than the date the individual's citizenship is treated as relinquished and is to be provided to the State Department (or other government entity involved in the administration of such relinquishment). The entity to which the statement is to be provided by former citizens is required to provide to the Secretary of the Treasury copies of all statements received and the names of individuals who refuse to provide such statements. In the case of a former long-term resident, the statement is provided to the Secretary of the Treasury with the individual's tax return for the year in which the individual's U.S. residency is terminated. An individual's failure to provide the statement required under this provision results in the imposition of a penalty for each year the failure continues equal to the greater of (1) 5 percent of the individual's expatriation tax liability for such year or (2) $1,000.

The Senate amendment requires the State Department to provide the Secretary of the Treasury with a copy of each CLN approved by the State Department. Similarly, the Senate amendment requires the agency administering the immigration laws to provide the Secretary of the Treasury with the name of each individual whose status as a lawful permanent resident has been revoked or has been determined to have been abandoned.

Further, the Senate amendment requires the Secretary of the Treasury to publish in the Federal Register the names of all former U.S. citizens with respect to whom it receives the required statements or whose names it receives under the foregoing information-sharing provisions.

Effective date

The provision is effective for U.S. citizens whose date of relinquishment of citizenship (as determined under the Senate amendment, see "Date of relinquishment of citizenship" above) occurs on or after February 6, 1995. Similarly, the provision is effective for long-term residents who terminate their U.S. residency on or after February 6, 1995.

U.S. citizens who committed an expatriating act with the requisite intent to relinquish their U.S. citizenship prior to February 6, 1995, but whose date of relinquishment of citizenship (as determined under the Senate amendment) does not occur until after such date, are subject to the expatriation tax under the Senate amendment as of date of relinquishment of citizenship. However, the individual is not subject retroactively to worldwide tax as a U.S. citizen for the period after he or she committed the expatriating act (and therefore ceased being a U.S. citizen for tax purposes under present law). Such an individual continues to be subject to the expatriation tax imposed by present-law section 877 until the individual's date of relinquishment of citizenship (at which time the individual would be subject to the expatriation tax of the Senate amendment). The rules described in this paragraph do not apply to an individual who committed an expatriating act prior to February 6, 1995, but did not do so with the requisite intent to relinquish his or her U.S. citizenship.

The tentative tax is not required to be paid, and the reporting requirements would not be required to be met, until 90 days after the date of enactment. Such provisions apply to all individuals whose date of relinquishment of U.S. citizenship or termination of U.S. residency occurs on or after February 6, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill with modifications. Under the conference agreement, the expatriation tax provisions apply both to U.S. citizens who lose citizenship on or after February 6, 1995, and to long-term residents whose U.S. residency is terminated on or after February 6, 1995. The information reporting provisions apply to U.S. citizens who lose citizenship and long-term residents whose U.S. residency is terminated on or after February 6, 1995. The conference agreement does not include the provisions of the House bill with respect to the publication of the names of expatriates in the Federal Register and the direction to the Treasury Department to study tax compliance by individuals living abroad.

12. REPEAL ADVANCE REFUNDS OF DIESEL FUEL TAX FOR DIESEL AUTOMOBILES, VANS, AND LIGHT TRUCKS (SEC. 13638 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12831 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Excise taxes are imposed on gasoline (11.5 cents per gallon) and diesel fuel (17.5 cents per gallon) to fund the Federal Highway Trust Fund. Before 1985, the gasoline and diesel fuel tax rates were the same. The predominate highway use of diesel fuel is by trucks. In 1984, the diesel excise tax rate was increased above the gasoline tax rate as the revenue offset for a reduction in the annual heavy truck excise tax. Because automobiles, vans, and light trucks did not benefit from the use tax reduction, a provision was enacted allowing first purchasers of model year 1979 and later diesel-powered automobiles, vans, and light trucks a tax credit to offset this increased diesel fuel tax. The credit is $102 for automobiles, and $198 for vans and light trucks.

House bill

The House bill repeals the advance refunds of diesel tax for purchasers of diesel-powered automobiles, vans, and light trucks.

Effective date.—Vehicles purchased after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

13. REPEAL WINE AND FLAVORS TAX CREDIT (SEC. 12832 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Producers of distilled spirits are allowed a tax credit for the alcohol contained in products that are (1) derived from fruit (i.e., "wine") or (2) attributable to certain flavorings.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment repeals the wine and flavors tax credit (i.e., taxes all alcohol in distilled spirits products at the statutory $13.50-per-proof-gallon rate).

Effective date.—January 1, 1996.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the Senate amendment.

14. MODIFICATIONS TO THE EXCISE TAX ON OZONE-DEPLETING CHEMICALS (SEC. 12833 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

An excise tax is imposed on the sale or use by the manufacturer or importer of certain ozone-depleting chemicals (Code sec. 4681). Taxable chemicals that are recovered and recycled within the United States are exempt from tax.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment extends the exemption from tax for domestically recovered and recycled ozone-depleting chemicals to imported recycled halons. The exemption for imported recycled halons applies only to such chemicals imported from countries that are signatories to the Montreal Protocol.

Effective date.—Date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

15. ALLOW CERTAIN PERSONS TO ELECT NOT TO BE ELIGIBLE FOR FUTURE TAX-EXEMPT BOND FINANCING (SEC. 12834 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Tax-exempt bonds may be issued to benefit private businesses engaged in the furnishing of electric energy or gas if the business' service area does not exceed (1) two contiguous counties or (2) a city and one contiguous county. These businesses are described as engaged in the local furnishing of electricity or gas.

If certain disqualifying events occur after these and other private activity tax- exempt bonds are issued, (1) interest on the bonds may become taxable, and (2) interest paid by the private parties on bond-financed loans becomes nondeductible. Expansion of the service area of a person engaged in these local furnishing activities beyond the permitted geographic areas, described above, is a disqualifying event.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment allows private businesses engaged in the local furnishing of electricity or gas to expand their service areas beyond the geographic bounds allowed under present law without penalty if:

(1) No additional tax-exempt bonds are issued after the date of the amendment's enactment for any facilities to be used by them;

(2) Outstanding tax-exempt bonds benefiting the electing persons are redeemed on the earliest date allowed under the bond documents; and

(3) No tax-exempt bonds are used to finance the service area expansion.

In addition, availability of tax-exempt private activity bond financing under the exception for facilities of private persons engaged in the local furnishing of electricity or gas is limited to financing for facilities used in qualified businesses being conducted by such persons on the date of the amendment's enactment.

Effective date.—Date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment. The conferees wish to clarify two points regarding this provision. First, an election to terminate a person's status as engaged in the local furnishing of electricity or gas is independent of, and has no relation to, the determination of whether transmission of electricity pursuant to certain Federal Energy Regulatory Commission orders (sec. 142(f)(2)) violates the local furnishing exception. Second, the provision precluding new entities from qualifying as engaged in the local furnishing of electricity or gas is not intended to preclude qualification of successor entities resulting from corporate reorganizations where the area served remains unchanged and there is common ownership of both the predecessor and successor entities.

16. TAX-EXEMPT BONDS FOR THE SALE OF ALASKA POWER ADMINISTRATION FACILITY (SEC. 12835 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Tax-exempt bonds may be issued for the benefit of certain private electric utilities. If the bonds are used to finance acquisition of existing property by these utilities, a minimum amount of rehabilitation must be performed on the property as a condition of receiving the tax-exempt bond financing.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment waives the rehabilitation requirement in the case of bonds to be issued as part of sale of the Snettisham facility by the Alaska Power Administration.

Effective date.—Bonds issued after date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

17. MODIFY TREATMENT OF FOREIGN TRUSTS (SECS. 12841–12846 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Inbound foreign grantor trust rules

Under the grantor trust rules (secs. 671-679), a grantor that retains certain rights or powers generally is treated as the owner of the trust's assets without regard to whether the grantor is a domestic or foreign person. Under these rules, U.S. trust beneficiaries can avoid U.S. tax on distributions from a trust where a foreign grantor is treated as owner of the trust, even though no tax may be imposed on the trust income by any jurisdiction. In addition, a special rule treats a U.S. beneficiary of an inbound grantor trust who transferred property to the foreign grantor by gift of a portion of the trust as a grantor of the trust to the extent of the transfer.

Foreign nongrantor trust rules

Under the accumulation distribution rules (which generally apply to distributions from a trust in excess of the trust's distributable net income for the taxable year), a distribution by a foreign nongrantor trust of previously accumulated income generally is taxed at the U.S. beneficiary's average marginal rate for the prior 5 years, plus interest (secs. 666, 667). Interest is computed at a fixed annual rate of 6 percent, with no compounding (sec. 668). If adequate records of the trust are not available to determine the proper application of the rules relating to accumulation distributions to any distribution from a trust, the distribution is treated as an accumulation distribution out of income earned during the first year of the trust (sec. 666(d)).

If a foreign nongrantor trust makes a loan to one of its beneficiaries, the principal of such a loan generally is not taxable as income to the beneficiary.

Outbound foreign grantor trust rules

Under the grantor trust rules, a U.S. person who transfers property to a foreign trust generally is treated as the owner of the portion of the trust comprising that property for any taxable year in which there is a U.S. beneficiary of any portion of the trust (sec. 679(a)). This treatment generally does not apply, however, to transfers by reason of death, to transfers made before the transferor became a U.S. person, or to sales or exchanges of property at fair market value where gain is recognized to the transferor.

Residence of estates and trusts

An estate or trust is treated as foreign if it is not subject to U.S. income taxation on its income that is neither derived from U.S. sources nor effectively connected with the conduct of a U.S. trade or business. Thus, if a trust is taxed in a manner similar to a nonresident alien individual, it is considered to be a foreign trust. Any other estate or trust is treated as domestic.

Section 1491 generally imposes a 35-percent excise tax on a U.S. person that transfers appreciated property to certain foreign entities, including a foreign trust. In the case of a domestic trust that changes its situs and becomes a foreign trust, it is unclear whether property has been transferred from a U.S. person to a foreign entity, and, thus, whether the transfer is subject to the excise tax.

Information reporting requirements and associated penalties

Any U.S. person who creates a foreign trust or transfers money or property to a foreign trust is required to report that event to the IRS without regard to whether the trust is a grantor or a nongrantor trust. Similarly, any U.S. person who transfers property to a foreign trust that has one or more U.S. beneficiaries is required to report annually to the IRS. In addition, if the transfer of any appreciated property by a U.S. person is subject to section 1491, the transferor is required to report the transfer to the IRS.

Any person who fails to file a required report with respect to the creation of, or a transfer to, a foreign trust may be subjected to a penalty of 5 percent of the amount transferred to the foreign trust. Similarly, any person who fails to file a required annual report with respect to a foreign trust with U.S. beneficiaries may be subjected to a penalty of 5 percent of the value of the corpus of the trust at the close of the taxable year. The maximum amount of the penalty imposed under either case may not exceed $1,000. A reasonable cause exception is available.

Reporting of certain foreign gifts

There is no requirement to report gifts or bequests from foreign sources.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Inbound foreign grantor trust rules

The Senate amendment generally applies the grantor trust rules only to the extent that they result, directly or indirectly, in amounts being currently taken into account in computing the income of a U.S. citizen or resident or a domestic corporation. Certain exceptions apply to this general rule. Under the exceptions, the general rule does not apply in the case of revocable trusts and trusts where the only amounts distributable during the lifetime of the grantor are to the grantor or the grantor's spouse. These exceptions do not apply to the extent of gifts made by a U.S. beneficiary of the trust to the foreign grantor. The provision also does not apply to trusts established to pay compensation, and certain trusts in existence as of September 19, 1995 provided such trust is treated as owned by the grantor or another person under section 676 or 677 (other than sec. 677(a)(3)). The exception does not apply to the portion of any such trust attributable to any transfers made after September 19, 1995.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Foreign nongrantor trust rules

Under the Senate amendment, the interest rate applicable to accumulation distributions from foreign nongrantor trusts is the interest rate applicable to underpayments of tax under section 6621(a)(2), with compounding. Simple interest continues to accrue at the rate of 6 percent through 1995. Beginning on January 1, 1996, compound interest based on the underpayment rate will be imposed on tax amounts determined under the accumulation distribution rules and the total simple interest for pre-1996 periods, if any. For purposes of computing the interest charge, the accumulation distribution is allocated proportionately to prior trust years in which the trust has undistributed net income (and the beneficiary receiving the distribution was a U.S. citizen or resident), rather than to the earliest of such years.

Effective date.—The provision applies to distributions after the date of enactment.

Under the Senate amendment, the full amount of a loan of cash or marketable securities by the foreign nongrantor trust to a U.S. grantor or a U.S. beneficiary (or a U.S. person related to such a grantor or beneficiary) is treated as distributed to the grantor or beneficiary, even if the loan bears interest at an adequate rate and is subsequently repaid.

Effective date.—The provision applies to loans made after September 19, 1995.

Outbound foreign grantor trust rules

The Senate amendment treats a nonresident alien individual who transfers property to a foreign trust and then becomes a U.S. resident within 5 years after the transfer as making a transfer to the foreign trust on his residency starting date. Under the Senate amendment, in determining whether a foreign trust paid fair market value to the transferor for property transferred to the trust, obligations issued by the trust, by any grantor or beneficiary of the trust, or by any person related to any grantor or beneficiary generally are not taken into account except as provided in regulations. The Senate amendment grants broad authority to the Secretary of the Treasury to treat anyone who was a U.S. person at any time during the existence of the trust as a U.S. person in determining whether there are U.S. beneficiaries of the trust.

Effective date.—The provision applies to transfers of property after February 6, 1995.

Residence of estates and trusts

The Senate amendment establishes a two-part objective test for determining whether a trust is foreign or domestic for tax purposes. If both parts of the test are satisfied, the trust is treated as domestic. Only the first part of the test applies to estates. First, if a U.S. court exercises primary supervision over the administration of the estate or trust, the estate or trust is treated as domestic. Second, if one or more U.S. fiduciaries have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust, the trust is treated as domestic.

Under the Senate amendment, if a domestic trust changes its situs and becomes a foreign trust, the trust is treated as having made a transfer of its assets to the foreign trust and is subject to the 35-percent excise tax imposed by present-law section 1491 unless one of the exceptions to this excise tax is applicable.

Effective date.—The provision modifying the rules to determine the residence of a trust or estate is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1996. A trustee may elect to apply the provision to taxable years ending after the date of enactment. The amendment to section 1491 is effective on the date of enactment.

Information reporting requirements and associated penalties

Under the Senate amendment, the grantor, transferor or executor (the "responsible party") is required to notify the Treasury department upon the occurrence of certain reportable events: the creation of a foreign trust by a U.S. person, the transfer of money or property to a foreign trust by a U.S. person and the death of a U.S. citizen or U.S. resident if any portion of a foreign trust was included in the gross estate of the decedent. In addition, a U.S. owner of any portion of a foreign trust is required to ensure that the trust files an annual report with the Treasury department to provide full accounting of all the trust activities for the taxable year. Finally, any U.S. person who receives any distribution from a foreign trust is required to file a notice with the Treasury department to report the aggregate amount of the distributions received during the taxable year.

The Senate amendment provides that if a U.S. owner of any portion of a foreign trust fails to appoint a limited U.S. agent to accept service of process with respect to requests and summons by the Secretary of the Treasury in connection with tax treatment of items related to the trust, the Secretary of the Treasury may determine, in its sole discretion, the amount to be taken into account by a U.S. person under the grantor trust rules. In cases where adequate records are not provided to the Treasury department to determine the proper treatment of any distributions from a foreign trust, the distribution includible in the gross income of the distributee will be treated as an accumulation distribution from a foreign trust, unless the foreign trust elects to have a U.S. agent for the limited purpose of accepting service of process (as described above).

Under the Senate amendment, a person who fails to provide the required notice in cases involving the transfer of property to any foreign trust, or a distribution by a foreign trust to a U.S. person, is subject to an initial penalty equal to 35 percent of the "gross reportable amount" (generally the value of the property involved in the transaction). A failure to provide an annual reporting of trust activities will result in an initial penalty equal to 5 percent of the gross reportable amount. An additional $10,000 penalty is imposed for continued failure for each 30-day period beginning 90 days after the Secretary of the Treasury notifies the responsible party of such failure. Such penalties are subject to a reasonable cause exception. In no event will the total amount of penalties exceed the gross reportable amount.

Effective date.—The reporting requirements and applicable penalties generally apply to reportable events occurring or distributions received after the date of enactment. The annual reporting requirement and penalties applicable to U.S. grantors apply to taxable years of such persons beginning after the date of enactment.

Reporting of certain foreign gifts

The Senate amendment generally requires any U.S. person (other than certain tax-exempt organizations) that receives purported gifts or bequests from foreign sources totaling more than $10,000 during the taxable year to report them to the Treasury department. If the U.S. person fails, without reasonable cause, to report foreign gifts as required, the U.S. person will be subject to a penalty equal to 5 percent of the amount of the gift for each month that the failure continues, with the total penalty not to exceed 25 percent of such amount. In addition, certain sanctions may apply.

Effective date.—This provision applies to amounts received after the date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with modifications and clarifications.

Inbound foreign grantor trust rules

The conference agreement clarifies that a foreign corporation that is otherwise a passive foreign investment company ("PFIC") as defined in section 1296 may not avoid PFIC characterization under the grantor trust rules (e.g., by transferring its assets to a grantor trust).

The conference agreement modifies the Senate amendment by providing that the rule which treats a U.S. beneficiary of an inbound grantor trust who transferred property to the foreign grantor by gift as a grantor of the trust to the extent of the transfer applies without regard to whether the foreign grantor would otherwise be treated as the owner of any portion of such trust. This provision is designed to prevent the use of pre-immigration gifts to avoid the application of the grantor trust rules.

Foreign nongrantor trust rules

Under the Senate amendment, the full amount of a loan of cash or marketable securities by a foreign nongrantor trust to a U.S. grantor or a U.S. beneficiary (or a U.S. person related to such a grantor or beneficiary) is treated as distributed to the grantor or beneficiary, even if the loan bears interest at an adequate rate and is subsequently repaid. The conference agreement provides that the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe regulations providing exceptions to this rule. The conferees intend that a loan that bears arm's-length terms would qualify for such an exception.

Outbound foreign grantor trust rules

Under the Senate amendment, in determining whether a foreign trust paid fair market value to the transferor for property transferred to the trust, obligations issued by the trust, by any grantor or beneficiary of the trust, or by any person related to any grantor or beneficiary generally are not taken into account except as provided in regulations. The conferees intend to clarify that an obligation that bears arm's-length terms would qualify for such an exception.

The conference agreement deletes the provision of the Senate amendment that grants broad authority to the Secretary of the Treasury to treat anyone who was a U.S. person at any time during the existence of the trust as a U.S. person in determining whether there are U.S. beneficiaries of the trust.

Information reporting requirements and associated reporting penalties

Transfers to certain nonexempt trusts

The Senate amendment requires the grantor, transferor, or executor to notify the Treasury department upon the occurrence of certain reportable events: the creation of a foreign trust by a U.S. person, the transfer of money or property to a foreign trust by a U.S. person, and the death of a U.S. citizen or U.S. resident if any portion of a foreign trust was included in the gross estate of the decedent. The conference agreement modifies the Senate amendment and excludes from the definition of reportable events any such occurrence with respect to a nonexempt employees' trust that is described in section 402(b).

Sanction for failure to appoint limited U.S. agent

The Senate amendment provides that if a U.S. owner of any portion of a foreign trust fails to appoint a limited U.S. agent to accept service of process with respect to requests and summons by the Secretary of the Treasury in connection with the tax treatment of items related to the trust, the Secretary of the Treasury may determine, in its sole discretion, the amount to be taken into account by a U.S. person under the grantor trust rules. Under the conference agreement, in cases where a U.S. grantor of a foreign trust does not appoint such a limited agent, the Secretary of the Treasury may determine the amount to be taken into account by a U.S. person under the grantor trust rules. In this regard, the conferees intend that the Treasury Secretary's exercise of its authority to make such a determination will be subject to judicial review under an arbitrary or capricious standard, which accordingly provides a high degree of deference to such determination.

Sanction for failure to maintain adequate records

The conference agreement clarifies the provision of the Senate amendment which provides that in cases where adequate records are not provided to the Treasury department to determine the proper treatment of any distributions from a foreign trust, the distribution includible in the gross income of the distributee generally will be treated as an accumulation distribution includible in the gross income of the distributee from a foreign trust. Under the conference agreement, when a U.S. distributee does not provide sufficient records, the accumulation distribution is deemed to come from the trust's average year (i.e., the number of years that the trust has been in existence divided by two) for purposes of computing the interest charge applicable to such distribution.

Reporting of certain foreign gifts

The Senate amendment generally requires any U.S. person (other than certain tax-exempt organizations) that receives purported gifts or bequests from foreign sources totaling more than $10,000 during the taxable year to report them to the Treasury department. Under the conference agreement, the threshold for this reporting requirement is indexed for inflation.

18. TREATMENT OF FINANCIAL ASSET SECURITIZATION INVESTMENT TRUSTS ("FASITS") (SEC. 12851 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

An individual can own income-producing assets directly, or indirectly through an entity (i.e., a corporation, partnership, or trust). Where an individual owns assets through an entity (e.g., a corporation), the nature of the interest in the entity (e.g., stock of a corporation) is different than the nature of the assets held by the entity (e.g., assets of the corporation).

Securitization is the process of converting one type of asset into another and generally involves the use of an entity separate from the underlying assets. In the case of securitization of debt instruments, the instruments created in the securitization typically have different maturities and characteristics than the debt instruments that are securitized.

Entities used in securitization include entities that are subject to tax (e.g., a corporation), conduit entities that generally are not subject to tax (e.g., a partnership, grantor trust, or real estate mortgage investment conduit ("REMIC")), or partial-conduit entities that generally are subject to tax only to the extent income is not distributed to owners (e.g., a trust, real estate investment trust ("REIT"), or regulated investment company ("RIC")).

There is no statutory entity that facilitates the securitization of revolving, non-mortgage debt obligations.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment creates a new type of statutory entity called a "financial asset securitization investment trust" ("FASIT") that facilitates the securitization of debt obligations such as credit card receivables, home equity loans, and auto loans. A FASIT generally will not be taxable; the FASIT's taxable income or net loss will flow through to the owner of the FASIT.

The ownership interest of a FASIT generally will be required to be entirely held by a single domestic C corporation. In addition, a FASIT generally may hold only qualified debt obligations, and certain other specified assets, and will be subject to certain restrictions on its activities. An entity that qualifies as a FASIT can issue instruments that meet certain specified requirements and treat those instruments as debt for Federal income tax purposes. Instruments issued by a FASIT bearing yields to maturity over 5 percentage points above the yield to maturity on specified United States government obligations (i.e., "high-yield interests") may be held only by domestic C corporations that are not exempt from income tax.

Effective date.—The provisions take effect on the date of enactment.

Conference agreement

In general

The conference agreement adopts the provisions of the Senate amendment with modifications. Thus, the conference agreement creates a new type of statutory entity called a "financial asset securitization investment trust" ("FASIT") that facilitates the securitization of debt obligations such as credit card receivables, home equity loans, and auto loans. A FASIT generally will not be taxable; the FASIT's taxable income or net loss will flow through to the owner of the FASIT.

The ownership interest of a FASIT generally will be required to be entirely held by a single domestic C corporation. The conferees expect that the Treasury Department will issue guidance on how this rule would apply to cases in which the entity that owns the FASIT join in the filing of a consolidated return with other members of the group that wish to hold an ownership interest in the FASIT. In addition, a FASIT generally may hold only qualified debt obligations, and certain other specified assets, and will be subject to certain restrictions on its activities. An entity that qualifies as a FASIT can issue instruments that meet certain specified requirements and treat those instruments as debt for Federal income tax purposes. Instruments issued by a FASIT bearing yields to maturity over 5 percentage points above the yield to maturity on specified United States government obligations (i.e., "high-yield interests") may be held only by domestic C corporations that are not exempt from income tax.

Qualification as a FASIT

In general

To qualify as a FASIT an entity must: (1) make an election to be treated as a FASIT for the year of the election and all subsequent years; (2) have assets substantially all of which (including assets that the FASIT is treated as owning because they support regular interests) are specified types called "permitted assets;" (3) have non-ownership interests be certain specified types of debt instruments called "regular interests"; (4) have a single ownership interest which is held by an "eligible holder"; and (5) not qualify as a RIC.[69]

Election to be a FASIT

Once an election to be a FASIT is made, the election applies for that year and all subsequent years until the entity ceases to be [69] The Senate amendment also required that an entity cannot be a FASIT if any person other than the FASIT's owner holds the right to receive excess servicing fees with respect to permitted debt instruments. The conference agreement deleted this requirement in favor of a requirement that gain on retained servicing fees and other stripped interests be recognized.

a FASIT.[70] Once an entity ceases to be a FASIT, it is not a FASIT for that year or any subsequent year. Nonetheless, an entity can continue to be a FASIT where the Treasury Department determines that the entity inadvertently ceases to be a FASIT, steps are taken reasonably soon after it is discovered that the entity ceased being a FASIT so that it again qualifies as a FASIT, and the FASIT and its owner take those steps that the Treasury Department deems necessary. If an election to be a FASIT is made after the initial year of an entity, all of the assets in the entity at the time of the FASIT election are deemed contributed to the FASIT at that time and, accordingly, any gain (but not loss) on such assets will be recognized at that time.

Permitted assets

In general.—For an entity or arrangement to qualify as a FASIT, substantially all of its assets must consist of the following "permitted assets": [71] (1) cash and cash equivalents; [72] (2) certain permitted debt instruments; (3) certain foreclosure property; (4) certain instruments or contracts that represent a hedge or guarantee of debt held or issued by the FASIT; and (5) contract rights to acquire permitted debt instruments or hedges. A FASIT must meet the asset test at the 90th day after its formation and at all times thereafter. Permitted assets may be acquired at any time by a FASIT, including any time after its formation.

Permitted debt instruments.—A debt instrument will be a permitted asset only if the instrument is indebtedness for Federal income tax purposes and it bears (1) fixed interest or (2) variable interest of a type that relates to qualified variable rate debt (as defined in Treasury regulations prescribed under sec. 860G(a)(1)(B)). Except for cash equivalents, permitted debt obligations cannot be obligations issued, directly or indirectly, by the owner of the FASIT or a related person.

Foreclosure property.—Permitted assets include property acquired on default (or imminent default) of debt instruments held by the FASIT that would be foreclosure property to a REIT (under sec. 856(e)) or would be foreclosure property to a REIT but for certain leases entered into or construction performed (as described in sec. 856(e)(4)) while held by the FASIT.

Hedges.—Permitted assets include interest rate or foreign currency notional principal contracts, letters of credit, insurance, guarantees against payment defaults, or other similar instruments as permitted under Treasury regulations, which are reasonably required to guarantee or hedge against the FASIT's risks associated with being the obligor of regular interests.

[70] The Senate amendment required that the election to be a FASIT must be made on its return for its first year. The conference agreement deleted this rule.

[71] The conference agreement deleted the provision in the Senate amendment that included a partnership interest as a permitted asset if all of the assets of the partnership are permitted debt instruments and the partnership interest provides the partner with an undivided interest in those permitted debt instruments.

[72] The Senate amendment provided that permitted assets included investments of amounts received from permitted debt obligations for a temporary period before distributions to regular and ownership interests in the FASIT. The conference agreement expanded the definition of permitted assets to include cash and cash equivalents and deleted the category for temporary period investments.

"Regular interests" of a FASIT

Under the conference agreement, "regular interests," including "high-yield interests," of a FASIT are treated as debt for Federal income tax purposes regardless of whether instruments with similar terms issued by non-FASITs might be characterized as equity under general tax principles. To be treated as a "regular interest," an instrument must have fixed terms and must: (1) unconditionally entitle the holder to receive a specified principal amount; (2) pay interest that is based on (a) one or more rates that are fixed, (b) rates that measure contemporaneous variations in the cost of newly borrowed funds, or (c) to the extent permitted by Treasury regulations, variable rates allowed to regular interests of a REMIC if the FASIT would otherwise qualify as a REMIC; (3) have a term to maturity of no more than 30 years, except as permitted by Treasury regulations; (4) be issued to the public with a premium of not more than 25 percent of its stated principal amount; and (5) have a yield to maturity at issue of no more than 5 percentage points above the applicable Federal rate (AFR) for the calendar month in which the instrument is issued.

A FASIT also may issue high-yield debt instruments, which includes any debt instrument issued by a FASIT that meets the second and third conditions described above, so long as such interests are not held by a disqualified holder. A "disqualified holder" generally is any holder other than (1) a domestic C corporation that does not qualify as a RIC, REIT, REMIC, or cooperative [73] or (2) a dealer who acquires FASIT debt for resale to customers in the ordinary course of business.[74] An excise tax is imposed at the highest corporate rate on a dealer if there is a change in dealer status or if the holding of the instrument is for investment purposes. A 31-day grace period is granted before ownership of an interest held by a dealer generally could be treated as held by the FASIT owner for investment purposes.

Permitted ownership holder

A permitted holder of the ownership interest in a FASIT generally is a non-exempt domestic C corporation, other than a corporation that qualifies as a RIC, REIT, REMIC, or cooperative.

Transfers to non-permitted holders of high-yield interest

A transfer of a high-yield interest to a disqualified holder is to be ignored for Federal income tax purposes. Thus, such a transferor will continue to be liable for any taxes due with respect to the transferred interest.

[73] The Senate amendment did not include cooperatives as a disqualified holder. The conferees believe that cooperatives also should be treated as disqualified holders since cooperatives, like RICs and REITs, are treated as pass-through entities and, also like the owners of RIC's and REITs, the cooperative's members and patrons need not be C corporations.

[74] The Senate amendment also excluded from a disqualified holder a dealer in goods and services provided that the permitted debt instruments in the FASIT exclusively were loans made by a dealer in the ordinary course of his business to finance the dealer's goods or services. The conference agreement deleted this rule. In addition, in the case of a securities dealer which may be an eligible holder, the conferees understand that the mark-to-market rule of section 475 will not apply to an ownership interest in a FASIT or assets held in the FASIT.

Taxation of a FASIT

In general

A FASIT generally is not subject to tax. Instead, all of the FASIT's assets and liabilities are treated as assets and liabilities of the FASIT's owner and any income, gain, deduction or loss of the FASIT is allocable directly to its owner.[75] Any securities held by the FASIT that are treated as held its owner are treated as held for investment. The taxable income of a FASIT is calculated using an accrual method of accounting. The constant yield method and principles that apply for purposes of determining OID accrual on debt obligations whose principal is subject to acceleration apply to all debt obligations held by a FASIT to calculate the FASIT's interest and discount income and premium deductions or adjustments. For this purpose, a FASIT's income does not include any income subject to the 100-percent penalty excise tax on prohibited transactions and a deduction is allowed for the corporate tax paid on income from foreclosure property.

Income from foreclosure property

A FASIT is subject to tax at the highest corporate rate on net income from any foreclosure property that was acquired in connection with the default or imminent default of a permitted debt obligation. For this purpose, property is foreclosure property if it would be foreclosure property to a REIT, determined without the special rules for leased property or property under construction (sec. 856(e)(4)). Foreclosure property does not include property acquired pursuant to a security interest that was created for the principal purpose of having the FASIT acquire such property.

Income from prohibited transactions

In addition to any tax on foreclosure property, a FASIT is required to pay a penalty excise tax equal to 100 percent of net income derived from (1) an asset that is not a permitted asset, (2) any disposition of an asset other than a permitted disposition, (3) any income attributable to loans originated by the FASIT,[76] and (4) compensation for services (other than fees for a waiver, amendment, or consent under permitted assets not acquired through foreclosure). A permitted disposition is any disposition (1) arising from complete liquidation of a class of regular interests (i.e., a qualified liquidation), (2) incident to the foreclosure, default, or imminent default of the asset, (3) incident to the bankruptcy or insolvency of the FASIT, (4) necessary to avoid a default on any indebtedness of the FASIT attributable to a default (or imminent default) on an asset of the FASIT, (4) to facilitate a clean-up call, or (5) to substitute a permitted debt instrument for another such instrument in order to reduce over-collateralization where a principal purpose of the disposition was not to avoid recognition of gain arising from an increase in its market value after its acquisition by the FASIT.

[75] The Senate amendment required that the taxable income of a FASIT generally is calculated as if it were a partnership. The conference agreement deleted this rule in favor of a rule stating that the FASIT's owner include all of the FASIT's assets, liabilities, income, gain, deductions, losses and credits in computing its Federal income tax since the Senate amendment's partnership rule might result in unexpected erroneous consequences where the FASIT can have only one owner. The conference agreement retained the rule of the Senate amendment that treats tax-exempt interest to the FASIT as taxable ordinary income to the FASIT owner. The Senate amendment required that the FASIT have the same taxable year as its owner. The conference agreement deleted this requirement as unnecessary in light of the conference agreement's adoption of a flow-through rule in lieu of the partnership rule.

[76] The conference agreement added this rule.

Taxation of interests in the FASIT

Taxation of holders of regular interests

In general.—A holder of a regular interest, including a high-yield interest, is taxed in the same manner as a holder of any other debt instrument, except that the regular interest holder is required to account for income relating to the interest on an accrual method of accounting, regardless of the method of accounting otherwise used by the holder.

High-yield interests.—Holders of high-yield interests are not allowed to use net operating losses to offset any income derived from the high-yield debt. Any net operating loss carryover shall be computed by disregarding any income arising by reason of the disallowed loss.

In addition, a transfer of a high-yield interest to a disqualified holder is not recognized for Federal income tax purposes such that the transferor will continue to be taxed on the income from the high-yield interest unless the transferee provides the transferor with an affidavit that the transferee is not a disqualified person or the Treasury Secretary determines that the high-yield interest is no longer held by a disqualified person and a corporate tax has been paid on the income from the high-yield interest while it was held by a disqualified person. High-yield interests may be held without a corporate tax being imposed on the income from the high-yield interest where the interest is held by a dealer in securities who acquired such high-yield interest for sale in the ordinary course of his business as a securities dealer. In such a case, a corporate tax is imposed on such a dealer if his reason for holding the high-yield interest changes to investment. There is a presumption that the dealer has not changed his intent for holding high-yield instruments to investment for the first 31 days he holds such interests unless such holding is part of a plan to avoid the restriction on holding of high-yield interests by disqualified persons.

Where a pass-through entity (other than a FASIT) issues either debt or equity instruments that are supported by regular interests in a FASIT and such instruments bear a yield to maturity greater than the yield on the regular interests or the applicable Federal rate plus 5 percentage points, then an excise tax is imposed on the pass-through entity at a rate equal to the highest corporate rate on the income of any holder of such instrument attributable to the regular interests.[77]

Taxation of holder of ownership interest

All of the FASIT's assets and liabilities are treated as assets and liabilities of the holder of a FASIT ownership interest and that owner takes into account all of the FASIT's income, gain, deduction, or loss in computing its taxable income or net loss for the taxable year. The character of the income to the holder of an ownership interest is the same as its character to the FASIT, except tax-exempt interest is taken into income of the holder as ordinary income.

[77] The conference agreement added this provision.

Losses on assets contributed to the FASIT are not allowed upon their contribution, but may be allowed to the FASIT owner upon their disposition by the FASIT. A special rule provides that the holder of a FASIT ownership interest cannot offset income from the FASIT ownership interest with any other losses. Any net operating loss carryover of the FASIT owner shall be computed by disregarding any income arising by reason of a disallowed loss.

For purposes of the alternative minimum tax, the owner's taxable income is determined without regard to the minimum FASIT income. The alternative minimum taxable income of the FASIT owner cannot be less than the FASIT income for that year, and the alternative minimum tax net operating loss deduction is computed without regard to the minimum FASIT income.

Transfers to and distributions from FASITs

Gain generally is recognized immediately by the owner of the FASIT upon the transfer of assets to a FASIT. Assets that are acquired by the FASIT from someone other than its owner are treated as if they were acquired by the owner and then contributed to the FASIT. In addition, any assets of the FASIT owner or a related person that are used to support FASIT regular interests are treated as contributed to the FASIT and thus also are treated as sold at the earliest date that such assets support any FASIT's regular interests.[78] To the extent provided by Treasury regulations, gain recognition on the contributed assets may be deferred until such assets support regular interests issued by the FASIT or any indebtedness of the owner or related person. These regulations may adjust other statutory FASIT provisions to the extent such provisions are inconsistent with such regulations. For example, such regulations may disqualify certain assets as permitted assets.

A distribution of assets by a FASIT with respect to a regular or ownership interest generally is treated as a sale of the assets and distribution of the sale proceeds. The conferees understand that gain may be recognized if the FASIT distributes assets to retire a regular interest because such a transaction is treated as a sale or exchange.

The basis of any FASIT asset is increased by the amount of the taxable gain recognized on the contribution of the assets to, or distribution of the assets from, the FASIT.

Valuation rules

In general, except in the case of debt instruments, the value of FASIT assets is their fair market value. The conference agreement contains special rules for valuing debt instruments for purposes of computing gain on the transfer to or from a FASIT.[79] Under these rules, the value of debt instruments generally is the [78] The Senate amendment directly reached that result since it provided that any assets of the FASIT's owner or its related person are treated as sold at the earliest date that such assets support of the FASIT's regular interests.

---

[79] The Senate amendment provided that the valuation rules only applied in determining the value of assets contributed to the FASIT. The conference agreement extended the valuation rules to distributions from a FASIT.

sum of the present values of the reasonably expected cash flows from such obligations discounted over the weighted average life of such assets. The discount rate is 120 percent of the applicable Federal rate, compounded semiannually, or such other rate that the Treasury Secretary shall prescribe by regulations.[80] For purposes of determining the value of a pool of revolving loan accounts having substantially the same terms, each extension of credit (other than the accrual of interest) is treated as a separate debt instrument and the maturity of the instruments is determined using the reasonably anticipated periodic payment rate at which principal payments will be made as a proportion of their aggregate outstanding principal balances assuming that payments are applied to the earliest credit extensions. The conferees understand that reasonably expected cash flows from loans will reflect nonpayments (i.e., losses) and early payments (i.e., prepayments), but not costs of servicing the loans.

Related person

For purposes of the FASIT rules, a person is related to another person if that person bears a relationship to the other person specified in sections 267(b) or 707(b)(1), using a 20-percent ownership test instead of the 50-percent test, or such persons are engaged in trades or businesses under common control as determined under sections 52(a) or (b).

Effective date

The provisions of the conference agreement take effect on the date of enactment.

19. TREATMENT OF CONTRIBUTIONS IN AID OF CONSTRUCTION FOR WATER UTILITIES (SEC. 12861(A) OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present and prior law

The gross income of a corporation does not include contributions to its capital. A contribution to the capital of a corporation does not include any contribution in aid of construction or any other contribution as a customer or potential customer.

Prior to the enactment of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 (''1986 Act''), a regulated public utility that provided electric energy, gas, water, or sewage disposal services was allowed to treat any amount of money or property received from any person as a tax-free contribution to its capital so long as such amount: (1) was a contribution in aid of construction; and (2) was not included in the taxpayer's rate base for rate-making purposes. A contribution in aid of construction did not include a connection fee. The basis of any property acquired with a contribution in aid of construction was zero.

If the contribution was in property other than electric energy, gas, steam, water, or sewerage disposal facilities, such contribution was not includible in the utility's gross income so long as: (1) an [80] The Senate amendment provided that the discount rate be 130 percent of the applicable Federal rate (AFR). Since the conference agreement allows the reasonably expected cash flows to reflect losses, the conferees believe that the proper rate to discount those net cash flows should be 120 percent of the AFR.

amount at least equal to the amount of the contribution was expended for the acquisition or construction of tangible property that was used predominantly in the trade or business of furnishing utility services; (2) the expenditure occurred before the end of the second taxable year after the year that the contribution was received; and (3) certain records were kept with respect to the contribution and the expenditure. In addition, the statute of limitations for the assessment of deficiencies was extended in the case of these contributions.

These rules were repealed by the 1986 Act. Thus, after the 1986 Act, the receipt by a utility of a contribution in aid of construction is includible in the gross income of the utility, and the basis of property received or constructed pursuant to the contribution is not reduced.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment restores the contributions in aid of construction provisions that were repealed by the 1986 Act for regulated public utilities that provide water or sewerage disposal services.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for amounts received after the date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

20. REQUIRE WATER UTILITY PROPERTY TO BE DEPRECIATED OVER 25 YEARS (SEC. 12861(B) OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Property used by a water utility in the gathering, treatment, and commercial distribution of water and municipal sewers are depreciated over a 20-year period for regular tax purposes. The depreciation method generally applicable to property with a recovery period of 20 years is the 150-percent declining balance method (switching to the straight-line method in the year that maximizes the depreciation deduction). The straight-line method applies to property with a recovery period over 20 years.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that water utility property will be depreciated using a 25-year recovery period and the straight-line method for regular tax purposes. For this purpose, "water utility property" means (1) property that is an integral part of the gathering, treatment, or commercial distribution of water, and that, without regard to the proposal, would have had a recovery period of 20 years and (2) any municipal sewer. Such property generally is described in Asset Classes 49.3 and 51 of Revenue Procedure 87–56, 1987–2 C.B. 674. The Senate amendment does not change the class lives of water utility property for purposes of the alternative depreciation system of section 168(g).

Effective date.—The provision is effective for property placed in service after the date of enactment, other than property placed in service pursuant to a binding contract in effect on such date and at all times thereafter before the property is placed in service.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

21. ALLOW AMORTIZATION FOR INTRASTATE OPERATING RIGHTS OF MOTOR CARRIERS (SEC. 12862 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law and background

A taxpayer is allowed to write-off and deduct the adjusted basis of property used in trade or business when such property becomes worthless (sec. 165). A deduction is not allowed if the property merely loses value but does not become worthless. For example, in CRST, Inc., 909 F2d. 1146 (8th Cir. 1990), a motor carrier was denied a worthlessness deduction for the basis of operating authorities that had become less valuable, but not worthless, due to deregulation.

Effective January 1, 1995, section 601 of the Federal Aviation Administration Authorization Act of 1994 preempts and prohibits State regulation of the price, route, or service of intrastate operations of motor carriers. In 1980, Congress similarly deregulated the operation of interstate motor carriers. Pursuant to section 266 of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981, Congress allowed taxpayers who held operating authorities as of the effective date of such deregulation to amortize the adjusted basis of the authorities over a 60-month period.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment allows a taxpayer who held, on January 1, 1995, one or more operating authorities that were preempted by section 601 of the Federal Aviation Administration Authorization Act of 1994, to amortize the aggregate adjusted bases of such authorities ratably (i.e., on straight-line basis) over the 36-month period beginning January 1, 1995. The amortization deductions provided under the amendment are treated as depreciation deductions for purposes of the Internal Revenue Code.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years ending on or after January 1, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

22. ESTABLISH 15-YEAR RECOVERY PERIOD FOR RETAIL MOTOR FUELS OUTLET STORES (SEC. 12863 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Under present law, property used in the retail gasoline trade is depreciated under section 168 using a 15-year recovery period and the 150-percent declining balance method. Nonresidential real property (such as a convenience store) is depreciated using a 39-year recovery period and the straight-line method. It is understood that taxpayers generally have taken the position that convenience stores and other buildings installed at retail motor fuels outlets have a 15-year recovery period. The IRS, in a position described in a recent Coordinated Issues Paper, generally limits the application of the 15-year recovery period to instances where the structure: (1) is 1,400 square feet or less or (2) meets a 50-percent test. The 50-percent test is met if: (1) 50 percent or more of the gross revenues that are generated from the building are derived from petroleum sales and (2) 50 percent or more of the floor space in the building is devoted to petroleum marketing sales.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that 15-year property includes any section 1250 property (generally, depreciable real property) that is a retail motor fuels outlet (whether or not food or other convenience items are sold at the outlet). A retail motor fuels outlet does not include any facility related to petroleum or natural gas trunk pipelines or to any section 1250 property used only to an insubstantial extent in the retail marketing of petroleum or petroleum products.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for property placed in service before, on, or after the date of enactment and to which the amendments made by section 201 of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 apply (i.e., property subject to the modified Accelerated Cost Recovery System of sec. 168). The taxpayer may elect to forego the application of the provision for any property placed in service prior to the date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with modifications.

The conference agreement provides a 20-year class life for retail motor fuels outlets for purposes of the alternative depreciation system of section 168(g).

In addition, the conferees wish to clarify what types of property qualify as a retail motor fuels outlet. Section 1250 property will so qualify if it meets a 50-percent test. The 50-percent test is met if : (1) 50 percent or more of the gross revenues that are generated from the property are derived from petroleum sales or (2) 50 percent or more of the floor space in the property is devoted to petroleum marketing sales. The conferees intend that the determination of whether either prong of this test is met will be made pursuant to the recent Coordinated Issue Paper. Property not meeting the test will not qualify as a retail motor fuels outlet. For property placed in service in taxable years that end after the date of enactment, the determination of whether the property meets the 50-percent test generally will be made in the year the property is placed in service. However, the test may be applied in the subsequent taxable year if the property is placed in service near the end of the taxable year and the use of the property during such short period is not representative of the subsequent use of the property. The conferees intend that with respect to property placed in service in taxable years that ended before the date of enactment of the provision, the determination of whether the property meets the 50-percent test generally will be made in a manner consistent with the manner in which the 50-percent test of the current Coordinated Issues Paper is applied (but by substituting the disjunctive test of the conference agreement for the present conjunctive test of the Paper). The conferees also intend that if property meets (or fails to meet) the 50-percent test but subsequently fails to meet (or meets) such test for more than a temporary period, such failure (or qualification) may be treated as a change in the use of property to which section 168(I)(5) applies.

In addition, property the size of which is 1,400 square feet or less also will qualify if such property would have qualified under the current Coordinated Issues Paper.

23. APPLICATION OF FAILURE-TO-PAY PENALTY TO SUBSTITUTE RETURNS (SEC. 13639 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12871 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

Section 6651(a)(2) provides that the IRS may assess a penalty for failure to pay tax from the due date of the return until the tax is paid. If no return is filed by the taxpayer and the IRS files a substitute return under section 6020, the tax on which the penalty is measured is considered a deficiency assessable under section 6212 or 6213, and the failure to pay penalty begins to accumulate 10 days after the IRS sends the taxpayer a notice and demand for payment of the tax.

House bill

The House bill applies the failure to file penalty to substitute returns in the same manner as the penalty applies to delinquent filers.

Effective date.—The provision applies in the case of any return the due date for which (determined without regard to extensions) is after the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

24. REPEAL EXEMPTION FOR WITHHOLDING ON GAMBLING WINNINGS FROM BINGO AND KENO WHERE PROCEEDS EXCEED $5,000 (SEC. 13633 OF THE HOUSE BILL AND SEC. 12872 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

In general, proceeds from a wagering transaction are subject to withholding at a rate of 28 percent if the proceeds exceed $5,000 and are at least 300 times as large as the amount wagered. No withholding tax is imposed on winnings from bingo or keno.

House bill

The House bill imposes withholding on proceeds from bingo or keno wagering transactions at a rate of 28 percent if such proceeds exceed $5,000, regardless of the odds of the wager.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on January 1, 1996.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

25. TREATMENT OF CERTAIN GAINS AND LOSSES OF LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES UNDER SECTION 818(B) (SEC. 12873 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

In the case of a taxpayer that is a corporation, losses from the sale or exchange of a capital asset generally are allowed only to the extent of gains from such sales or exchanges (sec. 1211(a)). A loss on the sale or exchange of property used in the trade or business of the taxpayer, however, is treated as an ordinary loss, rather than as a loss from the sale or exchange of a capital asset (secs. 1221(2)). In addition, if losses from property used in the trade or business equal or exceed a taxpayer's gains from such property, then the gains and losses are treated as ordinary (sec. 1231).

A special limitation on ordinary loss treatment applies in the case of a life insurance company, under section 818(b). Section 818(b) provides that property used in the trade or business includes only property used in carrying on an insurance business. Thus, for example, a loss on the sale or exchange of real estate that is held by a life insurance company and that is not used in the insurance business is treated as a capital loss, and is allowed only to the extent of the taxpayer's capital gain.

Capital losses of a corporation generally may be carried back to each of the three taxable years preceding the loss year, and forward to each of the five taxable years succeeding the loss year (sec. 1212).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Under the Senate amendment, capital loss treatment under present-law section 818(b) does not apply to 85 percent of a life insurance company's losses from the sale or exchange of foreclosed real estate. Losses from such property are treated as ordinary losses allowable in equal amounts over each of the first 10 taxable years following the year of disposition. Present-law capital loss treatment under section 818(b) is retained for the remaining 15 percent of such losses. Foreclosure property means real property used in the trade or business that is acquired by a life insurance company as the result of (1) such company having bid on such property at foreclosure, or (2) such company having otherwise reduced such property to ownership or possession by agreement or process of law, after there was a default (or default was imminent) on indebtedness which such property secured.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1994.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with modifications.

Under the conference agreement, a life insurance company may elect ordinary loss treatment for up to 20 percent of the losses for a taxable year from the sale or exchange of foreclosure property. The amount of the loss from foreclosure property for which the taxpayer elects ordinary loss treatment is amortized and recognized ratably over the 10-taxable-year period beginning with the taxable year following the taxable year in which the sale or exchange of the foreclosure property occurred.

Two further elections are provided under the conference agreement, in addition to the first election under the provision described in the previous paragraph. Under the second election, the taxpayer may elect for any of the taxable years in a "change period" to change the percentage of the loss from sale or exchange of foreclosure property that was treated as ordinary loss and amortized over a 10-taxable-year period. In no event may the percentage exceed 20 percent of the loss from sale or exchange of foreclosure property for the taxable year of such sale or exchange. If the taxpayer elects to change the percentage, the changed percentage is treated as if it were the percentage the taxpayer elected in the year of the sale or exchange of the foreclosure property. Proper adjustments must be made for all taxable years to reflect the change. The "change period" is the 3-taxable-year period following the taxable year in which the sale or exchange of the foreclosure property occurred.

For purposes of the statute of limitations only, any such change in the percentage made during the "change period" is treated as a capital loss carryback from the year of the change.

The conference agreement provides a third election. The taxpayer may elect to treat as a capital loss arising in the taxable year of this third election any unused amount of an ordinary loss from sale or exchange of foreclosure property that was amortized over a 10-taxable-year period under the provision. The unused amount of such a loss is the amount of the amortizable portion of the loss that has not been recognized as of the close of the preceding taxable year. This third election may be made only for any taxable year in the 5-taxable-year period following the taxable year in which the sale or exchange of the foreclosure property occurred.[81]

An ordering rule is provided under the third election. The unused amount of the loss is treated as coming first from the last taxable year in the 10-taxable year period of amortization, and then from each preceding taxable year in reverse chronological order.

Any of the elections under the provision must be made on or before the due date (including extensions) for the tax return of the taxable year of the election.

The definition of foreclosure property and the effective date are the same as provided in the Senate amendment.

26. CLARIFY TREATMENT OF NEWSPAPER DISTRIBUTORS AND CARRIERS AS DIRECT SELLERS (SEC. 12874 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

For Federal tax purposes, there are two classifications of workers: a worker is either an employee of the service recipient or an independent contractor. Significant tax consequences result from the classification of a worker as an employee or independent contractor. These differences relate to withholding and employment tax requirements, as well as the ability to exclude certain types of compensation from income or take tax deductions for certain expenses. Some of these consequences favor employee status, while others favor independent contractor status. For example, an employee may exclude from gross income employer-provided benefits such as pension, health, and group-term life insurance benefits. On the other hand, an independent contractor can establish his or her own pension plan and deduct contributions to the plan. An independent contractor also has greater ability to deduct work-related expenses.

Under present law, the determination of whether a worker is an employee or an independent contractor is generally made under a 20-factor common-law facts and circumstances test that seeks to determine whether the service provider is subject to the control of the service recipient, not only as to the nature of the work performed, but the circumstances under which it is performed. Under a special safe harbor rule (sec. 530 of the Revenue Act of 1978), a service recipient may treat a worker as an independent contractor for employment tax purposes even though the worker is an employee under the common-law test if the service recipient has a reasonable basis for treating the worker as an independent contractor and certain other requirements are met.

In addition to the 20-factor common-law test, there are also some persons who are treated by statute as either employees or independent contractors. For example, "direct sellers" are deemed to be independent contractors. A direct seller is a person engaged in the trade or business of selling consumer products in the home or otherwise than in a permanent retail establishment, if substantially all the remuneration for the performance of the services is directly related to sales or other output rather than to the number of hours worked, and the services performed by the person are performed pursuant to a written contract between such person and the service recipient and such contract provides that the person will not be treated as an employee for Federal tax purposes.

[81] This period parallels the 5-year period during which the taxpayer could have carried forward the loss, had it been a capital loss.

The newspaper industry has generally taken the position that newspaper distributors and carriers should be treated as direct sellers for income and employment tax purposes. The Internal Revenue Service has generally taken the position that the direct seller rules do not apply to newspaper distributors and carriers operating under an agency distribution system (i.e., where the publisher retains title to the newspapers).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment clarifies the treatment of qualifying newspaper distributors and carriers as direct sellers. Under the Senate amendment, a person engaged in the trade or business of the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news (including any services that are directly related to such trade or business such as solicitation of customers or collection of receipts) qualifies as a direct seller, provided substantially all the remuneration for the performance of the services is directly related to sales or other output rather than to the number of hours worked, and the services performed by the person are performed pursuant to a written contract between such person and the service recipient and such contract provides that the person will not be treated as an employee for Federal tax purposes. The provision is intended to apply to newspaper distributors and carriers whether or not they hire others to assist in the delivery of newspapers. The provision also applies to newspaper distributors and carriers operating under either a buy-sell distribution system (i.e., where the newspaper distributors or carriers purchase the newspapers from the publisher) or an agency distribution system. For example, newspaper distributors and carriers operating under an agency distribution system who are paid based on the number of papers delivered and have an appropriate written agreement qualify as direct sellers. The status of newspaper distributors and carriers who do not qualify as direct sellers under the proposal continue to be determined under present-law rules. No inference is intended with respect to the employment status of newspaper distributors and carriers prior to the effective date of the provision.

Effective date.—The provision is effective with respect to services performed after December 31, 1995.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment. This provision is intended to clarify the worker classification issue for income and employment taxes only. The conferees do not intend this provision to have any impact whatsoever on the interpretation or applicability of Federal, State, or local labor laws.

27. ALLOW BANK COMMON TRUST FUNDS TO TRANSFER ASSETS TO REGULATED INVESTMENT COMPANIES WITHOUT TAXATION (SEC. 12875 OF THE SENATE AMENDMENT)

Present law

The common trust fund of a bank is not subject to tax and is not treated as a corporation. Each participant in a common trust fund includes his proportional share of common trust fund income, whether or not the income is distributed or distributable. Participants generally treat their admission to the fund as the purchase of an interest. Withdrawals from the fund generally are treated as the sale of an interest by the participant.

A RIC also is treated as a conduit for Federal income tax purposes. Present law is unclear as to the tax consequences when a common trust fund transfers its assets to one or more RICs.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment permits a common trust fund to transfer substantially all of its assets to one or more RICs without gain or loss being recognized by the fund or its participants. The fund must transfer its assets to the RICs solely in exchange for shares of the RICs, and the fund must then distribute the RIC shares to the fund's participants in exchange for the participant's interests in the fund.

The basis of any asset that is received by a RIC will be the basis of the asset in the hands of the fund prior to transfer. In addition, the basis of any RIC shares that are received by a fund participant will be an allocable portion of the participant's basis in the interests exchanged.

Effective date.—Transfers after December 31, 1995.

28. REMOVE BUSINESS EXCLUSION FOR ENERGY SUBSIDIES PROVIDED BY PUBLIC UTILITIES (SEC. 13622 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Internal Revenue Code section 136, as added by the Energy Policy Act of 1992, provides an exclusion from the gross income of a customer of a public utility for the value of any subsidy provided by the utility for the purchase or installation of an energy conservation measure with respect to a dwelling unit (as defined by sec. 280A(f)(1)). In addition, for subsidies received after 1994, section 136 provides a partial exclusion from gross income for the value of any subsidy provided by a utility for the purchase or installation of an energy conservation measure with respect to property that is not a dwelling unit. The amount of the exclusion is 40 percent of the value for subsidies received in 1995, 50 percent of the value for subsidies received in 1996, and 65 percent of the value for subsidies received after 1996.

For this purpose, an energy conservation measure is any installation or modification primarily designed to reduce consumption of electricity or natural gas or to improve the management of energy demand with respect to property. With respect to property other than a dwelling unit, an energy conservation measure includes "specially defined energy property" (generally, property described in sec. 48(l)(5) of the Code as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1990).

The exclusion does not apply to payments made to or from a qualified cogeneration facility or a qualifying small power production facility pursuant to section 210 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policy Act of 1978.

Section 136 denies a deduction or credit to a taxpayer (or in appropriate cases requires a reduction in the adjusted basis of property of a taxpayer) for any expenditure to the extent that a subsidy related to the expenditure was excluded from the gross income of the taxpayer.

House bill

The House bill repeals the partial exclusion for any subsidy provided by a utility for the purchase or installation of an energy conservation measure with respect to property that is not a dwelling unit.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for subsidies received after September 13, 1995, unless received pursuant to a binding written contract in effect on that date and all times thereafter.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that the provision is effective for subsidies received after December 31, 1995, unless received pursuant to a binding written contract in effect on September 13, 1995, and all times thereafter.

29. REQUIRE TAXPAYERS TO INCLUDE RENTAL VALUE OF RESIDENCE IN INCOME WITHOUT REGARD TO PERIOD OF RENTAL (SEC. 13640 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Gross income for purposes of the Internal Revenue Code generally includes all income from whatever source derived, including rents. The Code (sec. 280A(g)) provides a de minimis exception to this rule where a dwelling unit is used during the taxable year by the taxpayer as a residence and such dwelling unit is actually rented for less than 15 days during the taxable year. In this case, the income from such rental is not included in gross income and no deductions arising from such rental use are allowed as a deduction.

House bill

The House bill repeals the 15-day rule of section 280A(g). It also provides that no reduction in basis is required if the taxpayer:

(1) rented the dwelling unit for less than 15 days during the taxable year and (2) did not claim depreciation on the dwelling unit for the period of rental.

Effective date.—Taxable years beginning after December 31, 1995.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement does not include the House bill provision.

30. ALLOW CONVERSION OF SCHOLARSHIP FUNDING CORPORATION TO TAXABLE CORPORATION (SEC. 13641 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

Qualified scholarship funding corporations are nonprofit corporations established and operated exclusively for the purpose of acquiring student loan notes incurred under the Higher Education Act of 1965 (sec. 150(d)). In addition, a qualified scholarship funding corporation must be required by its corporate charter and bylaws, or under State law, to devote any income (after payment of expenses, debt service and the creation of reserves for the same) to the purchase of additional student loan notes or to pay over any income to the United States.

In general, State and local government bonds issued to finance private loans (e.g., student loans) are taxable private activity bonds. However, interest on qualified student loan bonds is tax-exempt. Qualified scholarship funding corporations are eligible issuers of qualified student loan bonds.

The Internal Revenue Code restricts the direct and indirect investment of bond proceeds in higher yielding investments and requires that profits on investments that are unrelated to the government purpose for which the bonds are issued be rebated to the United States. Special allowance payments (SAP) made by the Department of Education are treated as interest on notes and, therefore, are permitted arbitrage that need not be rebated to the United States.

Generally, a private foundation and disqualified persons may, in the aggregate, own 20 percent of the voting stock of a functionally unrelated corporation.

House bill

In general.—The House bill provides that a nonprofit student loan funding corporation may elect to cease its status as a qualified scholarship funding corporation. If the corporation meets the requirements outlined below, such an election will not cause any bond outstanding as of the date of the issuer's election and any bond issued to refund such a bond to fail to be a qualified student loan bond. Once made, an election may be revoked only with the consent of the Secretary of Treasury. After making the election, the issuer is not authorized to issue any new bonds.

Requirements.—First, upon making the election, the issuer is required to transfer all of the student loan notes to another, taxable, corporation in exchange for senior stock of such corporation within a reasonable period of time after the election is made. Immediately after the transfer, the issuer, and any other issuer who made the election, is required to hold all of the senior stock of the corporation. Senior stock is stock whose rights to dividends, liquidation or redemption rights are not inferior to those of any other class of stock and that (1) participates pro rata and fully in the equity value of any other common stock of the corporation, (2) has the right to payments receivable in liquidation prior to any other stock in the corporation, (3) upon liquidation or redemption, has a fixed right to receive the greater of (a) the fair market value of the stock at the date of liquidation or redemption or (b) the net fair market value of all assets transferred to the corporation by the issuer, and (4) has a right to require its redemption by a date which is not later than 10 years after the date that the election is made.

Second, the transferee corporation is required to assume or otherwise provide for the payment of all the qualified scholarship funding bond indebtedness of the issuer within a reasonable period after the election.

Third, immediately after the transfer, the issuer (i.e., the nonprofit student loan funding corporation) is required to become a charitable organization (described in section 501(c)(3) that is exempt from tax under section 501(a)), at least 80 percent of the members of its board of directors must be independent members, and it must hold all of the senior stock of the corporation.

Excess business holdings.—For purposes of the excess business holding restrictions imposed on a private foundation, the charity would not be required to divest its ownership in a corporation most of whose assets are student loan notes incurred under the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

31. APPLY LOOK-THROUGH RULE FOR PURPOSES OF CHARACTERIZING CERTAIN SUBPART F INSURANCE INCOME AS UNRELATED BUSINESS TAXABLE INCOME (SEC. 13642 OF THE HOUSE BILL)

Present law

An organization that is exempt from tax by reason of Code section 501(a) (e.g., a charity, business league, or qualified pension trust) is nonetheless subject to tax on its unrelated business taxable income (UBTI) (sec. 511). Unrelated business taxable income generally excludes dividend income (sec. 512(b)(1)).
